Class Trips Help Cascade Students Enjoy School Life

Thirty-five youngsters make up the kindergarten class of Mrs. Dorothy Cheney at Cascade school. Finger painting, drawing, stories and a rythm band help the children make the adjustment from home to school. John VanOevern, 6th and 7th grades, stresses the importance of arithmetic, spelling and English as an indispensable part of the future school and business life. His class plans a trip to Detroit late in the spring.

Mrs. Dorothy Cheney, kindergarten teacher at Cascade has 35 youngsters in her class. Kindergarten at Cascade is held only in the morning at the present time.

This is the 4th year for Mrs. Cheney at the local school and she was a former teacher in Elmhurst, Illinois.

Believing in shaping the creative ability of her pupils, Mrs. Cheney keeps her young charges busy with their own designs, drawings and paintings. She believes activity of this type helps to develop muscular coordination and will help her pupils when they move on to the first grade and begin writing.

The rythm band is popular with the youngsters and group singing and periods of record playing help to develop an appreciation and knowledge of music.

Finger painting and story time also help the pupils feel at home and responsibility is taught by allowing the class members to take turns passing out the milk and crackers that make up their daily snack time.

Mrs. Cheyne states that the adjustment from home to school is a great one and impressions gained in the kindergarten often determine whether a child will like school in the other grades.

A trip to Grand Rapids on the school bus and a train ride back to Ada is planned by the class and in preparation for the event playing "train" is a popular game at the present time. Chairs are arranged in rows and "tickets" are purchased at a classroom office. By the time the real trip rolls around, the class will know some of the necessary preliminaries essential to travel on a train or bus.

Film strips and movies about various subjects are also part of the curriculum and help the class gain a well rounded introduction to the many years of school life that lie ahead of them.

John VanOevern, who formerly taught at the Fairview school in Grand Rapids is spending his first year as teacher of the 6th and 7th grades at Cascade.

Concentrating on arithmetic, English and spelling, Van Oeveren believes that these three subjects are the most essential for students in his class age group.

Van Oeveren stated that whether or not the student goes on to high school or college, these three subjects are necessary in every phase of school work or business.

Arithmetic for example is brought home in a practical way by having the class perform realistic problems dealing with the payment of light bills, finding the number of square feet for painting or building purposes around the home, and other examples that are a part of our every day life. Drill and the use of the blackboard to illustrate these facts are also used to advantage.

The new Social Studies books are an effective aid in making world history and geography a living subject for the students. The former dull chapters of dates and vital statistics have given way to interesting reasons and explanations of why events in history took place and the effect they have on our present day of life.

Plans are being made for a trip to Detroit this spring. A visit to the zoo and the Detroit-Yankee ball game will be the points of interest. Van Oeveren also stated that the interest and cooperation of the parents in the Cascade district has made the work of the teachers a pleasant and fruitful task.

Eastmont Church To Have Parsonage

Construction of a parsonage for the Eastmont Reformed Church will begin next month on the corner of Ada Dr. and Forrest Hill ave, according to Henry Willemstein, chairman of the building committee.

Work will be done by members of the congregation and according to Willemstein, church members will be able to handle the entire job except for the plastering. Carpenters, electricians, plumbers and painters in the church will take charge of the various jobs as the work progresses.

At present without a minister, the congregation has extended a call to Collins Weber, a student at Western Seminary, a part of Hope College in Holland, Michigan.

Six large lots in the Lock plat, developed last fall by Pleun Lock, well known farmer in the Eastmont section, were obtained by the church and eventually a church will be constructed at that site.

Michigan was first in the nation in the development of roadside parks and picnic tables.

New Bill Allows Townships To Hire Planners

Of interest to townships is new legislation introduced into the state legislature this past week.

One of the bills would give the power to the township board and zoning board to hire a professional planning director. This bill was introduced into the senate by Senator Charles R. Feenstra.

The other township bill was introduced in the House. It would permit twps. with a police force to pass ordinances affecting the public health, welfare and safety. Furthermore, any fines collected from violations of these ordinances would go to the township.

There is one important exception which has to do with the fines now received by public libraries. These come from traffic violations on state highways. Under the new bill the libraries would still continue to get those fines exactly as they have in the past.

Tuesday's game with Oakleigh ended with a 28-27 score and was lost on a foul shot in the last few seconds of play.

According to Ferris Post, coach, Jim Lawrence was star of the game with 17 points to his credit. Bob DeGreen and Lee Bruinekool played good defensive ball also and the Ada team is considered a match for any other in their class.

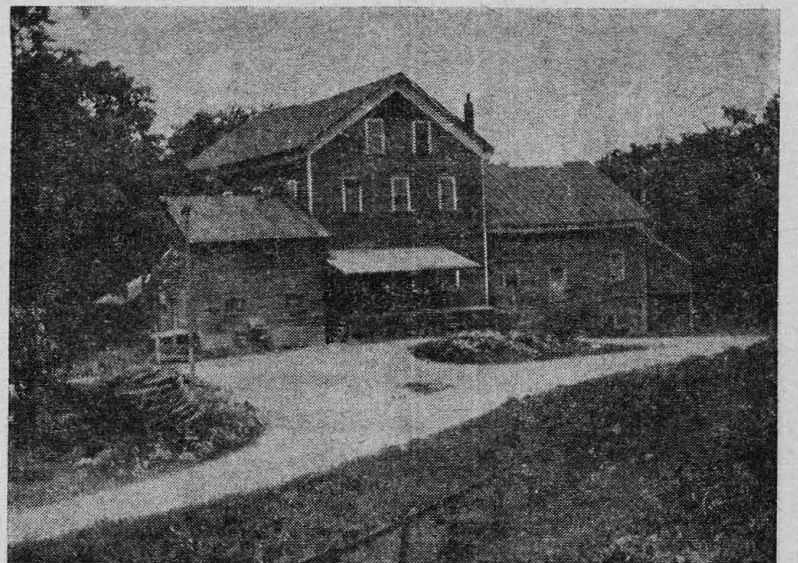

In the preliminary game Ada Christian was the loser by 28 points.

Old Mill Was Part of Ada's Early History

Shown is a copy of the picture presented to the Ada township Board by Ralph Sission. This old mill was built in 1859 at a cost of $15,000. It served farmers in the Ada area for many years before it was torn down in 1926.

Familiar to old time residents of Ada was the White Mill, torn down in 1926. Built in 1859 at a cost of $15,000 by a Captain Small, the business changed hands several times in it's history.

The early records of the township show that the first dam was also built at the same time and it is possible that the cost of the dam is included with that of the mill.

Dewell and Company purchased the building from Small. Later it was sold to a William Curry. In 1880, D. F. Watson purchased a half interest in the building.

Annual production of the mill was 12,000 barrels of processed grain. Ralph (Sammy) Sission, who presented the Ada township board with an enlargement of the accompanying picture, helped tear the old structure down in 1926. Sission stated that white pine timbers, completely without knots and 30 feet long formed the framework for the building.

An earlier mill known as the Red Mill, was built by John L. Clements in the summer of 1856. This building was erected at a cost of $7,000.

Clements was a former sailor on the Great Lakes. In 1857 he platted the south part of Ada village. After operating the mill for 2 years, he sold out and became a farmer in the vicinity of Ada.

Sission, who took this and many other pictures of early century life in and around the village, stated that a railroad siding used to go to the White Mill. The boiler from the old building was later used to operate dragging machinery when the present dam was built.

Cascade Youth Group Will Hold Carnival

Harold Richardson, Pat Kelley, chairmen of the Chi Rho Carnival, Dick Paauwe, Susan Keck, Karon Snyder and Nancy Charters, show some of the many articles which will be sold at the "Company Store Carnival" to be held in the basement of the Cascade Christian church Saturday, Feb. 25.

INCOME TAX FACTS No. 2 Save Money with the Right Form

(This is one of a series of articles on federal income tax filing. The articles are based on information provided by the American Institute of Accountants and the Michigan Society of Certified Public Accountants.)

The government provides two forms for individual income tax returns. If you choose the wrong one, you may automatically cut yourself off from many possible tax savings.

The easiest way to file is to use the simple Form 1040A. It's a card the size of a check, which anyone can fill out if he is able to write his name and address and a few other simple facts. You just send it in with your withholding slips and the government takes care of the rest. If you owe more tax than was withheld you will get a bill for the difference. If more was withheld than you owe, you will get a refund check.

The tax rules permit you to use the card form if your gross income consisted only of wages, dividends or interest totaling less than $5,000, and if you did not have more than $100 of gross income apart from that listed on your W-2 withholding slips.

Stop, Look, Listen

Before deciding to use the card Form 1040A, you should consider these facts:

- Your tax will be figured from a table which allows you a deduction of about 10% of your income instead of itemized deductions for contributions, taxes, interest paid, medical and dental expenses, etc.
- There is no provision in this form for filing as the "head of a household," as a "surviving spouse," or for claiming special credits for dividends and retirement income.

If you are sure that these two points would not cost you any tax savings, and your income is within the limits for filing a Form 1040A, you might as well use this simple card form.

If you decide to use the regular Form 1040, you still have the choice of itemizing your deductions or using a standard deduction which generally amounts to about 10% of your income.

You are likely to save by itemizing your deductions if you:

- Own real estate.
- Had unusual medical expense.
- Had deductible child-care expense.
- Suffered losses from fire, storm, accident, or theft.

- Made fairly large contributions.
- Had certain expenses in connection with your work, as explained below.

Business Expenses

If you are in business for yourself, you can deduct your reasonable and necessary business expenses on separate Schedule C before arriving at your adjusted gross income on page one of the tax form. This still leaves you the choice of itemizing your other deductions or using the 10% standard deduction.

If you are an outside salesman, the same applies except that you should attach a list instead of separate Schedule C.

Other employees are entitled to a deduction for unreimbursed expenses in connection with their work, but expenses other than those listed below can be deducted only if all deductions are itemized instead of using the 10% standard deduction:

- Transportation expenses in connection with your employer's business, including fares and automobile expenses. (Expenses of commuting are not deductible in any case.)
- Meals and lodging while traveling away from home for your employer.

Form 1040 has been rearranged this year, so that although it still contains four pages a taxpayer whose income was entirely from wages needs to use only the first one or two pages. Pages 3 and 4 are for other types of income and for computing the special credits for dividends and retirement income.

The instructions that come with your tax forms give further information. Help is also available from the Internal Revenue Service, which urges you to consult a properly qualified advisor if you need outside assistance.

The Chi Rho Youth Group of Cascade Christian Church will have their carnival Saturday, Feb. 25, at the Church in Cascade from two to nine P. M. Their interesting theme "The Company Store" reflects their wide-awake plans for an interesting day for all age groups. The Youth Group is made-up of Junior High boys and girls and their leaders are Mr. and Mrs. Karl Keck.

Plans are to sell handicraft of more than ordinary quality. They are anticipating the spring demand for bird feeders and bird houses and will also offer slotted wall-type letter holders, convenient articles for the kitchen such as knife holders, bread boards, clothes closet accessories, potted plants and baked goods. Refreshments will be sold. There will be movies and games for fun.

The group is working especially hard to obtain funds that they may contribute their share towards the new choir robes purchased for the church and for camping fees for those members of the group attending the church camp at Crystal Beach near Beulah.

Martin Pupils Visit Grand Rapids Library

Friday Feb. 17, the pupils of the Martin School 3rd grade had the opportunity of visiting the Grand Rapids Public Library. This trip was arranged by their teacher Mrs. Bayer and transportation provided by the mother's of the third grade pupils.

Mrs. Bayer's purpose in taking the children to the library was to acquaint them with the children's reading room and also to give the children an idea as to the many different kinds of books that are available to them by their parents purchasing a library card for a small fee of $1.00 a year.

The puppets that the 3rd graders made a few weeks ago are at the present time on display at the public library.

Cascade Has New Correspondent

Cascade residents will be pleased to know that we have a new correspondent to take the place of Mrs. Roger Wykes, Jr., who served both Suburban Life and The Ledger so well and faithfully.

Mrs. Nick Duiven, 7112 Cascade rd., has agreed to take over the task and we wish to thank her and introduce her to our subscribers.

Mrs. Duiven is well qualified to take the place of our former correspondent. For the past several months she has been publishing the Cascade Mother's Club Bulletin, a paper well known to all the parents of children attending Cascade school.

Issued monthly, the newsheet carries a full report of all school activities and information and is well received by the parents. Two hundred and seventy-five copies are put out each month.

Gathering and editing the news for this paper is done entirely by Mrs. Duiven (with cooperation from the staff of the school, of course) and thus the transition from the school paper to newspaper will undoubtedly work quite nicely.

Cascade area residents may contact Mrs. Duiven at her home and inform her of the various meetings, weddings, etc., that are taking place in their area. Only with the cooperation of our subscribers, can she gather the news each week.

So, although Cascade will undoubtedly receive better coverage than it has since our former correspondent "retired", it will still be up to you, the reader, to get the complete coverage we want you to have.

Martin P. T. A. Has Entertainment

The Martin School P. T. A. was held Tuesday, Feb. 14, with a business meeting and entertainment furnished by The Swanson Brothers, who did a marvelous job. Refreshments were furnished by the mothers of the third grade pupils.

The third grade pupils are really eager to keep the "Honor Banner" in their room as they had the most parents present and the banner again is proudly displayed in their room for the third time. Let's give the 3rd grade a little competition next month and see more parents from the other grades attending the P.T.A. meetings.

Your Washington Review

by Congressman JERRY FORD

With all the verbal hurly-burly about America's position today in military preparedness, it might be well to take a sober and documented look at just exactly where we do stand and what the outlook is for the future.

Our defense forces right now can handle immediately any emergency arising in a limited type of warfare, and also can handle the initial phases of a really big war. But in the event of a big war, after the first big bang we must rely on our civilian components and our industrial capacity. A well-rounded program, such as we now have, takes into account the possibilities of both a limited and general war.

In past years, we have been plagued with a "feast or famine" kind of defense program, first way up and then way down. Now we are on a leveled-off, long-pull program, designed to be effective in both the short-run eventuality and the long-run eventuality.

The Army, for example, has not been cut back. Instead, it has been leveled off at the long-pull strength. Not only are we stronger now in personnel than we were before Korea, but we have better equipment, thanks to encouraged technology. Research and development of new weapons and new methods are both expensive and necessary to maintain a strong and adequate defense force. Missile development is vital, and for 1957 about 10 per cent of the procurement expenditures of the Army, Navy, and Air Force will be for this top priority program.

Let's take an item-by-item reading on defense procurement expenditures. The procurement program in aircraft is showing steady and constructive progress. Ships and harbor craft are being procured in line with the progressive modernization of our fleet. The ammunition situation is very good, especially as compared with the Korean War period. In addition to substantial stocks on hand, we are keeping the ammunition production lines in limited action so they could be readily vitalized in event of an emergency.

Major strides have been made in the field of guided missiles with ranges up to 5,000 miles. These advances are necessarily dependent on research and development. Even so, expenditures for missiles show a sizable increase again this year; more than double what was spent two years ago. Electronics and communications will take about three times as much in expenditures this year as last year, generally reflecting an expanded and improved radar defense and communications system. An early warning in case of attack could be much more important than all the retaliation in the world.

Finally, expenditures for reserve components will be up next year to cover the projected expansion in reserve personnel in drill-pay status, which will climb to more than one million men during the next year. This is a sound program in many ways. Financially it costs only about $1,000 annually per man in reserve status, whereas for men on active military duty the annual cost to the taxpayers is about $6,000 per man.

All in all, the defense situation right now is a healthy one, regardless of all the howls sent up by the criers of military doom and gloom. And we mean to keep it that way.

It might be wise to remember that President Eisenhower, a pretty fair military leader and strategist for many years, personally approved our present national defense program which is predicated on sufficient strength to deter any potential enemy and keep the peace. In addition Ike's national defense policies which my committee is now reviewing are aimed at winning any war if the Soviets should be foolish enough to initiate such action.

Undersea Trip

As a member of the military subcommittee of the House Committee on Appropriations, your Congressman has been invited to take a short trip on the atomic-powered submarine, The Nautilus. The overnight trip over the Atlantic ocean floor will start from New London, Conn., on Friday, Feb. 24 at noon, and wind up Saturday morning back at New London. The Nautilus is the first atomic-powered submarine made by the United States, and is a prime example of the importance of research in the overall scheme of defense.

"Thank You Ma'm"

The Post Office Department is mighty pleased at the reception of its experimental change-making stamp vending machine which also talks. It says more than "Thank You," and can give important messages about postal service to patrons. When the final decision is made on widespread use of the machine, it could result in better service to patrons who wouldn't have to stand in line to buy stamps or obtain change, and also relieve harried postal clerks of some of the more routine duties so they could devote more time to other more important jobs. The talking feature, incidentally, adds only about $30 to the cost of the machine and not the huge amount some sources have suggested.

Lights Arrive For Ada Ballfield

Flood lights for the Ada ball field have arrived and at the present time are stored, awaiting installation of the poles, at the Ada Plumbing and Heating building in Ada.

Thirty-two lights were ordered and they are the latest in design, ideally suited for outdoor use. Each light puts out 1,500 watts and has a glass cover so insects cannot get at the bulb itself. All aluminum, a simple snap arrangement on the back of the lights permits new bulbs to be installed in a matter of seconds.

The lights were purchased with money raised by the Ada Township Athletic Association in several fund raising projects.

Latest project of the group will be a pancake supper February 29. The event will be held at the Kent County Conservation League clubhouse on Conservation rd. The Club will be co-sponsors of the event.

ACE report

This past week we discovered in an unpleasant way, the very pleasant fact that our subscribers DO miss Suburban Life when they fail to receive their copy.

The telephone was busy ringing all day Monday and Tuesday and we were busy explaining to justifiably disgruntled subscribers that last week's issue was sent out as usual and somehow became lost in the mails between Lowell and Grand Rapids.

We also discovered in an exasperating series of phone calls, what "Passing the Buck" really means. No one in the Grand Rapids Post Office, either down town or Wealthy St. sub station, knew anything, about the situation. We either complained or attempted to complain to the wrong department, a man who had his day off when the papers were supposed to arrive, someone who referred us to someone else, a floorman (whatever that is) the complaint department, the office of a man who was out of town for the day, someone who "is in the building somewhere and should be back any minute" and a few miscellaneous secretaries who had nice voices.

The net result was, however, exactly what our GR route 3 and zone 6 subscribers already knew—Suburban Life was not delivered.

We discovered, in the course of many complaint calls to our office that Route 3 mail service is far from efficient at any time. We are sorry of course that you didn't receive your paper and certainly hope it will never happen again.

For a change our conscience is clear. Mistakes in the paper are almost always the fault of us here at the office and we are willing to admit it. This time however, we join our subscribers wholeheartedly, in their complaints and gnash our teeth loudly but ineffectually along with them.

Elsewhere in this week's issue a story appears about the Cascade firemen seeking pay for fire calls after the first hour of fighting a blaze.

Persons in this area are usually unaware of the dangers involved in fighting fires. As far as we know, none of our firemen have ever been seriously injured in line of duty, but this possibility exists, not only while actually battling a blaze, but also during the run to the fire. Motorists pay scant attention to the trucks and in other areas accidents have occurred on the highways between fire equipment and other vehicles.

Every blaze carries an element of danger—from smoke inhalation, from shattered glass, cuts from rusty nails, gas or oil explosions, bad falls, and many other causes.

Our volunteers have uncomplainingly faced these dangers in the past, have made runs under terrible weather conditions and have certainly done their part in giving the citizens of this area a sense of security.

In the Cascade area especially, these men gladly leave their places of business, customers sometimes waiting, to answer any call. We ask you, the people, if you think their request for $2 an hour, after the first free hour, is an unreasonable one. Would you be in favor of having your township pay $10 or $15 to keep your barn or home from burning?

Seems that three men were discussing the value of animals. The first believed the horse had done the most for mankind. The second favored the dog. The third gave top honors to the male crocodile. Since 90 per cent of the crocodile eggs are eaten by the male, he said if it wasn't for him, we'd be up to our hips in crocildes.

The world's largest open air fruit market is located at Benton Harbor, Michigan. It ships to 567 cities in 28 states.

Cascade Firemen Discuss Pay At Monday's Meet

Cascade township volunteer firemen decided at last Monday's meeting to petition the township board for a $2 an hour rate for fighting fires in the township. The recommendation, brought to a vote at the fire meeting, was OK'd 15 to 2.

The group stated that the first hour on any fire would not come under this recommendation. Most fires are quickly taken care of and thus the proposed rate would come into effect only on large stubborn blazes.

The volunteers also plan to ask the town board to look into the possibility of allotting money for a down payment on a new fire truck. Most fire equipment can be purchased under a five-year payment plan.

Fire Chief Sy Dykhouse was elected treasurer of the CVFFA (Civil Volunteer Fire Fighters Association) at the last meeting of that group, made up of numerous volunteer organizations in nearby counties and townships.

Extension Group Plan Furniture Store Tour

Next Tuesday evening, February 28, the Cascade Extension group will make a tour through the new Huizenga Brothers Furniture store on 28th st. near Madison ave.

The tour is a part of the group's study on "Furniture Selection". The new modern building recently opened by the Huizinghs who are well known in the retail furniture business is ideally arranged and suitably stocked for tours of this type.

After the tour dessert will be served at Mrs. Will George's home, 3373 Newcastle by Mrs. Rue Osmer and Mrs. James Pryor.

There were French explorers and fur traders in Michigan 14 years after the pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock in 1620.

It won't strain your eyes to look on the bright side of things.

POTLUCK SUPPER FOR CUB SCOUTS NO. 3334

The Cub Scout pack 3334 of Cascade school will have potluck supper this week Friday, February 24, in the school building.

The supper will begin at 6:30 sharp. Awards will be given and a 13 year old magician will give a demonstration of magic.

Many happy noisy hours will be spent by the Kindergarten children of Martin School since The Forest Hills Coffee Group bought and presented the school with a set of rythm band instruments.
