Four Newcomers Seek Office

Precedent will be established in Cascade township next Monday, February 18, when voters will go to the polls in the first primary election in township history. Talk around the township seems to indicate a good turnout although with no major issue at stake in township politics only the final tally of votes Monday evening will tell the story. The weather as usual could mean the difference between a light and heavy vote.

Four newcomers to the political scene will be on the ballot, three of them seeking a seat as trustee and the fourth running for Justice of the Peace.

On the ballots are unfilled spaces for the offices of constable and township committee members. Although no one is seeking these positions, it is possible to write a nomination in the spaces provided.

Twelve booths will be set up and although all of the details are not as yet completed, Sakson stated that a penny pitch, fish pond, beanguessing game, and a cake walk (with home made cakes as prizes) will be only a few of the attractions. Every member of the family will find something to take their fancy and it is hoped that a large crowd will attend the fun(d) raising affair.

Local Man Has Large Lincoln Library

John Lucas, Cascade rd., has what is probably the largest private collection in this area of books and pamphlets dealing with the various periods of the life of Abraham Lincoln. Lucas has over 100 books on this great President besides literally dozens of pamphlets. He has made several trips to Lincoln shrines in Illinois and has been collecting items about Lincoln since his boyhood.

John Lucas, Cascade rd., has what is undoubtedly the largest private collection of books concerning Abraham Lincoln in this part of the county, and possibly even Western Michigan. Over 100 books, dealing with all phases of Lincoln's life, from his boyhood to his death, grace the bookcase in the Lucas home and this number does not include the many pamphlets, brochures and newspaper clippings that he also has collected since the early part of the century.

Lucas also has a complete (except one issue) collection of publications put out by the Abraham Lincoln Association; now defunct. This monthly publication was printed every month for almost 50 years.

Another small pamphlet, "Lincoln Lore", put out monthly by the Lincoln National Life Insurance Company is also received and faithfully filed by Lucas.

Lucas has made several pilgrimages to Springfield, Illinois, where he has visited Lincoln's tomb. The only house that Abe ever owned is located in Springfield, and Lucas has as a memento, a bit of wood from this house.

A clipping from the Illinois State Journal in Springfield in an article about visitors to the tomb, carried the following in its November 12, 1939 issue—"John Lucas, of Byron Center, Michigan, was the first to

Troop No. 284 viewed a film borrowed from Scout Headquarters titled "The Patrol Leader and Patrol". After a discussion and tests were passed, the evening was closed by saying the Scout Laws. Another boy joined the troop bringing the membership to 25. The purpose of the Green Bar meetings is to discuss problems within the patrol, what the best solutions are, and also what problems may arrive in the future.

leave his name. He is a real Lincoln enthusiast and no matter how much he can get, wants more."

"He had for years heard of the collection at the tomb. He put in four hours and was shown everything that he could suggest and more too. He hardly got started until he had to go keep an appointment with Dr. Harry E. Pratt, who was to take him to meet Paul M. Angle, the Lincoln historian and then to visit other Lincoln shrines."

Lucas has also visited Lincoln's "New Salem", located 20 miles from Springfield, a completely restored village as it was in Lincoln's day. It was here, stated Lucas, that Lincoln lived from 1831 to 1837. At Salem, Abe was a storekeeper, the postmaster, left to become a captain in the Black Hawk War, studied law and was admitted to the bar, courted Ann Rutledge and successfully ran for the legislature.

The restoration of New Salem was made possible through the discovery of original surveys and careful search revealed the old foundations and wells of the pioneer homes.

Lucas owns a book containing the speech Lincoln made at Kalamazoo on August 27, 1856 on behalf of the Republican candidate for president, John C. Fremont.

Other places that Lucas has visited include the graves of Lincoln's father and stepmother in Shilo cemetery at Cole's City, Illinois, and his mother's and sister's graves in southern Indiana.

A real Lincoln scholar since boyhood, Lucas talks enthusiastically of one of our greatest Presidents and his intimate knowledge of places, dates, speeches and little known happenings make him capable of conversing intelligently with Lincoln historians in any part of the country.

It is impossible to put a price on the books that Lucas owns. Although it is true many of them have been reprinted in the last 20 years, money could never pay for the time, effort, and even sacrifice, that Lucas has put into his collection. Though getting on in years, his hobby has kept him young in heart and it is difficult to imagine that any young person could be more enthused about any pet project, regardless of what it might be.

Patient Taxpayers Should Raise a Ruumpus, Says Brown . . .

Clear-thinking Nelson Brown, the Mason editor, adds his bit this week to the growing clamor among people throughout the land for a reduction in taxes and public spending. Here's what Nelson has to say:

"One of the remarkable, almost phenomenal, traits of the present day taxpayer is his apparent willingness to bear burdens which would have encouraged his forefathers to rebellion.

"On every hand, from Washington, from Lansing and most other state capitals, and from city halls, come demands for more money in taxes."

President Eisenhower and his advisers see danger in cutting taxes. Governor G. Mennen Williams and most of the legislators are bent upon raising taxes and inventing new ones. Lansing's city council not only wants to take more taxes out of Lansing pay envelopes but out of the pay envelopes of everyone who lives outside the city but works inside.

At the Mason council meeting last week most of the talk was on the ability of Mason property owners to pay more taxes and how easy it will be once the valuations are raised. Adjusted was the word the councilmen used.

Nobody in public office ever considers economy anymore. They think they don't have to, probably, because so many of the taxes are hidden, or are withheld so the man who earns the money never sees all of it.

If every wage earner received all his pay before he surrendered any of it he would be fighting mad. If he had any spark of resistance left in him, he would try to save some of the third of his earnings which now goes for taxes.

"Any person who works for $3,500 a year ($67.30 per week) now pays $1,043 in taxes, including sales taxes, income taxes, property taxes, excise taxes and taxes passed on to him.

"Those employed at $4,450 a year ($86.00 per week) pay $1,425 in taxes.

"Those employed at $7,500 per year ($145.00 per week) pay $2,637 in taxes.

"That's the tax picture. When you hear the president or the governor, a legislator or your city councilman say that more taxes are needed, why don't you say something? Why don't you say that paying a third of your earnings is about all you think you can afford? Why don't you ask him to cut out some of the spending frills that you are willing to get along without?"

Have you been a giver lately or are you still pulling everything toward you?

Cites Need for Improved Health Service

A strong plea for improved community health services was made today by Dr. Albert E. Heustis, State Health Commissioner, who warned against a let up in efforts to control contagious diseases, and also said that much needs to be done to face up to newer health problems.

Speaking at the eighth annual Commissioner's Conference of local health department directors, Dr. Heustis urged more vigorous efforts to encourage immunization against communicable diseases, said, "We cannot afford to let a lackadaisical attitude on the part of the public for immunization go unchallenged since such complacency can have only bitter results."

Pointing to growing health needs, the Commissioner said: "When you consider what needs to be done to curb diseases such as cancer, heart disease and diabetes, you cannot assign the job to any one profession or agency, but rather have to stir the mobilization of all usable community resources."

Dr. Heustis reported that venereal disease, especially gonorrhea, among teen-agers calls for "immediate and co-operative community action." He said about one out of six cases of gonorrhea are turning up in the 15-19 year old age group.

The Commissioner added that among the many newer public health techniques, "Fluoridation of public water supplies to prevent tooth decay is not moving forward fast enough, largely because of mistaken pressure groups whose action is depriving many Michigan youngsters of this life-long health benefit."

Cooperation of Adults Necessary To Lick Polio

Polio in Michigan will be on the way out as soon as the reluctance of adults to obtain protective inoculations of Salk vaccine can be eliminated, J. K. Altland, M. D., President of the Michigan Health Council, predicted today.

"Operation Armor of the Michigan State Medical Society is helping to break through the armor of teenagers and young adults who have not had the polio inoculations they need to escape the disease," Dr. Altland said.

He commended the Medical Society highly for its vigorous polio immunization program which was given the name "Operation Armor" and urged the co-operation of all parents, young adults, newspapers, radio and television stations in the campaign.

Operation Armor has been conducted in two phases, Dr. Altland explained. The First Phase took place during the Christmas holidays when the Medical Society urged that parents have their children from the ages of one to 14 years inoculated with polio vaccine. Inoculations of pregnant women also were conducted during Phase One. The Second Phase of Operation Armor is concerned with inoculations of young adults from 14 years to 40 years of age. Phase Two began three weeks ago.

Dr. Altland pointed out that Phase One of Operation Armor was instrumental in seeing that seven out of every 10 children in the one through 14 age group already have received two doses of poliomyelitis vaccine. Another 16 per cent have had one injection, he said. He added that many children already have had the three recommended doses.

In a large part, the vaccine used for this younger group was purchased by the State of Michigan with State and Federal funds. It was distributed through the State and local health departments, and most of it was administered by private doctors of medicine, Dr. Altland said.

In addition to serving as president of the Michigan Health Council, Dr. Altland is also Director of the Division of Local Health Administration of the Michigan Department of Health.

Martin School News Roundup

The Kindergarten pupils have been very busy this past week dramatizing "Henny Penny".
For a bit of variety in Mrs. Hammond's room, Christina Drumm read the story of Mr. and Mrs. Vinegar from the book "I Know A Story". She also read the story to Kindergarten, 2nd and 3rd grades. Reading is beginning to be more fun as they are able to read more books since learning new words.

In Mrs. Taylor's room the 1st and 2nd graders were anxiously awaiting the arrival of Valentine's Day when they would be busy playing postman along with the other guests. With the decorations on the bulletin board one can see they are really in the spirit of things. The pupils were glad to see Roger Ruffins back after a brief absence due to illness.

In Mrs. Arndt's room the 2nd graders are learning there is more than one way of writing numbers, they are now learning the Roman Numerals. They too, are gaily decorating their rooms with Valentines that they made, plus calendars for February and patriotic pictures. In the reading section they have a new choral reading number, "The Aeroplane".

The third graders in Mrs. Garrison's room are studying about Pilgrims and how they came to live in this country. The children are having fun making patchwork quilts, boats, booklets, etc. in connections with the pilgrims. As in the other classes some of the pupils have been absent with colds and flu. They are all anxiously awaiting the arrival of spring when colds and flu will be a thing of the past. In the art line they have been busy making clay animals for a display.

Mrs. Freyermuth's 4th graders have been busy studying the seasons and months of the year and also made calendars carrying out either a patriotic or Valentine theme.

Fifth Graders in Mrs. Roth's room have been busy making reports for Social Science. Some topics being reported on are medicines, trees, dogs, horses, fish, locomotives, sheep and many others. For the American Citizen's Program Sue Waterman and La-Rae Jager entertained the class with tap dancing and baton twirling.

In connection with the P. T. A. International Festival in March, Mrs. Hendrix's 6th graders are creating and painting posters under the supervision of Mrs. Paul Farnsworth substitute teacher. A small token will be given the pupils whose posters are selected to be displayed.

Louis Douglass Buried Wednesday At Whitneyville

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at the Cross-Miller Funeral home in Caledonia for Louis M. Douglass, 64, who passed away at his Whitneyville home Sunday, having been in ill health for some time.

Mr. Douglass was a retired railroad employee, and for several years was acting chairman of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees serving several railroads in this section of the United States. He was also secretary and treasurer of the Trackmen's Benevolent Association, an insurance association for railroadmen.

A native of Whitneyville, Mr.

Douglass was born in a log cabin about a half mile from the site of his present home. The family moved to this property when Mr. Douglass was only 10 years old. His present home was rebuilt on the same site as his parents' in 1940.

Worked For Father

His first railroad job was taken in 1909, on the Whitneyville section of which his father, Bert Douglass, was foreman. He later served the Pere-Marquette as foreman at Okemos, then at Clarks-ville, and returned home in 1933 to take over his father's job when the latter was forced to retire because of ill health.

Mr. Douglass suffered a cerebral hemorrhage in 1943; his wife, a former correspondent for the Ledger covering the Whitneyville news items, passed away in June of 1953.

Graveside services at Whitneyville cemetery were conducted by the Clarksville Masonic lodge of which he was a member. He was also a member of the Grand Lodge of the railroad brotherhood, and of the V.F.W. Mr. Douglass enlisted in the Army in June of 1917 and served in France all during the War with Company C of the 16th Engineers.

Mr. Douglass is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Beatrice Fiero of Battle Creek, and Mrs. Harold (Grace) Parrish, who made her home in Whitneyville the past 3 years with her father. Also six grandchildren. Mr. Douglass also leaves an uncle, George Douglass, formerly of Alaska, and now residing in Ohio.

Must Be Stubborn, and Like Routine, to Publish A Weekly Newspaper

We are indebted to a reader who submitted the following clipping from the Amherst Journal Record, concerning our weekly chore of publishing this newspaper:

"There is nothing in the world of publishing to compare with the country-town weekly newspaper.

Residents of small towns—and even subscribers living within gunshot of the newspaper shop—seldom realize the quantity of routine labor and the quality of plain dog-bone stubbornness it takes to publish such a paper each week.

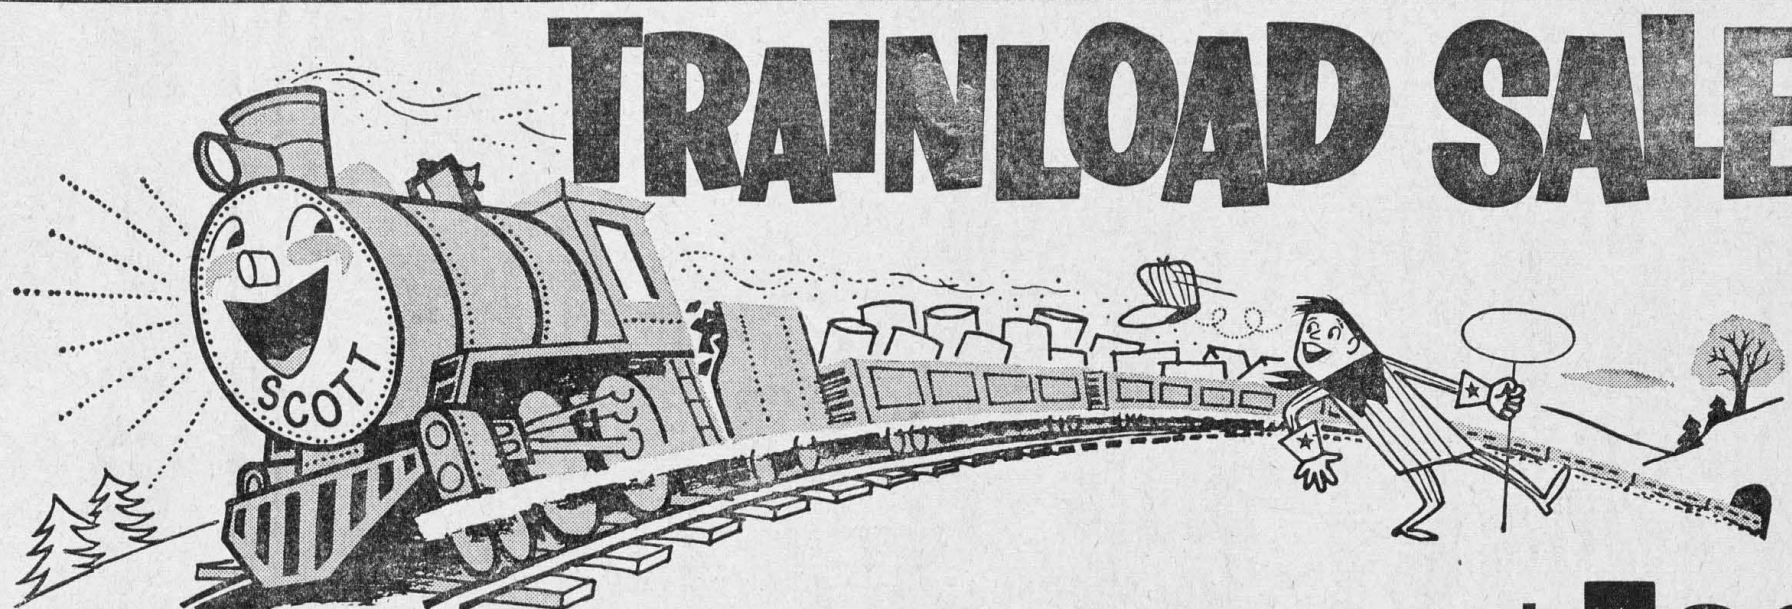

"It's a good thing that country editors have enough of these qualities not to quit. Otherwise there'd be fewer weekly papers than there are now—and the ranks have been thinning alarmingly in the past ten years.

"Trouble is, the economics of the country printshop were never meant for the eight hour day and the five day week. There is no way to get the paper on the streets without everybody toiling madly all day every day.

"Readers not familiar with the weekly are sometimes surprised at what they see there. Editors of the papers, however, are usually quick to confess that they are surprised, too. Not that the week's edition came out with a paucity of news or advertising, but that it came out

The P. S. that you find in a woman's letter is like the small print in a contract. It pays to read it.

FIGHTING: DOG vs. MAN

by Bob Bartos
Prominent Dog Authority

They say that when a dog bites a man it isn't news.

That may well be, but to the person who's just been bitten, it's a painful experience. And perhaps the pain could have been avoided with a little beforehand knowledge of the animal and a few simple "do's" and "don'ts."

A basic rule is this: never threaten a dog, especially a big one, with a stick or any other

Dog of the Week: DALMATIAN

Non-sporting. Average weight: 45 pounds. Height at shoulder: 21 inches. Coat: short, dense, sleek, glossy, and hard textured. Color: pure white with round black or brown spots. The spots should not run together, but should be well defined and range in size from a dime to a half-dollar.

object when he is close by and facing you. This will probably make him even more serious in his attack.

In such cases stand perfectly still and quietly but firmly scold the dog. If the tone of your voice makes him stop, repeat the scolding and take one or two steps toward him. Once he turns, you can toss a stick at his heels to further discourage him.

Some families complain that their dogs become overly rough while "playing." Usually this stems from puppyhood, when the young dog didn't know the strength of his own jaws. But fullgrown, he does know, and all play should stop immediately when the playful "nips" become painful. He should be reprimanded on the spot.

Probably the most common dog vs. man episode is when the mailman or milkman arrives and your pet, ready to defend the house, suddenly wages battle. Here's one method to use in acquainting your dog with the frequent visitors, like the mailman.

Ask the postman to sit down on the steps, greet the dog by name and give him a biscuit or piece of candy. Be sure that a member of the family is on hand during this period to show open friendliness to the visitor. Watch for the postman each day and repeat the performance until your dog has learned who the postman is.

Feeding Tip: Milk is just as good for dogs as meat. However, he must have three times as much milk by weight to produce the same nutritional effect, because meat contains 800 calories per pound and milk has 250 per pint. A top-quality dog food, such as Friskies, supplies all the dog's nutritional requirements.

Time is running out for Michigan motorists to obtain their 1957 license plates. The deadline is midnight February 28. Auto owners who have not purchased their plates by that time will be subject to fine. Also, for the first time since 1943, Michigan cars will bear two plates. Be sure your car is equipped with a sturdy bracket so the front license plate can be fastened securely. Many front plates already have been lost or damaged because they were not attached adequately.

Soft Lines, Natural Look, Still Popular With Furniture Buyers

Soft curved lines and the natural wood look will continue to be the style trend for summer furniture.

Telling what is now on the market for summer furnishings is Mary Shipley, home furnishings professor at Michigan State University, who recently returned from the Chicago furniture market. French Provincial furniture is still very popular, she points out. This includes small scaled and feminine-looking pieces which fit into today's small houses.

Little or no wrought iron is being used, but there is a growing popularity for combinations of brass, wood and gold. Black is tops, she points out, but not the thin wrought iron look. Instead chrome, aluminum and magnesium are taking over the black metal look.

The Scandinavian influence is particularly popular, Miss Shipley declares. This is evidenced by chairs with the rounded look and a semidetached back and seat. The upholstered part is also semidetached from the wood.

Color-wise, there seems to be a tendency to show a lot of neutral background colors with vividly intense colors such as red and orange as accents.

A current trend to very low dining tables and chairs is explained by Miss Shipley as good for casual snacking, but for main meals, not too functional. Along with fad furniture styles such as this, she points out that furniture is not bought for a lifetime of use, but today's homemakers tend to change their furnishings often and can afford to swing along somewhat with the current trend.

We saw this in the "Paddle Wheel", monthly publication of the Lowell Rotary Club: Sign in a hamburger joint—"This is a non-profit organization—but we didn't plan it that way."

Small Community Life Can Give Small Child Valuable Experiences

Even though the child from the small or rural community may need to prepare to make his way in urban society, there is every reason for him to make full use of his small community experiences, says Robert S. Fox, director of The University School at The University of Michigan.

"Educators today believe that good learning experiences utilize and grow from the child's own environment. It makes good sense for children to tackle problems that are real and immediate," he says.

"In the small or rural community, families are closely knit," Professor Fox reminds. "They have many experiences as family units. The school, too, is usually not large and every child is known. As he progresses through school, his potential contributions can be identified and recognized.

"This atmosphere of friendly closeness also prevails in the community. Every citizen should have a part in the school. And children should have many opportunities to participate in community activities.

"Friendly associations with other members of the community give the children a feeling of belonging and of being important, each with his own place in the life of the school and of the community.

"Such a community is not troubled by delinquency. Students have a program in which the school makes an effort to meet their needs for development in the rural community in which they live."

Commenting on the advantages to be gained from living in small communities, Professor Fox says, "In small communities, the machinery for solving problems is probably more visible and less complex than in city centers. Thus, the small community provides a laboratory where youngsters growing up can observe and sometimes take a hand in the citizen's important business of working with his fellows to find solutions to problems no one of them could solve alone."

Many small communities are concerned in the matter of health. Professor Fox says, "Problems of poor nutrition, of bad sanitation and consequent disease, of lack of medical and hospital services have been recognized by schools as well worth school study as well as community attention.

"For instance, when class study of causes and ways of eliminating hookworm are paralleled by an attack on the problem by the county health department, the medical society, and the nurses association, children learn something about the ways in which government serves the people. At the same time they gain understanding about their own health."

Check Your Legal Papers

You may dust a fine chair, but how's your legal housekeeping these days?

Do you and your family members know where important papers, such as insurance, bonds and wills are kept? Do you know what you actually have? Now's the time to take inventory, reminds Eleanor Densmore, county home demonstration agent.

And speaking of wills, they can be important to your family's future. Michigan laws provide methods for distributing a person's estate. However, many people want to make different provisions, and they do this by making a will.

If you feel a will is important for your family—now's the time to make one. You can change it whenever you like. A competent lawyer, who knows the legal procedure involved, can help you.

Home demonstration members in Kent County have been learning about legal housekeeping this year—and many have gone home to "put their house in order."

To the young in heart, life is a perpetual exclamation point.

Parents—remember the new law which went into effect on February 1st. Your teenagers under 18 years of age cannot get a driver's license unless they hold a special certificate showing they have taken and passed an approved course in driver-education.

By the way, this course, which will be part of the curriculum of every high school in the state, will cost Michigan taxpayers $1.5 million this year. Each year, as high school enrollment increases, the cost will go up.

Educators believe however that savings to purchasers of automobile insurance will be increased because of the school program.

In-line with an editorial on taxes found elsewhere in this paper, we will bring the driver training program close to home and presume that the new Forest Hills high school is already built and two thirds of the 333 students are taking this course.

At $25 per pupil (the state subsidy for this program), it will cost $5550 this year to teach local teenagers in the Forest Hills district how to drive a car.

In all fairness to the program we should add that we think the idea is a good one. But it does show that slowly but surely our taxes are going up because of "extras" that really don't contribute anything to anyone in particular. In other words, millions of dollars could be saved if parents would take the time and trouble to educate their children in proper driving habits. There are certain areas of responsibility that should be kept by the parents and this we believe, because of its exorbitant cost over the years, is one of them.

Forest Hills School News

In a recent news bulletin sent out to parents of pupils enrolled in the Forest Hills School District, a brief rundown on the school situation was made by Superintendent Harold S. Chambers.

According to the bulletin, present enrollment in the various schools is 1160. This figure does not include the 333 high school students from the Forest hills district who are attending various nearby schools. (At a yearly cost to this district of $65,000)

Plans are under way at the present time for building additional classrooms to at least one, and possible even three, of the existing elementary buildings.

Because of high interest rates at the present time, the school board has not as yet offered the $800,000 bond issue for sale. It is possible that interest rates will drop in the next few months and in this way thousands of dollars will be saved.

The $800,000 will be divided in the following manner: $100,000 for additions to elementary buildings, $42,500 for the high school site, $7,500 site preparation, $50,000 for equipment in the new high school, $35,000 architects and legal fees, $5,000 for contingencies and $560,000 for the new high school building.

The new school will include 16 classrooms, a gymnasium and school offices. If the present rate of growth continues in this area additions to the new school will be necessary in the next three years.

With the appointment several weeks ago of a coaching staff for next year, football and basketball games with ninth graders are being planned. Local businessmen are planning to contribute uniforms and equipment for the teams.

Forest Green and White have been adopted as the official school colors and the nickname "Forest Hills Rangers" has been chosen. Plans are also being made for a Parents Conference. Last year this combined meeting between teachers and parents met with great success and this year the conference will be held next month. Date will be announced in the near future.
