To Offer Fluoride Program in Summer

Following the success of last summer when more than 500 children were treated with fluoride, the Forest Hills School Community will offer the program again this coming summer.

A student dentist from the University of Michigan will be hired by the Committee in charge of the local program. A temporary dental office will be set up in the Collins School. Children in the present 2nd, 5th, and 8th grades together with pre-school children may be scheduled for treatment.

Mrs. Matthew Verhil of Ada is the chairman of the program this year. Other members of the committee are: Mrs. James Carpenter, Mrs. James Shear, and Mrs. Louis Bitto.

John Kleinheksel Loses 3 Fingers in Saturday Accident

John Kleinheksel, McCords S. E., lost three fingers of his left hand Saturday while he was repairing some machinery at the grain elevator in McCords. He was rushed to Blodgett hospital where he received treatment. After the accident, only his index finger and thumb remained.

Mr. Kleinheksel was reported in good condition and returned home on Tuesday.

A cheerful atmosphere in pleasant surroundings at mealtime gives the family a comfortable feeling.

Western Round-up Deemed Successful

Western Roundup at the Martin School last Saturday night was considered a huge success, in spite of the weather. There was a large crowd, Buck Barry signed autographs for the children and was undoubtedly the biggest attraction of the Roundup.

The P. T. A. would like to thank all of those who worked so hard and faithfully to make this one of the nicest carnivals Martin School has ever held.

Junior Guild Has First Meeting

The Forest Hills Junior Osteopathic Guild met at the home of Mrs. Leroy Hussey for the first time on Thursday, April 17 with 17 girls joining. They elected the following officers: President Joy DenBoer; secretary, Cam Morse; treasurer, Penny Shoemaker. The calling committee is comprised of Penny Steketee, Gwen Dowling and Marcia Heuss.

Various ways of raising money was discussed. The new president appointed a committee of Jerry Paine and Marilyn Miller to see about having a car wash sometime in May.

Their motto is "service."

The Guild will meet the first and third Monday afternoons of the month. Until school is out they will hold their meetings at Mrs. Hussey's home. The next meeting will be May 5th at 4 p. m.

Their first project will be to raise money to buy a baby Manikin for the hospital and make scrap books for the Pediatrics Department.

CUB PACK NO. 3334 TO HOLD PAPER DRIVE

Several awards are to be made, namely: Daryl Weaver, two silver arrows and wolf badge; Charles Breidenfield, wolf badge; Timmy Moore, wolf badge and gold arrow; Jim Ellinger, silver arrow and bear badge; Billy Lyons, wolf badge, one gold arrow and five silver arrows; Brian MacInness, silver arrow; and Eddie Ellinger, gold arrow. One year pins will go to Brian MacInness, David Prusak, Herman Beute and Daryl Weaver.

The pack will be in need of den mothers and committeemen for the coming year. Anyone interested in working with these boys may contact Carl McDanold, the Cubmaster.

Two new boys will be coming into the pack, John Stovall, Pat Bentley, and they will receive their Bobcat pins.

Raise Price on Hot Lunches

The Board of Education of the Forest Hills High School on the recommendation of Harold Chambers, superintendent, has authorized a raise in the price of hot lunches at the Ada and Orchard View Schools. The price will take effect on Monday, April 28.

Prices for weekly tickets will be raised from 25 cents to 30 cents, and from 35 to 40 cents for individually purchased tickets. It is necessary to make this change in price because they have been running behind in expenses.

The reasons for this are the increased cost of food, more requests for free lunches because of the increase in unemployment and the decrease in surplus commodities given for the lunch program.

Also, the school formerly received 7 cents per lunch and now is only receiving 4 cents.

Smelt Dipping Time

Smelt spawning runs are a sure sign of spring in Michigan as thousands of persons line streams to dip these tasty little fish each year. Dip nets, not more than five feet in circumference, may be used to take smelt from designated Michigan streams during the March 1-May 31 season. A list of these streams can be obtained from Conservation Department district offices.

Michigan State University agricultural engineers built a hog house in 1951 of blocks made of cement and ground corn cobs. They have observed the effects of time and weather on the material.

Researchers found that a protective coating made of cement grout, two layers of cement paint and a coat of sealer gave the best protection.

South and east sides of the building, even with coatings, deteriorated more than other sides. "Pull outs" were the biggest problem. Corn cob pieces absorb moisture and freezing action pulls them out, explains Jim Boyd, Michigan State agricultural engineer. The "holes" left in the block open the way for additional washing and freezing action.

Engineers also noted a discoloring of the surfaces except where a sealer was used. The corn cob, being organic matter, "bleeds" through the coverings and discolors them.

Researchers tried corn cobs as a building material because of the plentiful supply and their heat insulating qualities. The Michigan State engineers still feel the corn cob blocks are satisfactory but not an exceptional building material. It's expensive to grind and screen cobs and there's the problem of fitting cob pieces snugly together in the block form. Sawdust-filled blocks have about the same characteristics as the ground corn cobs.

Good Attitude Helps to Make Driving Safer

The main rural traffic safety problem isn't much different from that of large cities, believes Richard G. Pfister, extension safety specialist at Michigan State University.

Even though road conditions, intersections and other physical conditions differ, the common problem found in all areas is poor attitudes, thinks Pfister. Many intelligent, physically fit drivers have accidents, the safety specialist continues. None of these people actually want accidents but they get trapped by their attitudes.

Most people will have to admit that when an oncoming car fails to dim the lights, or when a car cuts ahead of them, or when an over-cautious driver is traveling too slow, they become annoyed and are tempted to respond with a change in their driving.

Human nature is such that people like to blame accidents on physical things such as speed or alcohol. People are hesitant to admit that it isn't the speed that kills but it's the individual who speeds who is the real killer. Alcohol doesn't cause accidents; it's the person who consumes it and then drives who is the potential killer, Pfister points out.

People also like to blame accidents on others. Some drivers can't understand why people walk on the "wrong" side of the road. But yet when they walk, they tend to make the same mistake. Individuals who want to do something about improving driving attitude must be honest with themselves, Pfister maintains. The fact is that all who drive contribute to the traffic problem.

A good start can be made by improving courtesy, lawfulness, alertness and responsibilities in our own driving, Pfister concludes.

R. E. Colby Dies; Well Known in McCords

R. E. Colby, 75, of McCords, passed away in Butterworth hospital Saturday. Mr. Colby was born October 16, 1882 and owned a general store in McCords for 45 years, and was station agent and postmaster here. He owned and operated lumber yards at Alto, Cascade and McCords. He and his wife, Louise celebrated their Golden Wedding anniversary in 1956. Other survivors besides his wife, Louise, are a brother, Earl Colby and a sister, Mrs. Floyd Yeiter, both of Alto. Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon, Rev. James Ballard officiating. Burial was made in Merri-man Cemetery.

Power Boats Don't Bother Fish, Biting

If you're one of those fishermen (and who isn't) who curses loudly above the roar each time a motor-powered boat passes nearby, Prof. Karl Lagler of the University of Michigan has news for you.
Professor Lagler, chairman of the U-M Department of Fisheries, writes in Popular Mechanics magazine that both his scientific research and personal experiences has convinced him that: 1) Motor-boats seldom harm fish—large, small, or even eggs; 2) Motor-boats, seldom, if ever, keep fish from spawning; 3) Motor noises do not appear to disturb fish; 4) And—most important to fishermen—the noise of nearby motors has not been shown to affect the rate at which fish bite.
An ardent angler in his own right, Lagler bases his conclusions on research in the field spanning 10 years sparked at the start by his own fishing experiences.
Are fish often injured by power-driven boats? Rarely, says Lagler, mainly because of their unusual ability to avoid collision with other objects. Observation of fish traveling in schools illustrates this point, he says.
If fish are physically affected by motorboats, there is little proof of it, Lagler says.
For instance, he has seen channels loaded with boat traffic. If the boats harmed the fish, then the shores would be littered with dead fish most of the time, he theorizes. Such is not the case, however.
"In fact, worm fishermen may be responsible for more deaths of fish than power boats. That few fish survive being hooked on live bait and then released has been proved by scientists."

Michigan Streams Should Be Cleaner

Streams in the Water Wonderland should be cleaner in the future because of work being done by a new mobile laboratory-classroom which has started visiting sewage treatment plants throughout the state.
The $14,000, custom-built, 32-foot trailer was purchased by the Michigan Water Resources Commission out of federal funds allocated to Michigan for stream pollution abatement.
The trailer has two purposes. One is to evaluate local plant performance by helping local operators to detect and investigate causes of reduced efficiency in the plants. The second purpose is to train plant operators to perform Sportsmen and vacationists also will benefit through the correction of waterways conditions that set up offensive odors, kill fish and plant life, or in other ways interfere with use of streams.
The trailer is equipped to make a wide variety of chemical tests and physical measurements that reflect a plant's operating efficiency.
The most commonly found conditions that reduce sewage plant efficiency include overloading the plant beyond design capacity, and the presence of certain industrial wastes in the sewage. Some industrial wastes, for example cyanide and chromium, interfere chemically with the treatment of sewage.
With no hope of reward, nearly 70 Ohio convicts are taking a series of potentially-deadly injections, to aid the war on cancer. Already, they have pointed the way toward an important discovery: a body chemical that seems to help destroy cancer cells.

Excess Shrubs Common Error in Landscape

Overplanting is the most common error made by amateur "landscapists", believes Joseph T. Cox, extension specialist in landscape architecture at Michigan State University.

A natural impatience to fill empty spots quickly—before proper size plants have a chance to mature—may cause people to plant too much and choose materials that grow too fast, without taking into account their ultimate size.

Cox points out that a foundation planting can either add or detract from the value of a house. To help owners of new homes that need to be landscaped and for those who want to redesign their landscape plan, Cox offers this general guide.

Draw two lines, beginning at the middle of the front doorstep. Run one line to each front corner of the house ending at a height halfway between the eaves and the ground. Foundation plants, when they are full grown, should fall within these lines.

If the door is in the center of the house, the lines may be symmetrical; if the door is to the side, one line will rise more steeply to the corner, indicating that taller plants on that side will help to achieve a balanced effect.

Cox says the important thing is that the plantings be balanced visually. But this doesn't mean that you need to use exactly the same plants on each side. It's a matter of balancing mass rather than form.

If you would like your house to appear wider, place plants beyond the corners of the house that will grow to a height within a continuation of the lines from the door step.

Cox says that although there seems to be a preference for evergreens these days, the twig coloring and winter effects of many deciduous shrubs are equally interesting. But if evergreens are used, plant species such as yew, juniper, and holly. These plants offer varieties that will grow only to the height you desire.

Avoid full-sized trees such as hemlocks and pines. Except for small flowering species such as dogwood and flowering crab which may produce a pleasant effect at the corner of a house, trees have no proper place in foundation planting.

In general, with modern houses, foundation plants should be low and spreading. Low plants are especially desirable at doorways and under windows, unless the house has a high foundation.

Kenneth Smith of MSU, Lansing, was a Sunday dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. Don McPherson and family.

Fire Fighters Ready

Conservation Department crews get fire fighting equipment into condition for distribution to "keymen," 1,000 private citizens throughout the state who aid the Department in discovering and controlling forest and grassland fires. This group, coupled with the Department's full-time force of fire fighters and mechanized equipment, keeps fire losses to a minimum.

Sewage Systems Should Be Checked

With the coming of spring and the condition of the ground returning to normal from winter's freeze, there are some things we should check, says Mr. Stockton, City-County Director of Sanitation.

This time of year offers a fine opportunity to those whose sewage systems are maintained by septic tanks.

Septic tanks must be cleaned occasionally, explained Mr. Stockton. The recommended time for cleaning is once in three years. Occasionally new tanks do not start functioning properly and may require checking sooner.

All systems will plug up in time. The time is dependent upon the manner in which the family uses the sewage system. The more solids, such as coffee grounds and garbage that is put into the system, the sooner the septic tanks must be cleaned out.

The solids from the sewage accumulate at an average rate of eleven gallons per person per year, Mr. Stockton explained. If septic tanks are not cleaned, the solids will pass into the tile field or drainage system and plug it up. If the solids are removed in time, you will prevent the costly rebuilding of the tile field or drainage system.

All septic tank cleaners in the county must be licensed and bonded by the Michigan Department of Health and display a decal from this department. Mr. Stockton advises for you to be sure that your septic tank cleaner is so licensed. A licensed cleaner will advise, after an examination of your septic tank, whether it should be cleaned or continue operating as it is for a while longer. A list of septic tank cleaners is available from the Kent County Health Department upon request.

Mr. Stockton concludes advising that if you have any doubt about your septic tank or your sewage system call the Kent County Health Department for advice. If you are planning to put in a new system or an addition to the current one, it must be in compliance with the Kent County Sanitary Code. The Health Department can help you with this problem also.

Urge Parents To Get Child's Birth Certificate Early

Parents of children who will enter kindergarten or first grade for the first time next fall were urged today to obtain copies of the children's birth certificates as soon as possible instead of waiting until the school registration period later this spring.

Dr. F. S. Leeder, director of disease control, records and statistics for the Michigan Department of Health, said unavoidable delays in filling requests for copies sometimes occur because of the flood of requests during registration months. He said parents can avoid these delays by asking for copies now.

Most schools require either a certified copy or a certificate of registration in order to establish that a child is old enough to enter school. Certified copies and certificates of registration for children born in Michigan can be obtained from the city and county clerks where the child was born, or from the Michigan Department of Health.

State health department fees, as set by statute, are $1 for each certified copy and 25c for each certificate of registration. Requests to the state health department can be made either in person or in writing, and fees must accompany the requests.

Requests also must include the full name of the child, date and place of birth, and the full name of the parents including the mother's maiden name.

A certified copy as supplied for school children is a photostat copy of the original birth certificate. A certificate of registration shows only the child's name and his place and date of birth.

Health Dept. Surveys Diseases

A survey to determine the degree to which Michigan residents are protected against five communicable diseases is being made this month by local health departments in cooperation with the Michigan Department of Health.

The state health department has requested all local health department nurses to collect immunization information when making routine calls to private homes. Information collected will be tabulated by the state health department.

The nurses will ask questions about polio, smallpox, diphtheria, tetanus (lockjaw) and pertussis (whooping cough), all of which can be controlled by vaccines or other immunizing agents.

The information will be classified as adequate, partial or no immunization on the basis of the number of doses of vaccine received and the date of the last vaccination or booster.

Polio protection will be adequate if the person has received three doses of polio vaccine. Smallpox protection will be called adequate if the person's original vaccination was successful and if he has been revaccinated in the last five years.

Children are immunized against diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough by giving them three injections of a vaccine that contains immunizing agents against all three diseases. Boosters given after the age of 5 years omit the whooping cough agent. Protection against these three diseases will be judged adequate if the individual received three doses of the triple

Parents Don't Want Johnny To Read, Really

Too many parents are afraid Junior may turn out to be a bookworm, August Heckscher, director of The Twentieth Century Fund said recently at The University of Michigan.

"We want our children to be themselves, yet not to be very different from our neighbor's child; to be fulfilled, yet not to be led into byways or thickets; in short, to be readers but not to be bookish" Heckscher maintains.

He quotes a parent of his acquaintance as saying to her son's principal, "It's all very well for you schoolteachers to the saying that reading books is important—but what would you do if your child swallowed it—hook, line and sinker!"

According to Heckscher, too many children fail to make the leap to good books. "The factual materials of their early grades give way to the do-it-yourself manuals of their later life."

Heckscher believes there's a lot to be said for "prodding" the child into the development of reading habits. "The healthy young American animal is not likely to be turned into a bookish recluse. As for being turned into a reader, all our experience suggests that the boy or girl who reads easily but widely moves with confidence through the realms of life."

Heckscher feels that today's emphasis on reading techniques is "one of the hopeful elements in secondary education. The child is made to master not only words but ideas. From the earliest grades there is stress upon what the author is really saying."

He also believes much can be done to give children a feel for books as entities—as having both form and content. "The child is a natural collector, and with a little encouragement books can seem as natural an object of his passion as soldiers or sea shells."

In conclusion, Heckscher said, "If things go well in youth the moment carries when all is forgotten in the thrill of reading for its own sake. A fire has been lit, and it consumes everything in its path. The young person has graduated with honors from the school of reading. From then on, he is a citizen of the free city of books."

SIGNAL TURNS IN ADVANCE

PROTECT YOURSELF

GIVE OTHERS A CHANCE

A Michigan trucking-industry leader urged drivers today to be more thoughtful and consistent in the intelligent use of turn signals.

In a statement made in connection with the industry's April Courtesy & Safety Campaign, "Highway Courtesy," W. H. Boutell, declared that advance signals are aids in the prevention of traffic congestion and accidents.

"If you are driving any kind of late-model vehicle, chances are that it is equipped with directional signals. Since you paid for them, you should get the benefits of their proper use. By signaling turns in advance, you will protect yourself from the unwary driver behind you," Boutell said.

"In addition, you will allow smooth movement of traffic, which can go around you unhindered.

"If you have ever slowed down for a turn and looked in your rear-view mirror, only to see another driver charging from the rear, you are aware that the driver behind you needs advance warning of your intentions. If you fail to give this warning, you are asking for trouble—even though the law may place the responsibility on the driver who runs into you.

"Give the proper signal at least 100 feet in advance of any intended turn. This will give other drivers time to react to it in a safe manner," Boutell concluded.

Regulations For Radiation Passed

State regulations that protect the general public and specialized workers against over-exposure to ionizing radiation have been adopted by the state health commissioner, approved by the Council of Health and made a part of the state administrative code.

Dr. Albert E. Heustis, state health commissioner, said the regulations "apply to all persons who receive, possess or use materials or devices capable of emitting ionizing radiation."

Industrial, dental and medical users of radiation materials are covered by the regulations, which will be administered by the Michigan Department of Health.

"Nothing in the regulations," Dr. Heustis explained, "should be interpreted as limiting the intentional exposure of patients to radiation for medical diagnosis, medical therapy or medical research."

The health commissioner added that several hundred radiation devices have been routinely checked by the state health department during the last 10 years and that

Cheaper Houses Are Possible, Expert Says

Cost cutting can help supply the good, low-cost housing the United States really needs, according to a Michigan State University specialist.

The selling price of the average house constructed is too high for the average income, contends Byron M. Radcliffe, director of the four-year residential building curriculum at M. S. U.

"The average income is around $5,000, limiting to $12,500 the price of a home a prospective buyer with this average income can purchase," Radcliffe declared. He pointed out that only 27 per cent of U. S. houses built up to mid-1957 were at or below this price.

He said 44 per cent of new houses cost $15,000 or more, taking an income of at least $6,000 before an FHA-insured mortgage could be obtained. Yet only one third of American families have this income.

Because builders cannot control labor and materials prices, Radcliffe feels cost cuts in construction methods and techniques are the best answers in providing additional housing.

Some of his suggestions: eliminate the basement and save $1,500; centralize plumbing to save extra materials; use "tilt-up" walls, built flat on the slab and then put up into position as nearly complete as possible; use dry-wall, ready-built windows and other such components whenever possible; cut material and time waste.

"It has been demonstrated by the more progressive builder that a very substantial sum of money can be eliminated from the selling price of the house," Radcliffe asserted.

the new standards for the design, installation and operation of radiation equipment are similar to the ones the department has been following informally for the last decade.

Some folks reform and some jes' get too old to act up.

Poor Plot Means Poor Garden

Gardeners, like actors, can waste a lot of time and energy on a poor plot. No matter how good the seeds you buy, and how much time and care you give them, they won't grow into fine vegetables unless they are planted in a reasonably favorable location, says Fred Widmoyer, extension specialist in horticulture at Michigan State University.

You may not have a perfect spot for a garden, but look for one that has good drainage, plenty of sunshine, and easy access to a water supply.

Drainage is important because plants that stand too long in water drown—the roots are shut off from the air and nutrients they need. Don't plant where you can see a green scum on the soil surface—this is one indication of too much moisture.

Leafy crops like lettuce, collards, spinach, chard and kale need at least six hours of direct sunlight a day. Others like tomatoes, eggplant, peppers and lima beans need more than that, so open space is a must.

Be sure your garden is near a water supply for easy irrigation during those summer droughts that do so much damage to your vegetables.

See Nursery Stock Inspection Label

This is the time of year when homeowners are landscaping their property and fruit farmers are buying and setting out nursery stock. For his own protection, a buyer should demand to see a valid certificate of inspection by the Michigan Department of Agriculture.

The certificate, which is issued by the Department's plant industry division, attests that the nursery stock has been inspected and is apparently free from dangerous insects and plant diseases.

All nursery stock is sold by means of grades and standards, according to the division's chief, C. A. Boyer, and prospective purchasers should determine that the stock is of the grade specified.
