Romain Wilhelmsen

Romain Wilhelmsen has been called "The Legend Hunter," and he will bring us an exciting film on Mexico. It could well be called "A Journey to a Lost World" for it covers an area that has seldom been visited by white men. Even the historians know little about it, yet Mr. Wilhelmsen has explored its huge extent, and he has brought back thrilling pictures and dramatic tales. He will take us through ancient lava-covered cities, little towns whose inhabitants have never seen an automobile, cross vast deserts and dense jungles. He will show us the Barranca de Cobre—a canyon that few have heard of, yet it is nearly as large as the Grand Canyon of the Colorado! And in it is the third highest waterfall in the world! We will make our way to the isolated Sierra Madre Mountains, and unveil the intriguing lore of ancient civilizations, visit savage Apache and Yaqui Indians, and see the weird sacred mushroom rites of the Tarahumaras! It is an astounding film, replete with adventure, intrigue and buried treasure, and of the kind that won Mr. Wilhelmsen first place on the "World Travel Series" in the 1956-1957 season.

LOCAL BOY ELECTED FRESHMAN CLASS PRESIDENT

Kerry Shoemaker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Shoemaker, Jeanlin Dr., S. E., has been elected president of the Freshman Class of the Michigan College of Mining and Technology at Houghton.

Explains 1959 License Plate Colors and Plans for Use of These Plates for 3 Years

Every year the Department of State gets some mail with comments for or against the color or slogan on Michigan vehicle license plates.

Last year a great many people complained about the funeral look of the black on grey combination. Other writers found them dignified and neat.

Last Year's Colors Had Inadequate Contrast

Law enforcement agencies pointed out that the conservative blend of black numerals on a grey background was difficult to see under good weather conditions and almost impossible to read at night or under adverse weather conditions.

This factor was taken into consideration when we began our search for and research on the 1959 license plate colors.

Traditional Practice Followed

Following an established practice, a decision was made early last year to honor Michigan's newest State University, Wayne, as we have honored the University of Michigan and Michigan State University in the past. In the Spring of 1959, Michigan voters will elect a Board of Governors which will assume control of this growing State institution of higher education.

During the past twelve months other State operated schools have asked that we consider their official colors in future years. This the Department is willing to do, providing of course, that the colors can meet highway safety and law enforcement readability standards.

Check Colors, Test Wearing Qualities

Before selecting the shade of colors used on '59 plates, the Michigan prison technicians responsible for the manufacture of the plates went to University officials to check on the official colors. These were tested on sample plates but the dark green and dark gold had too little contrast and were not acceptable. Moreover, the true gilt-gold color was more expensive and did not hold up well under adverse weather conditions.

Inasmuch as the 1959 series are issued as three year plates, the decision to use the green and yellow combination was not finalized until road and weather tests were made to check the wearing quality of the paint. We also wanted to reassure ourselves and law enforcement officials that the license number would be readable under all driving conditions.

Processed For Long Wear

Michigan's '59 plates are being specially treated and are given a thicker coat of paint so that they will hold up for three years. Light colors, experts point out, will fade less over this period, than will dark shades.

Some of the more common colors have poor weather resistance. For that reason one finds some states and provinces using such unusual colors as Utah's orange-red, Iowa's chartreuse, Alaska's canary and British Columbia's turquoise.

No combination of colors will blend perfectly with the hundreds of variations of two-tone, pastel-shaded, car colors currently in style.

Owner Retains Plates, Saves Taxes

The three year plate system was made possible by the current law which rules that a person buying an automobile must remove the license plates from his old vehicle and put them on his new car. The only cost is a small transaction fee. Prior to the passage of this law he was obliged to pay the entire weight tax for the new car. This "fair play" law helps to stimulate automobile sales and removes an unfair added tax which car buyers were forced to pay in the past.

Quarter Million Dollars Saved

The State of Michigan will save from $250,000 to $300,000 in plate manufacturing costs alone during the next three years. This money can be used to build highways and to continue other needed governmental services.

Many states are now switching to three year or so-called "permanent" plates. This year 15 states, the Canadian province of Manitoba and Hawaii are utilizing this money-saving device.

Michigan State University extension home economists suggest a way to "stretch" a pork loin is to have a rib end roast cut off, then have the remainder cut into chops. The chops can be wrapped in mealize packages for storage in freezer or refrigerator.

To the young in heart, life is a perpetual exclamation point.

Food for Thought

Some 94,587 cords of aspen timber were harvested and skidded out of Michigan's state-owned forests during the 1958 fiscal year which ended June 30. Aside from the aspect of conversion into salable commodities, the cuttings are of two-fold significance. Commercially valueless tops and limbs from these cuttings are left at harvest sites to provide a ready and welcome browse supply for deer. These winter cuttings coincide with the peak season of food scarcity. Revenue from timber sales is pumped into the state treasury for subsequent financing of reforestation programs; pulpwood receipts totaled $179,863 last year.

Editorial Reprint "Your Right To Know"

A common failing of some elected and appointive officials often seems to be that they put the public welfare in their vest pocket and dare anyone to ask if all's well.

ONCE AGAIN THIS failing was demonstrated at a meeting Monday night of the village's Safety Commission. Councilman Leon Carroll took it upon himself to challenge this paper's obvious unwillingness to close its eyes to the very real problems confronting our village.

In the entirely too lengthy discussion that followed it was apparent that politicians too often feel public business belongs to the elected and appointed—not to the people nor the press.

And it is your right to know what's happening in your town—and who's making it happen they're playing with.

FOR IT IS ADMITTEDLY impossible (and inconvenient) for each and everyone of you to leave your TV these cold wintry evenings and sit through council and commission meetings. That is why you read your newspaper.

And when any official feels that he can best work far away from the glare of publicity, safe from question and scrutiny—look out. For no matter how good his intentions, he's no longer walking down the path of time-proven democracy.

We admit this newspaper, like everyone else, makes mistakes. As we told the commission it is unfortunate for editors that their mistakes are in black and white, not hidden away in closed files or secret meetings.

BUT THE HEAVY-FOOTED play on the fact this newspaper is the official newspaper and should therefore not criticize the workings of any of its official family cannot help but raise an eyebrow or two. We're proud to have served the Village of Inkster and its people for a number of years. We do not believe that any citizen nor any official truly believes that means this newspaper should therefore be only a mouthpiece for whoever is in office.

Free and open discussion, with the right of criticism, is not destructive—but instead is the only manner in which democratic government of the people by the people can exist.

We firmly believe Inkster is facing serious problems with critical decisions affecting the welfare of us all to be made in the near future. These problems and decisions cannot be met without full information.

And we will do all in our power to see that YOUR right to know what YOUR officials are doing in YOUR town is not interfered with.

School Children Screened For Sight Defects

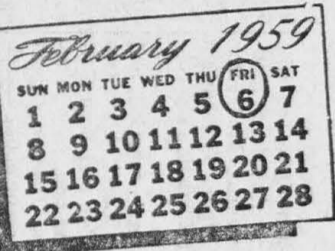

The eyesight of 325,837 Michigan school children was screened in 1958 by specially trained technicians employed by local health departments and local schools, the Michigan Department of Health reported today.

Each child was screened for nearsightedness, farsightedness, astigmatism and muscle imbalance. Of the children screened, 37,035 (11.5 percent) were referred to doctors to have an eye examination for the first time.

In addition to those screened by technicians, a large number of children were given simplified tests that checked for nearsightedness.

During 1958, 57 children were added to the state health department's Register of Children With Severe Visual Handicaps. Nine hundred and thirty-nine youngsters are now registered, 187 whom are of pre-school age.

I'VE GOT A JOB

I've got a job and that's important to me; to my family and to my community. When I'm working, I'm happy. It gives me a feeling of security.

Other men in our town need jobs too. They have to support their families, pay their taxes, meet home payments and pay other obligations. That's why it's up to everyone of us to do all we can to keep our present industry and to attract new plants. We can let our own industry know we appreciate it and we can tell others about the advantages our town offers.

If we all work together, we can do it. Then I'll still have my job and you'll have yours and there will be good jobs for our youngsters when they are ready to go to work.

Join hands with your local industrial development organization and the Michigan Economic Development Department to help your community prosper.

This ad is one of a series published as a public service by this newspaper in cooperation with the Michigan Press Association and the Michigan Economic Development Department.

High Employment Goal of Communities, Security Reflected Throughout Town

Continuing employment is the goal of everyone in a community.

Employment is important to every family and to every phase of community life. When men and women are working they feel secure and this is reflected throughout their town.

With the number of workers continuing at a high level, business generally is prosperous. It means a pleasant attitude for the entire community.

Industrial development of a town becomes a personal project with everyone who is employed. They can evaluate the importance of having steady work. They can realize the need for everyone in the town to have work. The meeting of home payments paying obligations, supporting their families is important to every family.

There is always a need for employment as children grow up and the population increases. In any industrial development program, everyone has a part. For each there is the responsibility of "talking up" the community and expressing an appreciation of present industry which provides work and industrial payrolls which make the wheels of commerce turn.

Through cooperation of everyone in a community, the attracting of new industry or the encouraging of present industry to expand locally is possible. That will mean continued employment for those at work and employment for the next generation.

Necessity for such cooperation in adding impetus to local industrial development programs is stressed in an industrial development advertisement, sponsored by the Michigan Press Association and the Michigan Economic Development Department, which appears today in this paper.

Muskrat trapping will be legal statewide when the season opens, December 1, in the southern lower peninsula; trappers in the upper peninsula and the northern lower peninsula got off to an earlier start.

Test Plan For Deer-Food Program

A new impetus may have been injected into Michigan's deer-food management program when Conservation Department workers began testing a rapid timber-cutting contrivance, recently, on state forests in a northeast sector of Gladwin county.

The device—a heavy, crawlertype tractor employing an 11-foot cutting blade—is expected to level an average of two acres per hour.

Approximately 210 acres were selected for the cuttings which are concentrated on aspen stands of non-merchantable quality in eight or nine poor winter-browse ranges. The experiment, expected to last 30 days, will furnish a browse supply this winter for the ranges' deer herd.

The cuttings are expected to stimulate prolific aspen sprout growth which will improve the post-winter food supply. Ruffed grouse, rabbits and other game will also benefit as cover and vegetation will be regenerated in the cut-over areas.

Cuttings are being made in long, narrow and irregular strips to provide "forest edges," conducive to growth of close-to-ground food plants. Dog-leg cutting patterns are designed to reduce the possibility of hunters walking into the firing line of others.

If the new tool proves to be economically feasible, the operation will be extended to other anemic winter-browse areas.

Health Department Marks 85th Year

1958 marked the 85th year Michigan has had a state public health agency, and the state health commissioner observed today that some of the public health problems confronted during the past year were of the same general type as those confronted in 1873.

The State Board of Health was created by the state legislature in 1873 and was succeeded in 1919 by the state health commissioner and the Michigan Department of Health.

"In 1958," Dr. Albert E. Heustis said, "communicable diseases were still a threat, just as they were in 1873. Vaccines have brought most of the 1873 killers under control, but any communicable disease is capable of staging a strong comeback anytime we drop our immunity guard."

He cited paralytic polio as an example. Crippling polio struck 530 Michigan persons in 1958 after causing only 121 cases in 1957.

"Polio bounced back in 1958 even though we have an excellent vaccine to use against it," Dr. Heustis said. "But the vaccine can't protect us when it's on warehouse shelves."

Dr. Heustis estimated that the following percentages of Michigan people by age groups still haven't been protected against paralytic polio by receiving three shots of vaccine:

1-4 years of age—57 percent unprotected.

5-14 years—25 percent unprotected.

15-40 years—80 percent unprotected.

Other communicable diseases remained at previous years' levels or even declined, Dr. Heustis added.

Diphtheria, a leading cause of death in 1873, dropped from a recent high of 130 cases in 1957 to less than a dozen in 1958. Typhoid fever, another leading 1873 killer, was blamed for only 12 new cases this year, same as in 1957.

"One reason typhoid fever has been brought under control," Dr. Heustis commented, "is that Michigan cleaned up its public water supplies early in this century. As a result, Michigan hasn't had a case of typhoid fever traceable to a public water supply since 1934."

But this admirable string is in danger of being snapped, he warned, because private and public sewage treatment facilities in many communities, particularly in the populous southern half of the Lower Peninsula, are either inadequate or completely lacking.

"Many people will soon be drinking their own or their neighbors' sewage unless we act quickly to improve our sanitation," Dr. Heustis said.

Other major public health developments mentioned by Dr. Heustis in reviewing 1958 included:

CHILD HEALTH—Births exceeded 200,000 for the third straight year although they were down slightly from the 1957 all-time high of 207,308. In the last 10 years the number of Michigan children under 20 years of age has increased by 42 percent and now stands at 2,894,527. By 1960 this group will increase by another 610,000. This increase in numbers is bringing with it an increase in the need and demand for maternal and child health services.

TUBERCULOSIS—TB is still a major public health problem in Michigan. In 1958 there were about 400 TB deaths—about one-fourth the TB death toll 10 years ago. But the number of persons who became ill with TB this year was close to 5,500—about the same as 10 years ago. TB continues to be a heavy financial drain on patients' families and state taxpayers. And unless public health workers are given the means to use available case-finding techniques, Michigan can expect 40,000 to 50,000 more new cases in the next 10 years.

VENEREAL DISEASE—Syphilis and gonorrhea together make up the fourth most frequently reported communicable disease in Michigan. No major increase in cases occurred in 1958, but the trend toward a heavier concentration of cases among teen-agers continued. Seventeen percent of all gonorrhea and 14 percent of all early syphilis is now being reported in the 10-19 age group in Michigan.

OLD AGE CARE—There are now about 600,000 persons 65 years old or older in Michigan—twice as many as 15 years ago. The doubling of this age group has brought about a sharp rise in the public health services needed by this group, such as home nursing and home care programs on the community level. Five local health departments received special grants from the state health department in 1958 to develop home nursing programs. The state health department, through its licensing program, also worked to raise care standards in the 467 nursing homes and 115 homes for the aged in Michigan.

"Too bad folks don't show as much patience all the time as they do when waiting for a fish to bite."

More shipping tonnage passes through the Soo Locks during the average eight months season than the combined tonnage passed by the Panama and Suez Canals in one year.

Booklet Published For Families of Stroke Patients

A new booklet, entitled "Strokes, a Guide for the Family," has been published by the American Heart Association and its affiliates. As the title indicates, it was prepared primarily for those who live with or care for the stroke patient. Copies of this booklet are available from the Michigan Heart Association, Doctors' Bldg., 3919 John R., Detroit 1, Michigan. Copies may be obtained by physicians, nurses, physical therapists, speech therapists, family members and others concerned with the rehabilitation problems of stroke sufferers.

The booklet emphasized the importance of early rehabilitation and of close cooperation between the physician and members of the family in helping stroke patients regain many of their abilities. It gives specific suggestions for self-help devices that can be used at home and also lists a number of sources through which additional help may be sought during the rehabilitation process. Also included are recommendations for the families of stroke patients requiring treatment over a long period of time and a discussion of the special problems of the patient with speech difficulties after a stroke.

A film with the same title, made a year ago for the American Heart Association has received several awards already. At the National Scientific Film Congress this summer in Moscow, the film "Strokes" was awarded a special diploma for "conciseness in preparation and excellence in animation." On April 7, 1958, the film received the Chris award at the Columbus, Ohio Film Festival. In addition, the film was selected from among the many medical and health films to be shown at the Edinburgh and Venice film festivals. This film is also available from the Michigan Heart Association for organizations desiring a program about heart.

This area of the St. Mary's River between Lakes Superior and Michigan long has been historically important. Before the days of the locks, the Ojibway Indians called the spot Bawating, "The Rapids," according to Associate Prof. Harry Benford of the Department of Naval Architecture and Marine Engineering.

In 1671 it was claimed for France, and not quite a century later, in 1762 the British took over. The flag of the United States was raised in 1820, replacing this last British flag on U. S. soil.

Pioneers portaged their canoes around the rapids until the Northwest Fur Company built a small lock on the Canadian side in 1797. During the War of 1812, U. S. troops destroyed this lock and vessels were again portaged until 1855 when the state locks were opened with Congressional aid.

The first vessel through the locks was the big "Columbia" with 132 tons of iron ore on board. Now about 90 ships a day, about 70 of them freighters, use the locks. A modern freighter carries about 15,000 tons—equal to 300 railway carloads. Total tonnage for the locks' first 100 years was in excess of four billion tons.

Early Winter Brings Fear for Deer Herds

A premature winter, demonstrating temperatures and snow depth more appropriate for later months, has signaled a storm warning in many regions to Michigan's deer herd and Conservation Department.

This is, reportedly, the lower peninsula's earliest winter in eight years. Sub-zero temperatures and snow, ranging from several inches to more than two feet in depth, have also stressed abnormal winter conditions in the upper peninsula for this time of the year. The Department is encountered with the biggest herd to carry through this "lean" period since the winter of 1951-52. Relatively mild winters and below-optimum deer harvests in recent years have contributed to this condition.

In some areas, heavy use of winter food has begun a full month ahead of the usual schedule.

Of course the reason for the locks is that the natural rapids between Lakes Superior and Michigan have a fall of 21 feet and sometimes a velocity of 24 miles per hour, about twice the speed of the faster freighters.

And without these locks the vast area surrounding Lake Superior would be without water transportation to the other Great Lakes. Their importance to the nation's economy is indicated by the fact that approximately 85 percent of the iron ore produced in the U. S. is transported to the steel mills via this route.

TAX FACTS #2 Don't Pay Tax On Non-Taxable Items

(This is one of a series of articles on federal income tax filing. The articles are based on information provided by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and the Michigan Society of Certified Public Accountants, in cooperation with the Internal Revenue Service.)

YOU may think that listing your income is the easiest part of preparing a tax return. Actually, according to the Internal Revenue Service, this is where taxpayers make the greatest number of errors.

Not all of the money that may have come to you during 1958 needs to be reported on your tax form. For example, don't report:

- (1) "Dividends" received on an insurance policy. They are considered merely a refund of part of the premium you paid.
(2) Social Security benefits, Railroad Retirement Act benefits, or payments received under Workmen's Compensation laws.
(3) Property or cash gifts received from other people, although the giver may have to pay a gift tax. Tips and other compensation for services must be reported, however.
(4) Inheritances and bequests. The estate may be taxed, but not the recipient.

If you were injured and received damages, this is not considered taxable income and it makes no difference whether your damages were awarded by a court or settled out of court.

When listing income you can also forget about most government benefits to veterans and their families. Dividends paid on veteran's Government insurance is not considered taxable income, but non-disability retirement pay and the interest on terminal leave bonds must be included.

Sick Pay Benefits
If you were absent from work due to injury or sickness and received payments from your employer or his insurance company, these payments are non-taxable within these two limitations:

Rules on Prizes

There is an interesting rule on prizes. Generally all prizes and awards are taxable. However, prizes awarded for scientific, literary or other achievements without any action by you to bring about your selection, are not considered as taxable income to you. Most scholarships granted to college students are not taxable, and the value of the award does not have to be included in the student's contribution to his support.

The official instructions contain a list of the types of income which should or should not be included in your tax return. It is important to check this list carefully.

Your Washington Review

by Congressman JERRY FORD

Hello again in 1959. The weekly Congressional Newsletter from the Nation's Capital is back in print. As in the past Your Congressman will report interesting happenings on Capitol Hill, discuss objectively controversial issues and my reasons for voting Aye or Nay on the complicated and serious problems which will face the House of Representatives. By all means feel free to drop me a line with comments, pro or con, on what your Congressman does or says. I can do a better job with your help.

A NEW CONGRESS: The 86th Congress convened on schedule with some controversy in both the House and Senate the opening day. In the Senate the long awaited and somewhat perennial fight over the anti-filibuster rule was on the agenda. Generally the so-called liberals want a change in Senate Rule 22 so that extensive debate, sometimes labelled a filibuster, can be curtailed more easily.

Senator Johnson, Democrat Majority Leader, sponsored a compromise just a notch more liberal in its application than the present rule. The southern Democrats will vigorously oppose this change in the Senate rules. In contrast the Democrats from the northern states who are the extreme liberals in the Senate want to go much further. This is another illustration of the irreconcilable split in the two wings of the Democratic Party. Maybe this dispute over Senate rules can be patched up on the surface but the basic ideological tug of war will continue indefinitely.

THE HOUSE SIDE: There were few fireworks in the House of Representatives on January 7, when all newly elected members took their oath of office. Earlier it had been forecast there would be (1) a fight the opening day on a change in the House rules to restrict the Committee on Rules; (2) an objection by liberal Democrats to the seating of the newly elected Little Rock, Arkansas representative; (3) and a change in the jurisdiction over immigration and naturalization, and passport legislation from the Committees on the Judiciary and Foreign Affairs to the Committee on Un-American Activities.

The House rules were not revised on Speaker Rayburn's assurance there would be no roadblocking of legislation. Immigration and naturalization legislation was left to the Judiciary Committee and passport problems to the Committee on Foreign Affairs. The Congressman-elect from Arkansas was challenged to the extent that he took the oath of office singly and on a provisional basis pending an investigation of the election in his district by a House Committee.

THE HOUSE LEADERSHIP DISPUTE: The Republicans in the House of Representatives did take decisive action to change their leadership prior to the opening session. Rep. Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts had been GOP leader for 20 years. He had served the Party faithfully and with distinction. Joe Martin was admired by both his Republican and Democratic colleagues. However, there were many younger Republicans including your Congressman who believed Joe at the age of 74 years should transfer his tremendous responsibilities to someone who was more vigorous and articulate. We wanted him to be our Senior Statesman and Advisor, and still do. But in the rugged days ahead in the 86th Congress the Republicans in the House require more effective floor leadership with an articulate spokesman for GOP principles and programs.

Representative Charles Halleck of Indiana was selected in a party caucus. His election to this post of responsibility was not based on any ideological or geographical split in the Republican ranks. It does mean House Republicans will have a more vigorous part in determining GOP policy in conjunction with the President and in selling those principles and programs to our citizens nationwide.

STATE OF THE UNION MESSAGE: On January 9, President Eisenhower delivered to a joint session of the Congress his annual State of the Union Message. Over the past years your Congressman has heard 10 such addresses, four by former President Truman and six from Ike. I think the President's approach in 1959 was sound. It was a statement of broad principles with specific legislative proposals to follow and called for cooperation between the White House and the Congress. The message hit the nail on the head by its emphasis on a balanced budget, inflation control and the immediate necessity for labor-management legislation to better protect the interests of individual union members and the public generally. The President appropriately called for a strong and up-to-date national defense program with maximum strength and increased efficiency at the lowest dollar cost consistent with free world security.

YOUR CONGRESSIONAL OFFICE: Any correspondence to your Congressman may be addressed: Rep. Gerald R. Ford, jr., House of Representatives, Washington, D. C. Our office is in Room 351 of the House Office Building where the telephone number is CAPitol

4-3121; extension 3831.

Our District office at 518 Michigan Trust Building, Grand Rapids, will remain open each morning from Monday through Friday with Mrs. Irene Zeddies in charge. Her telephone number is GLEndale 6-9747.

State's Processed Foods High in "Cutting Bee"

Michigan's processed fruits and vegetables rank equal or superior in competition to similar products from other states judging by results of a "cutting bee" recently held in Grand Rapids by the Michigan Canners & Freezers association.

Samples of products submitted in unlabeled cans by Michigan processors were judged against check samples from other states as well as samples of rival processors within the state.

Products were judged on color, character, finish, defects and other factors, according to observers from the Michigan Department of Agriculture. Judging was the responsibility of a processed foods inspector of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. By a system of numbering a processor was able to identify his own products, but not those of other processors.

There were 15 samples of water pack red tart cherries that graded from 88 to 96 against a check sample from another midwestern state that graded 88.

In tomato juice Michigan's six samples graded especially high. Of the six, five graded 94 and one 92. Check samples ran Ohio 90, New Jersey 91, Illinois 93, New York 94 and California 94.

Michigan's eight samples of yellow beans ranged from 91 to 96 in comparison to four check samples that graded 84 to 96.

Nine sweet cherry samples from Michigan graded 91 to 95, and eight samples of Michigan peaches ranged from 95 to 94 with two in the top position. Apple juice from the Wolverine State also graded high with scores ranging from 90 to 98 on eight samples. Four samples of Michigan blueberries ranged from 95 to 97, and five cans of Michigan apple sauce scored 86 to 94 against four check samples from other states that ranged from 84 to 94. Eight samples of Michigan aspara-

Supervisor Writes Letter On Re-Location of Airport

The relocation of the Kent county airport is one of the major problems facing the Kent County Board of Supervisors. David Hanson, Walker township supervisor, has been an advocate of placing the airport between Grand Rapids and Muskegon as a Tri-county airport. He recently wrote a letter to the board expressing his views on the problem. His letter is followed by one of the many letters he has received on the question.

Kent County Board of Supervisors Honorable Sirs:
Being in Butterworth Hospital has given me time to think more about the future location of an airport. As most of you know, my better judgment has been for some other location. I do not mean that my opinion is correct and others are necessarily wrong. However, the establishment of a new large airport will have a tremendous bearing on the future of all Western Michigan.

It behooves you and I, Mr. Supervisor, not only as custodians of the people's money but from a standpoint of what will be best for future generations to have another look. The $450,000 held out as bait to move swiftly, may prove more costly in the end.

With Muskegon becoming a port city, the area between Muskegon, Holland and Grand Rapids will rapidly become a desirable area for industries. This will be enhanced by the abundance of fresh water, super highways and salt and other minerals underlying a large portion of this region. DuPont Industries, as well as many other chemical plants, are already locating at Montague, Whitehall and points south.

I realize that none of us are anxious to have an airport in our back yard. I understand there are many lovely homes in the Cascade area where valuations will be substantially cut if that location is chosen. If I am correctly informed thousands of dollars of bulldozing and grading of clay still will be made.

Why not choose a sandy area which is level, has drainage and is several minutes closer to downtown Grand Rapids? I am referring to the area toward Allendale in Ottawa County.

Some have objected to operating an airport jointly with other counties. I remember specifically having asked Mr. Lee Fisher here on the floor if there were any objections to our operating the Kent County Airport in Ottawa County and he said it was entirely permissible.

I enclose a letter from a businessman who flies continuously and I think we should be guided by such, so that future generations will not question our judgment.

Sincerely,
David E. Hanson

David E. Hanson
Walker Township Supervisor
Grand Rapids, Michigan
Dear Mr. Hanson:

I couldn't help but write you after having read the article in the Sunday Herald entitled "Kent Officials Approve Airport Site Election."

Basically I am grateful for the opportunity for the people of Kent County to vote on this issue in that the selection of the Cascade site will at least be temporarily halted while site location issues are reviewed. However, the message I wish to convey to you is that the people should be informed about the greater service to a greater number of people if this site were West of Grand Rapids.

I live in Muskegon. Last year I traveled over 30,000 miles via air (commercial). This year I am considering moving to Chicago for the purpose of getting better airline connections. I don't wish to leave the beautiful Michigan scenery, the wonderful people, schools, etc., but I make my living traveling and time is often of the essence.

There are others like me in Muskegon, Holland, Grand Haven, Whitehall, etc. I am sure if we had one Tri-County Airport that we could command good enough air service that the thoughts of moving away could be abolished. I should think that locating the site at —say Coopersville—would not work any undue hardship on people living in Grand Rapids, what with the new Expressways which are certainly in themselves added assets to the progressive development of industry, culture, etc. to all Western Michigan.

These new Expressways would make such a site not more than 20 minutes from the major cities involved.

Respectfully yours,
Clarence W. Howe
