Working Together Community Strength Knows No Limits

Lake Paul Bunyan, the combined strength of the people of a community knows no limits.

Every school child knows about Paul and his great blue ox, Babe. They know of his great exploits in Michigan's lumber camps and of the winter of the blue snow.

They can tell you how he took time off from lumbering to make some of the natural wonders of the United States.

Just as Hercules, his name has entered our language to signify great accomplishments.

Paul Bunyan characterizes our state. But, what he did is legend.

His feats, however, have a counterpart in fact. The people of Michigan have many of the characteristics attributed to Mr. Bunyan. They can, by combining their efforts, do anything their community needs for sound development and the greater prosperity of its residents.

This has been demonstrated many times in a number of Michigan communities. Schools have been built. Hospitals have been erected. Parks and playfields have been established. Municipal improvements such as sewers and water mains, better streets have been built. New industries have been attracted and present ones encouraged to expand locally. All this has been possible because the efforts of a community have been combined. These have been feats, in fact, which outshine the exploits of Paul Bunyan, in legend.

What can be done on a community-wide basis is stressed in an industrial development advertisement, sponsored by the Michigan Press Association and the Michigan Economic Development Department, which appears today in this paper.

Lamps Plus Furniture Affect Reading Pleasure

It's not just the lamp in your living room that adds to your reading or working pleasure, says Miss Mary Taepke, residential lighting specialist with the Detroit Edison company.

She adds that tables, chairs and desks are important, too. They encourage good—or bad—posture, as you read, write or sew. Furniture should be "size suited" to your family.

Miss Taepke will be on the campus of Michigan State University on February 5, to appear on a program of "Lighting Your Home." It's a part of Farmers' Week, and anyone interested is invited to attend. The meeting will be held in Agricultural Engineering building, room 116, at 10 a. m.

Joining Miss Taepke will be lighting specialists from Westinghouse corporation and from Consumers Power Company.

Farmers' Week programs for women are scheduled on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Gov. Says "Michigan Needs Industrial Development" Lack Job Opportunities!

Michigan, with its growing population, needs industrial development so that when our young people reach working age, employment opportunities will be waiting for them.

To encourage this industrial and economic development is a responsibility. To make it an actuality is primarily the responsibility of the local community.

As a means of providing this encouragement, I proposed this week an industrial FHA program. This is a plan for state-insured loans for construction of manufacturing facilities and industrial research projects.

To put this plan into action, I have asked the legislature, by joint resolution, to put a constitutional amendment on the April 6 ballot.

The amendment would permit the state to pledge its faith and credit as guarantee for repayment of such industrial loans.

Now, it must be understood that while the authorizing of a large sum is necessary, the amendment would authorize up to $100 million little if any state money would actually be involved. The loans would be repaid by the borrower, and only if a borrower defaulted would the state get into the picture.

The easiest way to explain the plan is to say that it does for industry and research what the FHA has done for many of you as homeowners. It enabled you to borrow funds at the most favorable rate so you could purchase your home. You are repaying that loan, so it costs the government nothing to give its guarantee that you will make your regular payments. The same thing would apply to manufacturing and research projects under my proposed plan. It is a positive action to aid industrial expansion in our state.

Generous response of business and industry to my request for prepayment of state taxes has delayed a financial crisis.

By the end of last week these prepayments reached $31,500,000. That means the state has cash to operate until April 15. This sincere interest in our state by business and industry is most gratifying.

This prepayment of taxes does not solve our problem, because this is money we would otherwise receive later in the Spring. It's just like getting an advance on your May and June pay.

But the advance payments do give us more time in which to find the large sums of cash the treasury must have to keep meeting payrolls and other essential costs. Up to now it appeared that there was only one way to get this cash—by "mortgaging" the Veterans' Trust Fund.

But with the day of disaster deferred until April 15, another possibility exists—that we could borrow the money after getting clearance from the people at the April election. The Constitution now forbids the State to borrow more than $250,000. If the people were to vote an amendment raising that limitation to, say, $50 million, we wouldn't have to go into the Veterans' Trust Fund.

However, I warned legislators that if they choose this road, they had better keep alive the bills to "mortgage" the trust fund, in case the voters turn down the amendment. If that happened we'd need the Trust Fund—and fast!

Let me emphasize that this cash problem is entirely distinct from the need for new taxes. A tax increase is needed to liquidate our $110-million deficit and stay out of future deficits. The cash—either from borrowing or from mortgaging the trust fund—is needed to meet payrolls and other essential costs now. New taxes cannot be levied and collected in time to meet this need for immediate cash.

How to Test for Termites

Think you've got termites? They can exist in a house unsuspected for long periods. But, according to the experts, there are three ways to find out if they've infested your dwelling.

1. You can tell whether a beam or a sill is infested by tapping it with a hammer and listening for a hollow sound or by probing it with an ice pick or knife blade.

2. You can search the house, particularly in crawl spaces, around foundations and at utility service entrances, for the telltale tubes, a quarter to a half inch wide, that they build.

3. You can be on the watch for the swarms and wing droppings that may occur soon.

Sometimes homeowners see swarming insects but are not sure whether they are seeing termites or flying ants. If the insects have pinched waists and transparent wings, the front set being much larger than the back set, they are really ants. But if the bodies are nearly the same width stem to stern with no waist, and the wings are opaque and the same size front and back, you have found termites.

Latest government statistics show per capita consumption of alcoholic beverages in the U. S. at a record low of 1.25 gallons annually. The distilling industry itself is helping to promote general temperance by marketing whiskies that are lighter, smoother and lower in proof.

Millions Drink Too Much Without Realizing It, Digest Says

Of the 70 million Americans who drink relatively few become alcoholics. But, says this month's Digest, millions suffer a more subtle deterioration which actually may be more damaging.

These are the people who, without realizing it, drink a little too much every day. In the article, "The Insidious Nature of 'Social' Drinking," Herbert Breen reports that the shift from occasional or social drinking to heavy imbibing is so subtle often it is not noticed. But the person who has crossed this line pays a heavy price.

The days begin to seem shorter; his interests narrow. If he used to do a fair amount of reading, now he probably glances at the front page or sports section. He gives up hobbies and playing with the youngsters—because he just "doesn't have time."

The explanation of his lost time is simple: how many hours of the day is he just a little bit high? An hour after lunch, a couple of hours before or after dinner? If this goes on every day, it is like driving an eight-cylinder car with six cylinders operating.

The victim of this deterioration may become unexpectedly harsh or resentful toward others, more emotional and self-centered. He goes to bed feeling fuzzy, sleeps fitfully. He doesn't have a hangover in the morning but actually is suffering from some of the symptoms all the time and doesn't know it. Week in and week out, he is "under par" or "tired."

Usually no one else notices this; but it registers in time. In the competition for promotion, in the quest for a raise, at home, the heavy drinker has handicapped himself by delivering less than his best.

In later years, his rate of drinking may decline of itself. But countless hours of happiness, of productivity have been subtracted from his life. Experiences of beauty, fun, have gone unperceived because the senses were too dulled. The good job has been undone, the love unexpressed.

SIGN OF THE TIMES

When the producers of the TV show "Who Do You Trust?" decided to dispose of their plush isolation booths (original cost-$3,500) they placed a small ad in several New York newspapers. The number of responses was surprising—and so were the purposes for which the booths were wanted. Proposed uses included telephone booths, shelters for watchmen and, from an imaginative bar proprietor a retreat for the solitary drinker. One successful bidder is now using his booth as a poolside dressing room; the other has made the second booth into a three-story dollhouse for his daughter.

THE TRUTH ABOUT PAUL BUNYAN

In our great north woods era that wonderful Michigan hero Paul Bunyan could do anything needed around the logging camps, anything at all. That's legend.

Today the people of any Michigan community, planning and working together, can do and can achieve anything their community needs for its sound development and the greater prosperity of its citizens. That's fact.

Like Paul Bunyan when he had Babe the Blue Ox at his command and every logger in the camp behind him, the people of a community can do anything when they work together.

And that's the truth about Paul Bunyan.

Join hands with your local industrial development organization and the Michigan Economic Development Department to help your community prosper.

Your Washington Review

by Congressman JERRY FORD

The week of Lincoln's birthday always brings a lull in congressional activity and a reemphasis on the great contributions which our sixteenth President made to the country and to the entire world. The year 1959 has been designated by Presidential proclamation as "Lincoln Year" and a national committee has been created by law to arrange a proper celebration of the 150th anniversary of Lincoln's birth.

On February 12th Carl Sandburg, the distinguished Lincoln scholar and author of a six-volume story of his life, addressed a joint session of the Congress. This white-thatched, 81-year-old man of letters gave a gracious tribute to "the man for the ages" in the presence of leaders of our government and representatives of foreign lands.

On that same day at Hodgenville, Kentucky, another Lincoln Commemorative stamp was placed on sale for the first time. This particular issue was to honor the birthplace of Lincoln. On February 27th a stamp in commemoration of his Cooper Union address (delivered on February 27, 1860) will be issued in New York.

On May 30th, the 37th anniversary of the dedication of the Lincoln Memorial in Washington will be marked by the initial sale of a fourth stamp produced as a part of the celebration of the Lincoln Sesquicentennial. The first stamp was available at Freeport, Illinois last August in observance of the anniversary of the Lincoln-Douglas debates.

Ninety million of the one-cent Hodgenville stamps were printed and are now available in post offices throughout the country. As with all commemorative issues there is one printing only and when the supply is exhausted no more are available from the Post Office Department.

Periodically we receive letters protesting the unnecessary and wasteful expense by the Post Office in printing commemorative stamps. The Department is always pleased to report, however, that this is one area in which it makes a profit. It estimates that the government clears a profit of from $20 million to $25 million annually on its commemorative stamps. This occurs because so many of the stamps go into the hands of collectors and require no service from the Department. It is interesting to note that we use 25 billion adhesive stamps a year in the country and that about 8½ billion of these are the 4 cent, first-class postage fee.

THE NEW LINCOLN COIN: Another feature of the Lincoln Ses-

Helpful Tips Make Cleaning Tasks Easier

True—you must clean the house and wash the clothes. But there are ways to do these jobs without wearing yourself out, says Ruth Kettunen, extension specialist in home management at Michigan State University.

Be on the lookout for ways to cut down on unnecessary motions that just use energy. For example, sit whenever you can. If you're sorting clothes or even dusting small objects, sit down and save that precious energy. And remember, whether sitting or standing, your posture must be good to avoid getting tired.

Use leg muscles instead of back muscles when lifting objects from the floor, continues Mrs. Kettunen. Bend your knees instead of bending at the waist. Better yet, instead of stooping for things, bring them up to you! Adjust laundry tubs, clothes baskets, and washing machines to a comfortable level. Perhaps your clothes dryer could be placed on a bench or platform.

When carrying things from one place to another, use elevated carts and clothes baskets. A table on wheels can be very handy when doing such jobs as washing windows. The table and the cleaning equipment can be easily wheeled from window to window. If you must carry things, hold the load close to the front of your body, or divide the load and carry part in each arm.

Work at a comfortable and relaxed pace, advises Mrs. Kettunen. Rhythmical, sweeping motions instead of short, jerky ones will save energy. If it's possible, rest ten minutes out of every hour.

Comfortable clothing is a must when cleaning. It should allow for free arm and shoulder movement. Remember to use both hands for such jobs as dusting, washing woodwork or windows, and cleaning parallel clotheslines.

It's only human nature that a man is more interested in getting his bite than in giving his bit.

Too many people seem to be taking advantage of the admitted fact that it isn't human to be perfect.

quicentennial is the appearance of a new design on the reverse side of our one-cent pieces. Some of you may have seen the 1959 Lincoln penny with the Memorial design on the back. The U. S. Mints (we have two now operating: Philadelphia and Denver) began manufacture of the new penny on January 2, 1959 having discontinued on December 31st the design in effect for 50 years.

In 1909, the 100th anniversary of Lincoln's birth, the Indian Head penny was discontinued and the Lincoln penny produced. The law requires that the design of any coin (except commemoratives) once adopted must be kept in effect for at least 25 years unless altered by an act of Congress. After 25 years the Director of the Mint may with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury change the design. Because this is "Lincoln Year" the Director made the change which you will notice in your pennies as local banks requisition additional supplies from the Federal Reserve Bank to meet their business needs and the 1959 coins find their way to you.

The manufacture of the one-cent piece is also a profitable business for the government. One pound of the metal alloy (95 percent copper, 5 percent tin and zinc) costs 28 cents. From this pound and at a manufacturing cost of 11 cents, the mints produce 145 cents valued at $1.45. This leaves a profit of $1.06 on the operation. If you are mathematically inclined, you may want to figure the profit on the 1,053,478,300 one-cent pieces which was the number manufactured in the past fiscal year.

The penny has the widest circulation of any U. S. coin and, as is true of all coins now produced, carries the three mottos of our country: "Liberty," "In God We Trust," and "E Pluribus Unum."

SOME LINCOLN MATERIAL: The Lincoln Sesquicentennial Commission has published two pamphlets, a "Handbook of Information" and "The Lincoln Ideals." I have a limited supply of these and will be pleased to send copies upon request.

We also have a large quantity of "All Aboard, Mr. Lincoln" supplied by the Commission. This "comic-book" type of pamphlet illustrating Lincoln's association with the railroads may be of interest to elementary and junior high school classes. Individual copies are also available for the asking.

PERSONAL: I had expected to spend three days in Kent and Ottawa Counties last week but the weather cut this to one. I hope that the appointments which had to be cancelled, including those at Ottawa Hills High School and with the 5th and 6th graders at Congress School, may be rescheduled.

And then—two days after Lincoln's birthday comes Valentine's Day. One of the younger members of my staff, Ed Mabin, caught the spirit of the old verse in modern terminology as he circulated the office with his special contribution for the Day:

"Rockets are Red,
Outer space is blue,
My Heart is in orbit
All around you."

'Women Better Patients,' Says Family Doctor of Year

Dr. Lonnie A. Coffin, 68, of Farmington, Iowa, back at work after being named General Practitioner of the Year by the American Medical Association.

"Women are better patients than men," according to Dr. Lonnie A. Coffin, Family Doctor of the Year. "They'll do what you tell them, but men won't."

At 68, Dr. Coffin is a warm and happy man, busy with the health needs of more than 3,000 people in and around rural Farmington, Iowa. Enriched by 43 years of country doctoring, he is also a man who speaks his mind, a philosopher with concise and witty views on life. Here are a few of them:

On smoking: "It's undoubtedly bad for you. I gave it up after my coronary, and"—he stopped to light one of his six daily cigars—"I've given it up several times since then."

On health: "The work of the voluntary health agencies makes me confident about the future. The National Foundation, for instance, which helped us eight years ago when a polio epidemic hit Farmington [three of Dr. Coffin's four grandchildren were stricken], is now applying its March of Dimes funds to problems like arthritis and birth defects. That's good news, and good health."

On sickness: "If you're sick, do what you can to get well, but try not to worry about it. If you worry, you'll feel worse and so will everybody around you."

On being sick at night: "We all get sicker at night. That's because we have more time to think about ourselves."

On drinking: "There are only certain people who should drink. Those who can both control it and afford it."

On fishing: "You can fish sitting down and I like that. If you catch something, fine. If you don't, exaggerate."

On being a doctor: "I try to take care of people no matter what the hour, no matter where they live, no matter who they are. Where or when they get sick is not their fault."

On being a doctor named 'Coffin': "Well, it's true that what they carry you off in, but the fact is my name hasn't scared off too many patients."

Sicily, Island of the Sun, Presented At Lions Travel Series, February 23

Robert Davis will present his newest film at the Thornapple Lions Club Travel Series, Monday evening, Feb. 23 in the Forest Hills High School Auditorium, at 8 p. m. Tickets will be available at the door. This film, personally narrated and presented with its original sun-drenched color is guaranteed to interest young and old alike.

Robert Davis

Sicily is a Mediterranean island of 10,000 square miles which was settled by the Phoenicians more than five centuries before Christ. Since then, ten other rulers have conquered and left their mark. Robert Davis effectively portrays the Sicily of today as it stands against the back-drop of history. Here is a color-drenched film of a sun-drenched island. Robert Davis will take us from the semi-tropical lowlands to the top of Mt. Etna, the highest volcano in Europe, to find black lava and white snow. He will take us to the blue Mediterranean Sea to battle with the giant tunny fish—a spectacular and fascinating drama. He will show us the transformation of hard wheat into spaghetti. The pages of history will unfold before us as we see the floor of a third century Roman Villa, the Greek Theater at Syracuse attended by Plato, and the medieval village of Eric where Venus ruled over the destinies of gods and men. The colorful lives of the fascinating Sicilians will be brought to us by Robert Davis in excellent all-color film and authentic sound effects recorded on location.

Croel-Pyard Rites Performed

The Alaska Baptist church, decorated with baskets of white gladioli and red carnations, was the scene of the marriage Saturday evening, of Miss Bonnie Lou Croel and David Joseph Pyard.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Lee Croel, Meerse, S. E., are the parents of the bride, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe C. Pyard, Whitneyville S. E.

Officiating at the ceremony was Rev. Alfred Nelson. Mrs. Alfred Nelson played the organ, and accompanied Carl VanderHeide, soloist.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, chose a floor length dress of Chantilly lace and nylon tulle. The basque bodice was trimmed with a yoke of lace, sequins and seed pearls which formed a Sabrina neckline. Long sleeves tapered to points at the wrists. The bouffant skirts, arranged in tiers, had an overskirt of tulle banded in lace. Her full length veil trimmed with lace was held by a crown of pearls and lace. The bride carried a white Bible, trimmed with a white orchid with ribbon streamers and feathered carnations caught in love knots.

Mrs. Patrick Sniff, sister of the bride, attended as matron of honor. She wore a cocktail length red taffeta dress, styled with Sabrina neckline, full harem skirt and cummerbund with a bow and bustle in back. She wore a matching velvet and pearl headband and carried a white satin heart with red tea roses.

Miss Nancy Pyard, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Mitzi McCaul and Miss Linda Clancy were the bridesmaids, wearing dresses like the honor attendant and carried white satin hearts with red roses.

Lorry Stell was flower girl and Earl Russell Lewitt was ring bearer.

William Pyard, cousin of the groom served as best man, and Theodore Milanowski, Alfred Markel and Roger Markel seated the guests.

Bruce Biggs and Duane Croel, brother of the bride, were candle boys.

Mrs. Croel chose a black and white taffeta print dress with bouffant skirt for her daughter's wedding. She wore red accessories and a corsage of red roses and white carnations.

Mrs. Pyard wore a navy crepe Empire dress, trimmed with alencon lace, with accessories of navy and white and a corsage of red roses and white carnations.

Rev. and Mrs. Alfred Nelson were the master and mistress of ceremonies at the reception held in the church parlors. The Misses Joyce Bates, Bonnie Kaan, Mary Ann Kitch, Thelma Eldridge, Beverly Benson, Mrs. Mable Lewis, Mrs. Edward Claeson, Mrs. Thomas Forward, Mrs. Donald Link and Mrs. Nicholas VanTuinen assisted about the rooms.

After a southern honeymoon the couple will live on Whitneyville S. E.

The bride wore a gray tweed box suit with red and black accessories and a white orchid corsage for traveling.

WHILE UP ON THE ROOF

A man watching television in Waynesville, N. C., saw the screen suddenly go blank. Investigation revealed that someone had climbed to the roof of his house and made off with the antenna.

TV BRIEFS:

Erle Stanley Gardner, on the state of television: "Television is growing up. It is marching onward to a point where, whether we like it or not, it is becoming the greatest educational factor in the Nation today."

George Gobel, explaining the new format for his TV show: "With all those production numbers and singers, I was getting to feel like a male Dinah Shore. So we decided this year we'd better go back to believability."

Despite the speed of modern living the successful man saves enough time to plan his next move.

Finest Enlistment Choice Of 10 Occupational Areas

The U. S. Army is now offering the finest enlistment choice in its history, according to M-Sgt. Carl S. Joram, local Army recruiter.

Under this new plan, you can choose the exact Career Group in which you would like to receive training. Called the "Choose It Yourself" Vocational Training System, the new plan offers a young man the opportunity to choose service in an Army Career Group that satisfies his own desires and aptitudes. The plan offers more than 50 Career Groups to choose from.

Here's an example of how the plan works, according to Sergeant Joram: If you want to work in electronics—and have an aptitude for that kind of work—you are guaranteed on-the-job training or schooling in electronics after you complete basic training. The guarantee is entered on your Army record when you enlist.

Sergeant Joram further pointed out that this plan is the most unique opportunity the Army has ever offered to young men and that there is a similar plan for women.

The new enlistment options consist of 10 major occupational areas. They are:

1. Combat
2. Electronics
3. Electrical Maintenance
4. Precision Maintenance
5. Military Crafts
6. Motor Maintenance
7. Clerical
8. Graphics
9. General Technical
10. Special Assignment

For further information about this new Army program, call Sergeant Joram at GL 4-6006, or contact him at his office at Grand Rapids Post Office Room 403 between the hours of 8 a. m. to 4:30 p. m., Monday through Friday.

ROBERT J. LEE ATTENDS AGENTS TRAINING PROGRAM

Robert J. Lee, representative of Nationwide Insurance in 2106 Engle-side Dr. SE, Grand Rapids, is one of 25 Agents attending the Training Program last week being conducted by his Companies at the Riverside Manor Motel, Lansing.

Robert J. Lee has qualified to attend this program, which is designed to help him render better service to his policyholders.

Just because he had no family tree many a man has succeeded because he branched out for himself.

Schools Can Help Pupils Obtain Jobs

Teachers have a real responsibility towards pupils who have no intention to continue education beyond high school but want to be prepared for "some kind of job," says Prof. John M. Trytten (PhD) of The University of Michigan.

"Serious confusion exists in connection with the program designed for these pupils, and they are in a great majority," he says.

"Specific content and performance standards cannot be arrived at when you do not know what the trainees are going to do—the nature of the business, the size of the business, the level of responsibility connected with the job, the personnel policies of the firm, or the personal biases of the employers. It follows that content will be appropriate the more generally useful it is, and standards must be variable."

He suggests that business and industrial men from the community could be called in to help pupils focus on the preparation for specific occupations. "These laymen can, on the one hand, make available to the school their understanding of what the employment possibilities may be for boys and girls and what our graduates will need to know and to feel in order to fit into the world of work."

"On the other hand, they will also acquire an understanding of the problems of the high school which will enable them to interpret to associates and to community groups the school's service to boys and girls more effectively than school personnel can do."

"The most widely serviceable skills are reading ability, effective speech, effective writing, and general mathematics. These needs involve all the departments of the school. If 75 percent of a school's pupils will be seeking employment upon graduation, this fact should have implications not only for the special departments, but for the mathematics department, the English department, social studies, and others."

What can teachers do for pupils who are preparing to work at jobs that they haven't actually decided upon? "They can make available calculating machines to facilitate quantitative thinking. They can offer retail selling instruction which has obvious training values in speech, and in human relations. The courses in general business and consumer economics involve situations that are meaningful because of relationship to past experiences or future plans of the pupils."

"For pupils who seek employment with business firms this emphasis on basic skills, understandings, and attitudes is sound. They will have at least one salable skill. The information and understanding of business practices and problems will help them to orient themselves to their company and its operation," he says.

What to do with incomplete packs of cards? Old decks of cards have new hours of fun left in them, suggest extension home economics specialists at Michigan State University. They make excellent bookmarks. Glue several together to make attractive coasters.

Old cards can be used to make a gay table top—either for a living room coffee table or for a table in the children's room or basement play room. Glue cards to table top and cover with several coats of shellac. Old cards also make excellent backers for photographs carried in purse or wallet.

Faculty Selects 1959 Exchange Student

Karla Burger, above, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Burger of Cascade, has been selected to be Lowell's exchange student abroad next summer. She was chosen by a committee consisting of several Lowell High teachers and last year's exchange student Martha Stiff. Robert Thaler was chosen to be Karla's alternate. The exchange student is always a junior so that on returning, experiences can be related to the community during the senior year.

The judges who selected Karla include Mrs. Patricia Mullen, Mrs. Esther Lampen, Mrs. Anna Mae Roth, Martha Stiff, Kenneth Williams, Bob Perry and Stephen Nisbet. This committee made their choice on the following: the applicant's ability to adapt to different conditions, human understanding, outgoing personality, curiosity and responsibility, scholastic ability and the candidates desire to participate in the American Field Service program.

Other juniors who applied for the program were Jim Vandenhout and Brian Hoag. The committee felt they had a difficult decision to make because these students were equally qualified.

Karla is eagerly looking forward to next summer. She says, "I hope to make many friends this summer, and will always remember that I am a representative of my school, community, and nation." She also stated that she felt that such student-exchange programs were very important for International understandings. After she submits her final application to the American Field Service, she will be notified of what country she will visit and her summer family.

What Is A. F. S.

The American Field Service program began in 1950. That year 9 teenagers were sent to France for the summer. Last year over 2,809 exchange students were sent from the U. S. to 20 nations all over the world.

The purpose of AFS is to further international understanding and friendship by the exchange of ideas, and by the sharing of good times together.

Each town that brings a student "ambassador" to the U. S. may send one back in return. Frank Negro represents Italy this year under this plan. This particular program has been going on here for the past three years, and is presently being sponsored by the school.
