E., a Senior at Lowell High School and recent "teen of the week", has been accepted as a contingent member of the Tenth World Scout Jamboree to be held in the Philippine Islands, July 17, to 26. Don and a Scout from Grand Haven are the only boys going from the Grand Valley Council, which covers five counties.

The elevation is 1,000 feet above sea level, and overlooks Laguna Bay on the one side and faces the mountains on the others.

July 27, will be spent in Manila, and July 28 and 29, they will tour in Bangkok Thailand. July 30 and 31 will be spent in Hong Kong, China, and they will arrive in San Francisco, August 2.

Varsity to Play Faculty, Friday

The Forest Hills varsity team will play the Forest Hills faculty team Friday night, February 27, in the new gymnasium.

This will be the last game of the season for the varsity team. There will be preliminary games between the 7th and 8th grades of Forest Hills and Kelloggsville.

Win Tournament Opener

The Forest Hills freshman team scored a dramatic win at Lee in the opening of the Lee Freshman Tournament by a 33-32 score.

Dennis Graham, scored the tying basket as the gun sounded. He was fouled on the play and then sank the free throw to win the game after time had elapsed.

The Rangers now play Kelloggsville Thursday night at 8 o'clock in the Lee gym. A win would put them in the finals on Saturday evening. A loss would place them in the consolation game, Saturday night.

7th and 8th Grades Win

The Seventh and Eighth grade teams both won opening round games in the Lowell Invitational Tournament last Thursday, February 19.

The seventh grade defeated Pewamo 18-16, while the 8th grade defeated the same school 31-24.

Both the seventh and eighth grades played Ionia Tuesday evening in the second round of the tournament. Victories over the Ionia teams would place the teams in the finals, which will be played on Wednesday.

Governor Presents His Tax Plans

An attempt to add another penny to the Michigan three-cent sales tax failed in the House of Representatives last week. The resolution to have the increase placed on the April 6 ballot was defeated when no Democrat voted for its passage.

Increasing the sales tax would mean that the low-income groups and those with large families would bear a greater percentage of the state tax load. The sales tax gives no consideration of ability to pay. It is one of the "soak the poor" taxes which I have strongly opposed.

Rather than increase the sales tax, I proposed a graduated state personal income tax and a corporation profits tax which would mean an equitable distribution of the new tax revenue Michigan needs.

A sales tax increase would mean that our young people just starting to raise their families would be forced to bear a larger portion of state tax. It would hit students, our aged, those on pensions and others least able to pay.

A graduated personal income tax would be borne by those better able to pay. In no case would the tax be severe or inequitable because the state tax would be deductible in figuring federal income taxes.

Even if the sales tax were increased, it would not yield enough money to cover the anticipated state deficit at the close of the fiscal year June 30. The tax program I proposed would provide operating funds and has provisions for retiring the deficit.

My proposal includes tax relief amounting to about $30 million a year starting July 1, 1960—to business and industry. This would be accomplished by virtual repeal of the corporate franchise and intangibles taxes. Business and industry would be allowed a credit against their state taxes in the amount of 15 percent of their local tax on personal property. This is a positive way to encourage expansion of industry in our state. The sales tax proposal does not include any such business benefits.

Michigan was able to weather its financial crisis because 35 large firms, plus smaller ones and individual taxpayers, came forward with prepayment of state taxes that totalled more than $30 million. These companies have given the people of Michigan good cause to be grateful. Their wonderful response to my appeal has made it possible to weather the cash crisis this month and next.

This is not a solution to our financial problem. It only delays it and allows the Legislature time to agree on a method which will meet our needs for the balance of this fiscal year.

There must be a large amount of cash made available to the general fund. The state taxes paid in advance represent income the state would receive later this year. There must be other funds to replace this. The Legislature can mortgage the $50 million Veterans Trust Fund, or it can order on the April 6 ballot the question of raising to $50 million the state's present unrealistic debt limitation of $250,000.

Torchy, our 11-year-old black cocker spaniel, is gone. It was something that had to come, just as it does to every family which has a dog. My wife, Nancy, found Torchy paralyzed, sleeping beside our daughter Nancy's bed, last Wednesday. When we took him to the pet hospital, the veterinarian decided there was no help and he was put out of suffering. Torchy liked people and people liked him. He acquired many friends in the ten years he had been with us, and we'll all miss him. Many of you probably saw him on television when he appeared with Nancy several times.

All of us appreciate very much the messages which you have sent us since Torchy left.

BUSINESS IS BUSINESS!

Bat Masterson, famous lawman of the old West, could draw as fast and shoot as straight as the best, but his relaxed personality set him apart from other Western heroes. Long after Masterson retired from the hectic West to the more serene life of an Eastern sports writer, a collector of Western souvenirs approached Bat. "I just have to have your gun with the 23 notches on the butt," the man said. Reports are that Masterson had shot far fewer than 23 men in his career, but he went along with the gag. He ambled over to a neighboring pawnshop, bought an old Colt .45, cut 23 notches in the butt with his penknife and sold it to the man.

THE BASIS OF A SOUND ECONOMY?

Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, commenting on his taste in television programs, admits that he, too, is a Western fan. "However," Dr. Peale says, "I do not go as far as a boy in the fourth grade I heard about. His class was listing peoples of the world whose economy depends upon specific animals, such as the Lapps on reindeer, Arabs on camels, Australians on sheep. "The United States depends on cows," said one boy. "How come?" asked the teacher. "If it wasn't for cows," he replied, "there wouldn't be cowboys. And if it wasn't for cowboys, most TV actors wouldn't have no way to make a living, and the rest of us wouldn't have nothin' to live for."

TV BRIEFS:

Dr. Norman Vincent Peale: "I should be a Piel brothers fan (my name being Peale—spelled the right way) but I don't approve of beer ads."

Raymond Burr, TV's "Perry Mason": "I'm a fine guy to be an actor. Can't even stand to have my picture taken—I can't stand myself. If I could shave without a mirror, I'd do it."

A University of Michigan botanist and various assistants over the past two years have traveled the equivalent of nearly once around the earth—without leaving the state—collecting specimens to be used in compiling a manual in Michigan plants.

Your Washington Review

By Congressman JERRY FORD

The perennial demand of the City of Chicago for additional water to be diverted from Lake Michigan into the Illinois Waterway is again with the Congress. Last week the House Committee on Public Works opened its 1959 hearings on H. R. 1, a bill to increase the flow of water out of Lake Michigan from 1,500 cubic feet per second to 2,500 cubic feet per second. Chicago allegedly wants the greater amount for sanitation and navigation purposes.

Your Congressman has consistently and vigorously opposed this legislative approach before committees and on the floor during the past ten years. It has always been my view that the comprehensive and complicated problems of the water level of the Great Lakes should be handled either by judicial action of the Supreme Court or by a special administrative body established by the Congress, but in either case Congress should maintain final jurisdiction.

An increased loss of 1,000 cubic feet per second of Lake Michigan water at this point can only have a detrimental effect on Great Lakes shipping and will inevitably result in increased expenditures for harbor construction and maintenance. With the St. Lawrence Seaway about to open we will be ill-advised to create new problems in this area.

It always surprises me to see how effective the Illinois Congressmen are in garnering votes for this pet project. Well informed sources are already predicting that H. R. 1 will be passed by both House and Senate. As you know President Eisenhower has twice vetoed similar legislation. Some sources believe that he will reject such a bill again. If we are unable to defeat the legislation in the Congress I will certainly urge the President to veto the measure again.

CLOSING AN OPEN BACKDOOR: Your Congressman appeared before the Committee on Rules last week in support of H. Res. 161 which would cut off the direct pipeline into the Treasury and close "the backdoor" approach to the public purse.

In recent years the Congress has found a new means of tapping the Federal till by authorizing an agency or department to obtain funds directly from the Treasury without further action by the Committee on Appropriations and the Congress. This means that no administrator must give an accounting for last year's activity nor a justification for next year's proposals. He can just go on spending until the authorized amount is gone. I contend that this invites waste, encourages fiscal irresponsibility, and is an abrogation of Congressional authority. Both Democrat and Republican members of the Committee on Appropriations agree that the practice should be stopped.

If H. Res. 161 is adopted as a rule of the House, the Committee on Appropriations will have sole jurisdiction over expenditures, can coordinate these expenditures, and be held fully responsible for them. I strongly believe in economy in government and a balanced budget, but the job will be more difficult to realize unless there is central authority in the House of Representatives by the appropriation process for the control of Federal SECRETARY JOHN FOSTER DULLES: All Americans were saddened, I'm sure, to learn of Secretary Dulles' serious illness. Many of those who had been most critical of some of his policies and specific acts have now spoken glowingly of his competence, integrity, patriotism, and superb sense of duty. They know that to lose Dulles at this particular time will be a serious blow to the United States and the Free World.

One of my good friends in Kent County wrote to recommend for Mr. Dulles a recognition comparable to the Medal of Honor. By law the Medal of Honor is for an officer or enlisted man of the armed forces who "distinguishes himself conspicuously by gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of his life above and beyond the call of duty in action involving actual conflict with an enemy." I'm sure that most of us will agree with our friend that Mr. Dulles qualifies on all counts save that of active duty membership in the armed service.

SUNDAY VOTING: Senator William Langer who had suggested in a news article that national elections be held on Sunday assures us that no such bill will be introduced. He as well as we have received hundreds of letters of protest and it is very obvious that such a change in the election day has no support whatsoever in the Congress. Personally I am vigorously opposed to designating Sunday as an election day.

The Senator says he was trying to list means of encouraging greater voter participation in elections. He may introduce legislation to that end but any proposal will NOT include Sunday voting.

CONSENT CALENDAR: On the first and third Mondays of each month bills which have been favorably reported by a committee and listed on the "Consent Calendar" may be called up for passage in the House of Representatives by unanimous consent. This means that they are approved by the House after very little floor discussion and by a perfunctory vote.

Each political party therefore selects three of its members to act as "official objectors for the Consent Calendar" who are made responsible for screening and checking all legislation proposed for passage by this method. Your Congressman has been a member of the Republican group for eight years and last week was designated as GOP Chairman for the current session.

Winter Kill Test

Seeking an answer to winter kill control, a fisheries research biologist tests water samples from a lake in which warm, compressed air has been pumped. Vegetation decay had reduced the lake's oxygen content to a low degree, resulting in the drowning of many fish. Favorable results were noted in the samples to support use of this artificial, pumping method in other lakes affected by the problem.

Tracks for racing the newest craze the "Track Rabbit Midget Racer" are expected to be available in Western Michigan this summer so that the thrills of this newest sport will be available here. The built-in safety of the Track Rabbit, with its heavy duty tubular frame of welded construction, has won approval and enthusiastic support of parents wherever it is introduced. It is designed so that a six-year-old can handle it as easily and safely as a big brother or granddad. Many types are available from the complete unit with fiber glass body to the do-it-yourself kits.

Until recently confined to the west coast and New England midget racing got its Midwest start quite by accident when one day last year when an industrial designer decided to give his ten-year-old son a hand in building a "hot rod." Determined that the car should be as safe as possible he took the problem to his plant employees who enthusiastically joined the project and built enough cars for all of their sons. When the first Track Rabbits appeared at Alliance, Ohio midget tracks they created a sensation.

The idea of Track Rabbit racing caught the public fancy in Northern Ohio and spread rapidly after its introduction last summer. Overflow crowds of young and old alike consistently turned out to see the youngsters race. Adult interest became so intense that most tracks soon were featuring special Mom and Dad races. It quickly developed into an ideal family sport and with the coming of winter, Track Rabbit autos raced the weather southward where they are meeting with wholehearted acceptance.

The Track Rabbit is driven by a hand throttle controlled, 2 1/2-horse-power, four-cycle engine that produces 60 miles to the gallon at speeds from 5 to 35 miles per hour. It's braked by a heavy-duty, foot-operated, two-wheel, friction type brake.

THINGS TO COME

Newest thing in jukeboxes: silence records. The ungrooved platter sounds nothing but a beep every 15 seconds as a reminder that a coin's worth of nothing is playing... A new kind of tobacco pouch automatically tamps tobacco into a pipe without spilling a speck... A new .22-caliber rifle is made of nylon except for steel barrel and bolt assembly, is one-third lighter than present models, more durable and not hurt by water.

Rabies Still a Problem in State Health Department Reveals

Four animal rabies cases were reported in Michigan during the first five weeks of 1959, and the Michigan Department of Health today urged all dog owners and some cat owners to have their animals vaccinated against rabies.

"Four cases is a relatively heavy rabies load for the first five weeks of the year," said Dr. Donald B. Coohon, state health department veterinarian. "In the last few years we've had either no cases or just one case during this time."

Because of the apparently increased risk of rabies infection, Dr. Coohon said all dogs and many pet cats should be vaccinated against rabies. Cats that need protection most are the ones in suburban or rural areas where there is chance of exposure to skunks or other wild animals that can transmit rabies. Cats owned by city residents also should be vaccinated if they are allowed to roam.

The four rabies cases reported so far this year have been in widely scattered parts of the state.

The first case was a pet dog owned by a farm family near West Branch. The dog died of rabies early in January after fighting with a wild skunk which presumably was rabid.

A few days later, a young calf owned by a farmer north of Ann Arbor died of rabies. Source of the disease is not known in this case.

Late in January, a dog owned by a family residing on the outskirts of Manistique died of rabies. A young boy was exposed to the disease by the dog and is now receiving anti-rabies treatment.

On February 2, a pet cat owned by a family at Hart died of rabies. One member of the family was bitten by the cat nine days before it died and is now receiving treatment. Sources of the rabies in the Manistique and Hart cases also are unknown.

The calf rabies case was confirmed by tests made at the Pasteur Institute at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, and the other cases by tests at the Michigan Department of Health laboratories in Lansing.

"The best and easiest way to control rabies," Dr. Coohon said, "is to immunize our pets. Experience proves this to be true. Immunization became widespread in Michigan about 10 years ago. Since then we've had a sharp decrease in the number of rabies cases. In 1948 there were 314 animal rabies cases and one human case. Last year we had 38 animal cases and no human cases—in fact, we haven't had a human case since 1948."

The 38 cases in 1958 included 11 in the Upper Peninsula. 1958 was the first year since 1940 that rabies was reported north of the Straits.

The rabies virus apparently was re-introduced into the U. P. by wild foxes that crossed the frozen St. Mary's River from Canada into Chippewa County in the early months of 1958. Last month's rabies case at Manistique, Dr. Coohon believes, resulted from the 1958 invasion from Canada.

"To protect our pets and ourselves," Dr. Coohon said, "we have to keep our pets immunized against rabies. Apparently there is a state-wide, self-perpetuating reservoir of rabies in Michigan's wildlife, particularly the skunk. At any time, rabies can jump from wildlife to our pets. We can keep this from happening by immunizing our pets."

"And if we don't immunize our pets, we are unnecessarily risking our own lives because there's always the chance that rabies will jump from wildlife to pets and then to ourselves."

Dr. Coohon said two good vaccines are available for protecting animals against rabies. A phenolized vaccine that protects for one year has been available for almost 35 years. A newer vaccine made with chicken embryos protects for 39 months and is less liable to cause a reaction.

Break, Break, Bankrupt...

A friend calls my attention to a recent statement by a manufacturer of swimming pools. He declares that workers need an afternoon dip in the company pool. "The swimming pool break will one day take its place alongside the coffee break in modern business," he said.

The friend adds that the way the breaks are going the working day come 1969 will be something like this:

- 10 a. m.—Coffee break.
- 11 a. m.—Exercise break.
- 12 noon—Lunch break.
- 1 p. m.—Digestive break.
- 2 p. m.—Swimming pool break.
- 3 p. m.—Hair styling break (to repair pool-wetted tresses), sun bathing break for men.
- 4 p. m.—Shopping break.
- 5 p. m.—Financial break (bankruptcy, that is).

There are 600,000 people working today in the more than 14,000 U. S. Banks. This is 300,000 more than in 1940—an increase of 100 percent during the last ten years.

COLD WEATHER CARE OF THE HOUSE DOG

By Dr. E. M. Gildow
Director Friskies Research Kennels

Dogs seem to be more prone to the sniffles and other sundry ailments in winter than they are in summer. There's no need to mollycoddle your pet during the frosty season, but there are a few sensible precautions you might take to help prevent illness.

Check on the location of your dog's bed. It should be away from radiators, doors, entrances or the tops of staircases. The ideal spot is a corner under some object, such as a table. It should be raised a few inches off the floor.

Although you may be tempted to skip a walk or cut one short when the snow falls or the winds bluster, for the sake of your own health as well as your dog's, regular exercise is a must. Don't let your dog dawdle, however. Keep moving along at a brisk clip. Keep a towel near the front door and give your pet a good rubdown if you were out in the rain or snow.

Cut down on the number of baths you give during the winter. Substitute the dry type for the tub whenever possible. If a soap-and-water washing becomes imperative, administer it after the last walk of the day and see that your dog is completely dry before he turns in for the night.

Feeding Tip: Dogs often require more high energy food during the cold winter months than they do in summer. One way to be sure your pet is getting his required quota is to feed him the correct amount of prepared dog food.

State Lottery Not So Silly

Not so silly in many ways is a proposal by State Rep. Ed Fitzpatrick of Detroit to bail the state out of part of its financial woes by legalizing lotteries in Michigan.

A lot of folks frown on this sort of legislation since it appears to give some sort of formal recognition to gambling.

Yet Michigan for a number of years has taxed horse bets and gladly accepted the revenue.

Rep. Fitzpatrick estimates that five public sweepstakes in Michigan each year could bring $50 million into the state treasury. As it is, he points out, the Irish sweepstakes draw about $30 million a year out of Michigan.

Legal or not, the American people are a breed who like to take a chance now and then and are prone to gamble moderately. We tax most of our other fun, we might as well put a painless levy on lottery tickets.

That way the state would be in on "the take" rather than a bunch of organized hoodlums who now wax fat on illegal gambling in Michigan.

The ordinary guy, too, who bets a buck or two through illegal channels now, would be getting a better run for his money in state-regulated lotteries.

Deer Starvation Rate May Pass 1950-51 Record 50,000 Deer Kill

More than 50,000 whitetail deer in Michigan face starvation this winter in what may prove to be the greatest deer die-off in the state's history.

Casey Westell, jr., forest and wildlife ecologist for the American Box Board Co. and chairman of the nationwide Recreation and Wildlife Committee of American Forest Products Industries, said the impending die-off might well exceed the mass starvation of deer during the winter of 1950-1951, when malnutrition scratched approximately 50,000 animals from the Michigan herd.

Westell forecast the forthcoming mass starvation after an inspection of food and weather conditions in the major deer range of lower Michigan. Already a record-breaking winter of bitter cold and deep snow is causing tremendous hardship on the famous whitetail population, he said.

"A blanket of snow 24 to 36 inches deep now covers most of the country which I inspected," said Westell. "This large accumulation of snow, coupled with weeks and weeks of sub-zero temperatures and high winds, has driven the deer herd into the heavy cover of coniferous swamps. When deer are unable to range freely to obtain necessary food, they become progressively weaker and finally die of malnutrition."

Westell said virtually all Michigan swamps have grown up with the result that leafy crowns of the cedars, balsam, pine and spruce tower far above the heads of the hungry deer.

"Although considerable amounts of nutritious hardwood browse could be found on the uplands, the deep snows, howling winds and frigid temperatures keep the deer locked in the swamps," said Westell.

Westell, who heads up the American Box Board Company's program of forest and wildlife management for private landowners, added that although winter logging operations are continuing, the deer mobility has been so reduced that in many cases the animals cannot get to the tops and branches left by the loggers. Normally, the twigs in the tops of the harvested trees are prime winter fare for the whitetails.

Only a miracle of winter weather can avert a major die-off, the ecologist added.

"If we get just the normal amount of snow and cold weather during February and March, we must prepare ourselves for one of the largest die-offs of deer," he said. "Weather forecasts indicate more snow and subnormal temperatures."

"In most areas of the primary deer country, we are still trying to carry too many deer per square mile, and many of the whitetails that will die the painful, lingering death of malnutrition should have been harvested during the deer seasons," he said. "These valuable animals could have provided much sport and food for Michigan sportsmen. If we will accept the fact that it is far better to carry less deer over the winter and bring those through in better shape, we will still have the same number of deer to hunt each fall because healthy deer produce more fawns."

Westell said the gruesome story of large-scale deer losses being reenacted in Michigan forests is the age-old ruthless method of nature to rectify an unhealthy and unstable condition. Modern methods of forest and wildlife management can minimize these losses, and all persons interested should press for adequate scientific control, he said.

Westell said that the next six weeks would tell the story of how large the impending deer die-off will be.

Martin Van Buren was the first president to be born a citizen of the United States.

How To Prevent Skids In Winter

By Jeanne Smith.

ALTHOUGH MUCH has been written on how to drive safely in winter, many motorists still are confused about types of tires and chains that best prevent dangerous skids on snow and ice.

Some helpful information on this subject, based on tests and research by the National Safety Council's Committee on Winter Driving Hazards, was revealed recently at the International Skid Prevention Conference in Virginia.

Committee Chairman A. H. Easton made the following observations to aid drivers who live in northern climates or mountainous areas. Residents of southern states, who may be planning northern trips this winter, will be interested in his analysis also.

1. Regular tires are inadequate for certain severe winter driving conditions. Smooth or worn tires corner very poorly and should never be used on ice or snow.

2. Mud-Snow tires provide better snow and ice traction than regular tires while winterized tires, with special tread treatment and additives, provide good traction on ice, but do not help much on snow.

3. Sanders give outstanding traction on ice, but are not helpful on snowy surfaces.

4. Reinforced tire chains are the most effective traction device in reducing skids on both snow and ice. Round wire tire chains provide good stop and go performance on ice and snow, but side-skid resistance is low compared to reinforced chains.

Urging motorists to be prepared for winter driving hazards, Easton pointed out that stopping distances on winter surfaces are from three to twelve times as great as on dry pavement. Ice, as it begins to form or melt, he said, is the most dangerous winter driving condition.

Egypt Grange News

The Egypt Grange entertained the Kent County Pomona Grange on Thursday evening, February 19. The guest speaker for the evening was Robert Giltner, Master of Indiana State Grange from Lafayette, Indiana.

Mr. Giltner was one of the twenty-one farmers from Indiana who visited Russia as guests of the radio station of Indiana. He gave a wonderful talk on what he saw and felt in Russia. He also showed many colorful slides from there as well as East and West Berlin.

Mrs. Giltner, who is the lady assistant steward of the National Grange, brought us a cheerful greeting from the National Grange.

The next meeting of the Pomona Grange will be held at the Kinney Grange on Thursday, March 19.

RIDE 'EM, COWBOY?

When Tod Andrews, star of TV's "Gray Ghost," first appeared in the role of Major John Mosby, he not only couldn't ride—but was also mortally afraid of horses. One day Andrews was required to mount a horse for a routine personal appearance on a racetrack. He reports that the horse suddenly bolted and galloped the full circuit, with a surprised and thoroughly terrified Andrews clinging to its mane. As he passed the grandstand he received a standing ovation. The crowd thought he had meant to do it!

"Unhappily," Hitchcock revealed, "they wouldn't allow you to move around the faces. A pity. I should have so liked for the hero to be seized with a terrible sneezing fit while hiding in George Washington's left nostril."

Solution to Breakfast Problem

Having a problem getting the family up for breakfast? In this age of electronic miracles, the gadget shown above is suggested as a logical solution.

It will arouse the sleeper, in more ways than one, but once up, he can help establish good eating habits for the family.

Strong measures (maybe not to the extent shown above) are necessary, according to leading doctors and nutritionists who have studied the subject, to insure that breakfast will not be the day's most neglected meal.

Breakfast, according to those diet authorities, should supply about one-fourth to one-third of the daily food requirements. They point out that the "let's skip breakfast" people prove to be less alert, less efficient and more susceptible to fatigue than those who eat a good morning meal.

The human body is so constructed that for maximum health it requires fairly even intakes of food at regular intervals. You can't make up for the lack of a good breakfast.

People who are troubled in holding the right weight should eat a good breakfast. If they neglect breakfast they may eat too hearty a lunch or dinner. And they just might have a snack or two between meals.

What constitutes a good breakfast? The foods essential to the day's first meal include fruit or fruit juice, cereal, milk or other beverage, and several slices of toast. Eggs and breakfast meat frequently should be included.

These foods are necessary both for children and adults. They supply the nutrients essential for the physical and mental stimulus for work—and play.

Greenfield Village and Ford Museum Sets New Records of Attendance

Greenfield Village and Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn, which set new yearly, monthly and daily attendance records in 1958, has been selected as Michigan's fifth top attraction in a survey of University of Michigan faculty and staff.

Included in the survey were those who have either worked throughout Michigan or who have taken a keen interest in the state.

Almost since its inception in 1929, the 200-acre village and accompanying museum have held a top spot in national ratings.

During 1958 three new attendance records were set. In the first 11 months, village officials point out, nearly a million persons (907,741) visited the famed site. In August, a new monthly total of 225,413 was set, and at the annual Old Car Festival in September a new daily record—14,611—was set.

In all, some 14 million persons have visited the museum and village since its founding by the late Henry Ford 30 years ago. They have come from every state in the union and every province in Canada.

Located just 15 miles from downtown Detroit, the museum and village are non-profit, educational institutions for the preservation and display of historically significant technological, educational and artistic Americana.

Outstanding in the museum is the eight-acre main gallery which includes agricultural implements, steam engines, airplanes, fire engines, circus wagons, more than 175 early automobiles, carriages and sleighs, and 12 steam locomotives, including a huge 600-ton Allegheny of 1941.

In the adjoining village there are nearly 100 famous homes and workshops, transported from their original foundations elsewhere in the U. S.

The homes, many containing original furniture, include those of Henry Ford, George Washington Carver, the Wright brothers, and Noah Webster. Nearby is Menlo Park, a group of buildings associated with inventor Thomas Edison during the years when he perfected the electric light bulb.

Both the museum and village are open to the public year around.

February's snow and ice restrict the vision of drivers and pedestrians both. Therefore, it becomes increasingly important that everyone using the streets looks all ways before crossing.
