Kent County Library Expects Record Year; Budget Set at $238,076

Kent County Library Board Members Wednesday approved a record tentative budget for 1960 of $238,076, Kenneth F. Jones, chairman, announced. Of this, $178,181, would come from the county.

In 1959, the budget was $175,628 and the total county appropriation came to $63,896, Jones said. The present tentative budget calls for these estimated appropriations: estimated penal fine receipts $54,395, state aid grant $4,800, Sunshine hospital $700, County $178,181.

Acting Director Joyce Pleune outlined reasons for the increased budget, emphasizing the all-time high of circulation and registration in the County Library's 15 branches and consequent necessity for more staff and more books than ever. Added factors listed included the fact that there will be no cash balance carried over from 1959 as has been the case in other years (due to budgetary cuts necessitated in all county departments by the recession) a steady decline in penal fine monies, another by-product of the recession, so that at present such monies are down 4.91 percent from last year, the fact that the new City of Wyoming will be collecting penal fine monies amounting to approximately $21,000 of which about $16,000 presumably would have been allocated to the Library.

In a detailed explanation of the budget for 1960 the Board emphasized factors as increase in cost of living, necessity for added staff and for merit increases to present staff members, need for replacing a worn-out bookmobile.

Added staff members needed by the Library as listed by the Board included: a branch library chil-

The Forest Hills Booster Club will sponsor a basketball party in honor of all the boys who participated in the basketball program this year. FOREST HILLS OSTEOPATHIC GUILD TO MEET, MARCH 31 dren's consultant, a full-time reference librarian, a Walker Branch or adult bookmobile librarian, two added clerical workers, one for branches and one for headquarters, need for added part-time page help at headquarters.

Book costs have gone up an estimated 5 percent during the past year, the Board noted. Circulation is at an all-time high in the book stock to meet the demand. Walker area residents may need a branch library or it may be possible to serve them with a community bookmobile. In either case, more books will be needed. The ability of State Library to loan books on request to the County Library is diminishing because of the inadequacy of State Library book resources and the increased drain by the rest of the State.

The School Service Department is still behind in the total number of books needed to serve 171 County Schools. One bookmobile is in very poor condition and should be replaced, the Board felt. An item of $7,000 was placed in the tentative budget for this purpose.

The Board also approved a plan to be submitted to the State Board for Libraries, covering requirements to meet professional standards set by the State Board. Such standards require that one-third of the full-time staff at the County Library be professionally trained. Of this one-third, the State Library has agreed, one-fourth may be studying for advanced degrees in Library Science through extension work and summer school. The plan submitted more or less spells out a time-table for the professional staff studying for advanced degrees.

TV News

NO SHRINKING VIOLET, HE!
V. K. Krishna Menon, Minister of Defense of India, has been dubbed the United Nations TV personality "most in love with the camera and the biggest ladies' man." Mr. Menon, commenting on his habit of looking squarely into the camera says, "I know I'm being interviewed and talking to someone in my presence, but I feel better when I face the people." Imposing and silver-haired, he receives heavy fan mail, much of it from women. When Mr. Menon collapsed following a lengthy address before the Security Council, a TV director shouted, "Want to revive him? Wave a mike under his nose!"

PLAIN TALK PAYS OFF!
Arthur Godfrey says he discovered the secret of TV salesmanship in 1933 when he was a disc jockey on a Washington, D. C., radio station. One of his sponsors sent over a script for a certain commercial. "The commercial was for some lingerie," says Godfrey. "I picked it up and started to read and the more I read, the redder my face got. It was all about this filmy, clingy material. Ugh! I finally got so mad I tore it up and started to ad-lib what I thought should be the selling points for this stuff." Since then, Godfrey's been tearing up scripts in favor of plain talk—which has put lots of plain money in his and his sponsors' pockets!

DECISIONS, DECISIONS!
In Lansing, Mich., a man reporting to police that his wife and his TV set were missing, urged officers to do something immediately—about recovering the TV set!

Will Spring Catch You Slumbering?

Chances are you'll sleep through the first moments of spring this year.
If you're still "in the sack" at 3:55 a. m. Saturday, March 21, you'll miss the start of the new season, warns Hazel M. Losh (Ph. D.), University of Michigan associate professor of astronomy.
At that time the sun will enter the vernal equinox. In other words, the sun will cross the equator on its way north.
Professor Losh says spring will start nearly six hours later than last year. Unofficial observers have suspected this all winter. The delay stems from the uneven number of days in a year—365.2422, to be exact.

TV BRIEFS:
Harry Rasky, producer of "UN in Action": "It's much tougher to find a shy diplomat than to find a shy calendar girl."
Arthur Godfrey: "When I deliver a commercial I address myself to just one person, not to the millions who might be watching—"

Be Sure to Look for Good Design When Buying Your New Home Furnishings

Look around you. Everything you see—the table, the chair, the house you live in—has a design. And each item may be of good design or poor design, says Jane Graff, D., University of Michigan home furnishing specialist at Michigan State University.
Design really means plan. Someone had to plan how the parts of that table, chair or house should be put together. When the completed article is pleasing to look at, and serves the purpose for which it was designed in the best possible way, the article is probably of good design.
Taste for good design is something that develops through training and experience. If we see good design around us and in our homes, we begin to develop a feeling for it.
It's also possible to develop a taste for poor design. Our acceptance of what we like is generally based on what we know.
Incidentally, good design does not automatically mean modern design. In furniture, for instance, you can find good design and poor design in both the traditional and the modern.

Take a critical look at your design taste. Start with a lamp. You will find two kinds of design, points out Miss Graff. One is in the structure of the lamp, and one is in the applied design, added after the lamp was formed.
On the structural side, the lamp base and shade should go together in shape, height and width to form a pleasing outline. A small shade on a large base, for instance, gives the same feeling as a large man wearing a too-small hat. It looks awkward.
If there is an applied design, it should follow the structural lines and blend with them. An applied design that does not fit the shape of the lamp looks like an unplanned afterthought—a design that would be more at home somewhere else.
Extra bumps and frills on the lamp can be distracting. Such added decoration does not improve the job a lamp is meant to do. Ask yourself if the "extra" really improves the lamp's appearance.

Could Cut Cargo Costs On Seaway

Opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway will provide a wonderful opportunity to replace centuries-old cargo handling methods with modern "package units," says a University of Michigan man.
Harry B. Benford, associate professor of naval architecture and marine engineering, feels shipping cargo packed in units about the size of truck bodies not only would lessen loading and unloading times but also would cut costs and virtually end pilfering.
"With all this emphasis on nuclear powered vessels, it is a strange sight to see an ultra-modern ship being loaded with equipment developed a century ago," he says.
"The unions at New York and other main ports long have opposed changes in cargo handling, but at Detroit and ports along the seaway, this need not be a handicap."
"Packaged units could be loaded right at the factory and brought to the pier on trucks, easily swung aboard and neatly stored, and then as simply set aboard a truck at their destination and driven to the distributor's place of business."

Benford points out there also is an added incentive in improving cargo handling: it's about the only place to economize in ship operation. Fuel costs are as low as possible under existing circumstances and operating labor expenses are rather rigid. Since about 30 percent of a ship's total expenses go for cargo handling, it would seem much could be done in this area, the professor states.
Detroit should have a special interest in this aspect, too, he adds, because of the possible sales of trucks and containers.

Tahquamenon Falls Top Attraction For Tourists and Geologists, Too

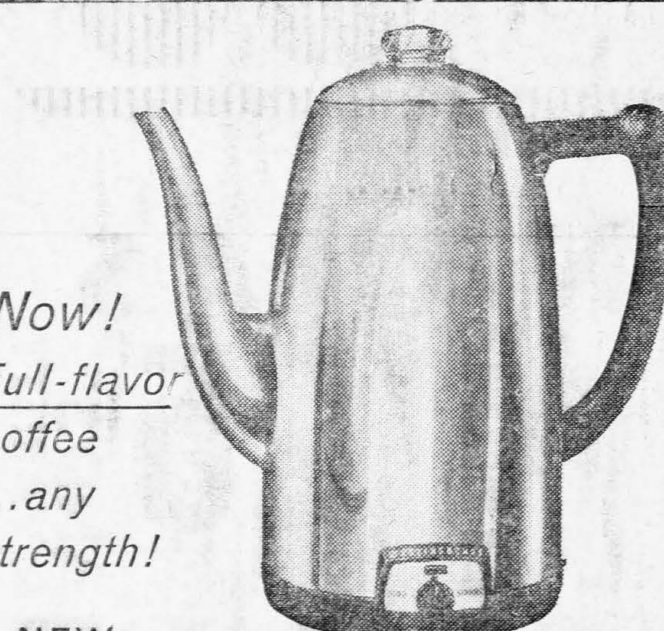

Tahquamenon Falls northeast of here, in addition to scenic beauty, are also especially interesting to both amateur and professional geologists.
The Falls and the Tahquamenon Falls State Park itself, have been selected as one of Michigan's top attractions in a survey of University of Michigan faculty and staff members.
The Falls are part of the Tahquamenon River which flows north emptying into Whitefish Bay—part of Lake Superior.
The upper falls, sometimes called big falls, have a sheer drop over sandstone of 40 feet, and they are 200 feet wide at the crest. The lower falls consist of short falls and rapids.
The Tahquamenon River, according to Asst. Prof. John A. Dorr, Jr. of the U-M Department of Geology, is very recent in origin as geologic time goes.
Professor Dorr explains: "Tahquamenon Falls flow over exposed outcrops of the Michigan Basin. The first layer is glacial material left by the receding ice sheet during the last Ice Age—about 10,000 years ago. This same sort of gravel and rocks can be found throughout the state."
"Below this material is middle Cambrian age sandstone, what is called the Munising Formation, that was laid down along the margin of an ancient body of marine water which entered northern Michigan from the northwest in Middle Cambrian times—about 500 million years ago."
"The rocks forming the falls are classified as Middle Cambrian in age—ranging from 400 to 500 million years."
How does a geologist determine a rock formation's age? "The age of a rock formation can be learned from examination of its fossil contents," Dorr says. "The nature of sand grains, whether they are rounded or not, and evidence of ripple marks indicate, in the case of Tahquamenon Falls, that the origin of the rock beds was sand from a marine body of water."

"In a lot of places, spring is more a state of mind than a condition of weather."

Your Washington Review

by Congressman JERRY FORD

The Cascade vs. Tri-County Airport dispute has reached Washington. The Federal Aviation Agency has been asked to schedule a hearing on the Cascade site.

This request was made pursuant to Section 1108 (c) of Title 49, U. S. Code which authorizes the FAA Administrator to hold such a hearing upon the application of "any public agency, person, association, firm, or corporation having a substantial interest in the disposition" of any project applications filed with the Administrator. A project application is filed with FAA in order to qualify for federal funds to aid in airport construction. If there were no federal funds involved, there would be no basis for federal interference in the location of a site for the new airport.

The specific question to be resolved in any hearing held on the Cascade site is whether this particular location meets the standards required by the federal government for those airports which are to be eligible for federal assistance. FAA is not going to dictate the location of a new airport nor will it arbitrate the dispute of Cascade vs. Tri-County.

However, a negative decision on Cascade may be looked upon by a good many citizens as an indication that FAA prefers a tri-county airport. But it is important to note that a negative decision will mean only that no federal money will be available for the Cascade location. The Kent County Board of Supervisors and/or the voters of Kent County may still decide to go ahead with the project but without federal financial assistance.

In our discussions with FAA officials we find that they adhere to the principle that an airport should serve the greatest possible number of people in the area. But they also pointed out that there must be in existence a legal public agent with authority and a desire to acquire land and construct and operate a Tri-County airport before an application for federal aid to such an airport can be considered.

The Federal Aviation Agency is in a position to look at the current dispute impartially and to present its recommendation. It is in a position to offer technical assistance and advice. It can deny fed-

Study Dwarf Fruit Trees in Orchards

Experiments are indicating that dwarf fruit trees are economical for commercial fruit growers, as well as for home use.

R. F. Carlson, horticultural scientist, reporting on work at Michigan State University, told a Farmers' Week audience at East Lansing that dwarf fruit trees are more convenient for harvesting and come into production sooner. Until recently, Carlson reminded, there has not been enough "sound" information to advise large acreages of dwarf trees. But in the last ten years, an experimental orchard in East Lansing has yielded double the amount gleaned from a standard orchard during a similar period.

The yield of the dwarf trees was 400 bushels per acre.

"Indications are that this orchard will become more productive each year and will yield valuable information for future recommendations to Michigan fruit growers," Carlson said.

The smaller size of the trees make picking, pruning, and spraying easier and less costly. They are more economical in commercial operations, Carlson said.

The small trees are produced by using special root systems or rootstocks which produce a dwarfing effect.

eral aid for the development of the specific site at Cascade. But in the final analysis it cannot and will not dictate the location of the new airport nor can it force upon local officials any specific organizational arrangement.

"I'm sure that most of us will agree that this is sound and proper. We don't want Washington dictating to any local area on such matters as the location of its airport. In the long run, our way of life is best protected when public affairs are kept as close as possible to the people concerned. In this particular case, the final and basic decision must be made by the Kent County Board of Supervisors and/or the voters of the county, or through the combined efforts of several local governmental units.

STANLEY YANKUS: We have received a number of letters concerning Stanley Yankus of Dowagiac whose experience dramatically points up the difficulty we get into when we attempt to control every aspect of life from Washington. Here is another illustration of the fact that the small family-type farmer does not profit by governmental control over his production.

As your Congressman, I have consistently opposed the rigidity of the Agricultural Adjustment Act and at every opportunity have voted to modify restrictions on farm production. President Eisenhower and Secretary of Agriculture Benson have repeatedly recommended that Congress revise those provisions of the law which have troubled Mr. Yankus, but the Congress has consistently ignored these sound and constructive recommendations.

The original act which Mr. Yankus has attacked was passed in 1938. Its constitutionality was upheld by the Supreme Court in 1942. The Court considered those arguments as raised by Mr. Yankus and concluded that the Congress had the authority to support farm prices, restrict acreage, and impose penalties for non-compliance. The Court, of course, did not pass upon the merit or lack of merit of the legislation.

The Congress has acknowledged to some extent that a farmer should be allowed to use on his farm without penalty the wheat he raises. Under the original act, a farmer could grow 15 acres of wheat for use on the farm or for disposal in any other way without having to accept a marketing quota. Last year the Congress raised this exemption to 30 acres.

While we are most sympathetic to Mr. Yankus' predicament, it is clear on the record that he has not used the available means for seeking administrative relief. He seems to have placed himself over against the Supreme Court as the final authority on the constitutionality of a federal law. Certainly our law-enforcement officers would be derelict in their duty if they showed personal favoritism by permitting him, or any other individual, to ignore the law. The real solution lies in Congressional approval of Secretary Benson's long-standing recommendations. Your Congressman has always favored these necessary changes in our agriculture legislation and will continue to do so.

OUR SHARE IN A BALANCED AND UNBALANCED BUDGET: The per capita share of the 176 million Americans in a balanced budget of $77 billion is $442.49. This means that Kent County's share is about $153.3 million and that of Ottawa is about $11.5 million. If Congress should add $1 billion in expenditures to Ike's balanced budget, it will mean an additional $1.9 million in per capita tax burden for Kent and $534,000 for Ottawa County. I realize these figures are based on "averages" but they do illustrate the enormity of our federal budget and what it will mean to spend more than the President is recommending.

The level of fertilizer recommendations in the future will be higher than now, as more intensive cultivation is used, say Michigan State University soil scientists. This trend will make soil testing more necessary.

Financial Disaster for Michigan, Gov. Williams Reports in Weekly Letter

Every effort at compromise, by responsible leaders of both parties, to save the state from payless paydays has failed in the State Senate.

The April 6 ballot will contain no proposal which would have relieved the State's immediate cash crisis because of a "little band of willful men."

Throughout last week, long hours were spent in reaching a meeting ground of compromise. As you recall, a week ago I wrote that I had hope a solution would be reached. My hopes were buoyed when the House of Representatives in a fine example of bi-partisan compromise, reached agreement on a proposal which would permit the State to issue bonds up to $50 million to meet the current cash crisis. The House, by an overwhelming vote, approved placing the question on the ballot in April. The Senate not only turned down the House compromise, it adjourned Friday noon so that no further moves could be made toward a settlement in time to get any cash-raising program before the people in April.

A few Republican Senators who represent only a small minority of Michigan people, held the key to the situation. In all probability they have doomed Michigan to financial disaster in April or May because of their lack of willingness to compromise.

There can be no other assumption than that some of these men look forward to financial disaster and all the hardships that it entails as a desirable political development.

Action of the Senate affects not only the veterans, whose Trust Fund appears to be the only source of a large incoming of cash to the State, state workers welfare recipients, university faculty and administrators. It hits also each of our 8 million Michigan citizens who would suffer from a State financial collapse.

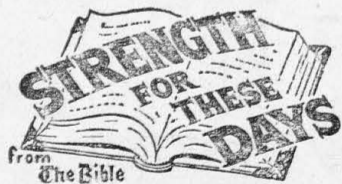

Compromise came in the House of Representatives after I sent letters to Republican leaders, outlining four specific areas in which Democrats were willing to compromise. These included:

1. An increase in the State's unrealistic $250,000 debt limitation;
2. A "one-shot" program to issue bonds or tax anticipation notes;
3. A $50 million bond issue or debt limitation increase to be retired by a special temporary tax program of any reasonable combination of minor and "nuisance" taxes proposed by the Conlin Committee; and
4. A Constitutional amendment permitting the State to borrow from the $50 million Veterans Trust Fund under Constitutional guarantee the fund would be preserved and its securities replaced.

The third proposal received immediate attention and from it came a compromise measure to issue $50 million in bonds. It was passed in the House of Representatives by a vote of 84 to 19 in a fine display of bi-partisan cooperation.

When it reached the Senate, it was killed by this "little group of willful men."

Governor of Michigan

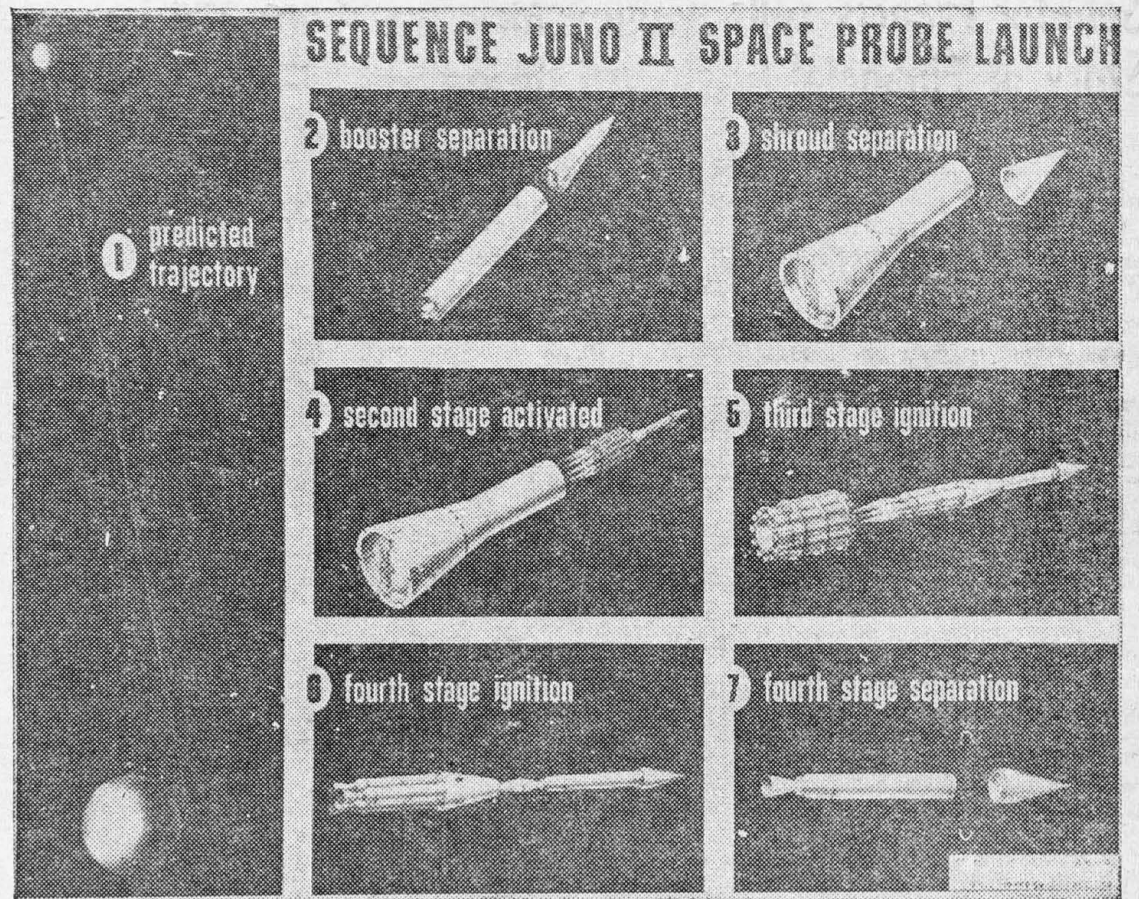

The Lord bless thee, and keep thee; the Lord make his face shine upon thee, and be gracious unto thee; the Lord lift up His countenance upon thee, and give thee peace.— (Numbers 6:24-26.)

BREEDING FALLACIES

By Dr. E. M. Gildow
Director, Friskies Research Kennels

There are some odd, old-fashioned bits of misinformation about breeding one still hears voiced by dog owners occasionally.

One common fallacy is that if a purebred female dog has an accidental mating with a dog of mixed breed and gives birth to a litter of little mongrels, her worth as a producer of future purebred puppies is nil. Chalk the accidental mating up as unfortunate, then forget it ever happened. Your dog can go on to present you with litter after litter of perfectly beautiful purebred puppies.

There's many an old-time nimrod around who still believes that if his mother-to-be hunting dog is vigorously hunted while she is pregnant, her puppies will grow up to be just like their mom...real pros in the field. There's no truth to this belief. In fact a fall, or a blow incurred hunting, may injure an unborn puppy and cause serious complications for the mother.

Then there are those who refrain from mating a handsome purebred dog for fear that a disfiguring scar, the result of a previous accident, will be imprinted on the puppies. Proof of the fallacy of such thinking is that in spite of generation after generation of docking puppies tails, which is standard procedure with some breeds, puppies continue to be born with long tails.

Senator Francis Tells Republican Story of Financial Crisis in Lansing

I am certain the people would like to know exactly what is happening in the financial crisis in Lansing.

It should be pointed out that last October, I informed the people that the State would be "broke," that I expected a deficit of between $60 million to $100 million. Actually I was wrong. It looks like a $114 to a $130 million deficit.

Keep in mind that had the Republican senate not cut the Governor's budget requests, we would be $330 million in debt right now.

The Governor first suggested that we take the $50 million Veteran's Trust Fund, liquidate it even at a discount of $7 million. The Republicans opposed this. Finally we agreed to compromise and let him confiscate the fund. We gave him the five Republican votes necessary for its passage. Pressures mounted, the Democrats ran out—the Republicans stuck to their guns—the bill received just exactly five votes (Republicans).

Next, he suggested a $50 million bond issue. This bond issue wouldn't help much; it would only delay the "crash day" a few months.

The Republicans amended the resolution and provided a $100 million bond issue and coupled with it a one cent increase in sales tax for a period of two years.

The one cent increase in sales tax would bring in $200 million in two years. No additional cost of collection, the machinery is all set up.

(The Constitution requires a vote of the people for either a bond issue or a sales tax increase. Republicans thought the people should have a voice in the decision.) The vote was taken, every Republican senator voted for the proposition, every Democrat senator voted against it. We lacked one vote for its passage.

We know that the State owes the schools a considerable sum—upwards of $30 million, and owes the counties about $30 million for welfare. So, we again attempted to amend the resolution on two occasions and provided that the increase in sales tax be divided, one-third to go to local school districts, one-third to go to counties for welfare, and one-third to the State. We tried other variations, but "no dice," the Democrats wouldn't take it.

The Governor has, again this year, insisted that we increase the State budget by $91 million. This we won't go for. In fact, we expect to cut the budget.

The Republican senators are going to insist on responsibility in government. We don't believe the State should start deficit financing to bolster up our general fund from year to year.

We are willing to face the people. If we are going to spend, then we must pass a tax to pay the bills. Incidentally, Governor Williams has never signed a tax bill since he has been in office.

Governor Williams has repeatedly insisted that we pass an income tax; yet, up to today, March 14, he has not presented a tax bill to the legislature—not even a rough draft.

So, who is irresponsible? It looks like we may be forced into an income tax. I don't approve of an income tax (and many Republicans don't) for the following reasons:

1. An income tax would mean a new collection department with 800 to 1,000 new State employees.
2. New expensive equipment.
3. There is no building in Lansing to house the collection department. So, there goes another $10 million down the drain, for new buildings.
4. Another $6 million a year operational costs.
5. If the people think there are a lot of people traveling around the State now in its five thousand motor vehicles, they should wait until the income tax "snoopers" get going.
6. Yes, we'll start an income tax at two or three percent. But, it won't stay there long, it will soon go up and up.

7. If we passed an income tax tomorrow, we could expect no revenues for a year and a half. How will that solve our present crisis?

8. Incidentally, a sales tax increase would start bringing in money in about 30 days.

A prediction—Look for the Governor to take another crack at business. Look for a higher corporate profits tax—to drive still more jobs out of Michigan. Look at the record.

Senator Lynn O. Francis
Midland, Michigan

"There, Mr. Axel J. Shillinghoff, try worrying about those nasty old taxes tonight!"

Care and Feeding of the Family Car

Care and feeding of the family car—these terms are synonymous. If your car is fed well it will remain in good shape. How well do you feed your car?

According to the Automotive Research Bureau there are five regular feedings necessary to keep your automobile in top flight running condition.

It must be fed clean oil, or as close to, the 1,000 mile mark as possible. If the oil is allowed to get dirty it can cause a sluggish, poor performing engine and can also harm vital engine parts. Your car radiator must also be fed water. Keep a regular check on the water level, and of course, in the winter, an ample amount of anti-freeze should be added. Also the battery water must be kept up to the mark. Don't overlook feeding your battery and incidentally, try to keep the cables from corroding. A little vasoline will slow up corrosive action.

It is of great importance to the performance and protection of your car to feed it a clean oil and air filter at the suggested mileage. Sluggish performance and the passage of harmful matter will result from an unclean filter. And of course, don't forget to keep your gas tank full. It will help prevent damage to the tank from condensation, especially during the winter months.

SEAL OF PROTECTION

Every year new developments are announced by automobile and auto parts manufacturers to aid motorists. Many of these new developments have made car care easier.

There have been two protective items developed that can help to lengthen the life of your car. Many motorists are familiar with the sticker that keeps track of the oil change and lubrication. If these two items are checked on a regular basis, usually 1,000 miles, it will help to keep your car in good condition. But, you have to be sure the sticker is there so you have your own personal record and know that the necessary service has been done.

Recently a new sticker was made available to make sure your oil filter is changed every 4,000 miles. This is just as important as the oil change and lube job. But, there are still many cars on the road that do not have this Seal of Protection. Next time you visit your regular service station man ask him to put one on your door jamb.

It is a sure way to guarantee good engine performance and to extend the life of your engine. Don't make costly repair jobs a regular item in your budget.

HANDLE TIRES WITH CARE

Tire pressure can vary with changes in temperature. It is wise, therefore, to check your tires when there is a sudden drop or increase in temperature.

It is best to check tire pressure while tires are cold, before a short trip. This is the way they will remain during your driving. The air in a cold tire is contracted but if it is used for a long period it heats up and the pressure increases. If the tire is checked while warm, it will be underinflated when cold.

Underinflated tires will cause excessive wear while overinflated tires will not cause any real damage to the rubber. The only danger of overinflation is the threat of a sidewall breaking when something hits it.

When you are going on a long trip, it is better to check tires after they are warm. Many drivers neglect their tires feeling that lack of pressure will not cause excessive wear. If you follow the rules it will help you prolong your tire life.

The Old Timer

"Doing nothing is the most tiresome job in the world — because you can't quit and rest."

This Is National Wildlife Week!

"FARMERS WHO FOLLOW SOIL CONSERVATION PRACTICES ARE 'ON THE BEAM'."

"National Wildlife Week," March 15-21, offers a special opportunity to call attention to the contributions District farmers make to wildlife conservation through land treatment improvement in the Kent Soil Conservation District.

Conservation farm plans made with the farmer or land owner have always included the owners' decisions for tree and shrub plantings around ponds, marshes, and for reforestation or wildlife area improvement.

The benefits of strip cropping grassed waterways, woodland protection, living fences of multiflora rose, border plantings along wood edges, windbreaks and odd area plantings come from the farmers conservation improvements.

A few rows of corn, small grains and clover left in corners and at head lands, have been of great value to wildlife this winter especially.

The Kent S. C. D. has been happy to assist at least five sportsmen's clubs in the county in conservation planning of their areas.

Any of the wildlife conservation practices on local farms which provide food, water and shelter for songbirds, game birds and game animals makes better hunting for all sportsmen.

"Conservation in the Schools" is the theme for the 1959 event sponsored by the National Wildlife Federation. "The Soil Conservation Service is happy to join with the Federation and other interested wildlife conservation and sportsmen's organizations in carrying this theme to the nation's school children," states D. A. Williams, U. S. D. A., Soil Conservation Service administrator.

"Copies of 'Soil Conservation Tips for Sportsmen' will be available for sportsmen's clubs and schools from the Rockford Soil Conservation Service office," says R. H. Drullinger, Work Unit Conservationist.

While in Tyrone Twp., last week I stopped at the Chubbuck School to meet Mrs. Mary Peterson, the teacher. She teaches 25 pupils from grades one through five.

Mrs. Peterson mentioned that she uses conservation education as a part of her English, Science and History classes throughout the year. We compliment this teacher and the other rural teachers in Kent Co., on their help in conservation education.

How to Test for Termites

Think you've got termites? They can exist in a house unsuspected for long periods. But, according to the experts, there are three ways to find out if they've infested your dwelling.

1. You can tell whether a beam or a sill is infested by tapping it with a hammer and listening for a hollow sound or by probing it with an ice pick or knife blade.

2. You can search the house, particularly in crawl spaces, around foundations and at utility service entrances, for the telltale tubes, a quarter to a half inch wide, that they build.

3. You can be on the watch for the swarms and wing droppings that may occur soon.

Sometimes homeowners see swarming insects but are not sure whether they are seeing termites or flying ants. If the insects have pinched waists and transparent wings, the front set being much larger than the back set, they are really ants. But if the bodies are nearly the same width stem to stern with no waist, and the wings are opaque and the same size front and back, you have found termites.

The opening many a person needs most is one in his closed mind.
