Minstrel Show's A-Comin', June 17-18

The entertainment event of the year in the Cascade-Ada-Eastmont area is about to swing into production. The fourth annual Thornapple Minstrel Show sponsored by the Christian Men's Fellowship of the Cascade Christian church will be held the nights of June 17 and 18, with plans for a bigger and better show than ever before.

The idea of an all-amateur minstrel show originated in 1956, and it turned out to be such a success that it was decided to make it an annual event. The profits each year have been used to promote community recreation projects and for the support of Little League baseball in the area.

Mrs. Jensen will be happy to meet her neighbors and give them a home demonstration.

CHOIR COMING TO ADA

The True Life Baptist Choir will present a program at the Ada Christian Reformed church on Sunday, May 10, at 8:45 p. m.

The show has been held each year in the Bruce Chadwick barn on Burton St. in Cascade, which has always seemed to lend atmosphere and color. However, the attendance has increased so much each year that it has been decided to hold this year's show in the gymnasium of Forest Hills High School, where additional seating will be available. Staging and scenery are being planned that will accent the minstrel theme and attendance is expected to hit an all time high.

In the picture, Lee "Creosote" Patterson, puts forth in typical "end-man" fashion. He was one of the 40 men, women and children that made up the 30 acts of last year's highly successful show.

As in the past, everything is to be on a purely local and amateur level. All performers are local residents, the work involved in producing the show is done by members of the Christian Men's Fellowship, and the material and a lot of the music is written and composed by people from our own community. While this doesn't make for perfection of performance, it has proven to be more interesting to everyone involved, as well as to those who have seen the show each year.

The list of acts is not quite complete, so anyone who would like to share their talents with a highly appreciative audience is invited to call either Lyle Dykhuizen at GL 1-0711 or Jack Breidenfield at CH 1-2997. Rehearsals are expected to begin within the next two weeks. Tickets will go on sale sometime in May, so get yours early to make sure that you get a seat.

The recent announcement of the names of the seven American candidates for the distinction of making the first flight into space has reopened the question of "why?" Why these huge expenditures and continued experiments involving the risk of human life in the area of outer space?

The civilian and military authorities who appear before the Committee on Appropriations list two answers to that question. First, space is today's frontier. It is the area challenging man's scientific curiosity and stimulating his search for knowledge. It is the one medium that is essentially unexplored. In space technology we are simply at the threshold. As one airforce officer has put it, in space technology we are now about where we were in manned aircraft at the time of the Wright Brothers, or about where man was in water transportation when he learned to float ships on the sea. Just as we could not stop with the first crude boats or with the Wright Brothers' plane, so we can't stop with missiles, satellites, and other space vehicles as we know them today. The frontiers of knowledge and a practical application of any acquired knowledge have never stood still.

The second and more practical answer is that our potential enemy is exploring outer space and developing means for its use and control. This adds urgency to the situation and brings into the picture our own national security and the defense of the free world as we know it. Our government must provide an adequate defense to protect the lives and property of our people. In the middle of the 20th century this includes utilization of outer space.

In the past 10 years our country has expended upwards of $25 billion in missile and satellite development. I believe that our overall missile and space program with its present diversification is an excellent one. I intend to do all I can to promote present and future developments which will be adequate but within the limits set by the overall military program and a sound fiscal policy.

Incidentally, it is not planned to send a man into space before 1962 or 1963. Many more experimental flights with instruments and animals will be required before a human life is risked.

CANCER RESEARCH: The loss of Secretary Dulles' highly successful services has highlighted anew our national interest in cancer research. Dr. John R. Heller, Director of the National Cancer Institute reported to your Congressmen this week that we are making decided gains in this area of medical knowledge. He stated that today one out of three persons found with cancer is saved. By "saved" he meant able to live comfortably for at least five years after diagnosis. In 1950 one out of four were saved while in 1900 the ratio was only one out of 20.

Dr. Heller pointed out that the death rate from cancer among women is declining while that among men is not increasing. However, we are more conscious of cancer now because of earlier and better diagnosis, an increased number of people, and an aging population which is more susceptible to the disease.

The most promising cancer research according to Dr. Heller is currently being carried on in the areas of chemical management and virology. The first is seeking drugs to supplement present methods of prolonging the cancer victim's life and making it more comfortable. The second is proceeding on the theory that cancer is caused by a virus for which a vaccine may be found. Possibly in the future people will be vaccinated against cancer as they are now against smallpox and polio. In the meantime it is most important that the Congress adequately finance research at the National Cancer Institute and the public fully support the fund-raising campaign of the Cancer Crusade. Dr. Heller assures me there is no duplication in research effort or services performed by the Cancer Institute and the American Cancer Society and its affiliates.

OBSCENE MAILINGS: The House Committee on Post Office and Civil Service expects to begin this week its special hearings and study concerning the mailing of obscene material. Postmaster General Summerfield is scheduled to be the first witness. The Post Office Department is seriously concerned with the substantial increase in the mailings of this type of material, with the indiscriminate mailings through the use of purchased lists of names, and with some recent unalleged obscenity which have found alleged obscenity to be "mailable art."

The Department receives 50,000 complaints a year from citizens who have been sent advertisements frankly offering obscene material. These offerings are made by "hit and run" operators who move their place of business constantly. This fact combined with a tendency of the courts to be more and more liberal in the interpretation of "obscenity," makes the task of the Department most difficult. The purpose of the current hearings and study is to develop legislation to strengthen the power of the government in dealing with this evil.

AVAILABLE PUBLICATIONS: We have available a limited supply of three recent publications, one or more of which may be of interest to our readers: (1) "Space Handbook: Astronautics and Its Applications," (2) "1958 Annual Report: Committee on Un-American Activities," and (3) "Washington's Farewell Address." Please indicate which publications you desire in a request addressed to 351 House Office Building, Washington, D. C.

TV NEWS

ACCIDENTAL KISS

Dinah Shore's good-night kiss is one of television's outstanding trademarks. Several years ago, when she left out the kiss at the end of a show, people broke down doors and lit up network switchboards complaining. There was also plenty of irate mail. Dinah recalls, "Actually, the kiss was an accident," Dinah says. "The 'm-wah' sort of popped out of me one day about eight years ago when I had to get off the air in a hurry. So I'm stuck with it."

NO CONTEST

"The biggest star on television" is a title Clint Walker, Jim Arness, Chuck Connors and other hefty performers can no longer claim. Reports are that the new claimant is a female named Bubbles, all whale and more than a yard wide. Fourteen feet long now, she weighs 1700 pounds and has almost a lifetime to grow. Bubbles, a guest of California's Marineland, made her debut in a recent episode of "Richard Diamond, Private Eye."

HIGH-PRICED SOUVENIRS

Television's Cliff Arquette, when not playing Charley Weaver, specializes in carving wooden soldiers representing the Civil War and other conflicts in our history. The figures are carved from soft pine with dental tools and feature clothes and boots made from real cloth and leather. Each figure is insured for $2,000, but Cliff said,

Disposable Paper Tents Cut Camping Costs

Two families are shown using the new paper camping equipment that is being introduced during April by Ford dealers across the nation. The equipment is designed so would-be campers can have a try at outdoor living for one-third the usual investment. All equipment pictured, including a paper sleeping bag, will retail for less than $75—a cost low enough to permit disposing of it at the end of the season, eliminating the winter storage problem. The tent at right ($19) sleeps two adults and two children, while the tent at left ($13) sleeps two adults. The station wagon boot, which converts the rear of a station wagon into private camping quarters, will retail for $7, and the para-wing in the center for $25. Ford is introducing the equipment because of its interest in outdoor camping which has done much to spur the increase in station wagon sales. Ford sells more station wagons than any other make. After the April introduction, the equipment will be marketed by Corporate Research, Inc., of Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Attention Needed in Education, Public Health and Safety, Williams Points Out

During the thirteen weeks the Legislature has been in session, almost every effort has been directed at the state's financial situation. This has included both the immediate cash crisis and the long-range program.

The seriousness and immediacy of the cash crisis does not mean there are no other problems of state. It was for this reason that I sent a message to the Legislature last week. In it I pointed out that it is imperative for the Legislature to direct attention to education, public health and safety. In some of these fields, bills have been introduced, but they have not received much attention because they have been overshadowed by the financial situation.

One of the most important functions of local government is the providing of a sound education for our children. As local taxpayers, you realize that the full cost burden cannot be borne locally. Our school population is growing even faster than our general population. Michigan is the fastest growing state in the Union, with the exception of California and Florida. Since 1949, Michigan's population has increased by 22 percent. But, during that same period, the number of children in our public schools has increased by 53 percent.

This is the basic reason why Michigan's needs have grown. These needs have not been met adequately because we have been scrimping along for the last several years. The level of state aid to local schools has not been changed for three years. But school costs have risen. This increase in school costs has to be met by the taxpayers in some manner. If the state does not share this cost increase by raising the level of school aid, local taxpayers will have to bear the full increase in the form of added taxes on their already tax-burdened property.

Whenever we consider state aid for local schools, it must be remembered that Michigan is not out of line with other states. According to the U. S. Bureau of the Census figures for 1957, six states ranked ahead of us in this respect. Because there has been no change in Michigan's school aid program, I do not doubt that we are farther down the line now.

The present school aid act includes a complicated formula based on payment of $190 per child, less "deductible millage." This complicated factor does not indicate the true picture and is confusing to most people. The actual aid, after the formula is applied, is substantially less than the $190. On the basis of the average Michigan school district, which has an equalized valuation of $14,000 for each pupil, the present state aid formula allows $151.50 for each membership child. There has been legislation introduced which would increase the state aid to $161 per pupil in the average district. It must be realized that this figure will fluctuate according to the per pupil valuation in the districts. In my message, I asked the Legislature to give this proposal favorable consideration.

Other educational recommendations include financial support for Community Colleges, driver training, scholarships, programs for the gifted children, the mentally handicapped children, and the children of migratory workers; continuation with some changes of the school bond guarantee program; and minimum salaries for teachers.

Further recommendations include establishment of a housing commission to study the housing problem in Michigan, and amendments to the state housing law; establishment of a permanent Commission on the Aging, and provision for job counseling for the aged; safety measures for industry, schools, boilers and water; expansion of anti-discrimination provisions to include housing and education, as well as employment.

To save our people from the crippling effects of polio, action was urged to provide funds for continuation of polio vaccinations for the remainder of this year and for the next year. Only 43 percent of those under four years of age have been immunized, and the percentage goes down as the ages go down. There is a great need, too, for immunization among those in the 15 to 40 year age group.

Deer Numbers On Way Up In Southern Mich.

The southern third of Michigan could be in line for some trouble from deer, according to Charles Shick, extension wildlife management specialist at Michigan State University.

Deer have been multiplying for some time and are now fairly common in most southern agricultural counties, he says.

While city and farm folks are enjoying seeing the deer, Shick cautions that a large number of animals could create serious problems for southern Michigan residents. Too many deer can damage farm crops and can present a hazard to motorists.

Deer can multiply rapidly. Under "super-ideal" conditions, Shick says one buck and five adult female deer could increase to 1,000 animals in just 10 years. Although the wildlife specialist doesn't claim that southern Michigan is the best area for deer, he does believe that much of the area provides good living conditions for the animals.

Relatively mild winters and a good food supply found in the southern area favor fawn production and consequently a high deer population.

Shick says it will be necessary in the near future to manage deer numbers in the southern agricultural areas of the state. This will require the harvesting of female, fawn and buck deer during hunting seasons. The game specialist says there is no other practical way to control the animals.

List Little Known Facts of Baseball To Impress Your Friends

Any baseball fan can tell you the number of home runs Mickey Mantle belted last year or the salary of Ted Williams. But can he tell you who wore the first baseball glove? Or what player was the first to catch a ball dropped from the Washington Monument? Statistics will be flying thick and fast now that the baseball season is here. But for those who really want to impress their wives or girlfriends, here are some baseball facts. Here are some unusual facts. The first clash between a player and his arch-enemy—the umpire—occurred June 19, 1846, when the Knickerbocker Club of New York played the New York Baseball Club at Elysian Fields in Hoboken, N. J. A player named Davis was fined six cents for cursing. The umpire was Alexander Cartwright, a leading player for the Knicks, who had chosen to umpire instead. That game was also the first instance of team baseball as we know it. The New York club won 23 to 1 after four innings. The Knickerbocker Club, formed in 1845, was the first regular baseball organization. And in their third season, the members donned blue and white uniforms to become the first team uniformly outfitted.

A breach of baseball etiquette made Al Reach the first paid ball player. In 1864, it was considered unethical for a player to "jump" from one team to another. Reach, however, deserted the Brooklyn Atlantics when he was offered money by the Philadelphia Athletics.

Five years later, the Cincinnati Red Stockings turned professional and became the first salaried team.

In those days, baseball was far from the gentlemanly game the Knickerbockers had played. A player might leave the field bleeding or unconscious after stopping a fast ball, but he refused to baby himself by wearing protective equipment. In 1875, however, Charles Waite, first baseman for Boston, put on a glove—flesh-colored, so the fans wouldn't notice it. A. G. Spaulding finally wore a dark brown glove, adding stuffing to it a little at a time.

The first catcher's mask was developed in 1878 for a Harvard player who preferred being called a sissy to have his fine Barrymore profile smashed.

Still wondering about the Washington Monument? Well, Billy 'Pop' Schriver of a Chicago ball club caught a ball dropped from the 500-foot level of the memorial in 1892.

Just a grandstander, but—that's baseball.

An executive would have to be either juvenile or senile who didn't know more than his secretary, but what can you do to convince her of that?

Lincoln Death Chair

Abraham Lincoln sat in this chair in a Washington theater box the night of April 14, 1865, when he was shot and fatally wounded by John Wilkes Booth, an actor who sympathized with the south. Made of walnut, the old-fashioned rocking chair was brought from the theater owner's home to the box so that the six-foot-four Civil War President might be more comfortable. The damask-covered chair may be seen today in the Logan County Courthouse in Greenfield Village, Dearborn, Mich. Other Lincolniana is displayed at the Logan Courthouse where Lincoln practiced law as a young man. Above, Betty Dul, of the Henry Ford Museum staff, holds a playbill used by Lincoln at the fateful performance while the heavy plaid shawl he wore that night rests over the arm of the chair. The sesquicentennial of Lincoln's birth is being observed this year.

U-M Units Can Help You Plan Mich. Week

University of Michigan President Harlan Hatcher urges all Michigan communities, regardless of size, to make Michigan Week, May 17-23, the focal point for the writing of a community history.

The U-M president has again been named chairman of the Cultural Activities Board (CAB) for Michigan Week. "If such a history is already in print," President Hatcher says, "Michigan Week, from year to year, may serve as the annual date on which community histories may be made current."

Those who plan to undertake such a history are invited to write to the Michigan Historical Collections at the U-M for aid, according to F. Clever Bald, assistant director of the Collections and secretary of the CAB History Committee. "We will be happy to help anyone working on a community history by suggesting possible sources for materials and records, by offering an outline for them to follow in the organization of the work, and with other suggestions as to how to proceed," Bald says.

In discussing Michigan Week, President Hatcher expressed his gratification not only with the general progress that has been made since this celebration was inaugurated in 1954 but with the programs which are under way in various communities throughout the state.

He also complimented communities which have arranged art shows during these years. He expressed the added hope that all communities would make Michigan Week the occasion for self-examination as communities.

Communities which would like to do a self-survey are invited to write to the U-M's Department of Community Adult Education, 2442 University High School, Ann Arbor, for suggestions and possible aid in this undertaking.

Eat Spinach For Dieting Not Strength

Generations of obstinate children now have their champions among dieticians at The University of Michigan Medical Center.

Spinach, say these food specialists, is highly overrated.

Traditionally, spinach has been thought of as a great strength food, rich in iron.

Nutritionists now say you get far more iron in equal portions of potatoes, squash and carrots.

Actually, say the U-M dieticians, spinach is a fine reducing dish because of its filling capacity and low calorie count. It contains quantities of vitamin C and moderate amounts of vitamin A—but so do most green vegetables.

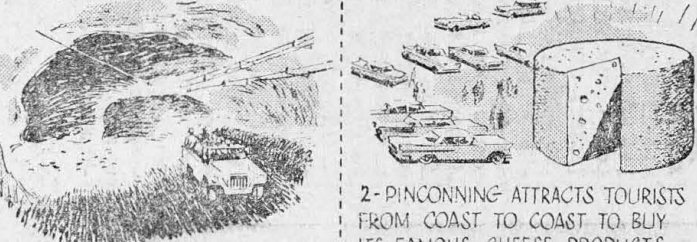

Most of us in the U. S. A. are doing as well as could be expected, don't you think?

Workers Protected Where Radioactive Materials Are Used

Radioactive isotopes are now being used by 190 industries, hospitals and clinics in Michigan, according to a report issued today by the Michigan Department of Health.

Workers in these places are being fully protected against harmful over-exposure to radiation, Dr. Albert E. Heustis, state health commissioner, explained.

Many elements exist in nature in several different atomic forms; others can be made to take different forms by bombarding them with neutrons, protons and other atomic particles. All the different forms of an element are called isotopes. Some of these forms may be radioactive.

Radioactive isotopes are those that are undergoing atomic disintegration. While disintegrating, they give off atomic particles, or rays, somewhat like X-rays. These rays are useful to medicine and industry.

Thirty different kinds of radioactive isotopes are being used in Michigan, according to the health department report.

"The concern of the state health department in the use of radioactive substances," Dr. Heustis explained, "is that over a period of time people subjected to uncontrolled exposure may be seriously injured."

"For this reason, we work with hospitals and industries to double-check safeguards. Our specialists in this field go over all plans for installations and make comprehensive inspections of ventilation systems and shielding needed to protect workers and others who may wander into potential danger zones."

Self-confidence is still one of the best brands on the market.

Separates To Mix and Match Help Wardrobe

What are the magic words for a teen-ager's wardrobe? Why, mix, match and harmonize, of course. These three words can transform a mere collection of clothes into a useful and eye-catching wardrobe says Bernetta Kahabka, extension specialist in clothing at Michigan State University.
First of all, choose a key color and build around this. Keep this color in mind when selecting new clothes, too. Separates can then be combined in pleasing color harmonies.
Although you need some plaids, stripes and prints to add spice to your wardrobe, don't go overboard. If you do, you'll limit the number of pleasing combinations you can make.

Another way to add a little variety to your wardrobe is through the use of accessories. With them, a simple dress can be transformed into dressier evening wear.
Be careful, however, to keep accessories at a minimum, says Miss Kahabka. They can overpower the wearer if too many are worn. In fact it's best to have just one center of interest. For example, one bright scarf or pin may add more spark to a basic dress than earrings, necklace, and bracelet all worn at once.

With a basic dress or suit as the core, build around it with mix-and-match shirts, blouses, sweaters, jackets, slacks, and skirts. If you do this, it will be easy to get that "well-dressed" look with a minimum quantity but maximum use of match mates.

NEW TRUCK—Greater economy and increased air-transportability is the aim of the Army in the new XM410 truck to be tested by Army Ordnance experts at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md. So constructed as to float when loaded or empty, the truck will eventually run on gasoline, kerosene or diesel fuel.

LOOKING IN ON OUR SCHOOLS

by Helen Burkhead

The word accredited means acceptable, and accreditation of a high school means a standard for acceptance to the better colleges in the country. It is my belief that most people, including myself, have taken for granted that high school graduates who have done well in their studies, have proper character references etc. may go on to the college of their choosing either by scholarship aid or by paying the price. In other words the responsibility for getting into college lay entirely with the student and his parents, and not with the fact that a high school from which he graduated was accredited or not. After you think about this, however, it becomes more clear that schools, like every other commodity we have, must meet certain standards, or our secondary education might woefully fall short of adequately preparing our children for college. This then, is accreditation, and I feel certain that all of you will understand the need for it.

In the Forest Hills school system we are concerned with two types of accrediting bodies. One is the standard of accreditation set up by the University of Michigan for Michigan high schools. This is the lower standard of the two and requires a minimum of educational facilities from the high schools. This standard, however, is not recognized outside of our state. Mr. Chambers has always told inquiring parents that Forest Hills High School will certainly be accredited by the U. of M. as soon as it is a four year high school. The standards put forth by the board of education will meet the requirements with no additional equipment etc. This means that pupils graduating in the upper third of their class may safely expect to be accepted in any college or university in the state of Michigan. This fact is comforting since the large majority of students from Michigan high schools choose to go to Michigan colleges.

The second body of accreditation is called the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. There are several of these associations located in the various sections of our nation, and each recognizes the others on an equal basis. Michigan, along with eighteen other states, is in the North Central Association which has its offices at the University of Michigan. This association sets up a standard of excellence to be met by high schools, and thereby recognizes those high schools complying with its requirements as being accredited. If a high school is accredited by the North Central Association its graduates qualifying for college may enter any college in the country without entrance exams or delay in being accepted. We must keep in mind, however, that colleges are becoming increasingly crowded, and thus the competition for entrance gets more and more difficult. Mr. VanLandingham told the Citizens Advisory Committee at their last meeting that pupils applying for college entrance from a high school not accredited by the N. C. A. are put at the bottom of the list and are only considered when all other applications from accredited high schools have been taken care of. Let me remind you that we are now talking about applications to colleges outside the state of Michigan. Here a question arises. Within our state would a high school accredited by the N. C. A. have preference over one not accredited by that association? Perhaps Dr. Wesley Erb who is speaking on this subject at the high school tonight will answer this for us.

The requirements for accreditation by the North Central Association are high and exacting. Without going into detail, which Dr. Erb will do, briefly they include a certain number of properly selected library books per pupil, certain types of laboratory equipment, and certain space provided for laboratory work. Testing and student guidance is necessary, as well as full degree teachers from accredited colleges. Sufficient physical education facilities are necessary so as to provide adequate fitness and health. These are just a few of the things that Forest Hills High School will need in order to be recognized by this association. These requirements will not necessarily be met by our school unless we ask for them and start working for them now. Mr. VanLandingham feels sure that if we have shown a good start toward acquiring the necessary equipment etc. the N. C. A. will allow our first two graduating classes a certain leniency because our school is new and these things take time. However, he stressed the importance of accomplishment as opposed to intention. They will want to see a good start toward our fulfillment of the requirements and by 1963 we must fully meet the standards to be accredited.

Why do we want this standard of excellence, this high accreditation? We want the best schools we can afford to provide for our children. It stands to reason that a school meeting the highest requirements will also give our girls and boys the best high school education which is so important to students not going on to college as well as to those who will have higher education. An accredited high school will tend to bring prestige to our community. It will help to bring discriminating families into this area and raise the valuation of our land and our homes. I understand that only one in every three high schools is accredited by the N. C. A., so the high school attaining this goal would be exceptionally desirable. All of the High schools in Grand Rapids are accredited by the North Central Association as well as East Grand Rapids, Lowell, Wyoming Park and others. But many in Kent County are not. Are each of us, as tax payers, willing to sacrifice a little to provide a high school that will assure excellence in education and allow the most deserving of its graduates to go on to college regardless of its location in our country? Are we willing to find out more about it, what we have to have and how much it will cost so that we can think about and discuss this problem more intelligently? If so we can start now, this very night, by attending the meeting at the high school. The time is 8 o'clock, the date is April 23, the place is the Forest Hills High School gymnasium. Dr. Wesley Erb from the University of Michigan representing the North Central Association will speak on the requirements for an accredited high school. Do come and bring your neighbor!

Fire-Fighting Tune Up

Machinists make final adjustments to a firelane plow assembly at the Conservation Department's forest fire experiment station as the spring-time threat of forest fires approaches. During the winter, crewmen at the station keep busy repairing and improving mechanized equipment to aid fire fighters in holding fire damage losses to a minimum.

Ping-Pong Champions

The ping-pong tournament is finally over after many hard fought battles. The winners are as follows:

Jr. High Girls, Barbara Paine
Jr. High Boys, John Pellerito
Sr. High Girls, Mary Burkhead
Sr. High Boys, Jerry Flynn

Medals will soon be given to these champs. Again our congratulations!

Next week we will "look in" on Harold Chambers, superintendent of our schools. We will find out what he does during his busy days.

It pays to read the Suburban Life want ads.
