places, you probably would visit each one, to see which town appeared to be the most friendly and desirable place to live.

One question that would be uppermost in your mind would be "are the people friendly?"

An industry makes much the same type of approach when it starts looking for a place to locate a new plant, or when it decides to move.

The attitude of the people in a community toward industry is studied very carefully by an industry or business considering that area for its future home.

If the attitude is friendly and cooperative, that may be the determining factor in the decision as to which community gets the new industry or the expanded facilities of a company that finds it must have more plant space.

A good industrial climate is the business of everyone in a community. One "knocker" may spoil the favorable impression of a community by a company seeking a new place to locate.

The importance of a good community climate is the theme of an advertisement entitled "For Want Of A Nail," which appears in the Ledger today.

It is another in a series of industrial development advertisements sponsored by the Michigan Press Association and the Michigan Economic Development Department which appear in this and 318 other Michigan newspapers as a public service.

MICHIGAN SUFFERING FROM PUNITIVE TAX PROGRAM

What's happening to Michigan finances affects business.

Here's how—shown by new survey:

Industrial construction contracts during 3-year period (1956-58) in Michigan average $31 for each resident.

In neighboring Indiana the outlay is $211 per capita.

Indiana's Governor Handley explains:

"Today's new industries don't pay yesterday's bills. Our tax structure isn't punitive as far as industry is concerned."

Michiganander, Michiganite, or Michiganian??

The dictionary defines a resident of Michigan as a "Michiganian."

The U. S. Government Printing Office style manual lists "Michiganite" as the proper term.

Neither one is right according to Robert J. Furlong, executive secretary of the Michigan Tourist Council.

"Michiganian" is the proper term.

"Residents of Michigan proper are referred to as Michiganians, a word derived from Michigania, one of the 10 states originally designated to the Northwest Territory by the Jefferson Plan of 1784," Furlong said.

"My own preference, however, is based on less contentious reasons. I think the word simply sounds better. It has a role and sounds harsh and ugly."

"And 'Michiganite' sounds like something you dig from the ground," he added.

FOR WANT OF A NAIL—

For want of a nail, the shoe was lost. And because the shoe was lost, the horse was lost . . . and the soldier was lost and the story goes, the battle was lost.

Sometimes it is that way when the battle is a community's struggle to gain new industry. Sometimes the battle is lost for want of something it would seem every community should possess.

A community's attitude—how all of us feel about our town and the industry in our town—is one of the most important elements considered by an industrial prospect.

Our attitude must be good if we are going to win. It is everyone's responsibility. The attitude of everyone toward our present industry can be our biggest asset or our biggest liability in the community's effort to get new industry.

Join hands with your local industrial development organization and the Michigan Economic Development Department to help your community grow and prosper.

Scout Column

At the annual meeting Thursday evening in Marne High School Merrill V. Peck was elected president of the Grand Valley Council, Boy Scouts of America. He succeeds Tony C. Lammers, who was elected vice-president. Also elected as one of the vice-presidents was O. B. Snow of Cascade.

Troop 284 Court of Honor
 Martin Scout Troop 284 will be holding their last Court of Honor for the season on Monday, May 18, at Collins School at 7:30 p. m. There will be an outdoor council fire, weather permitting. If the weather is bad, the Court of Honor will be held inside.

There are two boys who will receive the Star Rank, Jim Bushman and Gary Knapp. Four boys will be getting their Tenderfoot badges, William Bowie, Ron DeLeeuw, Tom Ervine and Donnie Taylor.

Clinton Cook, District chairman appeared in a person-to-person interview and made our yearly South Kent Report to the Council. Some of the highlights of the year include the expectation of registering our 2400 boys in the near future, a goal attained by training 99 percent of all troop unit leaders, 97 percent of the available scouts in attendance at our two camporees, the receiving of the "Onward for God and My Country Award" for the year 1958, and thirteen scouts advancing to the Eagle Rank.

Thanks to Parents

Carl Lanham, the Scoutmaster for Troop 284 would like to express his thanks and appreciation to the parents of the scouts who have given him wholehearted support in the past year, and he especially would like to take this opportunity to thank the Institutional Representative and all of the Committeemen who have given so faithfully of their time the past year in order to make this a troop going concern.

If it had not been for the cooperation of both parents and committee, we could not have had a nearly 100 percent turnout at the past Camporee.

Troop 334 Attends Camporee

Cascade Troop 334 with 14 boys, Scoutmaster Bob DeKam, assistant Scoutmaster, Mike Vekasi and committeeman Bill DuVall attended the South Kent Packin-Camporee the past week end at the Allegan State Forest. Committeemen James Banta and Bill Zoellmer assisted in transporting the boys to and from camp.

The troops two patrols won blue ribbons for camp activities. Saturday afternoon was spent passing Scouting requirements. There were around 500 boys and leaders encamped.

South Kent District Meeting

There will be a South Kent District meeting Thursday May 14, at Godwin High School. Marvin Bogert, vice-chairman, will reside.

Round Table

South Kent Round Table will be at Godwin High School on Thursday, May 21. This party will be the last of the season.

Packin-in Camporee

Over 500 boys and men registered at the Packin-in Camporee last week end. Nineteen out of a possible 22 units attended. Eighteen of them received blue ribbons.

In Memoriam

Raymond Prys, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Prys, of Marne, was accidentally killed on a submarine at Charleston, North Carolina, on May 7. The funeral will be Thursday, May 14, at 2 p. m., at the VanderPoole Chapel.

The pall bearers will be explorers from Kelloggsville Post 2256. District personnel will attend in a body.

Raymond was an 11-year veteran of scouting and his father holds the Silver Beaver Award.

Cascade Explorers Attend South Kent Camporee

Explorers Scouts Bill Merrow, Lyle Dykhuizen, Sybrant Dykhouse, Steve Cridler, Gordon Oatman, Don Heaven, James Atherton and their advisor, Milt Heaven of Cascade Explorer Post 2334 attended the South Kent Camporee at the Swan Creek area in the Allegan State Forest.

This was the first camporee in which the Explorers camped separate from the scout units and had their own activities. There were four posts from South Kent: Cascade, Grandville, Byron Center and Kelloggsville; also several units from the Ottawa District.

Units checked in Friday night, set up camp and got acquainted. Saturday was spent building a much needed foot bridge across Swan Creek to complete a foot trail.

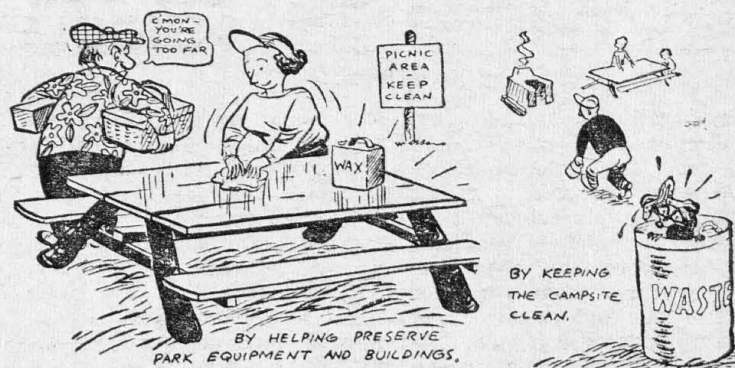

They also cut some pine trees under the direction of the State Forester. The logs were salvaged and loaded in a truck to be taken to Camp Ottawa for use at the camp.

Everyone came home tired, but had a good time and a lot of fun, as well as work.

Share the Outdoors

Within Michigan's domain of some 36,000,000 acres are 58 state parks and recreation areas and more than 36,000 miles of rivers and streams, 11,000 lakes, 700 public fishing sites, 100 state campgrounds and 3,700,000 acres of state forests. Preservation and enjoyment of these outdoor attractions demand the mutual respect of their users and owners—the public. This rule of thumb will be amplified by 1984—the generation of your grandchildren—when Michigan's population is expected to reach almost 14,000,000, nearly twice the present figure.

LOOKING IN ON OUR SCHOOLS

by Helen Burkhead

Today I will devote my column to a discussion of our school's testing program with emphasis on the elementary grades. To gather information on this subject, I interviewed Mrs. Mabel Hendricks who is the coordinator of the elementary grades. Primarily it is her job to see that each class room of a certain grade is doing approximately the same thing in all schools. Thus she spends a lot of her time visiting class rooms, giving suggestion and help to the teachers, and in general making sure that the children are keeping up with each other.

Mrs. Hendricks also directs the teaching program which is conducted in a routine fashion every year. The third and fifth grades are tested for the child's academic ability. Mrs. Hendricks prefers not to refer to these tests by the old term I. Q. This is not a true intelligence test, but rather it measures the child's ability to learn from books. The mental age of a child may differ considerably from his chronological age. It is beneficial for a teacher to know the mental age of her pupils because this shows her why one child may have a hard time learning the same subject that another child will find easy.

The first of these ability tests are always given in the third grade after most children have learned basically to read, write, and do simple arithmetic. Then two years hence a similar test is given on the fifth grade level so a comparison can be made of the growth of each child. Mrs. Hendricks compared a child's native intelligence to a shadow: usually it grows proportionately as the child grows physically, but sometimes there is a delayed start. In this case a child may be behind the average in the 3rd grade, and suddenly he takes a spurt in his ability to understand, and he catches up and even may go ahead of his classmates in the fifth grade. All of this information is valuable to teachers who are trying to understand why each child learns at the rate he does.

To aid the teachers in giving these tests correctly and alike in each of our third and fifth grades, John Armstrong of the California Testing Bureau paid our teachers a visit early in the school year. He showed the teachers the tests and acted as a consultant if they needed any help. He told them that we no longer speak in terms of Intelligence Quotient, but he used the word "intelligences" instead. He explained that a person may have several degrees of intelligence depending on where his native ability lies. He may be very bright in reading and written expression, but backward in mathematics and science.

It is very difficult to measure intelligence. Intelligence is governed by heredity, environment, and many other factors that cannot be calculated such as determination, inspiration, courage, human understanding, and even luck. How can you measure attitudes which contribute so much to success or failure? A person may have a high I. Q., go through high school easily and with high grades, but he may not be successful as an adult. Perhaps the very reason that the understanding of academic subjects has been easy for him has made him believe that all of life will be that simple, and he is not prepared or matured to meet later problems.

On the other hand you might find a child with an average I. Q., who comes from a secure, happy home, and whose parents encourage him to make the most of his intelligence. This child might develop an attitude of willingness to take advice from his family and teachers, a persistence to do well in school and to succeed in whatever he attempts to do. Thus he may have more of the fundamental necessities making up maturity than the more natively intelligent child, and he may go on to become a more successful and happy individual than the former person.

Therefore I. Q.s are not the sole measure of what makes a good or useful or successful person. For this reason Mrs. Hendricks prefers to use the results of these tests only as aids to teachers with little emphasis made of them. If parents wish to know what their child's score was it is possible to get that information by calling the administration office, GL 9-0165 and speaking with Mrs. Hendricks. Usually it is best that this is not discussed with the child lest too much importance be placed upon a single test.

The second group of elementary tests are given in the fourth and sixth grades. These are called achievement tests, and they test the children in reading, arithmetic, and language. This is done more for the teacher's use than for any other person, to show her how much her pupils have learned and understood these three subjects on their grade level. It evaluates the accomplishments of each student up to this point in his education. Through these tests teachers are able to compare what her children know with the tests of other children in other schools and cities. It shows her where she may be weak or strong in teaching ability. So here again these tests are given as aids in teaching rather than a definite grading of each child.

The second grade in our school system is also given a reading test to evaluate the pupils word recognition ability, sentence meaning and paragraph meaning. In the teaching of reading so much importance is given to the teaching of each word that the meaning behind it is often left unnoticed. If a child cannot comprehend what he reads he may as well not read at all.

Do you know that a six weeks course in booster reading will be given at the Martin School this summer? The board of education has approved this project, and further notice about it will be forthcoming through the schools and Suburban Life.

To complete the testing program I will mention the tests given in the Junior High School. Clarence Boerman, principal, told me that this year they gave the California Mental Maturity Test by the 7th grade, and the California Achievement test to the eighth grade. This particular procedure may be changed next year as our testing program is enlarged and better records of each pupil are available for the teachers in the Junior High. No tests were given this year in the High School. This partly due to lack of funds because of the state's precarious financial condition. Each test costs the school about sixty cents per pupil and this money was just not available. Aptitude tests on this level are a great aid to pupils who are striving to find the proper vocations to follow, and to know the subjects in which they can best major. This is closely tied in with counselling of pupils which we must soon have. Mr. Vanlandingham places great importance on this phase of High School education.

Next week I will visit Mr. Spoelman's sixth grade at Martin School. I hope you are reading and enjoying this column.
