- Every Friday night there will be athletic contests of some kind.
- In the future, when we have football games on our own field on Friday nights, there will be a party or dance after the games, but as long as our games have to be played away from home, it is felt that the youth return home too late to have a party afterwards.

Nearly $10 Million in Loans Already OK'd For School Districts

"The effect of delayed state aid payments to schools is already evident in the number of loan applications that our department has processed since the new state aid act became effective," said Dr. Lynn M. Bartlett.

Forest Hills just obtained $65,000 advance at 3 percent interest against anticipated revenue.

Approximately 400 loan applications from school districts have been OK'd for borrowing against anticipated state payments and primary money since September 18 when Lt. Governor John Swainson signed the 1959-60 school aid bill.

At the present time the requests for loan application forms are coming in from school districts at a fairly steady rate.

As of September 30, the amount authorized for school districts to borrow against anticipated state aid comes to $2,225,400. Against primary money, the total figure requested for borrowing is $7,614,871. The total of both figures falls just short of $10 million.

Dr. Robert Bakeman To Address C. M. F. Meeting

The Christian Men's Fellowship of the Cascade Christian Church will meet on Wednesday evening, October 14, at 8 p. m. at the Fellowship Hall.

The speaker for the evening will be Dr. Robert E. Bakeman, D. O. who will speak on "Dieting."

All men of the community are invited to attend.

Dr. VanHattum To Address Ada P. T. A.

The Ada P. T. A. will hold their first meeting of the 1959-60 school year on Thursday evening, October 15, at 8 p. m. at the Ada School. Guest speaker for the evening will be Dr. Roland Van Hattum, Director of Special Education for the Kent County Board of Education. He has a reputation as a witty and stimulating speaker and should appeal to both fathers and mothers.

Dr. Van Hattum has his doctor's degree in special education from Pennsylvania State University. He was formerly a consultant in special education in the city of Rochester, New York. He has written a book for parents on stuttering in children, and has published many research studies and articles on children's education.

He is now a lecturer for Western University and University of Michigan on special education for children; he heads the speech clinic at the Mary Free Bed Orthopedic Center, and is president of the Kent County Council for Retarded Children. His doctor's degree was in psychology, speech and hearing.

Dr. Van Hattum's topic will be "Our Role as Parents."

We urge you to attend and join the informal discussion following Dr. Van Hattum's talk.

At the May meeting of last year, it was decided to have only five meetings for the Ada PTA during the 1959-60 season. We are hoping to bring educational and interesting programs, and we invite you to attend these meetings.

After each program, we are instituting a period of free discussion. There have been many questions concerning our still quite new Forest Hill Consolidation pertaining to the tax program and actual operation. This area is made up of people of many diversified interests, and yet the children and our schools are everyone's business.

You can make the PTA an active group participating in a program for improving the family, schools and the community. The degree of excellence in the school classroom is tied closely to the amount of citizen participation.

Let's make a sincere effort to make our school the best. Please attend these meetings and take part in the activities of your PTA.

Perry Defeats Rangers 30 - 0, Friday; Meet Strong Otsego Team This Week

The Forest Hills Rangers lost to a strong Perry football team Friday night by a 30-0 score. The Perry Ramblers with an all-senior forward wall that was large and fast changing proved too strong for the smaller, inexperienced Rangers.

The opponents scored two touchdowns in the first period, and one in the second, to lead 18-0 at half-time. The Ranger penetrated to the five yard line late in the second quarter, but lost the ball on downs at that point.

The Rangers were not at full strength for the contest as several members were afflicted with cold and flu during the week. Also, they played without their first string quarterback, Fred Keller, who transferred to Caledonia on Monday prior to the game.

Forest Hills Travels to Otsego

The Forest Hills Rangers travel to Otsego Friday night to play against Class B Otsego, one of the powers of the Kalamazoo area. Otsego has not won a game this year, but they have played real rugged competition. All three of the games they lost have been two undefeated teams, who are leading their respective conferences.

Coach Edward Shy is making one major change in his line up. He is shifting Doug Stiles from left halfback to quarterback to replace Fred Keller, who moved to Caledonia. Larry Wentzloff is being moved from second string right halfback to the left halfback position.

Stiles and Wentzloff are both sophomores. Harold Bailey and Jerry Boomers, both juniors, will continue at fullback and right halfback.

Reserves Defeat Cedar Springs

The Forest Hills Reserves won their first game of the season last Thursday by defeating Cedar Springs 6-0. The Reserves have won 1, lost 1, and tied 1.

The first half was scoreless, but near the end of the third quarter, Pellerito connected on a pass to Wilcox covering 40 yards. Wilcox ran the ball over from the one-yard line for the game's only score.

Reserves Play Kelloggsville

Forest Hills Reserves will travel to Kelloggsville Thursday night to play the Kelloggsville Rockets. The game starts at 7 p. m.

The Ranger Reserves won their last game 6 to 0 over Cedar Springs while Kelloggsville defeated Lee 30-0.

Forest Hills To Play Home Games at East Grand Rapids

The Forest Hills Varsity Football games with Ravenna and Fennville will be played at East Grand Rapids Memorial Field. Athletic director Edward Shy has completed negotiations with East Grand Rapids High School officials for the rental of the East field.

The two games will be played on October 23 against Ravenna and November 6 against Fennville.

Ada Mothers' Club To Hold Second-Best Sale

Friday, October 9, from 8:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. is the time to go to the Ada Town Hall and buy good used clothing etc., and help the Ada Christian School Mother's Club as well.

The same day, but in the afternoon only, the Mother's Club will hold a baked goods sale at Weaver's Market.

The sale will begin at 1 p. m.

ADA COFFEE GROUP TOY DRIVE, OCTOBER 10

Don't forget the Ada Drive Coffee Group Toy Drive for the Martin School. The toys are to be in good condition and taken to the Eastmont Hardware by October 10. Books and games are very acceptable also.

The Ada Drive Coffee Group will meet Wednesday, October 14, at the home of Mrs. Harry R. Gaskell, 4990 Ada Drive.

WANTED!—ALTO SINGERS FOR ADULT CHOIR

The Cascade Christian church adult choir, which sings at the 9:45 a. m. service on Sunday mornings is very much in need of women who sing alto.

If you would like to join the choir, please be at rehearsals at 7 p. m. on Thursday evenings at the church.

Mothers' Club To Hold Harvest Of Bargains

The Cascade Town Hall doors swing open Thursday, October 15, from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. to the "harvest of bargains" in the largest array of second best clothing ever collected by the Cascade Mothers Club. The Mothers Club sponsors the sale of better used clothing as a service to the families in our community.

Children outgrow clothing so quickly. We think this is a wonderful exchange idea. Buy the clothing you need at a very reasonable price. Contribute your good adult and children's garments, and receive 75 percent of the sale price. The Mothers Club earns 25 percent to help finance their goals for the school year.

The rummage tables will be filled with good used clothing also; dishes, books, toys and everything imaginable. Come and look around. There will be bargains waiting for you.

The ingathering is Wednesday, October 14. Take contributions to the Town Hall between the hours of 9 a. m. and 3 p. m. Remember, we can use ice skates, boots, dishes and everything that is a usable item.

The second best and rummage sale is under the chairmanship of the Cascade Terrace group.

Education Program Begins At Eastmont Reformed

The Christian Education program at the Eastmont Reformed church will include two pastors classes, which will meet on Tuesday evenings at 7 and 7:30 p. m. These are for junior and senior high young people respectively.

The catechism classes for grade school children will again be held on Saturday mornings at 10 a. m.

This year's teachers are Mrs. Fred Koetsier, Mrs. Weeber and the pastor. Children attending on Saturday will be picked up by the church bus.

CASCADE BUSINESSMEN'S ASSOCIATION TO MEET

The Cascade Businessmen's Association will meet at the Cascade school on Tuesday, October 13, at 8 p. m.

LANSING Observer

By Frank G. Morris

Michigan's big industries, unashamed of their part in building a state that once was the most prosperous in the nation, will be battling openly in 1960 to preserve the traditions of self-government that made America the envy of the freedom-loving people of the world.

It will not be a fight against the labor unions, nor will it be a battle to blast the Democratic administration out of Lansing. The objective will be to restore politics to the average citizen by encouraging everyone to become active in the political party of his or her choice.

The business and industrial leaders planning the campaign are convinced that Michigan and the nation will be turned from the road to socialism if the national sickness, known as "public apathy," can be cured.

Months before George Romney won acclaim by launching his citizenship movement, Henry Ford II said in an address:

"It seems to me that the best hope for stopping the present political drift toward a government-controlled economy lies in the political activation of a large, moderate, politically inactive middle-income group in our society.

"This group amounts, by one estimate, to 30 percent of the electorate. It is the fastest growing group in the country, composed substantially of white collar and middle management employees. It could be playing a dominant role in politics. If it can be mobilized, it would provide a solid and wholesome buffer to extremes of either the right or the left."

Mr. Ford has done more than talk.

Training programs in politics are now being organized throughout the company by Thomas R. Reid, manager of civic and governmental affairs for the Ford Motor Company. Mr. Reid, who was a city councilman in Baltimore, Md., before moving to Detroit years ago, is a personable, energetic authority on American politics and government.

The program has important significance in Michigan because it is the first move by industry to awaken interest in public affairs.

Like the labor unions, industry has had lobbyists in the state legislative halls and in Congress.

But because of the Federal law prohibiting unions and corporations from contributing to a political party, Michigan's industries have shunned political activity with understandable fear.

The UAW and other divisions of the CIO, however, went to work with zeal to organize its members and profit from their strength at the polls. Detroit precincts were organized in the same fashion that Tammany once organized New York and the Democrats organized Chicago. Dues money was used for political purposes under the heading of "Educational Activity."

Because labor succeeded in capturing control of the Democratic Party in Michigan, first reaction to industry's citizenship campaign might be a presumption that management is seeking a firm hold

Wild Turkeys Could Race With Horses

Wild turkeys can run a good race with galloping horses for a short distance, says George Hunt, assistant professor of wildlife management at The University of Michigan.

"A wild turkey has flown at 55 miles an hour as a car was going along next to it," he says. "Whether this included a 30-mile tail wind, I don't know.

"Normally the turkeys don't fly long distances—just short flights for escape purposes. Where they have been hunted they become quite wary."

Hunt says the turkey formerly occurred wild from southern Mexico to New England and Canada. It is still found in the same territory but less abundantly and in more spotty distribution.

He describes the wild turkey as a dark-colored bird, iridescent with various shades of purple, blue green and copper depending on light reflection from the feathers. The legs are reddish in color. Males sometimes weigh as much as 40 pounds.

At one time, wild turkeys were abundant in the southern half of the lower peninsula of Michigan. But with the cutting of the timber and the increase of farming the land, the last known one disappeared from Michigan around 1900. From then until 1954 a number of attempts had been made to re-establish the bird in the wild in Michigan but none succeeded.

Beginning in 1954, the state again made attempts and with turkey stock more suited to the environment—"wilder" and therefore more rugged stock.

"Flocks have been established and are maintaining themselves and in some cases increasing in Allegan County, Lake County and Newaygo County and also on Drummond Island (east of the Straits), where they have been stocked by a private organization. Most successful stocking in Michigan has occurred in Allegan County where there is considerable forest territory," he says.

The U-M expert points out hunting of these established flocks is not permitted in Michigan and chances are remote that they will ever be hunted again here.

The folks who get up in the world today are the ones who drove carefully last night.

on the Republican Party.

Mr. Reid was asked whether this new activity is not aimed at creating a big business party and an even bigger business lobby.

His answer: "There is no intention of trying to create a big business party. For one thing, a corporation has no business dealing in party politics.

"It would be a grave mistake for business to align itself with either political party. In fact, that would be the surest way of creating a labor party.

"We intend at the Ford Motor Company to make it perfectly clear that we mean exactly what we say. We are convinced that the bi-partisan way is the best way—and that is the way we will take.

"We feel that it is part of the democratic expression of all interested parties that we make known the stand of the company on public questions that concern us, and we do not intend to be bashful.

"At the same time, we realize that we cannot formulate a point of view that fails to include our responsibility to the welfare of the whole nation.

"We are convinced that we must apply ourselves imaginatively to the public problems of the day and attempt to offer constructive solutions based on the balanced interests of the whole community."

The program being undertaken by Ford will be followed by other manufacturers.

If it rallies the moderates of both major political parties during the 1960 campaign, Michigan will be headed again in the right direction.

LOOKING IN ON OUR SCHOOLS

by Mrs. Helen Burkhead

Because there was such a popular response to the article I wrote in Mr. VanLandingham's own words concerning the present status of our schools, Mr. Van and I have collaborated again in an attempt to establish a series of forthcoming articles concerning the academic aspect of our schools. After this article appears, I will call various people in our community and ask them if an accredited high school is important to them and if so or if not, why. This should make interesting reading next week.

Following this column of public opinion, I will discontinue writing this column, and it will be taken up by members of the Forest Hills faculty, to be continued on a professional level, and it should be of great interest and importance to parents of children who attend our public schools.

"Before we start a comprehensive study of what makes up the curriculum of a school system, grades kindergarten through 12th, we should first, as patrons of the district, establish what it is we want of a school and what the school should do for our children. This statement of belief is normally called the school philosophy. The following is the philosophy submitted by our professional staff. 'We believe the purpose of Education is the harmonious development of the mind, the will, and the conscience of each individual so that he may use his full intrinsic powers.'

The educational efforts of the Forest Hills Public Schools shall be extended toward the maximum developments of each pupil, according to his attitudes, and aptitudes, such characteristics necessary which will enable him to become a happy and participating citizen in our democracy. We shall accept the student regardless of his race, color, or creed where he is, and attempt to have him develop to his own maximum.

To achieve this, our faculty accepts the responsibility of creating curricular experiences, physical, emotional, and social, which will enable the student to gain understanding and skills which will enable him successfully to meet the problems that he will face throughout his life.

If we accept the above philosophy then we should attempt to develop a curriculum which will lead to the fulfillment of this philosophy. While it is true that every school district can establish its own curriculum, they should seek council from established agencies to benefit from the combined experience of many thousands of people who have gone before.

The two agencies primarily concerned with this curriculum problem are the University of Michigan Bureau of School Services, and the North Central Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges. These two organizations through years of study and observation of many thousands of schools have established a level of excellence to be used as a standard by a school in rating itself. This standard is quite comprehensive and would require far more space than this article permits. In the future we will attempt through a series of articles to discuss these standards.

Many people might ask, "Why should our schools be accredited?" Perhaps the most important reason is the recognition that students from an accredited high school are better prepared for advanced training and thus are accepted by member colleges and universities in the state of Michigan without examination providing the student's academic average is acceptable.

Secondly, the assurance that all students who do not plan on further training have an adequate background to face the problems of getting a good job and advancing on that job according to their abilities. Perhaps some excerpts from an article by Dr. Lester Anderson, chairman of the Michigan committee of accreditation will help to clarify this a little. 'The North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools is a voluntary association of secondary schools and higher institutions of learning founded in 1895. The members have a mutual interest in the improvement of education for boys and girls. Schools usually join such an organization because they recognize that membership signifies high standards of achievement in their school. This feeling is usually justified because high standards are expected. Colleges and Universities have confidence in the achievement of graduates of accredited schools, because they have confidence in the standards maintained by these schools. Some colleges are already refusing admission to out-of-state students who are graduates of schools not accredited by a regional accrediting association. Some colleges also limit scholarships to graduates of accredited high schools.'

Thus there is no doubt that we want to have our schools accredited. We do not have the right to ask our boys and girls to face competition without adequate preparation. In ensuing articles we will attempt to take up various phases of total school curriculum and try to show what is an adequate program, what we already are doing in our schools and what we will need to obtain."

"Aboard The Heather" by Theresa Collins

Things are different now. The river winds and twists, and the vistas are tremendous sweeps of wooded banks and huge sand bars. There is no habitation along the river, all buildings are safely behind levees far back from the river. The only river cities are on bluffs; Memphis, Greenville, Vicksburg, Natchez. As we proceed on our way we see miles and miles of lonely riverbank and we feel as remote from everyone as though we were on the Amazon. Cloud shadows move across this never ending panorama, and we feel very alone in our little world, not as though we were going through the heartland of a densely populated country. Once in a while we see a herd of cattle coming across a sandbar for a drink, or grazing on an occasional area that is grassy instead of wooded. They are usually white faced Herefords, but once in a while they are the fat shiny black Angus like those on Holiday Farm across from our home. Once we saw a herd of goats. But generally it is wildlife, if anything. Thursday we saw a flock of white pelicans, and our binoculars went busily from hand to hand.

There is a harbor at Memphis, where we tied up at the Yacht Club. There we had fun visiting with Polaris' crew, the Lew Withneys and Clark Fields. Then we saw them again at the harbor at Greenville, Miss., where we were again tied up side by side at the Yacht Club. A Yacht Club means that other boating people can help in the necessary business of getting necessary supplies. We saw them next at Vicksburg.

Now Vicksburg was a city we were eager to see. Remember your history, the siege of Vicksburg, and the campaign which captured the strategic city? We enjoyed this place very much. We went to the Old Court House, now a museum which is on one of the highest spots in the city. It was a new building when Gen. Grant raised the Stars and Stripes over it. We enjoyed the museum, even though the twins couldn't develop much interest in old letters and newspapers, and were more interested in old clothing and furniture, and implements of war. The receptionist was most helpful. She was from Illinois originally, and had come to live in Vicksburg to be near her son and daughter, as he was an engineer working for the Waterways Commission.

Next morning we started early to see old houses in the town itself, and to go to the Waterways Experimental Station, where we understood we could see a miniature of the whole Miss. river valley. But there was no bus. Shucks! I went into the museum to pick up a couple more leaflets, and told the friendly receptionist about our regrets. She sympathized. I left. We were starting down the street when she ran out and called to us. The museum's manager had heard of us, and suggested she run us out there in her car. People can be so nice. She drove us past the battlefields and pointed out some spots, and got us out there for the 10 a. m. tour.

The model of the Mississippi was not of the entire river, but of the river from Vicksburg down. We could see and were told how the engineers studied the effects of silting, where to place levees, where a shortcut in the river would be advantageous and where disastrous and how to handle floods. We also saw a model of the Niagara and its problems. Likewise the St. Lawrence Seaway. Yes, they can study problems with a model, and predict with remarkable accuracy how to handle them.

In our party was a couple from Dallas, Texas, and another from Springfield, Ill. These nice people offered to take us back to our boat. It was fun to discover they were "Kevin the Bold" fans. They enjoyed looking over the schooner and snapped a few pictures. Just then along came a newspaper man. He wanted an interview, and some pictures. A schooner on the river is a rarity. Besides his paper ran "Kevin."

Then on our way again, Vicksburg has no yacht club, but we could tie up to an old barge in their harbor. Polaris tied up next to a houseboat. The following night we anchored and the next day we arrived at Natchez about noon. Here we had planned to spend several days. But there were no accommodations of any kind. We contrived to tie up at a floating dock owned by an oil-well drilling company. This territory we learned is tremendously rich in oil. A private boat owner kept a 300 gal. tank there for his own use, and sold us some of his own supply. Our Skipper rented a car for a few hours, and we went sight seeing. But the heat was beginning to get us a bit. Just a couple of hours and we'd had all we wanted, so we picked up food and ice and were back on the river again. It might be hot on board, but not that hot. We managed to cover 35 miles before dark to anchor.

That night we saw a magnificent storm piling up. We were all prepared for one of nature's spectacles. But nothing happened. Not a drop. The only time we have had any rain on the entire trip was a 5 minute shower at Memphis.

Next day we watched eagerly for the Red River. We wondered if it would be red. It wasn't. It was extremely muddy and full of floating debris. So they'd caught that storm over there.

The hot weather was getting me, and I must do something about it. So I decided to wear a bathing suit. The family are all amused at the whistles it draws from crews of passing tugs.

Here the river becomes much deeper, wider and less current is apparent. It has become a picture river. The river banks no longer look as though the water tears over and at them, and the trees come quite close to the water. Here and there is a bit of grass. We made a very long hard push and arrived at Baton Rouge. What a thrill for Kevin and Glen to see six ocean freighters moored mid stream! And a freighter from Oslo unloading! Others coming and going. Supper was late. We tied up to a tug company's service barge. Next morning we had to find a place to get gas, not easy, but we did. We took a taxi and went for food and ice. What a bill!

Now it is evening. We are anchored fairly close to the shore, close enough for grasshoppers to come aboard. The problem now is when and where to send off our mail. We hope to reach New Orleans tomorrow evening. And we had not planned to be here until the middle of October!

Carbon Monoxide Claims Victims In Cold Weather

When temperatures go down, your chances of falling victim to carbon monoxide go up, Dr. Albert E. Heustis, state health commissioner, said today.

But there are several precautions you can take to protect yourself against this deadly gas, the department added. Most of them apply to automobiles and the use of carbon fuels in stoves and appliances.

Carbon fuels include coal, charcoal, coke, wood, oil, gasoline, kerosene, natural gas and bottled gas.

Some carbon monoxide is formed whenever carbon-containing materials are burned. The amount of carbon monoxide increases as the air supply is reduced. If venting is adequate, the deadly gas is carried away without causing harm.

Last year 55 persons died in Michigan of carbon monoxide poisoning, almost all of them inside cars or buildings where carbon fuels were being burned improperly or exhausted improperly.

To protect yourself inside a car, the health department recommended these precautions:

1—Have your car's exhaust system checked and repaired or replaced if necessary. If the muffler isn't working right, carbon monoxide will leak up through the floorboards.

2—In cold weather, always drive with a window or vent partly open so fresh air can get in.

3—Never run a car's engine inside a closed garage or other building.

To protect yourself inside your home:

1—Check all stoves, heaters, appliances and engines that use carbon fuels to make sure that they are adjusted and vented properly. If you don't know how to do this, get someone who does.

2—Don't install water heaters where air doesn't circulate, such as in closets that are kept closed.

An increasing number of carbon monoxide accidents have been occurring during cold weather at motels and cabins, the state health department said. To help owners and operators of these places protect their guests against accidental carbon monoxide poisoning, the health department has just issued a pamphlet entitled "Carbon Monoxide Hazard." It can be obtained from local health department offices or by writing to the Michigan Department of Health, Lansing 4.

TV News

NEW GAL IN TOWN

June Allyson, who is starring this season in her own TV series, has long been typed by the movies as "the girl next door." But before June would agree to do television she insisted that she be given glamorous parts to play. The "little girl" tag has been picked up by fellow performers. June said she recalls the time she met Esther Williams in the MGM wardrobe department. "Esther was wearing a glistening black satin swim suit covered with gold sequins," related Miss Allyson. "I said, 'Golly, I wish I could wear something like that.' And she fractured me. She said, 'Who ever heard of a swim suit with a Peter Pan collar?'"

HO HUM

Television stars who work on location in big cities are used to attracting attention, but Lee Marvin had quite a different experience while filming "M Squad" in Chicago. Marvin recently related this incident: "This actor and I, we're up on the edge of a roof over a sidewalk, struggling for a gun. I saw these two gals walking along right under us. I thought I'd joke it up a little. 'Gimme that gun, I'll kill you!' I yelled. The girls looked up and went right on. Two men on the roof, killing each other, and those girls didn't even break stride."

TV BRIEFS:

"M Squad" star Lee Marvin comments on his role as Lt. Ballinger: "I play Ballinger any way I feel like. Sometimes it's me, sometimes it's acting. Who knows the difference?"

Emmy-winning playwright James Costigan: "I bewail the meaningless violence many television producers insist that writers shovel into their scripts. It shows how meager are the dreams of these men."

Bed Rest Still Best Treatment For a Cold

Bed rest is still the best treatment for a cold, Dr. W. B. Prothro, city-county health officer said today.

Going to bed actually has two advantages, said Dr. Prothro. One is that it speeds the victim's recovery and the other is that it reduces the spread of cold viruses to other people.

He said the so-called common cold is believed to be caused by about 30 viruses, some of which work alone and some in groups. Field tests are now being conducted with a vaccine that contains three of these viruses, but doctors still don't know which of the viruses must be present for the vaccine to be effective.

"For the present, it looks like we're going to have to continue struggling along with a certain amount of sniffles and sneezes," Dr. Prothro said. "But we can cut down on the severity and length of colds by going to bed promptly and staying there until the cold has subsided."

"And we also can avoid many colds," Dr. Prothro continued, "by eating the proper foods, dressing warmly, getting sufficient sleep and avoiding persons with colds."

He said the common cold probably causes more lost work and school time than any other illness in Michigan, making it the state's most costly disease problem.

The average person has two or three colds a year, Dr. Prothro estimated. The number declines as the individual becomes older.

One feels sorry for the wife when one finds that she has deliberately tampered with the scale in the bathroom, thereby reducing her weight by ten pounds.
