Rangers Down Bulldogs, 18-0

The Byron Center Bulldogs gave the Forest Hills Rangers unexpected opposition Friday night before the Rangers caught fire for an 18-0 victory in the second half.

The Rangers made their first touchdown in the third period when Doug Stiles capped a 60-yd. drive with a 6 yard sprint off tackle. The second touchdown was scored a few minutes later when Larry Wentzloff ran 9 yards off right end for a score. Spencer Wilcox made the final touchdown on a 60 yard run around left end.

The stubborn Ranger defense allowed the Bulldogs to penetrate only as far as the 18 yard line late in the fourth quarter.

To Meet Kelloggsville

The Forest Hills Rangers, undefeated in two games, will meet the Kelloggsville Rockets Friday night in a showdown battle in the O-K Conference. The defending champion Rockets are undefeated in two games, and possess a strong nucleus of last years championship squad. The Rockets are paced by All-State tackle Don Edwards, and all conference Halfback, Roger Polmatier. Quarterback Rollie Wolcott is another standout.

The Rangers will depend upon a strong defense that has registered two shut-outs, and the passing arms of Doug Stiles and Spencer Wilcox.

The Ranger line led by Tim Baker, Dennis Graham, and Allan Lutkus has yielded ground stubbornly this year.

The game will be played at Kelloggsville at 7:30, and a capacity crowd is expected.

Reserves Play Kelloggsville

The Ranger Reserve squad, fresh from a 19-0 victory over Byron Center, will meet the Kelloggsville Rockets Reserves at Forest Hills on Thursday night at 7.

The Ranger Reserves showed great improvement in the Byron Center game and Coach Dangl expects to give the Rockets a tough game. He expects no line-up changes.

Ranger Runners Eye Tough Season Ahead

The Forest Hills Varsity Cross-Country team begins its schedule of meets next Thursday at Johnson Park, against Rogers.

They have been practicing for three weeks on the hills in back of the school and should be ready for the opening meet.

Rounding out the squad are Steve Cheney, Chuck Boerma, Charlie DeMinck, Dennis Wajinsky and George Sheldon.

Personality Clash Should Not Block Learning Process

High school and college students should gradually acquire the skill of learning under teachers they don't particularly like, Finley Carpenter, University of Michigan assistant professor of education maintains.

"For children in kindergarten and the lower grades it is right that the teacher's personality should not clash with the learner. We can't expect strong frustration tolerance in the very young. But sooner or later each student must learn how to continue his education under less than ideal circumstances.

"High school and college students who are so strongly influenced by the personality of teachers that they must go to great lengths to avoid one they may not like need clinical help," says Carpenter.

What about the relation between teacher and machines? "We must assume that the goal of education is to help the student become a highly skilled learner who can tackle a great variety of tasks and time and effort," says Carpenter. "He should not only become a skilled learner, but at the same time gain independence of as many factors not under his control as possible. He should be weaned from the use of crutches and special aids, including teachers, machines and cumbersome gimmicks.

"In short, the student's skill in learning should come under his personal control as much as possible. Teachers, machines, and other aids are temporary boosters to help him learn the proper habits efficiently.

"Certainly one great advantage the teacher has over the machine lies in his personality. He should not try to make it neutral or pretend he doesn't have a personality. But his strategy should be to use his personality as an instrument to influence the learner to find his real reward in the process of learning.

"Teachers could use some training in acting to learn how to 'play down' their own personalities when the message they want to get over to their students is informative and has nothing to do with the person who delivers it."

THINGS TO COME

Fires can now be detected before they have an opportunity to spread, through a device that detects them when temperatures reach 135 to 140 degrees Fahrenheit, sounding an alarm that can be heard one-fifth of a mile away. The self-contained alarm operates on two standard flashlight batteries.

Old books, leather, cloth or paper-bound, may now be restored with a clear, non-dye solution absorbed into the surface, which can be waxed or polished.

A four-ounce moisture meter, a practical aid for gardeners, tells instantly when and how much to water lawns, house plants and shrubs.

A new automobile models set features a computer than enables the user to design and build over 25,000 different plastic automobile models.

The most difficult musical instrument to learn to play: Second fiddle.

How Schools Test Your Child's Potential

During your child's 12 years in elementary and secondary school, he will possibly take a dozen tests designed to measure his intelligence, achievement, aptitudes, and interests. These standardized tests will be in addition to the hundreds of informal quizzes and examinations given by classroom teachers to evaluate his progress in the regular course of study, according to information released by the Michigan Education Association.

What do you do when confronted with such phrases as your child's "scholastic aptitude score" or his "intelligence quotient", or his "inventory of interests?" Many parents are confused by such terms; some worry a good deal about test scores and their meanings, the MEA reports, and greater emphasis must be placed on informing the public about such tests.

The best way for parents to clear up most of these questions and doubts is to talk with the school staff—teacher, counselor, or principal. Remember—a standardized test is only one method by which the teacher seeks to know and to understand your child. Teachers also use many other methods, and the results of tests and observations give them the background for better instruction.

School systems vary widely as to the number and types of standardized tests given to children throughout their school years. The Michigan Education Association cites several of the most frequently used tests.

Readiness Tests—In kindergarten and at the beginning of first grade, your child may be given tests to determine whether he is work. If he is to be taught successfully, his teacher needs to know whether or not he is able to acquire the necessary skills for reading. Similar tests may be given to discover his readiness for learning about numbers.

Intelligence Tests—Often, early in your child's education, tests are made of so-called "mental ability." These tests measure his ability to learn by requiring him to perform certain selected mental activities involving his knowledge of vocabulary and his ability to reason. These tests may be used by your child's teacher to place him in classroom groups with other youngsters of similar abilities. In this way the program can be adjusted to his best rate of learning.

Aptitude Tests—Usually given at the junior or senior high school levels, aptitude tests help to estimate your child's special interests and abilities not revealed by achievement and intelligence tests. Aptitude tests, such as those designed to measure mechanical, clerical, musical, writing, teaching, or stenographic aptitudes, attempt to identify and evaluate abilities believed to be associated with success in these occupations.

Achievement Tests—This type of test seeks to measure your child's knowledge and skill in a specific subject field as compared with the achievement of similar age groups. Tests are labeled for such subjects as reading, mathematics, social studies, and science. A special type of achievement test is diagnostic in that it helps the child and teacher locate particular strengths and weaknesses in a specific subject.

Inventory Tests—One type of inventory tests asks your child to indicate his likes and dislikes; the interests revealed may be compared with those of successful people in various occupations. Other inventory tests explore your child's personality, especially his attitudes and biases. Inventories do not measure ability or skill in various areas. They are most useful in senior high school where your child's interests and attitudes have become relatively definite and stable.

National Testing Programs

Several nation-wide testing programs are available to high school students, in addition to the tests given by local school systems. These tests are given by non-governmental agencies for such purposes as measuring a student's ability to cope with college instruction or to select candidates for scholarships.

Junior Scholastic Aptitude Test—This test is given to pupils who have completed elementary school. It attempts to measure a child's ability to succeed in high school.

Scholastic Aptitude Test of the College Entrance Examination Board—This test, requiring a half-day, is given to high school seniors at designated test centers in every state. The test helps to establish the young person's scholastic ability as compared with others of similar age and experience. Test results are sent to the college designated by the student.

National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test—This test consists of two parts. Second-semester juniors and first-semester seniors may take the first part in the spring. Students scoring high enough on the preliminary test must take a second test the following December in order to be eligible for a National Merit Scholarship. The names of students who do well on the tests are distributed to colleges. Scholarships are given by the sponsor to a limited number of students; colleges also may use the tests results in awarding other scholarships. A fee is usually charged for these tests.

Community Leadership should help the elderly to achieve skills and accomplishments which will preserve and restore a sense of belonging and usefulness. The whole leisure-time program should be designed so that aged will retire to, not from, life.

One of the first things a man notices in a backward nation is that the children there are still obeying their parents.

WAYS TO FISH TROUT LAKES

'Twas a mistake, fishermen, if you called it quits when Michigan's regular trout season closed September 10. Rainbow trout from Conservation Department hatcheries are still up for grabs through the end of October in several hundred lakes scattered statewide. Trout do not reproduce in these waters so there is no need for concern about brood stock, and, hence, the reason for the extended fall rainbow season. During the fall, rainbows are taken most often in depths of less than 30 feet. They usually cruise the open water, staying just out of range of above-water predators, concentrating more frequently off points, inlets, and channels where there is more current. Trolling, still fishing, spin casting, and fly fishing are proven ways of tackling 'bows in the special trout lakes. For a virtual play-by-play rundown on the how, when, and where of these fishing stratagems, write to the Department's publications room in Lansing for free copies of "Five Ways to Fish Trout Lakes." Tips on fishing tackle, baits, and lures and lists of trout lakes and their seasons are found in this new pocket-size guide to angling action.—Mich. Dept. of Conservation

Forest Hills School LIFE

Candy Reyburn News Editor

Cam Morse
The journalism class of Forest Hills has gotten underway! The committees have been organized and everyone is working feverishly, hoping to make the first deadline with plenty of ease.
Your school news editor, Candy Reyburn, reminds all of the need for good news. If anyone has a news tip, they may tell any member of the class and will then be referred to a news reporter. ALL NEWS IS WELCOME!
There will be several changes throughout the yearbook. Pat Kennedy and Gwen Dowling are the new co-editors and have chosen an almost entirely new staff.
This year, deadlines will be met.

Junior High Students Have Pictures Taken

Merry Goebel & Cam Morse
On Monday, September 18, the Jr. High students had their packet pictures taken. These are for their own use, as well as for the year book. They will be returned in about two months.
On Tuesday, September 19, the Sr. High students had their packet pictures taken, with the exception of the seniors who had theirs taken outside of school.
The students were ushered to the health room, beginning with Mrs. Baldwin's first hour class and ending with Miss Weeks' first hour class. During their free period the teachers also had their pictures taken.
Students who didn't have pictures taken, will have them taken at a later date.

Senior Class Begins Busy Fall Activities

Bryce Thompson
With the usual scurrying about and confusion of the students and teachers, Forest Hills High began its fall year. The summer gossip and activities were exchanged with warm, welcoming smiles.
Pat Liefbroer and Frances Willard vacationed in Germany and brought back many interesting and fascinating accounts of their summer.
Forest Hills would like to welcome the new seniors: Charles Boerema, South; Gilbert Haas, Ottawa Hills; Barry Wilson, Central and Barbara Wiersema, Lansing Eastern. We hope you'll enjoy your senior year with us.
The football team has been working hard since the first of August. The moment of truth came at our first game Friday, September 15. The Rangers having conquered West Ottawa, are well on their way to a smashing, victorious season.
Yearbook Staff
The yearbook staff, which was chosen last spring, is under full steam. The Campsonian will surpass last year's and promises to be filled to the brim with this year's activities. The subscriptions to the Campsonian will be coming out in about two weeks. Anyone who has access to a camera and is able to take pictures of any sports activities, is encouraged to bring their negatives to the Journalism room to be placed in the yearbook.
The clubs have been late in getting organized due to the continual changing of students' schedules. Once underway, they'll give additional color to this busy year.

Forest Hills' Students Visit In Germany

Shirley DeMuth
From June 21 to August 26, Pat Liefbroer and Fran Willard visited Germany under the Youth for Understanding Program counceled by the Michigan Council of Churches.
Pat stayed with the Kempf family in the town of Hiedebergen, about 7 Km. from Bonn. Some of the high points of Pat's visit were a trip to Cologne, a trip down the Rhine, a trip to the West German Parliament, and a visit to the famous Lorley.
Fran stayed five weeks in Dosseldorf with the Meier-Cortes family. She then stayed with the same family in the Harz Mountains where she walked about 3 miles a day. A few of the main spots that Fran visited were some castles around Cologne and a visit to the Cathedral in Cologne, a visit to the border of East Germany, and a ride on the Rhine River.
The students came back by plane from the Schipol Airport in Amsterdam on August 25. Both students said that they would like to return as soon as possible.

Journalism Class Holds First School Dance

Merry Goebel
The first dance of the year was sponsored by the Journalism Class under Miss Busch. It took place Friday, September 22, after the Byron Center game. It was held in the All-purpose building from 9:30 to 11 p. m. The price was 35c stag and 50c drag.
Sue Stovall headed the decoration committee with Leslie Norwood, Sue Baker, Bob Chambers, Karen McElwee, Steve Bushouse, Sharon VandenBerg, Bill Martin, and Terry Hagland, working under her.
The tickets were sold at the door by Lynn Anderson and Candy Reyburn.
The refreshment committee made up of Terry Hagland, Bill Martin, Randy Dodde, Bob Chambers, Pat Kennedy, Sue Stovall, Sue Baker, and Leslie Norwood decided to have pop and cookies.
Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy were the chaperones. The entertainment was furnished by the Nightwalkers, a local group.
The purpose of the dance was to secure money for the year book and school paper.

L. Galloway Addresses Jr. Achievement Assembly

Merry Goebel
A Junior Achievement assembly attended by the Juniors and Seniors, was held fifth hour Friday, September 22, in the All Purpose Building.
After Bill Martin led the Pledge of Allegiance, Mr. Van Landingham introduced the guest speaker Leonard Galloway.
Mr. Galloway explained that J. A. is made up of different companies sponsored by certain corporations in Grand Rapids. Each company is run by some of the six hundred students from the twenty high schools in and around the city.
J. A. begins around the first of October and ends around the last of April. Mr. Galloway stated that because of the overflow of applicants and the limited number of participants, the chosen ones are asked to take part by special invitation.
A film entitled "We're in Business" was shown, after which a tape made at the banquet in April was played. The speaker on the tape was Lutz Storbeck, an exchange student from Germany to Forest Hills last year. Lutz was named as president of the year.
E. G. Jacques, also of J. A. assisted Mr. Galloway.
Those interested in J. A. went to the lobby of the gym, to make out applications, while the Freshmen, Sophomores, and the rest of the Juniors and Seniors had a pep assembly.

Offer Scholarships for Unusual Acting Ability

Under the Scholarships for the Creative Student Program, Michigan State University is offering scholarships to high-school seniors exhibiting unusual promise in acting.
Recipients will be chosen on the basis of demonstrated creative ability in acting.
To apply for a Theatre scholarship, the graduating senior must:
1. Complete a regular Michigan State University application for admission.
2. Complete a "Scholarship For the Creative" application.
3. Submit both applications to the high school principal for completion and mailing to the Office of Admissions and Scholarships, Michigan State University.
Qualified applicants will be invited to the campus (probably December 1-2) for preliminary and final auditions using both previously prepared and assigned improvisation scenes. Preliminary competition will be conducted on one day, and finalists will be selected for competition on the second day.

Mass Confusion!

Betty Winslow
Mass confusion! These are the best two words to describe our first few days at school. New and old students were puzzled with their tangled schedules, which building was which, among the other school doings.
The new buildings are truly beautiful and unique in design, especially the library. The flowers in bloom by the patio enhance their beauty.
We appreciate having such a lovely new school.

LEGAL	ILLEGAL
TO TRAP OR HUNT YEAR-ROUND	TO POSSESS, ALIVE, ONE TAKEN FROM WILD IN MICHIGAN

MICH DEPT OF CON

By and large, Br'er Skunk goes his own harmless way in the wild. He generally doesn't bother people and, if anything, does them a good turn by eating mice and pesky insects. Lately, however, he has been making a nuisance of himself in some parts of Michigan; damage complaints against him have nearly doubled since 1956. Also, rabies cases have been on the rise among him and his striped friends. To help curb these problems, skunks were recently placed open to year-round hunting and trapping throughout the state. Mainly because of the rabies factor, it is unlawful to possess live skunks taken from the wild in Michigan. Helpful as the new open season should be, there's no substitute for using an ounce of prevention to discourage problem skunks. Proper disposal of garbage is one good way to keep troubles from starting. Another is to close off open areas under barns and houses where these animals frequently seek lodging. Summer cottages seem particularly attractive to skunks, especially when their owners aren't around. Skunks are known to dig up lawns in looking for food. The solution; Kill grubs and bugs that tempt skunks by treating lawns with insecticides.

Scrubbing Linoleum Off Your Kitchen Floor?

There's a better way to keep it clean—easier on the back as well as easier on the linoleum, according to E. Eleanor Densmore Extension Agent, Home Economics.

The experts tell us a little daily care makes it unnecessary to do the vigorous scrubbing that is harmful to floors.

Most hard surface floors are either linoleum or vinyl and there is a proper way to care for each.

All types of linoleum are given a special top finish at the factory. If this finish is preserved by frequent applications of wax and spilled liquids are wiped up immediately and the floor swept frequently, vigorous treatment is not necessary. Dirt simply wipes away. But if this finish is scrubbed off, then dirt becomes embedded in the pores of the linoleum. If you use strong soap and hot water you remove the linseed oil that holds the tiny particles together and slowly the linoleum is washed away. If this has happened you may want to give it a coat of one of the penetrating floor seals and when this is dry, apply a coat of wax—either a polishing or self-polishing one.

Vinyl floors, according to the manufacturers, do not need to be waxed; but some people prefer to use one. Either a polishing or self-polishing wax may be used.

But the most important secret of floor care is—keep it from getting dirty by wiping up spills immediately, and keeping the floor swept.

IT'S A FACT

There are approximately 1300 companies in the drug industry in this country,—and no single company accounts for more than 10% of the market. A 1960 study made by the National Industrial Conference Board showed at least 300 other industries had a higher concentration ratio than the drug industry.

Pack Lunch to Keep Child Going

Mothers who home pack school lunches for their children must keep in mind that the packed lunch should meet one-third of a child's nutritional needs for the day, said Dr. W. B. Prothro, City-County Health Officer.

The home packed lunch need be no less nutritional, flavorful or varied than the prepared school lunch.

It is a mother's obligation to keep her children's lunches interesting and adequate to accomplish this. Miss Marie Fecht, Nutritionist for the Grand Rapids Health Department, recommends the following foods suitable for a packed lunch: sandwiches using a high protein filling such as meat, eggs, cheese or fish; fruits, fresh or canned; raw vegetables sticks occasionally; a dessert such as cookies; and milk. If milk is not available at the school, it should be carried in a thermos. During the cold winter months, a nice thermos of hot soup is especially tasty.

To avoid the early morning rush, lunches can be prepared and stored in the refrigerator the night before. Sandwiches, raw vegetables and fruits keep longer if wrapped in wax paper or aluminum foil. Small plastic jars or the screw-on lid baby food jars are handy for fruits or other juicy foods. For the lunch carrier, select an easily washed and sanitized metal box. Sign noted down south: "Keep Florida green. Bring money."
