Lynch And Keena In Supervisor Race

Ada Township will have a primary election on Monday, February 18, when Richard Lynch, present Ada Township Supervisor, will be pitted against his old rival, Carl Keena. In 1961 Lynch lost to Keena, 302 to 271 in a four-way race in the primary. In the April election Lynch won over Keena on stickers, 501 to 424. Lynch, an active young supervisor, has worked on zoning and re-assessment of Ada and stirred up some opposition. It will be an interesting contest. Last day to register for the February 18 primary is Monday, January 21, Township clerk Kathryn Sytsma announced. Other candidates who have petitions in for the election are Kathryn Sytsma, clerk; Neal VandePeerle, treasurer; Clarence Hill, trustee; Raymond Foley, board of review; Darwin Nellist, Ralph Averill, Jr., Donald Beimers and Ronald Boersma, Constables.

How To Get Along With The Little Woman

Grandville Editor, John Brewer in his column last week passed on to his readers a bit of information about married life and its problems that should be of real interest to readers in this area. Here is his advise!

"Admittedly, I'm no Ann Landers, but my qualifications on this particular problem are beyond question. I have evolved a formula that has proven itself by eighteen years of continued application, and which, if used as directed, can promote a degree of domestic tranquility (as guaranteed by the Constitution) that you never dared to hope for.

The problem: The numerous odd jobs that every woman delights in finding just as the big game starts or when the man of the house starts sneaking out the back way with golf clubs or fishing pole.

The solution comes in three parts:

1. Never have any tools. This eliminates all the odd jobs that would tend to turn your leisure time into one big maze of frustration and make you over into the handiest handyman in town.

2. Get dizzy on a ladder or any high place. This does away with washing windows, painting of retrieving the kid's toys from the roof top.

3. Develop a headache when bending over. It's great for getting out of any spade work, weed pulling, snow shoveling or other endeavors that can bring about unpleasantries in your married life.

These three simple rules, when firmly established as fact, will never get you appointed to President Kennedy's Council on Physical Fitness, but they will get you out of a lot of back breaking, time consuming chores."

School Board Sets Drive For Jr. High

In the first move to get the Forest Hills Area ready to vote for a new Junior High School bond issue in the spring the board of education is publishing its first monthly bulletin to the district voters. This is being mailed to present the school official's view of the need for more money.

Suburban Life has offered its facilities to the board for getting the voters in the mood for more taxes, but the offer was declined, and the board felt that they could best get their views to the voters in their own publication.

We now offer Suburban Life facilities to any citizens of the district or members of the board of education,

Professional Nurse Needed In Hospitals

The professional nurse is the central figure in adequate patient care in hospitals, according to a study conducted by University of Michigan social scientists.

In their new book, "The Community General Hospital" (Macmillan, 693pp., $12.50), Basil S. Georgopoulos and Floyd C. Mann point out that patient care is most apt to be adequate in hospitals which have a high proportion of registered nurses on their staffs and tent to rely less on nurse's aides.

An adequate supply of registered nurses—so essential to adequate patient care—is difficult to maintain in many hospitals, explain the authors, both members of the U-M Survey Research Center. The supply of nursing school graduates is insufficient, and some staff turnover is unavoidable.

They recommend that hospitals entice nurses who are willing to work only part-time by making such part-time employment financially and psychologically rewarding.

As a group, the part-time professional nurses do not differ significantly from full-time nurses either in their attitudes and evaluations of the hospital situation or in the quality of their work, the U-M researchers add.

A high proportion of full-time registered nurses on the staff is associated with high quality patient care, and so is a high proportion of part-time R.N.'s.

Georgopoulos and Mann found that fully 45 per cent of all nonsupervisory registered nurses in the 12 Michigan hospitals studied are working part-time, and that part-time employment is consistent with the family pressures and responsibilities of nonsupervisory nurses.

The authors suggest that hospitals make all efforts to keep nurses who already are on the staff. They point out that not only do family pressures eliminate many nonsupervisory registered nurses from the staff, but only one in four of the working nurses feels strongly committed to her present hospital.

Only one nurse in two would like to stay in the hospital as long as she can work. Due to understaffing, many R.N.'s carry heavier than normal work loads and receive salaries too low to act as a potent positive incentive.

It appears that, unless they take strong action along lines suggested by these considerations, hospitals will not be able, at least in the short run, to solve the problems of shortages among nonsupervisory registered nurses, the U-M researchers declare.

As a last resort, they add, a hospital might consider the possibility of training and employing more practical nurses—not as a substitute for professional nurses, but rather as a substitute for, and antidote against, using too many untrained aides.

The higher the proportion of nursing staff members who are aides, the poorer the patient care is likely to be and the poorer the organizational coordination in the hospital, Georgopoulos and Mann conclude.

Stop or Smile Motorists Asked

This Ingham County community is inviting people traveling the Interstate 96 Freeway to stop or smile.

Two 6-by-20-foot signs along the freeway say:

"Next exit, Williamston. STOP or smile as you go by."

Freeways Reduce Traffic Tickets

Warning letters to Michigan drivers piling up violation points were 805 less during November than the 3,555 sent out in October, the Secretary of State's Office reports.

One major reason, the Department said, is that as towns get by-passed by freeways, the number of convictions from the small towns drops sharply.

Boosters Club To Finance Sports

With the need to economize in areas not specifically related to the academic program of the school, the Forest Hills Board of Education has found it necessary to eliminate the Junior High, Freshman Basketball, and the spring sports of track and baseball.

To assist in breeching this gap, the Forest Hills Boosters' Club has offered to raise funds by private solicitation to finance these sport activities, including coaches salaries, rental of facilities, transportation, etc.

The Board of Education has been happy to approve such a plan in the knowledge that such an effort may be necessary for next year, 1963-64.

In presenting their proposal to the Board of Education, the Boosters' Club has also requested that the board develop long range plans to adequately finance a well-coordinated sports program. The Boosters' Club has offered its service in promoting such a program, as a constructive part of the High School curriculum.

Lions Third Travelogue Monday

"AROUND THE WORLD BY SEA-GOING JEEP" is an unbelievable story of an epic feat in travel and adventure by the most remarkable vehicle in the history of transportation—"Half-Safe." A trip that took eight years! Smaller than a Cadillac, the smallest boat ever to cross the Pacific, and the tiniest craft to master the Atlantic. Alone - skippered by Ben Carlin - unescorted and unaided, a tiny amphibious Jeep conquered the Atlantic, the Pacific, and four continents - every inch of the way under its own power! The most amazing trip ever!

Cross Your Fingers, Not Your Skiis

Skiing can be a real wintertime picnic.

It takes some money, some know-how, and some precautions to have a beginner's enjoyment with this swisher sport, but skiing should not be overlooked as a fun possibility by either young or not-too-old, cautious or hell-bent.

Giving it a first try is a very natural possibility here, too, because Michigan now has literally scored of ski areas whose prices and slopes both run from gentle to steep. A beginner can thus go as far as his money and energy permits, or he can remain a happy snow-covered novice by very little application of either.

Skis, boots, poles, and clothing are all items of considerable expense, and the novice should avoid buying anything until he tries the sport. Thus, one should rent equipment for the first go-around.

Nearly all ski shops have rental equipment, and that includes shops located at ski areas, plus the bigger sporting goods stores in cities and towns. If you become a member of a club—and this is a good inexpensive way to get acquainted with the sport—then the club may have a rental-purchase agreement with a local ski shop, so rental costs can apply against later equipment purchases.

The most important item for beginners is a proper pair of boots. If your feet chill easily, plan to wear two pair of socks, a light pair underneath and a warmer pair on top. When wearing these, the boots should fit tightly enough so your heel can't slide up and down inside. Many better types of boots are equipped with pads which hold the boot snugly against the vertical Achilles tendon just back of the ankle bone.

The biggest problem in choice of skis is deciding the length you need. The length will depend on your height, leg length, and weight. A six-foot tall man who is fairly heavy will probably want a ski somewhat longer than seven feet. A six-foot man who is lighter in weight may feel more comfortable in the shorter seven-foot ski.

Don't trust the old rule-of-thumb that you skis should reach in length to the heel of your hand when your arm is stretched above your head. Remember, the shorter the ski, the slower and more controllable it is; longer skis, meanwhile, are faster but more difficult to control.

With this in mind, a beginner will probably find it safer and more fun to choose a shorter length ski.

Bindings on skis vary widely in quality and price. The best are those which have safety releases both at toe and heel. In addition, a safety strap, commonly called an "Arlberg Strap" should be attached from your boot to the ski binding. It purpose is to prevent a ski from scooting off downhill after you fall.

Pole length varies, too, with the individual. With the point of the pole stuck in snow, and the basket part flat on the top of the snow, and the basket part flat on the top of the snow, the pole should at least reach your elbow. It can be longer than this, but should not be shorter.

So far as wax for skis is concerned, there is very little reason for novice skiers to use any wax at all, unless planning to ski on dry damp, sticky snow.

Clothing should be close fitting. If you don't care to invest in a pair of standard ski pants until you are sure you plan to stick with the sport, then use any pair of long warm pants. Socks should be pulled up inside pants, pants should be tucked down in boots, and boots should be laced up tight. This keeps the snow out and feet comfortable.

So far as other clothing goes, don't wear long dangling scarves or ties or anything that's liable to get entangled in a rope tow.

So much for equipment. Actual skiing instruction starts at hoi and requires some regular exercises to strengthen leg, knee, and ankle muscles. Flat-footed knee bends three times a day will soon let you know there are muscles down there which haven't been used for a long time. Twisting the whole body far right and then far left while holding the feet parallel and flat on the floor is another good exercise.

Sometimes during this first two weeks of exercise, you should begin dry land work with a qualified ski instructor or an experienced skier. These people will tell you to fall, how to stop, how to turn, what to expect when you first head down that first gentle slope, how to get up after falling, and how to keep your feet parallel. These are all basic and fairly simple procedures which should be learned by dry land practice before strapping on that new pair of barrel staves.

Most ski areas have instructors and regular classes for beginners. These classes should be nominal in price, and if arrangements are made through a local ski club, they may cost nothing or be handled through the club membership fee.

The rope tow, incidentally, is a tricky gadget and no novice should tackle it without first having been told clearly how it works, how to catch hold of it, and how to let go.

Over Eighty Children Were Remembered At Christmas

The Christmas season has come and gone, but it should be reported that over 80 children in the Cascade area were remembered by Santa Claus through the efforts of the Post-Hi Class of Cascade Christian Church. This group for several years has promoted Operation Santa Claus which benefits children who might not otherwise receive a visit from St. Nick.

People from the church and community donated $361.30. In addition, twenty beautifully dressed dolls were contributed, many new books and toys, as well as some very fine used toys. Local merchants were extremely helpful in giving reduced prices for the purchase of many of the gifts shared through Operation Santa Claus.

No distinction is ever made, concerning the church affiliation of a child, or his race, creed or national origin. The only thing considered is the real need, for assistance. Many of the families are recommended to us by the county public nurse working in this area.

Of the eighty some children, remembered at Christmas-time, each girl received a beautifully dressed doll; each boy, a sturdy truck. In addition, there was a second toy, game or book for all, plus a stocking cap and a pair of sox. Each family (some 15 in all) received a ham, a bag of oranges and nuts.

With money left over, Operation Santa Clus has provided Fred McGrath with a television set, during his stay in the hospital. Fred is hospitalized as a result of a broken pelvis and fractured knee, resulting from an auto accident prior to Christmas.

Post-Hi of Cascade Christian Church, along with their sponsors, Mr. and Mrs. John Titsworth, wish express gratitude and appreciation to all that assisted in any way with the 1962 edition of Operation Santa Claus.

Time To Get Up

How short the days seem this time of year. When the alarm clock goes off in the morning, we look through sleepy eyes and it seems so dark and cold outside. What a temptation to roll over, pull the blankets a little higher, and go right back to sleep. But we know that we can not. Some must get to a job on time; mother must get the children off to school; there is work to be done. And so we rather reluctantly get up to face another day. We soon learn that we can not sleep through life. We try to drift through life trying to avoid responsibilities, following the path of least resistance. Ae we begin a new year, God is saying to us: "Wake up. You have a life to live." Some day we will have to give account of what we have done with it. Do you report to your Lord each day for His orders? We have slept too long. The time is so short. There is so much to do. Won't you say: Lord, here am I, use me.
