Future of schools to be decided Tuesday

ed to the registered voters of the Forest Hills School district this next Tuesday. The voters will be asked to approve a one million six hundred eighty-five thousand dollar ($1,685,000) bond issue and an operating millage in the amount of six mills (6) for two years.

Building Program Has Many Aspects

The major part of the bond issue is for the construction of a new Junior High school and three elementary additions. The new Junior High school is to be constructed behind the present High school. It will face Ada Drive. The elementary additions are planned for the Orchard View, Collins and Cascade schools. All of the sites neces-

Shortage of classrooms brought home here

Last week, there was an article from the Office of Education in Washington, D. C. concerning the shortage of classrooms in public schools. Because of its timeliness (Forest Hills votes Tuesday) your news reporter has been requested to quote it in the Suburban Life. It is as follows:

'The Nation's shortage of public school classrooms became more acute this academic year, after two years of improvement, the Office of Education said Monday.

"Reports from the states showed there was a shortage of 124, 300 public school classrooms at the beginning of the school year last fall, the office said.

"This was an increase of 3,000 from the estimated shortage of 121,200 in the fall of 1962. The 1961 figure was 127,300, down from 142,500 in 1960. The 1959 figure had been 135,300.

" 'A substantial classroom shortage for even one year short changes the education of millions of children.' said Secretary of Welfare Anthony J. Celebreeze. He added:

"'It is abundantly clear that continue year after year short changes this nation's future.

" 'IT is abundantly clear that the states and communities cannot provide the classrooms leeded for our increasing schoolage population.

" 'The richest nation on earth can afford to build the classrooms it needs. It can ill afford not to.'

"The Office of Education reported that 1,659,000 pupils were counted as in "excess" of normal classroom capacity. It said additional millions of students also were affected by the over-

"The states reported completion of 65,300 classrooms by school districts during the 1962-63 year, down from 72,100 the previous year.

"They listed only about 59,800 classrooms scheduled for completion this school year, but the education office said experience of recent years indicates completions may exceed the esti-

Attends workshop in Bayport, Minnesota

Lee DeGroot of R. D. Brooks Construction Grand Rapids, Michigan, recently attended a two day "Window Workshop" at the Andersen Corporation, manufacturers of Andersen Windows at Bayport, Minnesota.

The Workshop included a trip through the plant, which is the largest in the world devoted entirely to the manufacture of window units. The next day and a half was spent learning how windows affect the livability of a home.

SYMPATHY EXTENDED

The sympathy of the community is extended to Neal Helmus of Ada in the death of his father on Sunday morning.

Applications available for canvassing board

Applications for member of Cascade Township canvassing board may be filed with the township clerk on or before April 1, 1964. Blanks may be obtained at the Supervisor's office, 6907 Cascade Rd., S. E. c45-46 now owned by the Forest Hills Public schools.

The Junior High school will be a one story building structure that will house 600 students. Utilities and special facilities will be large enough to serve a future addition of ten classrooms for three hundred more

Increasing enrollments and the need for improving both the Junior High school and High school educational program are the basic reasons for the new

The elementary schools will be the first step toward centralization so as to provide a better program, better services, and libraries for the children. These three buildings will have utilities capable of serving future expansion up to twenty rooms at each location. Serving areas for hot lunches and allpurpose rooms will be included in these schools.

Increasing enrollments and the need for more centralized. up-to-date facilities are the main reason for these proposed additions. A small portion of the bond issue will be used for Shop, Home Economics, and Music rooms at the High school. A more comprehensive school program geared to the needs of the student not desiring college is drastically needed according to school officials.

Money is also included to add equipment to the high school kitchen. The number of meals prepared at this kitchen can be more than doubled. This will enable the district to offer government subsidized lunches to all of the children in the dis-

School board members, school officials and interested citizens have tried to contact all residents of the district with accurate information concerning the building needs.

School Requests 6 Mills

A second ballot will be presented to the registered voters of the district requesting six (6) mills for two years for operating expenses. This will replace the four (4) mill special operating tax which expired this year. In reality, it will be an increase of two (2) mills of the School officials say this is a minimum request that represents a very limited amount for improvements. Eighty (80) per cent of the increased revenues will be used to employ new teachers for the increased eners now in the system. This will leave approximately $12,000, less than half a mill, for maintenance and improvement for the educational program and student services.

The building program and the operating millage are expected to add approximately $45 to the tax bill of the average home owner in the Forest Hills school district if both the building program and millage issues are approved. Suburban Life has carried a series of articles for the past several issues describing accurately different phases of the program.

A review of these articles, and detailed brochures distributed by the area citizens committee will help every citizen to cast an informed vote this next Tuesday.

My story is directed mainly to handicapped people, those, who for some reason or other could not become "profession-

I would have liked to become a teacher but circumstances prevented the education which was necessary. It is indeed most important to make the most of what we can do, physically handicapped or not, what ever the limitation, as there are so many rewarding achievements open to each of us in exchange for the efforts put in the business world, after 21 years of life as an invalid. I will never forget my amazement at seeing an adding machine for the first time. After I was taught how to operate it, I was moved on to other types of machines and also learned to be a switchboard operator. After 10 years in this office I decided to try something else. I felt now that I had the knowledge of business procedure.

My next position did not last as long. I went to work for another company in the accounting department which I found very dull. I stayed about three years and started out again to do something different. I went to visit a friend who was a patient and ended up with a job at the hospital. I worked in the admitting office, the business office, did relief work at the switchboard and finally in the medical records department which I found positively fascinating. There is a sense of satisfaction you get from working in a hospital which no other job can equal.

One day while working at the hospital I was offered a job at an investment counseling firm which I promptly accepted because of the good salary offered. At first I was very bored with this work because I knew nothing about stocks and bonds, but I decided once again to apply myself and to learn something about stocks and bonds. Today, I am vitally interested in the stock market.

So you see, one can adjust oneself to many things. I am now having a recurrence of my original illness and am confined to bed completely for an indefinite period of time, but I intend to pick up where I left off when I recover. I keep busy doing needlework, reading and as you can see, writing letters.

Sincerely, Margaret Shaffrey.

To our readers: please say a prayer for Margaret, she has been ill since last summer. Her willingness to contribute her story is another indication of her many admirable traits. Write us your story. Object Success: Box 128, Lowell, Mich.

The appraisal is based on twenty-five percent of the true cash value, to figure your true cash value, just multiply by 4. Animals and birds have different kinds of toenails to help them catch food, run, fight, or climb trees. These toenails have been given several other names --- hoofs, claws, talons---to fit various types of animals or birds. Members of the cat family, including lions, tigers and leopards, have claws which they use for catching food. These sharp, hook-like toenails are good fighting tools and also serve some of these types of cats in climbing trees to get away from the enemy. Mostly, dogs use their teeth to catch food or fight, but their toenails help them some-times, such as for digging holes. Birds that sit in trees have long, curved toenails called "talons" to hold branches or limbs. Hawks and owls have talons that are longer, sharper and more curved than most birds which enable them to catch their prey. Other birds, like pheasants, have dull toenails as a result of their running on rough ground. Deer, horses, and cows have very heavy toenails known as "hoofs" which are thick and almost as hard as stone. All animals with hoofs eat only grass, tree leaves, or other kinds of plants. None of them eat meat.

Perhaps that's because hoofs can't help them to catch hold of other animals.

Mich. Dept. of Conservation Hoffs, claws or talons determine animals' way of life, magazine says

Editor's Note: This article is aimed at our younger readers with hopes that mem-bers of the older set will also find it interesting. We plan to run more stories of this type from time to time in an effort to create a better understanding of and interest in animals and other natural resources among our state's youngsters

Like people, all birds and animals have toenails. These toenails, called hoofs, claws or talons, are used differently by animals and birds to help them live their own ways.

So states an article for children in the Conservation Department's magazine, "Michigan Conservation." It contin-toenails are known as "hoofs" All animals that have hoofs eat only grass or tree leaves or other kinds of plants. None of them eat meat. And not one of them can climb a tree.

Perhaps this is because hoofs can't help a horse or deer catch hold of another animal to eat its meat. Or perhaps hoofs are just right for running away from meat-eating animals, or for standing up to eat tree leaves. Nobody really knows why. But one thing about hoofs; they are no good for climbing

Have you ever seen a cat and dog fight each other? The cat strikes out with its claws, but the dog tries to bite. Why doesn't the dog try to claw the cat instead of biting? Why doesn't the cat try to bite first, instead of clawing at the dog?

Cats have learned to keep their claws sharp to help them catch food or to fight dogs. Their teeth aren't big enough to do all the work. But dogs have much bigger teeth and they use these teeth for catching food or for fighting. Each animal uses its best fighting tool. What about birds? Some, like those that sit in trees, have long curved toenails called "talons."

Others, such as those that run along the ground, have dull

Birds that sit in trees need sharp talons to hold the branch or tree limb. Running along the rough ground causes the talons of other birds to become dull. Some birds, like hawks and owls, have talons that are even longer, sharper, and more curved than other birds. These talons help them catch mice and

Where did toenails and hoofs and claws and talons come from anyway? And why doesn't it hurt to cut off the tip ends of

All claws, toenails, and hoofs are really a sort of hard, dead skin. They aren't really the same as dead skin, but almost. Dead skin doesn't have any feeling in it and that's why it doesn't hurt to cut off the tip ends of your toenails.

No one really knows when toenails began to grow on animals, but once they started, the animals began to use their nails for fighting or digging or for holding on to tree limbs. More and more, these toenails helped each animal to live the way it wanted to live.

Horses and deer and some their toenails when they walk. That way they can run fast and the hard ground doesn't hurt their feet. Other animals, like wolves and coyotes and foxes and just plain house dogs have short, dull toenails. Mostly, dogs

Stylist shows fashion dividends to 4-H girls

Local 4-H girls need not pos-sess a wealth of business knowledge or capital funds to collect "Fashion Dividends". Simplicity's 4-H Club Stylist, Miss Eleanor J. Echo, is here to show that all they need is an interest in sewing and a small amount of money carefully invested to guarantee returns. How to derive these 'fashion dividends' will be described on March 3 at 8 p. m., at the Fairview School, 2396 Hillside Drive, W., Grand Rapids, when a fashion show of new spring Simplicity Patterns will be

Miss Echo will show 4-H girls how to explore a profitable plan to develop their wardrobes and help expand it with little extra expense in this presentation of "Fashion Dividends" Her tips on good grooming will teach them how to trade on current assets. She will also discuss how to use available accessories as collateral for creative sewing ventures. Starting with the correct size pattern is the most important step for the success of any sewing future. Then it is necessary to select the proper patterns and suitable fabrics. All those shown in this presentation have been designed and selected with the 4-H girl

Miss Echo is well qualified as an expert on 4-H fashion. She herself was a 4-H club member in New Jersey before going to the University of Miami to receive her degree in Home Economics. She was a 4-H Club agent in Michigan, then joined the Simplicity Educational staff as 4-H Club stylist. In her work, she travels throughout the country helping to guide 4-H Club girls with their own clothing and good grooming problems.

We know that every 4-H Modern Miss will want to sew and show her own "Fashion Dividends" after seeing this inspiring presentation. The model chosen from 4-H Club members, will be: Sharon Raper, Marcia Blain, Carol Grit, Sue Vryhof, Paula Becker, Lynn DeMeester, Kathy Anders, Kathy McKitterick, Shirley Zimmerman, Anita DeGraff, Rae Lynn Williamson, Shirley Hollemans, Ruth Van Assen, Cheryl Oppenhuizen, Judy Fairbrother, Jodie Reath, Patty Labazoo, Noreen Jost, Jackie Shook, and Linda Ingraham.

Lions and tigers and leopards are all called cats, and they all have the same kind of claws that little house cats have. They keep their claws in special little holders made of skin. These little holders are called "sheaths" and they are placed right on top of the cat's toes.

Cats keep their claws in the sheaths and that way the points don't get dull from walking on rough ground. But the important thing is, when cats want other animals stand right up on to, they can push these claws right out of their holders like sharp little hooks.

They use these sharp hooks to catch mice or birds or other animals, or to climb trees so they can get away from their

Chickadee

What a cute little fellow the chickadee is! So cheery and sprightly, no matter what the weather does! When he comes to your hand to take a sunflower seed, and rests there a minute to look up into your face and say "Dee, dee!", you feel that he knows you and likes you and appreciates your

The other birds keep their distance until you have gone back into the house. Either they do not trust you or they do not like you. Perhaps they don't realize that the steady supply of food throughout the winter is your gift to them and shows that you care about their welfare.

God is much more concerned about us then we are about the birds. He has proved this by sending His Son Jesus to be our Savior. Whether we acknowledge Him or not, He continues to supply us with an abundance of the good things of life-food and clothing and shelter, and so many beauties and pleasures to enjoy. If these seem to be lacking at times, it is not because of neglect; it is just to remind us that we are dependent on Him. And if we have accepted His greatest gift, salvation and eternal life through faith in Jesus, we don't mind doing with a little less of other things. And we gladly look up to Him and thank Him. We know He cares! -M. Schoolland

This trophy-winning dragster, Pioneer I, is owned by Jim Byerly, jr., of 859 Byerly Avenue, S. E. After a successful season in 1963, the car was dismantled and a new goal and car

A seven-layer fiberglass body is the new coat for the Albino Dinosaur, the power machine designed and built by Byerly for drag racing. Shown by the car holding his helmet is his wife, Loa, who has been instrumental in the successful completion

This week end, February 29 through March 1, the Albino Dinosaur will be at the L. C. Walker arena in Muskegon for its first show of the 1964 season.

The annual Rod and Custom Show, sponsored by the Road Gents, will feature custom cars, dragsters, midgets, Bonneville cars, stock cars, super-modifieds and various displays and movies from 9 a. m. to 10 p. m. each

Even though Byerly just put the finishing touches on the car, he has made two local television appearances promoting the show and his car, during the past week.

4-H Amateurs present show February 27th

The tops in amateur entertainment will be presented at the Annual Kent County 4-H Share The Fun Festival program, Thursday, February 27, in the beautiful Northview High School Auditorium.

All acts are composed of 4-H members representing Kent County and will feature a variety of acts including tap dancing, choral groups, pantomine and even the Beatles

The 25 different acts will be competing for four top awards. Two winners in the small group category and two winners in the large group category. The winners will be competing later in the year for honors leading to State 4-H Show. Many of the acts will be scheduled to appear at other 4-H events and community organizations.

The program is open to the public with no admission or donation charge being asked. The program will start at 8

Softball action under lights

Softball games played under the lights at the Ada Athletic Park is a proposed project for Ada—Cascade—Eastmont area boys, 15 through 19-years-old. Boys eligible to play must be 15-years-old before August 1, and 19-years-old before Decem-

The proposed 6-team softball league will have a 10 game schedule, with 13 men on each team. Entry fee into competition will be $4 per player.

This program is being set up by various members of the Ada Athletic Association who feel that this age bracket need recreation to keep them busy,

The summer program will be a success if the interest of the boys is high and the support from the community is great. Watch the coming editions of Suburban Life for registration information and details on this "softball under the lights" pro-

The new dragster was built from main part of Pioneer I, the sister car. Fuel consumption for the Allison airplane engine powered machine is 1/4 mile, 1 gal. high test gas.

When Byerly completes a run on a strip a 20-ft. parachute is used to help stop the car. At Bonneville Flats in Utah, where land speed records are set, an 8-ft. chute is used.

The Dinosaur is 43 inches high at the highest point, 16-ft., 10-inches long, 32 inches wide, and weighs 3,500-lbs.; 1,300-lbs. engine weight. Ground clearance 51/4 inches. The engine has 1.710 cubic inches and puts out approximately 3,000 hp at sea

8:20x15 tires are run on the car for drag racing. The tires are 81/4 inches wide, and with 4-wheel drive gives 265 square inches of rubber on the track. Tires used at Bonneville are 7:00x18, and carry 150-pounds of air pressure

In August of this year, Byerly will pack up and go to the Salt Flats in Utah. There, he will be entered in the Lakester class, which now holds a world's record of 251 mph. Competition, in the week long event, will be tough with approximately 200 cars and 50 motorcycles from all over the United States and South American taking a try at

The Salt Flats track is 10 miles long. Last year, with the Pioneer I, Byerly clocked 167 mph in a 4-mile run, from a standing start. This year, he will have a 2 mile running start to get up speed. His big goal is 85 mph faster and he will top the world's record in this class. Jim hopes to run tween 275 and 300 mph.

Problems? Due to the fact that he will run a longer distance, Byerly is faced with the major problems of a proper cooling system, fuel consumption and gear ratio.

The run for the record must be made between 7 to 9 a.m. The heat on the flats ranges from 120 degrees to 130 degrees.

The power plant which will speed Byerly towards the record is a basic Model 99 Allison high-altitude engine from a Curtiss P-40 fighter airplane The engine originally had a 2-to-1 reduction gear on the nose. This was removed and replaced with an Allison direct drive cover. Then the crank-shaft hub was adapted to the input of a multi-disk "tugboat clutch." The clutch has 13-alternate steel and bronze disks.

After July 4, Byerly will halt all area drag competition to change his car over for Bonneville. He estimates a month's work will be involved

During 1961-62, with the Pioneer I, he won 12 trophies in shows at Grand Rapids, De-Chicago, Akron Youngstown, Ohio, Flint, Battle Kalamazoo, Lansing, Holland and Muskegon. The car was run at drag strips at Grattan, Martin and Omondaga and Muncie, Indiana.

At the Flint show, Jim's car was judged "best of show" and won a beautiful 5-ft trophy.

Anyone interested in having some local and world-wide publicity by having their name on the Albino Dinosaur can contact Jim at his home, 859 Byerly Avenue, S. E., or talk with him at the Muskegon show this week end.

The Byerlys, who have just put over a year's hard work into the new car, have three children.
