Expecting or D , weekend traffic in Michigan to be normally heavy, the State Police will operate special patrols from noon Friday to midnight Monday, said Col. Fredrick E. Davids, department director.

Various "last fling" activities of this closing major holiday period of the summer attract hundreds of thousands of motorists to the roads, he noted, increasing the potential for accidents.

The director said the Labor Day weekend in recent years has been the worst holiday period for traffic deaths. The average was 38 in the years 1965-69. High in the period was 51 in 1968, low 25 in 1965. There were 27 deaths last year.

Halt Road Work Over Holidays

In an effort to assure maximum traffic safety conditions over the Labor Day weekend, the Department of State Highways has ordered a halt to all highway construc-tion and maintenance work and enforcement of safety measures at construction sites.

Michigan motorists will drive an estimated 610 million vehicle miles over the holiday weekend. The anticipated total from Friday noon through Tuesday noon exceeds the 1969 Labor Day figure by nearly five million vehicle miles. By com-parison, the 1970 Fourth of July total was estimated at 630 million vehicle miles.

"Safety of the motorists is of paramount concern to all of us in the Highway Department," Director Henrik E. Stafseth

He has ordered a halt to all highway construction and maintenance work from 5 p.m. Friday until Tuesday morning. Only essential emergency work will be done on state highways during this period.

Stafseth also has ordered all construction equipment to be moved a safe dis-tance from the traveled portion of all highways during the weekend.

In further instructions to all district and project engineers, Stafseth said "all construction signs should be checked continuously to make sure that they reflect the conditions that lie ahead for the motorist.

Only four detours will be in effect on state highways over the Labor Day weekend. These are on M-61 between Marion and Harrison in Clare County; on M-25 between Harbor Beach and Port Austin in Huron County; on M-44 between M-66 and Grattan in Ionia and Kent counties; and on M-140 in the City of South Haven. In addition, westbound I-94 traffic near

New Buffalo in Berrien County will be re-stricted to one lane between Madlin and Laporte Roads. Generally heavy traffic is anticipated throughout the state, particularly on northbound routes Friday afternoon and evening. Traffic on southbound routes throughout the state is expected to be generally heavy Monday afternoon and evening.

Migrant Worker Jailed in Hit-Run Accident

Seven-year-old Thomas Vaughan, of 11577 Depot Street, SE, was reported in fair condition by Butterworth Hospital authorities Tuesday evening following a hit-run accident in which Robert Ulichnie, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony D. Ulichnie of Lowell, was killed.

Kent sheriff's deputy John Goodspeed said the Ulichnie boy was killed outright when the minibike he was riding was struck from behind by a pickup truck on 36th Street near Alden Nash Ave., SE about 4 p.m. Sunday. The Vaughan boy was a passenger on the minibike.

Goodspeed said the pickup truck and the minibike were both westbound, and witnesses reported the truck was traveling 60 to 80 miles an hour and failed to stop after hitting the motorbike.

About 5 p.m., a truck matching the description of the hit-run vehicle was found by Deputy Charles MacArthur on 36th Street near Segwum Ave., SE.

Tentative identification of the truck led officers to a nearby orchard where Deputy Ken Kleinheksel spotted a man hiding in the trees.

The man, a 25-year-old migrant worker from Cochran, Georgia, ran, but Klein-heksel chased and captured him.

Charlie Doran is a Detroiters and he wears his hair like one. Charlie Doran is a film producer-and he talks like one.

Charlie Doran is NOT a fisherman-well, not much of one anyway.

We were "garbaging up," as he likes to say, at the Chippawa Hotel in Manistee after a full day on Lake Michigan in search of the monster coho he said he'd read about in the Free Press. He thinks he found it.

"Let's face it, John," he said, "You're just not the fisherman I am. Those coho love me. They find out I'm out there and they want to jump right in the boat with me!"

I bit my lip and my steak and he continued. "I'll tell you what, John. Let's go back out there again next week and put the whole thing on film and try to sell it to Mort Neff or Jerry Chippetta for their outdoors shows.

That did it. I reminded him that I took his camera in hand

NOW, THAT'S A BIG TRUCK! - Lowell Public Works Superintendent, Fred Baker prepares to put a new emblem on a new, $7,177 dump truck the city has purchased. For the first time, the city is experimenting with a rust-proofing process in an attempt to get more mileage out of the truck's body. The truck can carry up to five tons and is equipped with an undercarriage scraper for use in snow removal. It brings to seven the number of trucks in the city's fleet.

> when he first screamed he'd had a hit. (Show biz talk for catching a fish) and I started rolling (more show biz) while he yelled to the fish, "Don't let go! Don't let go!"

Well, the fish, which I dubbed "Charlie Doran II" did not let go and, for all I know, it's mounted and sitting on top of his TV in Detroit.

But, honestly, how many real fisherman would mount a 6pound fish? And how good can a fisherman be if he has to ask the guy who's driving the boat (me) to put the bait on the hook (They're so squishy. I just hate to handle them, eck!")? And what kind of fisherman is afraid to take the fish off the hook. ("My God, it's still alive! Look at those teeth! John, you'd better handle this one. Give me the camera.")?

Well Charlie had to go to Fargo, N. D. to shoot something for Aves Advertising in Grand Rapids but he told me he'd be back for more fishing soon.

I hope the fish are ready for him. The sad truth is that Charlie Doran, the tall, good-looking (He's still single girls!) movie producer from the East Coast (of Michigan) doesn't know a coho from a sunfish.

When he comes back, I'll take him to that little spot near the Showboat on the Flat River and let him land one of those Jennifer fish-that's what daughter Jennifer, 2, calls them. I'll tell him it's a coho . He'll get it on film and run to the TV stations in Detroit and . . . well, watch the show, folks. It'll be good for a laugh.

Who ever heard of a Jennifer fish? I know Neff and Chippetta never have.

It's been a few weeks since The Smithy managed to find time to sit and contemplate some deathless prose to foist upon a (no doubt) waiting public.

We have been going in circles, in a manner of speaking, as preparations for another harness race meeting gets into the hectic stage at Windsor Raceway, where we hold forth much of the time newadays.

In case you're unfamiliar, that's the kind of racing where the driver sits in a sulky and tries his best to keep the horse "on gait" throughout the mile pace or trot.

It's one of the fastest growing sports aorund these days and we are proud to say that some of the popularity attained in the Detroit-Windsor area was the result of an earlier session in the same capacity as PR director a few years ago.

Funny thing about running a race tract: The better always yells that he's lost money to the track whenever his luck goes bad. Actually, the track is nothing more than a "money broker," handling the bets and then taking out a percentage of the parimutuel handle to help defray costs and to pay the purse money to the owners and drivers.

Statistically, it's hardly worth the effort to run a race track on this basis . . . and only the tracks with some say on the concessions, such as parking, admissions, food and programs, really manage to show much of a profit. So, next time you hear the guy next door moan about losing

TO the track, remind him that he lost to other people AT the track. It's that simple, believe me.

I know the Detroit News isn't widely read in this part of the state and you may, therefore, have little or no knowledge of the late Doc Greene, who held forth for more than a decade as sports and general columnist.

Doc passed on recently and we attended his funeral. It was an affair to remember, complete with a soft-playing Dixieland band that rendered "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot" to the assembled mourners while a Marine Color Guard attended the casket.

Doc's wife showed up in a pretty pink dress, simply because he had specifically requested this mode for the occasion.

No eulogy was spoken, though there no doubt would have been countless volunteers, because Doc had expressed a desire at one time that no eulogy be spoken!

It was an event no less flamboyant than the man who knew a greater cross-section of this world than many with greater names and reputations.

He will be missed by those of us who listened to his recollections of other times and other places by the hour.

You may have read this in another publication, but it's good enough to pass along because I was there when it happened.

This guy allowed as how he had played golf at one time, but had given up the game. "You know why I quit the game," he asked.

Without breaking stride, a friend cut him down thusly: "Yeah, you lost your ball!!"

Here's good news for friends of Craig and July DeMinck. He is out of the service and they will be moving into their new apartment this week. It will be their first "real home" at home in a long time.

Most heartwarming story of the week: Crisp engraved invitations had gone out in the mail requesting friends of Delores and Cloyd Barnes to attend a twenty-fifth wedding anniversary party in their honor.

On Sunday between 2-6 p.m., hoards of well wishers arrived to congratulate the couple, eat the goodies, and admire the huge money tree that stood tall as Santa Claus as a center piece in the middle of the serving table.

But the greatest thrill of all was the news that their sons, Tom and Roger, and their wives, had given their parents as an expression of devotion, a trip to Hawaii. There is even no need to worry about expenses as neighbors and friends have seen to that. Exciting plans are being made in the glow that follows such a revelation of filial thoughtfulness. ...

Recent Arrival The Pierce family - Richard; Sharon; Mark, 21/2, and Jeff, 2 or 3 months, moved in the downstairs apartment here nearly three weeks ago, but I have not had a chance to interview them except on the run. I haven't even seen the baby, close up. In fact, I haven't heard him either. He must be a very good baby. Richard works nights, in the shipping department at the Grand Rapids Steel Case Co., on 36th St. He rides a motorcycle to work and has the quietest vehicle on the street. He did a wonderful job, washing my windows, and vacuum-

Brooke Johnson had a nice visit with his mother at the Charles Croninger home, in Las Vegas and at the Roger McMahon home in Riverside, Cal., and arrived home Friday

There are many children in this neighborhood and our front lawn seems to be a favorite playground, especially for little boys, 4 to 6. There were six of them, a few evenings ago, play-ing baseball with a plastic ball that occasionally rolled into the street, with a boy in close pursuit.

Another plastic ball, larger, rolled half a block, with a boy following it and a car following the boy. I think plastics are a very dangerous material to use in toy construction. One day last week, a large ball popped out of a five-yeae-old's hands and over the fence into Eberhard's driveway. Before he could climb over the fence to get it, the wind had rolled it out of sight among the cars in the parking lot.

However, in spite of all the quarreling and pseudo-fights, I often hear: "Please" ... "I'm sorry" ... "Pardon" ... "Thank you" . . . "I didn't mean to."

Moreover the boys are cooperative and helpful. Our front lawn was strewn with bits of litter chopped by the lawn mower. asked the boys if they would pick up the litter. In less time than it takes to tell, not a scrap was left. I had not promised any reward and when I asked them to come to the door when they had finished, they were a bit puzzled, but pleased when they saw the candy jar.

I was greatly fearful for the children playing in the street until Police Chief Barry Emmons moved in across the street. Now we have saner drivers.

A letter from Viola Morse Lewis last week stirred a wave of memories. Viola and I were inseparable pals during our high school days. But after our respective marriages in 1914 and 1915 our pathways diverged. Now Viola is living in Seminold, Fla., to be near her daughter, and I am here in Lowell to be near mine, with little chance of renewing the old companionship

The following lines were enclosed in the letter . . .

Remember when hippie meant big in the hips,

And a trip involved travel in cars, planes and ships? When pot was a vessel for cooking things in And hooked was what Grandmother's rug may have been?

When fix was a verb that meant mend or repair, And be-in meant merely existing somewhere? When neat meant well organized, tidy and clean, And grass was a ground cover normally green?

When groovy meant furrowed with channels and hollows And birds were winged creatures, like robias and swallows

When fuzz was a substance real fuzzy like lint, And bread came from bakeries and not from the mint When roll meant a bun, and rock was a stone

And hang up was something you did on the phone? It's groovy, man, groovy, but English it's not Methinks that our language is going to pot.

T-C Championship Still Undecided

The champion in the Northern and Southern division of the Tri-County Baseball League, is still up for grabs as a result of action in the league over the weekend.

Sidney downed Lowell 8 to 7 after almost blowing an 8 to 0 lead. Herb Loveless was the winning pitcher with Chris Williams banging out two hits for the winners. Will Harall and Mel Byrnes collect two hits each for Lowell.

Portland lost a replay of their protested game with Pewamo, also by an 8 to 7 score. Bill Werner was the winning pitcher. The loss kept Portland tied with Pewamo for second place a half game behind Lowell in the Southern Division.

Belding remained tied with Sidney for the Northern Division lead as they pounded out a 19 to 7 win over Sheridan.

Next Saturday Lowell will play their final game with Perrinton at Perrinton. A win for Lowell would give them the Southern Division championship but a loss would throw the lead into a three-way tie between Pewamo, Lowell and Portland.

Sidney and Belding will start their one game playoff for the Northern Division championship with the game to be played at Sidney next Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m. Regular season games have been completed in the league with the exception of the Lowell-Perrinton game.
