ALONG MAIN STREET

Our calorie-counting efforts went out the window last week when the parishioners of the First United Methodist Church, the ecclesiastical establishment on E. Main Street, held their annual Harvest Dinner.

So did the good intentions of some 465 other paying customers. Because when those Methodists advertise "turkey and all the trimmings" in the paper, they mean 15 (count 'em, 15) turkeys, a small ton of mashed potatoes, five bushels of squash and an arm-long list of pies that included pumpkin, apple, cherry, blueberry, chocolate and strawberry chiffon. (We had the strawberry chiffon—which was delicious, thank you—because the lemon meringue and the pecan were all gone by the time Virginia Fonger called ticket No. 341.)

Even the centerpieces on the big harvest tables were edible—if you're some kind of health nut, that is. They were fashioned from various kinds of uncooked leafy vegetables like purple cabbage, chard and—yeuch!—spinach.

We don't go for that rabbit-food stuff, but we have to admit the decorations looked great. Ann Campau, we were told, was the artistic genius behind them.

Among those who came to eat, drink and make merry (because tomorrow we diet) were Bruce and Anita Walter (but none of their offspring), Herb Elzinga (looking grayer and even more distinguished), Letha Keiser of Keiser's Kitchen fame (who knows a good meal when she sees one); Mike and Nancy Doyle and family, and John Troy, to name just a few. At $1.75 for adults and $1 for the grundoons (in the clan under 5 Free), things were looking good for the Methodist exchequer.

That's a good way to find yourself behind an apron with a dish towel in hand.

Who washed all those dishes monogrammed "LMC" (for Lowell Methodist Church)? We'll bet it was the menfolk, but we didn't stick around long enough to find out. That's a good way to find yourself behind an apron with a dish towel in hand.

Louise Ryder, whose husband, Jim, shovels off sidewalks for Lowell merchants after heavy winter storms, breezed in the Ledger-Suburban Life office the other day and made it "official": "It's going to snow on Nov. 15," she announced authoritatively.

When your competition's got inside information and intuition like that, you'd better move over, Buck Matthews.

Now that the election is over, Lowell City Manager Blaine Bacon can relax a little—until the next election, that is.

Bacon has an unusual parttime job at this time of year. He's the guy that sets up ("programs") those voting machines you used when you cast your ballots Tuesday (you did get to the polls, didn't you? If you didn't, we don't want to hear any griping coming from your corner this year).

Bacon says he started tinkering with voting machines when he was a city engineer in Otsego, Mich., several years back. "I always had been interested in elections," he said. "And the machines were especially intriguing."

One thing led to another, and in 1965 he went to Jamestown, N.Y., to attend the Automatic Voting Machine Co.'s school for three days. There he learned not only how to set up the machines, but how to repair them, as well.

As a result, Bacon is one of the few people in this area who knows how to fix a voting machine if it goes sproing when it should go click. He's also a handy guy to have around if there's ever a recount and officials need an expert reading of the machine's tallies.

This year, Bacon said, he set up the machines in Vergennes, Bowne, Lowell and Solon Townships, and in Cedar Springs, Rockford and the City of Lowell.

You might say that Blaine Bacon really is one of those guys who helps make democracy work.

Lowell police officers got their man last Thursday—thanks to a Kent County sheriff's deputy and his sharp-nosed, 3-year-old German shepherd tracking dog, Gino.

According to Patrolman Al Eckman, a 13-year-old Lowell girl reported she was stopped by a man, who asked her for directions and then grabbed her from behind and threatened to rob her. Later, after a man of similar description attempted to gain entrance to a N. Jefferson St. house, police called on Gino and his owners, deputy Jim Rabba, 28, of 831 Burton St., S.E.

Gino picked up the prowler's scent at the Jefferson Street address and followed it for nine blocks, up a stairway and to the door of an apartment at 315½ E. Main St. The occupant of the apartment, James Lee Hardenburgh, who later was picked out of a lineup by the complainants, was arrested for attempted unarmed robbery.

Rabba said he has had Gino since the dog was a puppy and has had a hand in much of the animal's training for tracking work. Although the Sheriff's Office often asks the deputy to bring the animal in on a case, the county does not reimburse Rabba for his expenses.

Rabba would like to educate the public to the need for and the effectiveness of police dogs like Gino. As a result, he is willing to give demonstrations before any groups in the area that might be interested, and he can be reached by calling CH 5-2861 or GL 1-2811.

ALONG MAIN STREET'S ADA EXTENSION: Ada's town fathers just passed a new ordinance regulating the large crowds that attend Woodstock-like rock festivals. Included is this provision:

... Where the assembly is to continue for more than 36 hours, the licensee shall provide shower facilities, sufficient to provide one shower head for each 110 male attendants and one shower head for each 100 female attendants.

Sounds to us like it's going to be a little chummy in those shower rooms, there...

The full text of the new Ada ordinance regulating rock festivals can be found elsewhere in this issue of the Ledger-Suburban Life. You might want to look it over. It makes interesting reading.

Special guests at the Lowell Rotary Club meeting last week were Lowell High School students Don Miller, John Gauw, Mike Talbot and Mike Seif, all seniors, and juniors John Brower, Paula Detmers, Pam Erdman, Denny Nowak and Cindy Bigelow. Teacher Ed Rankin shepherded the group.

To give the students a better idea of how their local, county and state governments work, Rotary Member Don McPherson had whipped up a panel of politicians and government leaders, each of whom briefly described his duties.

Meat loaf was on the menu for lunch, and the conversation at our table was brightened by the presence of Junior Rotarians Pat Herblet and Perry Beachum, both juniors at Lowell High.

This week the Rotarians were to honor another pair of young guys—Walt Gummer and Lee Lamkin—who were charter members of the club when it was formed 35 years ago. Norm Borgerson was handling the ceremonies.

It's Cider Time!

Young Jim Johnson taps onto his share of Nature's harvest bounty by pouring himself a gallon of fresh cider this week at an Alto-area farm. Jim, 2, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Johnson of 8207 Alden Nash Ave., S.E., Alto. The cider was produced by the Orchard Hill Farm of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Klahn, 9896 Cascade Road. The Klahns have about 30 acres of apple trees and sell McIntoshes, Jonathans, Red and Yellow Deliciouses, Snow Apples, Ida Reds, Red Spies and Rome Beauties, as well as cider, at their roadside stand.

Smith Sues to See Ada Tax Records

The Democratic candidate for Ada Township Supervisor filed suit in Kent County Circuit Court last week over the accessibility of property tax records kept by Ada Township Clerk Kenneth B. Anderson.

The suit was filed Oct. 28 by Benjamin F. Smith, the only Democrat on the election slate in Ada. Smith made a campaign issue of the township's tax assessments.

In the suit, Smith contends that on numerous occasions he has asked permission—during regular business hours—to inspect the tax records in Anderson's office, and that Anderson has refused to make them available.

Smith claims the records are public, but James K. Miller, prosecuting attorney for Kent County, says they aren't.

The records are used by supervisors to collect data such as legal descriptions, size, shape of lots, zoning and land use information used by the supervisors to determine a fair market value and an assessed value, according to Miller.

The cards, Miller wrote in a letter to Smith last month, "are made of preliminary data, similar to notes that a supervisor or an assessor might make as he viewed and inspected property prior to arriving at an assessed valuation."

Since the cards are "preliminary data," Miller argues, they are not public documents but "notes used to arrive at the public record."

Statements received by the supervisor or assessor "shall not be used for any other purpose except the making of an assessment for taxes as herein provided, or for enforcing provisions of this act..." Miller said in his letter, quoting excerpts from Michigan law.

Smith is a retired professional engineer who moved into Ada Township early this year. He was a representative of Grand Rapids on the Old Kent County Board of Supervisors.

LOWELL SCHOOLS CLOSED FRIDAY

Lowell Area Schools will be closed Friday of teachers can attend regional conferences in Grand Rapids, Supt. Carl Hagen announced Wednesday.

Mischiefmakers' Pranks Held to Trash, Egg Tosses

Lowell police confiscated about four bushels of garbage and 30 dozen eggs from Halloween pranksters Saturday night, Police Chief Barry Emmons said.

"We caught the kids tossing garbage in the street and throwing eggs on sidewalks, at cars and people."

Pumpkins and squash were found splattered on highways, and there were a few water-balloon melees, too.

"But generally, the kids were real good. There was some soap and wax on a few windows, mostly businesses."

No windows were broken and no Lowell car owners reported deflated automobile tires on their way to church Sunday morning.

"We caught some kids starting to throw tissue paper over by the high school," said Patrolman Al Eckman.

At daybreak Sunday, a Ledger reporter noticed this sign on the window of Beachum's Furniture, 202 W. Main St.: "20% Discount on Everything." And someone transplanted a Transue Realty Co. "For Sale" sign to the lawn in front of the Lowell State Savings Bank, 414 E. Main St.

About 200 youngsters—boys and girls about 13 to 18—roamed Lowell Streets Halloween night, police said.

"We took some of them to the station to give them a lecture, and then we sent the kids home," Emmons said.

Area Man Found Dead in Auto

A 45-year-old man was found dead Monday night at Henry's Used Cars, 2600 S. Division Ave., Grand Rapids, an apparent suicide victim.

Patrolman Paul Baar of the Grand Rapids Police Department identified the man as Bob Knooihuisen, of 9850 Foreman St., near Lowell.

Baar said he was summoned to the scene at about 10 p.m. and found Knooihuisen, a car salesman, lying across the seat of a car in a closed garage area. The victim, Baar said, apparently had died of carbon monoxide poisoning.

FLUSH MAINS

Water mains in the City of Lowell will receive their last full flushing of the year Thursday and Friday, Nov. 5 and 6. Residents should plan water usage accordingly.

Ada Adopts Festival Code

An ordinance regulating "assemblages of large numbers of people" was adopted unanimously last week by the Ada Township Board.

In the ordinance, which does not specifically mention rock music festivals but which appears to be aimed at controlling them, the town fathers seek to regulate all events "attended by more than 500 attendants, all or any part of which includes a theatrical exhibition, public show, display entertainment, amusement or other exhibition..."

Exempt from the restrictions imposed by the ordinance are events "held entirely within the confines of a permanently enclosed structure or a parade." Not specifically exempted, however, are such traditional gatherings as the annual Fourth of July fireworks show staged each year before large crowds by Ada merchants.

The Ada ordinance, which is to go into effect Nov. 26, closely resembles a model ordinance drawn up by the state following the headline-making Goose Lake International Music Festival last August near Jackson. Under its provisions, promoters of large outdoor gatherings in Ada must:

—Make written application for a license to stage the event at least 45 days in advance, and accompany the application with a nonrefundable $25 fee.

—Submit "a statement of the maximum number of people who will be in attendance at the assembly for each day it is conducted..."

—Completely fence off the area and provide a parking space for every four people attending the event.

—Provide licensed food service, liquid waste disposal and solid waste disposal.

—Provide medical facilities "if the assembly is intended to last more than 14 hours and the maximum number of attendants exceeds 2,000..."

—Provide showers, water, restrooms and security personnel "whenever the duration and size of the proposed assembly shall be such as to reasonably require them..."

In addition to these restrictions, the township "may impose any other conditions, reasonably calculated to protect the health, safety, welfare and property of attendants or of citizens of the Township." Furthermore, if any part of the ordinance is found unconstitutional, this would not nullify the remaining portions.

Violations include "obscene display, exhibition, show, play, entertainment or amusement" and illegal drug or liquor use. Violations are punishable by up to 90 days in jail and a fine of up to $100, or both.

LOWELL LIQUOR VOTE PASSES

Coryell Wins in Ada Supervisor Contest

Sherman Coryell, a retired teacher, coach and principal at South High School in Grand Rapids, defeated Benjamin F. Smith by an almost 2-to-1 vote margin Tuesday in the race for supervisor of Ada Township.

At press time tallies showed Coryell, a Republican, leading Smith, a Democrat, by a total of 961 votes to 468.

Smith, a retired professional engineer and newcomer to Ada Township, formerly served on the Kent County Board of Supervisors as a representative of Grand Rapids. His entry into the supervisor race had provided the most election interest in the area.

In Lowell Township, a proposal to allow local taverns to serve liquor by the glass passed by 30 votes. The final tally was 282 voting Yes, to 252 No votes.

Cascade Township had a record turnout of 2,204 voters Tuesday. Only 367 residents who were registered didn't cast ballots. There were 2,571 registered voters in Tuesday's election. The voter turnout was higher than the last presidential election, when 2,085 residents went to the polls.

Here are the results of other local races:

POSTAL WINDOWS TO CLOSE NOVEMBER 11

Lowell Postmaster Charles Doyle reminds mailers that the Post Office windows will be closed next Wednesday because of the annual Veterans' Day holiday.

Box holders still will be able to get to their boxes, however.

One Killed in Area Accident

A 48-year-old Holland, Mich., woman was killed Tuesday night in a two-car accident south of Lowell.

Dead on arrival at Butterworth Hospital in Grand Rapids was Mrs. Dorothy Kirlin, according to William Dice of the Kent County Sheriff's office.

The Kirlin car collided with another vehicle driven by Dr. James J. Deliefde, 2209 Madison S.E., Grand Rapids, the officer said.

Mrs. Kirlin's husband, Jack, was driving the family car and Mrs. Kirlin was riding in the front seat. The couple's daughters, Miss Karen Kirlin of Holland and Mrs. Cindy Royse of Athens, Ohio, were in the back seat.

At press time, they were to be admitted to Butterworth Hospital for treatment of lacerations and possible fractures, Dice said.

Mrs. Kirlin suffered a skull fracture, other fractures and a broken neck, he said.

Kentwood Defeats Forest Hills, 19-16

Kentwood's football team barely eeked out a win against the Forest Hills eleven last Friday, and, in the opinion of the Ranger coaching staff, the Green and White outplayed the state's 12th-ranked team.

"It was the best game of the year," declared a staff member. "We saw outstanding play. Our top runner was Craig Wynant, and we had tremendous defensive work from Bill Wilder, Tom Ensing, Ty Gemmell, and Jeff Van Strien."

Gemmell and Van Strien also were credited for their great efforts on both defense and offense. Bob Warner also came in for special praise.

"The whole team looked great," continued the staff member, "and we were all extremely proud of them. It was a team riddled with injuries that lost only to the clock. "Time was against us, but if we had had just one more minute, we would have won the game," he said.

The first score of the game came late in the first quarter

Lowell Frosh Whip Belding 40-12

The Lowell freshman football team closed out its Tri-River schedule by defeating Belding last Thursday at the loser's field. The score was 40-12.

Rusty Steffens led all ball carriers with 146 yards, followed by Bob Chapman with 94 and Dave Beach with 82. Quarterback Jeff Pierce passed for 100 yards, completing six of 11 passes. Lowell had 471 yards in total offense, while holding Belding to 138 yards.

The Red Arrows finished Tri-River play with three wins and two losses for third place, but with a chance for second since the rest of the Tri-River teams won't complete their schedule until Thursday.

Freshmen will play Kent Occupational Education and Training Center, 2820 Clyde Park S.W., at Kimble Stadium in Wyoming at 4 p.m. Thursday.

Lowell's Junior Varsity football team will play the Grand Rapids West Catholic High School team here Thursday at 7 p.m.

Thornapple Valley Football

Mopping up action in the Thornapple League football schedule on Saturday found three Forest Hills teams emerging as champions.

In class A the Forest Hills Lions defeated the Forest Hills Chiefs to win the title. The Forest Hills Badgers were not scheduled, but had previously totaled enough wins to be declared the Class B champs.

In a close contest the Forest Hills Commanders tallied 19-15 over the Forest Hills Wildcats to give them the Class C Championship.

No league champions were declared in Class AA as games had to be scheduled outside of the Thornapple League due to a limited number of teams in that classification.

Other scores included a Class AA game between the Forest Hills Bulldogs and the Cedar Springs team which ended with the latter winning 46-40.

when the Kentwood team gathered in a fumbled punt by the Rangers. Joe Beel passed to Jim Gilpin for the touchdown, and Pat Patterson made good the extra point.

The second play of the second quarter, however, saw Bill Vekasi drive up the middle from the one-yard line to make the first Forest Hills TD. Craig Wynant pushed across the middle for two points, making the score read 8-7.

Kentwood returned the kick-off and in eight plays scored on an eight-yard pass by Beel to Gilpin. The try for a two-point conversion was missed. It was 13-8 at the half.

A strong Ranger defense allowed no scoring in the third quarter. In the fourth quarter, Beel, on a broken play, scored from eight yards out, tallying a TD for 19-8. The extra point by Patterson was missed.

A charged Forest Hills team began to dig in, and Wynant, who carried most of the time, crossed from 10 yards out. Wynant also made the extra points good bringing the score to 19-16 and sewing up the Ottawa-Kent Red Division football championship.

The Falcons tried for four plays to score with no results. They punted to the Rangers, who once again began plowing toward the goal. As the final gun sounded, the Forest Hills team was on the Red and Black nineteen yard line.

There is only one remaining home game for the Rangers. They will play Belding Friday, at 7:30 p.m.

Center parts, wavy hair and all, members of an undefeated Lowell High School pose for a Hill Studio photographer 50 years ago on the old high school steps. Seated in the front, from left, are Melvin Lewis, Lyle Laux, Walter Moore and Sib Moore. In the second row, left to right, are Bill Appleton, George Houghton, Budd Moore, Manning Jones, Warner Oberly, Ozzie Banks and Harold Anderson. Standing in back, from left, are Coach Bert Miller, Dick Mange, Red Chambers, Frank Morse, Lawrence Aldrich and Gerald Henry.

According to Budd Moore, now of Baldwin, Mich., who brought the old photograph to the Ledger-Suburban Life office, Anderson, Sib Moore, Lewis and Appleton are now deceased. The Lowell eleven finished up the year with a total of 321 points to a total of 13 points amassed by their opponents. Moore said Greenville was the only high school team to score against Lowell (for 7 points). During the game against the Lowell alumni on Thanksgiving Day that year, Ted Banks, a Lowell graduate who later became an All-American quarterback for the University of Michigan, carried the ball over for another six points.
