THE QUAKER CITY.

BY J. O. R., M. D.

(Concluded)

Across Penn Square, opposite my window, is the U. S. Mint. Visitors are admitted from nine until one o'clock, but I contented myself with a view from without.

As I was on my way to church, the other Sunday, a lady said, "do you see that old red brick house, with faded blinds? That's where John Adams lived." Notwithstanding its inferior aspect, I could easily imagine that at the time it was occupied by the elder Adams, a hundred years ago, more or less, it was in keeping with its illustrious master and his guests. Jim M., (M. D. of the homeopathic persuasion whom you know) and I, strolled out to find the grave of Dr. Franklin; a policeman showed us the "hole in the wall" of the old church yard. Opposite the plain marble slab bearing the inscription of his name and date of birth and death, the high brick wall had been removed by a generous and thoughtful municipality; in its place an iron railing which admitted the gaze of the curious within the sacred premises. Plain, unostentatious, in keeping with his life and in obedience to his own orders.

Prof. Rand, of the chair of chemistry, pointed out the place, at that time common, where Franklin retired to hasso the lightning. He chose this out of the way place to avoid presenting to the street boys the spectacle of a philosopher flying a kite; it is curious to think that while he eluded the unwelcome audience of a few little boys, he drew upon himself the eyes of the civilized world. But I presume he bore it like a philosopher.

Speaking of Jefferson College reminds me that I have among my notes, sketches of all the professors, and as the sitters were blissfully unconscious that they were standing for their portraits, I caught the characteristic expressions and attitudes better than it they had been screwed into the stereotyped position by the clamps and contortion producing contrivances of the knight of the art gallery, and as they are mostly men "in the sere and yellow leaf" of life and some of them (Profs. Gross and Pancoast at least) soon to resign, from advanced age, they are highly prized by me. I showed Prof. Wallace his sketch, and as he is a man of splendid physique, he was immensely pleased. Not so, however, was an attache of the college who was not an Adonis, and who after one glance at the innocent counterfeit of those well known features, and that graceful attitude, never smiled on me again.

This, as you are doubtless aware is the medical college par excellence of the country. Not even "Bellevue" of New York has the prestige of old Jefferson. It numbers among its large alumni some of the most eminent names in the profession, and some of the most valuable standard literature is the product of the pen and brain of members of the faculty.

It was with a pang of regret that I saw the lights of the city of brotherly love fading behind me as I sped northward. Of all the pleasant and entertaining travelling companions I have met on the cars, editors and newspaper men generally are the most agreeable, and I forgave the editor from Utica who, as I came aboard the train at Rochester, mistook me for Oakey Hall, and who "justified" his error by saying that he should not have been surprised to see A. Oakey fleeing from New York at just about this time. As the editorial blunder secured me a seat when seats were scarce, and the most entertaining of companions the rest of the journey, and as I excel in saying nothing and listening well, I think the pleasure was mutual. He had heard of the JOURNAL and I promised to send him a copy when I reached home, which, by the way, I hope to do early in January, '74.

Correspondence.

Mr. N. C. Whitfield sends us a letter from Bunker Hill, Kansas, which, owing to limited space, we give our readers in a condensed form.

I am located a little north of the third standard parallel south, and 244 miles west of Kansas City, Mo. on what is called the Smoky Hill river. We have our railroad, the Kansas Pacific, running from Kansas City to Denver, Colorado. From there it branches out and joins the Union Pacific. We have a beautiful country about us and it is settling up fast, and still there are plenty of claims to be had by homesteaders and preceptors. People used to go to old Massachusetts to find Bunker Hill (monument) and Plymouth (rock), but I came to Russell Co. Kansas, in 1871, and our county seat is Bunker Hill; I live in Plymouth township, and there is plenty of good rock here for the Father's to land on. Large settlements have been formed around me and I am well pleased with the country. Many will ask, "What kind of stuff are your settlers made of out there?" I can tell them "the right kind." Most all the settlements are composed of what was once the rank and file of the Union Army.

The lands of this county cannot be excelled in this or any other country. The soil is the deposit of ages, and actually manured by the decay of its own luxuriant vegetation. It varies from three to ten feet in depth, and in many places is found deeper. Extending back from these valleys are beautiful prairies where most any man could find a claim that would please him. Here the farmer can at once enter on the work of cultivation without for years having to contend with heavy forests and a stony and stubborn soil. This I know to be a fact, for I have tried both places to my own satisfaction. To plow all day long and not strike a stone or a stump I never saw done in the State of Michigan, but here we do it. I will not attempt to show up the disadvantages of this new country, all new countries have some drawbacks, and why not this?

I should have been out on the Buffalo Range long before this, but owing to so much snow being on the ground, it would have been rather venturesome. Another matter too, (a small one) that keeps us back, is the fact that the natives of the country are about on the plains now in great numbers, looking after top-knots to make water-falls for Mrs. and Miss Lo, and I am not very anxious to part with what little the wind has left me. (By the by, it blows here sometimes.) To all of those who bargained with me for Buffalo robe hides, I shall endeavor to perform fast agreed.

You might at first think that the hunters outfit is very simple, but after you once look it over, would most naturally say that it is a traveling "what is it." First, horses and wagon, grain for horses, flour, lard, sugar, coffee etc., then plenty of blankets, rifles, and six d ammunition; the rifles are all breech loading, needle guns, of the latest improvements; there are three kinds of guns that the hunters prefer over any others, viz., the Remington, Sharp's and the Springfield Needle guns. All are good guns of very long range. In addition to the above our cooking utensils, about the same as for soldiers, make up the luggage. Once on the range, a camp is soon established, wagons unloaded, things placed away from dogs and wolves, and then you may say the fun commences. Camp is usually located by some running stream, and where hundreds of buffalo are to be seen close by, every day. No sluggards are allowed in a hunter's camp. Each man knows his duty and seldom fails to perform it. When I get on the hunt I hope to have something new to write.

Yours Truly,
N. WHITFIELD.

DURING the year 1873 the Grand Rapids fire companies were called out thirty-five times. They were called to put out seven false alarms and twenty-eight conflagrations. The loss by fire during the year was upwards of $460,000, on which there was insurance of about $175,000.

JOURNAL JOTTINGS.

CONGREGATIONAL SOCIAL at the residence of Mrs. C. R. Hine this Wednesday evening.

THEATRY'S Panorama at Train's Hall, Saturday evening, Jan. 17th. Admission, 25 cents. We have a few maps left and will give one of them and the JOURNAL one year to the first man who gives us two dollars.

THAT little row at a saloon on the West side the other night was rocked to sleep by the marshal.

It has been discovered that it isn't swearing to say "tinker's dam." This revelation will cause a great many people to feel very cheap.

CHARLES ANNIS has been sentenced to one year's imprisonment at Jackson. Let this be a warning to boys who think it sport to injure personal property.

DR. C. W. DOLLEY of Smyrna has an extensive practice, and is called one of the most skillful and successful physicians in Western Michigan.

DR. EDEZ and family returned from the East last Thursday. The Doctor will resume the practice of medicine in Lowell, and may be found at Doty's dental office.

DRS. PECK & McDANIEL are very comfortably quartered in their new office over Hunt & Hunter's drug store.

MR. S. P. CURTIS, special deputy, informs us that a Grange was formed in Vergeennes on the 10th inst. Sixty-five names were enrolled and Morgan Lyon was chosen Master; J. W. Walker Secretary.

A Grange was also organized on the town line between Lowell and Cascade, on the 9th with a membership of fifty-two. Uriel Snow Master; G. Sinclair Secretary. The Patrons of Husbandry are becoming a power in the land.

ON the night of the 7th snow fell to the depth of fourteen inches in Detroit. The storm was hardly felt fifty miles west of that city, while a slight flurry of snow, barely sufficient to cover the peanut shucks on the sidewalks, was felt in Lowell.

THE LOWELL NATIONAL BANK has declared its usual dividend of five per cent, and we are glad to know that notwithstanding the recent financial distress, this institution has been so managed as to deserve and receive the hearty support and full confidence of depositors and others as in times past. The result of the meeting of the stockholders will be published next week.

WHILE CHARLES ANNIS was on his way to Jackson, in care of Sheriff Haynes, he got very thirsty near Rives Junction, and asked the sheriff if he could go to the rear end of the car and get a drink. Permission was granted and when he got to the rear end of the car he was so thirsty that he jumped out of the car window and started for California. The train was stopped for the sheriff to get off, and after several hours search Annis was found done up in a bundle of straw in a farmer's wagon. The sheriff of Barry county who was at the Junction, discovered the prize and when Sheriff Haynes came up, he told Annis to Jackson, direct.

THOUGH man, who was born, is of few days and full of trouble, there is now and then a bright spot in his existence, and if we would make the most of what we have and are, we might be a happier people. The fact is we are constantly longing for something; for what, we don't know. We know that we are not satisfied, but we can't define what that "something" is that would make us content. But if we wait with patience we shall reap our reward. Patience then, is the virtue we should nurse continually. [This thought has been more forcibly impressed upon our mind since our interview with a gentleman who called, (or who was providentially sent, may we say?) to see us the other day. The moment he entered our sanctum we felt as if our depressed spirits had received a carthartic, and when he asked us if our name was Hine, and we laid aside our manuscript and told him it was, and he said his name was CRANSTON, our joy knew no bounds. We had lived more than twenty-five years in this mortal clay, and never, during all that time had heard that name spoken or even seen it in print, and the mental suffering we have endured, has, at times seemed almost intolerable. But now we have not only heard the name of CRANSTON, but we have met the man belonging to that name, face to face. CRANSTON! the word fell on our ear, sweet and full of solace, as a few years ago the word "Duluth" fell on the ear of a director of the Northern Pacific Railroad. But why dwell. Cranston represents an extract foundry at Romeo, and called to leave us a bottle of Sweet Almond and Nectarine. Why he had not called long ago, he refused to tell, but he assured us that his name was CRANSTON. We might have fallen upon his neck and wept, but we didn't; we smothered our emotion and bade our soul be still. CRANSTON! Let years grow on apace, and that name go down with us to old age and then be put into a hallelujah song for posterity.

THE trutter, Ripon Boy, recently died from the effects of a bite by a mad dog.

ON THE evening of the 6th inst. the new and beautiful residence of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mitchell was opened to a large number of invited guests, and the "6th anniversary" or "Wooden Wedding" was celebrated in a most enjoyable manner. At an early hour the many and spacious rooms were well filled; the aged, the middle aged and the blooming youth, all moving to and fro, dropping a jest and a smile here and turning a joke and a trump there, and making themselves agreeable generally. After thus whiling away an hour or two, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell were asked to retire to some place of seclusion for a season. The numerous gifts were then brought in and placed in the parlor. Without attempting to give a complete list of the presents, we may mention that all were well chosen, and much credit is due to the ladies who had the matter in charge for good judgment and taste in making the selections. A very handsome couch, large carved walnut chair, mirror hat-rack, stands, tables, brackets, and many other articles of use and ornament were presented to the worthy couple. Among the gifts which attracted especial attention, was a beautiful set of wooden jewelry for the bride, a wine cup, spoon, knife and fork, made and presented by Messrs. Ainsworth and N. B. Blain, and a most ingeniously wrought set of toys for little "Willie," by Mr. Stocking. Mr. Craw also contributed some ornamental work of his own design which showed creditable skill and exquisite taste.

The wedding ceremony was performed in the most approved manner by C. S. Hooker Esq., the "oldest inhabitant." As the faithful couple re-registered the vow to "love and cherish", little Willie signified his approval of the deed by taking his position between them, reaching forward from his Grandmother Hatch's arms behind, and cooing with delight. Next came the presentation, which, on behalf of the many friends was made by Prof. Hicks, whose remarks were well chosen and applauded. (The reader will understand that the congratulations were not forgotten or omitted.) The feast was then opened and a right lively scene was that when the bouquets spread on wooden plates, was served to a hundred guests. Then music and dancing, another hour of social enjoyment, then "good night." May our young friends live to receive golden gifts as they have these gifts of wood.

A LITTLE excitement in So. Boston last Wednesday night. A party of young men and boys went out to skate on an ice bound pond which forms a part of Mr. J. C. English's real estate, and enjoyed the fun immensely until about ten o'clock p. m., when they unbitched and started for home. Two of them, one a son of J. C. English, the other, son of C. C. Winegar, wandered in the wrong direction, and soon found themselves in the woods instead of the presence of their parents. After prospecting for some time they concluded to "go home when they couldn't go anywhere else," and, striking a light, proceeded to toast their thins and take things easy, pioneer style. Of course they cracked jokes, told bear stories, and wondered "what mother would say if she should see them now." But it will never be known just how much fun they had or would have had, for Mr. English was unkind enough to take his gun and start out in search of the boys in the woods. After firing a few signals, echo told him "where" and between two and three o'clock on the morning of the 8th, those boys pulled off their boots and went to bed, feeling after all that there was no place like home.

THE evening meetings at the M. E. Church, were well attended last week. On Saturday evening John Haight, a faithful worshipper at the shrine of Bacchus, managed to hold himself steady long enough to study out the locality of the church, and then proceeded to go straight there. How he ever obtained entrance we cannot explain, for there is only one door to the church, and there certainly ought to have been three that night in order to permit John to enter with his accompaniments. It was a shame, but the disturbance didn't last long, for John was hauled out with dispatch. If there is anything under the sun that is low and mean, it is the entering into a church to interrupt devotional exercises, and anyone guilty or such ought to be served as Rev. John M. Pratt serves Camp-meeting intruders, or as the marshal serves the drunk and disorderly in other places.

SHAKE, BURN, SWEAT.—Go through all the ague performance day after day, till your vitalities are all eaten up with the consuming malarial known as chills and fever, or go to J. C. West's drug store and buy a bottle of Kress Fever Tonic and break up the fearful disease. Cures are warranted. A box of liver pills free with each bottle. No arsenic, no poisonous property in this medicine.

NEW FIRM,

CHEAP GOODS.

"A New Broom Sweeps Clean," is an old adage, and we shall try and prove the adage true as regards a new firm, but shall endeavor to do as clean work after the newness has worn off.

Every shrewd business man can buy goods for Cash at about the same price, and no man can buy and sell goods without a profit. Hence, when a merchant advertises that he can sell his goods a great deal lower than his neighbors, every sensible person knows that he is promising that which he is unable to perform.

We expect to buy our goods as

CHEAP AS CASH CAN BUY THEM,

and to sell them as cheap as they CAN BE AFFORDED,

MAKING QUICK RETURNS, AND SMALL PROFITS, OUR MOTTO.

Put us to the test and see if we can perform what we advertise.
