The ever-impressing circulation of this excellent monthly proves its continued adaptation to popular desires and seeds. Indeed, when we think into how many houses it prostrates every month, we must consider it as use of the educators as well as enter-timers of the public mind, for its popularity has been won by no appeal to stupid projudices or depressed tastes.—Bostes Globe

The character which this Magazine possesses for variety, enterprise, misside wealth and literary cultime that has kept pace with, if it has not led, the times, should cause its contentors to regard it with justifiable complacency. It also entitle them to a great chaim upon the public gratitude. The Magazine has done good and not will all the days of its life.—Breaklys Engls.

SENATORIAL.

There has been nothing so striking witnessed during the pending discussion of the Senatorial question-if that may be called a discussion in which the Republican press of the State, almost without an exception, plant themselves on one side square ly upon the strength of known his-tory and established character, and which is characterized upon the other only by gross personal detraction and abuse—than the fact that Mr. Chandler's public record is found to be absolutely unassailable. The meanest of Mr. Chandler's enemies summed up all its researches into the Congressional history of the last seven where may be found a sulendid up all its researches into the Congressional history of the last seven-teen years, in the accusations that Mr. Chandler had done wrong in voting for Mr. Cameron to be head of the Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs; for the confirmation of Mr. Simmons to be Collector at the Port too are here in abundance. Picture of Boston; against the repeal of the Moieties law, and to sustain Kellogg in Louisjana. The last of these accusations was untrue in fact, and as to the other matters, they have been yourselves if everything is not as represented. justified by events. But such a begardly outgrowth of the results of an nvestigation dictated by animosity, and headlong malice exhibits more torcibly than the most elaborate eulogy could do, the strength of the record which Mr. CHANDLER presents to the people of this State after near-ly three full terms of public service. During that entire period-every year of which has been crowded by events almost unprecedented in his tory, and when scores of public men have fallen before the hard necessities and temptations of the times-it has been found impossible to attach a single blot to his reputation; to discover an instance wherein he has been unequal to the exactions of the most exacting emergency; where he has ever shirked a duty or dodged a vote; or wherein he has ever failed, in vote, speech, private counsel or public demonstration, to stand squarely up to the front of the occasion, taking every day's duty with sion, taking every day's duty with unfailing courage, and leaving the impress of Michigan, through the emphatic hand of its representative, upon every day's history that has

The above is an extract from an editorial in a recent issue of the Detroit Post, and is, to our mind, about as near to the point as anything that has yet been said touching the Senatorial question.
