WASHINGTON, Jan. 21, 1876.

EDITOR JOURNAL—The last week in Congress was a remarkable one and reminded "the old citizen" somewhat of the days when orators like clay, Webster, Hayne, Benton—the guants of other days—swayed listening multitudes by their impassioned oratory. The daily papers have told bow Randall introduced his general amnesty bill; Blaine tried to amend it by excluding Jefferson Davis from its provisions, because he ought to The following from the Lansing Republican is sad but true:

When the southern democrats went off in rebellion they stole all the money of the United States they could find in mints, custom-offices and postoffices, and all the public property in forts and elsewhere.—Now that they have come back into control of the house of representatives at Washington, they steal the wages of republican appointees who did their work. The new incumbents not being roady at the opening of the session, the old officers performed their duties for two weeks to a month; and on applying for Now that they have come back into control of the house of representatives at Washington, they steal the wages of republican appointees who did their work. The new incumbents not being ready at the opening of the session, the old officers performed their duties for two weeks to a month; and on applying for their pay, find that it has been appropriated by the noble army of confederates, who performed no service in this time! Democratic "reform" will therefore involve the robbery of men who did netual work but no one save an eye witness can be bought at any marform" will therefore involve the robbery of men who did actual work for the benefit of loafers, or else the payment of two sets of employes of the house. The galleries were every day packed with a deuse throng,

The Michigan Farmer says a number of Detroit horsemen are talking of the expediency of getting up a State Horse Breeders' Association, on account of the recent action of the Executive Committee of the State Agricultural Society in excluding all speed premiums from its premium list. The same feeling seems to prevail in other localities, and a meeting has been called at Lansing to consider this and other kindred topics of interest to horse-owners and breeders. Coldwater, a noted place in the history of horses in Michigan, is also of the opinion that horsemen should take some means to effect a general organization for the benefit of the breeders of the state. At a recent meeting of the members of the Driving Association of that place, the following resolution was passed:

Resolved, That, considering the action of the State Agricultural Society, in excluding the exhibition of rosdsters and speed horses from their fair, we recommed the organization of a State Breeders' Association and the taking of such steps as shall encourage the breeding of fine stock, and command the recognition of horse-interests, and that we send a delegation to attend the meeting to be called at Lansing on the 1st of February."

Among the bills they have already introdued, one is in favor of restoring the franking privilege; another proposes to open the court of claims to persons who were infants or married women at the time of the seizure of abandoned property; a third proposes to have the general government pay for all the cotton seized by women at the time of the sezure of abandoned property; a third pro-poses to have the general govern-ment pay for all the cotton seized by the treasury department after May 29, 1865; still another wants pay for grain used by federal cavalry; Tennessee is anxious for the United States to excuse her from paying cer-tain bonds held by the government, as compensation for the railroads purchased at the close of the war, election by intimidation, violence, some ex-confederates in Tennessee and fraud, and will hold that, as the Some ex-confederates in Tennessec want pay for horses taken from them by Gen. Stoneman after Grant had sent them homeward with their horses from Appointation. These are specimens only and do not comprise the full list. A regular army of claimants, people who would never have dreamed of approaching a republican congress, are beseiging the democratic house of representatives, and find plenty of ex-confederate members to introduce and advocate their bills."

"Now and Then," also, says: The indications now seem to point to Mr. Blaine as the republican standard bearer. The brave and manly spirit and the consumate ability he exhibited during the last week's batte has removed many prejudices and made him many new friends. His back-bone seemed wonderfully strengthened during the struggle, as that of many other republicans has been. The debate, indeed, has done the republican party, as well as Mr. Blaine, great good. William O. Gorman, of Talmadge Ottawa County, was born in Tipper-ary, Ireland, in 1771, consequently is in his 106th year. He removed to Michigan in 1833. He is a mechanic, and labored on the old Michigan State House, and received for his ser-vices the first order issued by the State House, and received for his services the first order issued by the State. He has seventy descendents, of which sixteen are great grand children. He and his wife who is nearly eighty, reside with their eldest daughter, Mrs. Finnessy. Mr. Gorman is remarkably healthy and active for a man of such an advanced age, though just at present suffering from a slight indisposition, also possesses the faculture of seeing, hearing and memory to a marked degree. He is a great reader, and takes a lively interest in the news of the day and is still able, or has been until very recently, to do a good deal of work on the farm, and has chopped all the firewood for the family.
