TWO DREAMS.

Wear the king took off his crown;
In other lands he posed his wealth,
The strange how heavy it has grown,
He said, with an air of scorn,
He eyed it in a kind of hate;
Then on his bed he laid him down
And slept, and in a twinkling dream
Of dream of royalty and state,
Dreight through all his senses streamed;
A raged vapour he seemed,
Free winds of heaven he first did kiss;
On woke him the king's crown,
At once he waked, bewildered, first,
Or who he was or where might be;
Then saw the crown, and with a burst
Of light he saw he was awake and free,
"No royal crown change lives with me!
Of all bad fates, a king's the worst!"
Outside the palace, on the ground,
The king had to death and freezing cold,
Lies scattered thin the nearest road,
A leger standard safe and sound,
As if a snake would kill him round,
He dreamed he was a king indeed;
Of dream of royalty and state,
Of gold, beyond his utmost need,
All men knew he had to kiss
And go to bed, bewildered, first,
Or who he was or where might be;
Then quitted, by longer and by brief,
He knew himself he was awake and free,
"No royal crown change lives with me!
Of all bad fates, a king's the worst!"

THE DEACON'S WOOING.

The sun had disappeared behind the hills of New Bethany, and the lingering light on the mountain tops was changing from rose to purple, when Deacon Hatch stood in the village post-office. It was Saturday night, the only time when New Bethany roused itself from its lethargy and showed any signs of life and energy. The rest of the week it drooped and languished after the fashion of small country towns remote from railway and manufacturing centers.

"What, Mary Jane," said the deacon, "will you marry me?" The rest of the village was gathered round the deacon, and he was looking at them with a look of surprise. "I feel the best farm in town is managed by a woman."

"I'm glad to hear you say that," said Miss Keziah, "but I don't think you should marry a woman." "I'm glad to hear you say that," said Miss Keziah, "but I don't think you should marry a woman."

"I'm glad to hear you say that," said Miss Keziah, "but I don't think you should marry a woman." "I'm glad to hear you say that," said Miss Keziah, "but I don't think you should marry a woman."

HOW TO CURE A TOOTHACHE.

Some months ago an English tourist, lingering in a country church-yard, and needed propping up like a rag doll that had no backbone. I'm no vine—or so creeping, helpless thing, I can tell you. I can stand alone as well as anybody. If the Lord will, I'll also admit, deacon, that it will not be long before you can keep your company."

"That's just it; ye hev' hit the nail square on the head! It's pleasant to see you in our sojourn on this mortal earth."

"The deacon seized his chair with both hands, and by a circuitous line of hitching placed it within three feet of Miss Keziah's table. "You're a four-handed woman, Miss Keziah! You are woman of prominence and influence in the community; it seems to me that it would be a good thing if we could walk hand-in-hand thro' this vale of tears. My Providence seems to point its finger that way. The deacon was thinking at that very moment of the money he would save by a thrifty manager like Miss Keziah in the place of his inefficient, wasteful hired woman, who was edging up to her with sheepish simper, exasperated the old woman beyond control."

"The old fool!" she said wrathfully. "The color came into the deacon's thin cheeks, and he started to his feet, looking anxiously toward the door, as if meditating a hasty retreat. But the yarn was wound around his boots and he was forced to remain."

"Miss Keziah likewise rose and folding her hands primly in front of her, remarked grimly: "When you first began your talking I hadn't the least idea what you were driving at. I thought you were hinting about Betsy Hill, and I wanted to take me into your confidence. I never dreamed that you were in western lands caused Mrs. Hill, with her small possessions, to sink into insignificance by the side of the rich woman with her well tilled acres, her overflowing barns, and her prospective thousands of dollars."

"The idea of failure in his matrimonial venture never for an instant entered the deacon's head. "The way afore ye is as plain and straight as a pipe stem, Solomon Pritch has married, rub-bung the palms of his hands together, as he walked towards Miss Keziah's side door. REPUBLICANISM.

Concluding Proceedings of the National Convention.
The Hon. James A. Garfield Nominated for President.

The following were the proceedings of the Republican convention at Chicago after going to press last week: MONDAY'S SESSION.
The convention reassembled Monday forenoon, and after some preliminary skirmishing proceeded to ballot for a candidate for President of the United States. The first ballot resulted as follows: Grant 294, Blaine 284, Sherman 93, Edmunds 31, Washburne 30, Wilson 19, Garfield 1. In the second ballot Grant had 305, Blaine 282, Sherman 94, Washburne 32, Wilson 20, Edmunds 32, Garfield 1. The succeeding ballots varied little from the first, the Hon. Benjamin Harrison, of Indiana, receiving one vote on the third ballot, and Sherman and Washburne each losing one vote on the same ballot. On the fourth ballot Sherman gained two and Blaine lost one. The convention refused to take a recess for dinner and the balloting was continued. The seventh ballot stood Grant 305, Blaine 281, Sherman 94, Edmunds 32, Washburne 31, Wilson 19, Garfield 2.

On the ninth ballot Grant received 308, and on the 10th and 11th ballots one vote was cast for President Hayes, and the 12th showed 1 for Secretary McCarty. The 14th ballot stood Grant 307, Blaine 285, Sherman 98, Washburne 35, Edmunds 31, Wilson 19, Garfield 2.

The balloting continued without material change till the 18th, when a recess was taken till evening. On reassembling the balloting was resumed and proceeded without any noteworthy change or interruption till 10 o'clock, when the convention adjourned to 11 o'clock Tuesday morning. The 23rd and 24th ballots stood Grant 305, Blaine 279, Sherman 91, Washburne 35, Edmunds 31, Wilson 19, Garfield 2. The 17th ballot showed one vote for Davis, and the 19th, 20th, 21st and 22d ballots showed one for Hartranft. The 25th and 26th ballots the Michigan delegation stood 2 for Blaine and 1 for Thompson, of the First District—for Grant.

TUESDAY'S SESSION.
The convention reassembled Tuesday forenoon and resumed balloting with little delay. There were slight changes in each count, but the relative position of the candidates remained substantially as at first, up to the 35th ballot when they stood as follows: Grant 315, Blaine 257, Sherman 101, Garfield 59, Washburne 23, Edmunds 11, Wilson 3. The 36th ballot showed 1 vote for Sheridan and the 39th 1 for Cookson in the army and 1 for Cannon in the navy.

On the 36th and last ballot the Washburne, Sherman, Edmunds and Wilson delegations and most of the Blaine men went over in a body to Garfield. There were two more than the necessary majority and he was declared the nominee and great enthusiasm. The last vote stood Garfield 399, Grant 315, Blaine 42.

In the 35th and last ballot Ohio gave Garfield 45, Oregon 6, Pennsylvania 21, Nebraska 9, Nevada 3, New Hampshire 10, New Jersey 15, Rhode Island 8, Kansas 6, Kentucky 3, Louisiana 2, Maryland 1, Massachusetts 2, Michigan 21, Mississippi 1, Iowa 22.

When the vote was announced the band struck up "Hail Columbia," and there were loud calls for Garfield. The vote for Sherman was soon the whole convention was singing "Hail the Old Flag," and the excitement was overbearing. Frye, of Maine, and Logan, of Illinois, made speeches of approval. Garfield's nomination was made unanimous.

On the nomination of a candidate for President, the convention took a recess till 5 o'clock. On reassembling at that hour Mr. Garey of Maryland proceeded to the nomination of a candidate for Vice President. Adopted.
Mr. Puxley of California nominated Washburne, Mr. Robinson of Connecticut nominated Marshall Jewell, Mr. Hickson of Florida nominated Thomas Settle, Mr. Hoock of Tennessee nominated the Hon. Horace Maynard and Mr. Woodford of New York nominated Gen. Arthur. Mr. Conger read a dispatch from Senator Ferry declining to let his name be presented as a candidate.

A ballot was then taken for Vice-President and resulted as follows: Arthur 498, Washburne 192, Jewell 44, Maynard 40, Bruce S. Alcorn 4, Davis 2, Settle 1, Woodford 1. After the ballot was announced a motion was made to make the nomination of Arthur unanimous and it was carried without a dissenting vote.
A meeting of the national committee was announced, after which the convention adjourned sine die.

Hon. James A. Garfield.
James Abraham Garfield, the Republican candidate for President of the United States, was born in the township of Orange, Cuyahoga county, Ohio, November 19, 1829. His father, Abram Garfield, who had emigrated from New York, died in 1833, leaving a family of four children of whom James was the youngest) dependent upon the exertions of his mother, who was a very good as a cleaner. It should be washed off with soap and water, and the marble afterwards polished with a soft duster.
Make sacks of cotton cloth that will hold about a pound of pease; make them a little larger at the mouth; fill them with butter in good condition; keep in a warm place; in the morning, knead again, cut into cakes, let them rise again till so light they will not sink in the fat, and fry; the more you knead them the better they will be.

Conking any New York State will give Garfield and Arthur 50 majority.

Will do. Butler begins to think about time to either get the political crowd around him or start a new party.

The Democrats will probably nominate Seymour and Hendricks, or Seymour and Thurman, or Seymour and Davis or Davis and Foster, or somebody else.

The most prominent Democratic papers competing for the nomination of the Republican ticket is a remarkably strong one.

In nominating a presidential ticket the Democrats will be likely to look outside of their own ranks.

Speculation is rife concerning the probable Democratic nomination at Cincinnati on the 18th inst.

A nomination that brought all the Republican factions in the country together in an hour, and was enthusiastically met.

The Democratic press has been opening fire on Garfield already.

The Democratic papers are hunting up that same old credit mobiler.

Well, we should think that the anti-slavery agitator would be the one to do that.
