"There is a man in the United States bears the purest record as a man and a gentleman, and who has rendered as no ble services to his country, the Republi-to invest. can party and state, as any man that has ever entered the Senate chamber. That man is none other than Hon. Thos. W. Ferry. His return to the United States senate is being urgently demanded by many of the Republican newspapers throughout this district, notwithstanding it would be his third term. Mr. Ferry is a man that has always stood ready to do his whole duty to his con stituents. No one, it matters not in what station of life he may be, but what meets with a ready response within his jurisdiction. The east shore of Lake Michigan especially bears many evi-dences of his handiwork. When called upon to assist in any measure he has when he puts his shoulder to the wheel

The Ontonagon Herald has the following: "Senator Ferry, ripe in experience and true to his sense of duty in all emergencies, maintains an intelligent, upright and consistent course in congress, and the natural and logical result is he is daily improving his chances for re-election to the national senate. His pposition to the national senate. His apposition to the attempt to revive the frunking privilege has met not only with the approbation of the people of this state, but it has received the endorsement of the press and the public throughout the entire country. Senator Ferry should be his own successor.

We find the following compliment to Senator Ferry in the Iron Post of Escanaba, Lake Superior: "Senator Ferry on Thursday of last week, engaged Senator Sherman of Ohio in the debate on the bill to establish and enlarge the lifesaving service, and 'got away with him very handsomely. Congressman Webber.

The Grand Rapids Times, an independent paper, says:

"Than George W. Webber the fifth congressional district has had no better representative in congress. During his short term of office he has taken great interest in Michigan soldiers, and has found comfortable offices for many of them to say nothing of civilians who were entitled to place. Mr. Webber is known, too, in the committee room, where he is ever an arduous and conscientious worker. His rare business tact and experience stand him in good stead, and if all our congressional districts were so ably represented as is the fifth, Michigan would have more reason to be proud of her public servants." The Allegan Tribune copies this and adds: "In thus speaking of Congressman Webber the Times but gives him the credit to which he is justly entitled. Since taking his seat in congress Mr. Webber has proven his fitness for the place by the able and conscientiousmanner in which he has performed his duties.
