EDITORIAL TALK.

The Ionia National occasionally gets off an item, or article, which for pure originality surpasses the best efforts of Eli Perkins. It had one of these spells last week when it denounced the bill "for the protection of innocent purchasers of patented articles" as a fraud and read the JOURNAL a breezy lecture for commending Senator Ferry's action in securing the passage of said bill. The National makes itself appear supremely ridiculous in trying to show that the bill is a fraud and its intelligent readers who may have never seen anything before in that paper to laugh at, cannot help laughing now at the National's absurd effort to mislead them on a matter they so thoroughly understand. The bill, as expressed in its title, is for the protection of innocent purchasers of patented articles against such swindlers as the drive-well claimant, who come around after everybody has invested in their patents, demanding a big royalty, &c. Farmers of Kent and Ionia counties are pretty well posted on this question and they have raised hundreds of dollars to fight the drive-well swindle. But the Ionia National expresses more sympathy for the swindlers than for the parties swindled, thus distinguishing itself as a champion of the swindlers' association. It is welcome to all the notoriety it can get out of it. The National's article either betrays the writer's ignorance of the provisions or intent of the bill, or, worse still, shows a disposition to misrepresent facts. We feel sorry for him, whichever horn of the dilemma he chooses to hide himself in.

The Post and Tribune publishes a tabulated statement of the net earnings of the National banks from 1880 to 1880, with the dividends declared, thus showing that the public mind has been greatly abused and deceived as to the enormous profits of these banks. The figures show that in 1880 the bank dividends were 10.6 per cent, and the net earnings were 14.1 per cent. In 1870 their dividends were 10.2 per cent.; their net earnings 12.6 per cent. In 1871 their dividends were 10.1 per cent.; their net earnings 12.2 per cent. In 1872 their dividends were 10.3 per cent.; their net earnings 13.1 per cent. In 1873 their dividends were 9.9 per cent.; their net earnings 12.7 per cent. In 1874 their dividends were 10.1 per cent.; their net earnings 12 per cent. In 1875 their dividends were 9.9 per cent.; their net earnings 8 per cent. In 1876 their dividends were 8.9 per cent.; their net earnings 6.6 per cent. In 1877 their dividends were 8.5 per cent.; their net earnings 6.6 per cent. In 1878 their dividends were 7.4 per cent.; their net earnings 6 per cent. In 1879 their dividends were 7.8 per cent.; and their net earnings were 8 per cent.

From this it will be seen that the dividends paid by the national banks between March 1, 1876, and March 1, 1879, greatly exceeded the net earnings, and that their earnings in 1875 were but a fraction over 10 per centum on their capital, and from that period to the date of the last full report in 1880 the banks during no year earned as much as 8 per cent on their capital.

Commenting on the report that Congressman Webber of Ionia will not be a candidate for renomination, the Ionia Standard says: "If he returns to Ionia Mr. Webber will become one of our leading citizens—perhaps our chief citizen. At Washington he is a nonentity, politically and socially, so far as his personal influence is concerned."

The Standard editor in writing the above probably did not stop to consider the logical inference to be drawn therefrom. If Ionia's "chief citizen" is a nonentity in Congress then of course Ionia has no other citizen whose qualifications are worth considering even for a moment. If such a "nonentity" is capable of becoming the leading citizen of Ionia, as the Standard believes, then all other Ionia men, however ambitious, must see the folly of thirsting for fame. The JOURNAL, however, does not quote the standard approvingly. We think Mr. Webber has made a good record at Washington, and could have a renomination if he would accept it. No congressman is expected to make himself very conspicuous on the floor the first term. Mr. Webber has acted the part of wisdom in following this precedent; he has done good committee work and voted right on all the important measures. What more can be asked of any new member? As to the Standard's insinuation that Ionia's leading citizen amounts to only a nonentity away from home, we repeat it, not only for the sake of Ionia's chief citizen, but for the sake of other good citizens there whom the Standard so cruelly lashes over the shoulders of Mr. Webber.

"Free men, free trade and equal rights for all," is a first-class slogan for democracy.—Ionia Standard.

Postmaster General Howe recommends the abolition of postage on second class mail matter, which now amounts to about $1,500,000 a year. This means free transportation through the mails of all regular newspaper and periodical publications. While such an arrangement would save us good many dollars in course of a year we think it would be a mistake to throw wide open the gates and permit the country to be flooded with such an increase of trashy publications, as it would be the postage abolished. Besides this, the revenue derived from this source is needed and the present system is the best that has ever been adopted. The free system is too free. Publishers ought not to ask it.

The last annual report of the Detroit Grand Haven and Milwaukee Railway company shows an income of $1,196,929.50 for the last year and a total expense of $883,630.53. This is a pretty good showing. The road has been under excellent management for a few years past and has become one of the most popular thoroughfares in the state.

Walt Whitman's new book of poems "Leaves of Grass" is proscribed on the ground of obscenity. The result will probably be the publication of an enlarged edition of about 50,000 copies and a ready sale for every copy. It pays to advertise.

Many state papers have quoted, with words of approval, the JOURNAL's article of last week expressing a hope that no political convention would be held in this state this year until after the first of September.

The Marshall Statesman last week came out with a strong endorsement for Senator Ferry, earnestly advocating his reelection. And still they come, Michigan is for Ferry and "there's no getting around it."

The Detroit public building bill was an easy thing to put through; the location of the building is what is tearing the Detroit air up.

Uncle Tom's Cabin now comes out in opera. Never can get rid of it unless it joins the greenback party. That will snuff out the whole kit.

The Austin Blair boom for U. S. Senator started off a good deal like a tailless kite. It struck the ground before they got a chance to reel off any twine.

Pennsylvania is all torn up politically and if the Democrats don't win a victory there this time they may as well hang up their harp for all time to come.

An exchange wants to know if they can find any more loop holes for Guitau to crawl out of. No, but they will find one for him to crawl into pretty soon.

JOURNAL JOTTINGS.

The new bank here is declared off for the present.

Some correspondence necessarily omitted this week.

Mr. A. E. Bolt is doing a fine trade in musical instruments.

Giles Congdon of Colorado Springs, Col. was in town yesterday.

Mrs. Parker Merrill has gone to St. Johns to reside for a brief season.

Many houses are being repaired, some of them in delicate, "esthetic" tints.

Mrs. A. E. Bolt and Miss Melia Pangborn, of Grand Rapids, were in Lowell last week.

A. G. Sinclair is putting up a new house on West Water street, north of O. A. Robinson's.

The ice cream makers would like to see mercury shoot up to 90 in the shade and call for a fan.

A heavy thunder shower early this morning. Everything growing rapidly now.

Postmaster Joe Sayles of Evart was being spending a few days in Lowell and vicinity.

Baptist social this Wednesday evening at M. C. Barber's. Everybody invited.

Rev. James Watts of Saranac will officiate at the congregational church next Sabbath morning, by exchange with the pastor.

The contract for building the Jones block of two stores west of the Davis House has been awarded to B. G. Wilson of this village.

Forepaugh's "handsome lady in the world" will be in Ionia Saturday. She is said to be rather pretty—when she's fixed up.

"Tax Payer" writes: The washing away of the bridge did not break the town after all. Let the improvements go on. That foot bridge next.

Leslie E. Collins, formerly foreman of this office and later foreman of the Charlotte Republican, is going to Minneapolis to reside; so says the Hastings Journal.

Fred Straight, a rejected suitor, shot himself in the Kent county jail Thursday night. He wanted to marry a little blonde and the little blonde didn't want him to. He threatened her life, was put in jail and took his own.

Next Sabbath evening will occur the next grand temperance meeting at Train's Hall. Splendid music and lightning speeches and a good moon to go home by. May I be there. Com.

This is the last day of May. Very few days during this month have been warm enough to sit comfortably in the house, store or office without a fire in the stove.

Nathan Church of the Grand Rapids Times is east, writing juicy and gossipy letters to his paper. He hobbles with all the principal powers and spoons his ices in the presence of the fairest daughters of Gotham. Blessed be Nathan.

In 1880 the Republican majority in Michigan over the combined vote of all opposing parties, was 17,591. Bring on your fusion. This is an "off year" and it may be awful before November. Bring on your coal-fusion.

The Young Ladies Mission Band will give an entertainment Friday evening of this week at the Baptist church. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Mrs. W. J. Ecker was quite seriously injured yesterday by being thrown from her buggy at the upper bridge. She was picked up insensible and remained so for some time. She was reported better last night.

A musical soiree, under the direction of Mr. G. W. Hunt, will be given at the music store in Train's new block on Friday evening of this week. Eight numbers are on the programme. All holding tickets of invitation will no doubt be present. At the close of the soiree, if the company desires, an hour or two will be devoted to the mazy whirl.

The nonsensical drivel in the Ionia National on the National Banking system is about on a par with that paper's swashlop on the bill for the protection of innocent purchasers of patented articles. If the management of that sheet has hired a Chinese tea sign to do its editorial work, the fact ought to be publicly announced.

The Lowell Furniture Co. is already doing a good business. The factory is still undergoing repairs and receiving needed improvements. Jim Ecker has been there for several weeks and will continue as overseer, etc. Every dollar's worth of stock has been taken and more could be readily placed if more could be had. If anybody has any stock to sell notify the President or Secretary.

A well informed and prosperous farmer of Bowne thinks washing sheep is a cruel and needless practice, and claims that the fleeces contain more dirt after home through the last than before. He thinks if wool buyers could be convinced of this that there wouldn't be so much difference in the price of washed and unwashed wool. He also says that sheep are frequently seriously injured by washing and hopes the time will soon come when the practice will be discontinued entirely.

What do our farmers friends think of the articles appearing in the democratic and greenback papers, bawling the "poor farmers' condition"? With wheat at $1.30 per bushel in the local markets, with potatoes $1.35 per bushel and all other articles of farm produce correspondingly high, are the farmers really suffering? If they are we would like to have them speak up through the columns of the JOURNAL. We prefer to get our information from them direct, to receiving it from these "sympathizing" democratic and greenback editors who always have so much taffy to throw out to the "poor farmer and laborer" just before an election campaign.

The JOURNAL has often urged the importance of supporting home industries and building up home interests. We wish to renew the appeal this week and will do so by submitting the following extract from a mormon preacher's sermon:

Elder Scraggs spoke on "Home Industries and Divine Inspiration." He spoke from the text, "Cleanliness is next to Godliness." Elder Scraggs having a short time before purchased an interest in a soap factory, his remarks it will be seen had a particular leaning so far as he said: "My brethren, nothing which God has put into the mouth of the inspired writers was ever said amiss. The idea comes with almost marvellous adaptability to the present stirring epoch when there are so many that doubt the inspiration of the word and don't use soap. Now, we should all take the truths of scripture home to our hearts and use none but soap made here in Salt Lake. There are other soap factories here in Salt Lake, but none that do as mine can. I succeeded in a soap business because I have faith in the revelation of the divine word. My receipt was a revelation direct from heaven. We read in the good book of angels clad in raiments of shining white, and I have no doubt in my mind that the same sort of soap is used in heaven as I am now retailing at 10 cents a bar, although I have a cheaper grade for the country trade. Every man's soul is like an old dirty towel which has been used for two weeks. It needs the cleansing process to make it white. We must be cleansed in the work of repentance and faith, and put right through the wringer of affliction, which by the way, reminds me that Brother Boggs is now selling the Excelsior wringer, better a good deal than Smith's old rickety machines, who is now an apostate from the true faith, and the spirit of the Lord abideth not in him. Unless you patronize men who are in the faith the doors of salvation open not unto you and your soul will rot in the everlasting damnation of hell. My soap is now being made plain and scented, and put up in convenient packages. We will now sing the 48th hymn: "The Lord will wash my guilt away," with the choir standing.

Is the village park a pasture lot? Ten poor widows' cows are waiting for a right there as another, which is no right at all. The park can neither be pastured nor lot, or it will go back to the original owner. So, Brindle Cow and all other quadrupeds, keep your distance; no partiality. Yours, etc.

BRINDLE COW.

Ans: No! One cow has just as good a right there as another, which is no right at all. The park can neither be pastured nor lot, or it will go back to the original owner. So, Brindle Cow and all other quadrupeds, keep your distance; no partiality. Yours, etc.

FAIR PLAY.

W. C. T. U.

Meeting of the W. C. T. U. on Friday 3 P. M. at the Baptist Church. Programme: Reading from "Our State Union," by Mrs. Moore; report from State Convention, Mrs. Lewis; Free conversation.—Topic,—"Evils of Gambling." At our last meeting the following resolution was unanimously passed.

WHEREAS, our beloved Sec'y, Mrs. E. Fuller, is about leaving us.

Resolved, That we as a Union express our hearty thanks for the efficient service rendered us during the year just closed; and we do most cheerfully commend her to the hearts of any sister union where, in the providence of God, her lot may be cast. Our prayers and best wishes go with our dear sister, hoping that under God her usefulness may increase until she lays down the cross to wear the crown.

By order of the W. C. T. U.
Mrs. L. A. OLDFIELD, Pres.
Lowell, May 19th, '82.

Decorations Day.

The day was quietly and appropriately observed in Lowell. At 10:30 a. m. the Band headed a procession of about 300 persons, on foot and in carriages, and proceeded to the cemetery, playing a dirge on the way. The graves of the sleeping soldiers were visited and decorated with flowers. Rev. J. M. Van Wagner acting as master of ceremonies. There were nine soldiers' graves in this cemetery viz. Burdick M. Winegar, Sergt. A. V. Howk, Jas. M. Lang, Lt. Joseph Wilson, Robert Peck, Dr. Chas. R. Perry, Wm. Karnsen, Wm. Pearson, Jas. Cheeseman. These graves were designated by little flags and after flowers had been placed upon them the procession gathered at a convenient place in the cemetery where brief and very excellent addresses were made by Mr. M. H. Walker, Revs. J. S. Valentine and Chas. Oldfield, Mr. Van Wagner closing the exercises with appropriate remarks on the condition of the cemetery and duty of those interested in it. A list of the names of the soldiers who went from here and who were killed or died in the service and not buried here, was read, as follows:

Francis M. Coats, killed at Cold Harbor, Va., June 7, 1864.

Geo. Clutes and E. W. Holt died of wounds received at Spottsylvania, May 12, 1864.

Chas. Mc Carthy, died in Andersonville prison, Aug. 18, 1864.

Wm. Murray, killed at Deep Bottom, Va. July 27, 1864.

Alfred Smith, died at Washington Feb. 10, 1863.

David Cline, died at Stevensburgh, Va. Feb 4 1864.

Philip Vandusen, killed at Groveton, Va. Aug. 29, 1862.

James Vandusen died at St. Louis, Mo. Dec. 5, 1862.

Andrew Barber died of wounds, Portsmouth Va. Sept. 22, 1862.

Henry White killed (date and place not stated).

With very little preparation and with no formalities the day was thus very appropriately observed. The Band played several dirges at the cemetery, which added greatly to the impressiveness of the ceremonies. There was no noise or confusion to mar the sacredness of the occasion. It was a quiet, orderly, appropriate observance of a solemn, sad hour; an hour that brought up the saddest memories of the sorrowing heart and filled the eyes of those who mourn with the great hot tears of love for the dear departed. It is such trials as these that soften the hearts of men, that make us better and bring us nearer to the shining shore of Peace beyond the battle ground of this life, covered with wrecked hopes and broken hearts. Never let it be said of Lowell that Decoration Day was passed unobserved.

The First Prayer in Congress.

In Thatcher's Military Journal, under date of Dec. 1777, is found an article containing the first prayer offered in congress, which was made by Rev. Jacob Duché, a preacher of great eloquence. A copy of this historical curiosity has been left at the JOURNAL office for a few days, by Rev. J. Lowry, of Ionia, who is now visiting friends in Lowell. The following is the "first prayer in congress":

"O Lord our heavenly Father, high and mighty King of kings, and Lord of lords, who dost from thy throne behold all the dwellers on earth, and reignest with power supreme and uncontrolled over all Kingdoms, Empires and Governments; look down in mercy, we beseech thee, on these American States, who have sided to thee from the rod of the oppressor, and thrown themselves on thy gracious protection, desiring to be henceforth dependent only on thee: to thee they have appealed for the righteousness of their cause; to thee they now look up for that countenance and support which thou alone canst give; take them therefore, heavenly Father, under thy nurturing care; give them wisdom, strength and valor in the field; defeat the malicious designs of our cruel adversaries; continue them in the unshaken possession of their cause; and if they still persist in their course, and if they still persist in their sanguinary purposes, O Lord, direct their own unerring justice, sounding in their hearts, constrain them to drop the weapons of war from their anointed hands; on the day of battle. Be thou present, O God of wisdom, and direct the councils of this honorable assembly; enable them to settle things on the best and surest foundation, that the scene of blood may be speedily closed; that order, harmony and peace may be effectually restored; and truth and justice, religion and piety, prevail and flourish amongst thy people. Preserve the health of their bodies and the vigor of their minds; shew down on them and the millions they here represent, such temporal blessings as thou seest expedient for them in this world, and crown them with everlasting glory in the world to come. All this we ask in the name and through the merits of Jesus Christ, thy Son, our Savior, Amen!"

Death of Rev. Peter Aldrich.

Died, at his home in Millbrook, Mead Co. Mich., May 24th, 1882. PETER ALDRICH, aged 64 years. He leaves a widow, two sons and six daughters. Mr. Aldrich was one of the Pioneers of Grattan, having settled there before the town was organized and was the last of four brothers whose descendants have lived in and about Lowell. He bought and cleared up the farm on the town line now owned by John Hape-man, where he lived till about fourteen years ago when he moved to Millbrook. He was one of the early members of the Christian Church at Alton, but changing his views he joined the church known as the "Church of God," by whom he was ordained to the ministry. Many of the old settlers of Grattan and Grattan will call to mind his preaching in those places. He continued his preaching after he came to Millbrook, as long as his health would permit. Was called for and near to attend funerals and minister to the sick. Mr. Aldrich was a close relation to our martyred Garfield, his great, great grandfather being Hosea Ballou, the celebrated universalist preacher, and Garfield's great great grandmother was Hosea Ballou's sister. Mr. Aldrich was much esteemed by the people of Millbrook. Surely a good man has fallen.

The Fifth Pioneers

Will hold their fifth annual reunion on Wednesday June 7th. All are invited; young as well as old. Be on hand early, 10 A. M. sharp. Basket picnic dinner. Hay for teams furnished by the society. If the weather is favorable the meeting will be in the grove one fourth mile from the Center. If not, at the church and Grange hall.

Hon. E. C. Watkins of Ionia, Rev. T. D. Flannery, of St. Patrick's church, Grattan and Mrs. M. J. Kutz of Rockford, will address the meeting. Five minute speeches by others, as called by the audience. Also, a Pioneer and other poems will be read by A. H. Stoddard, the "farmer poet of Kalamazoo." Music of the olden time by Messrs. Porter and Coffinberry of Grand Rapids. Vocal music by the Junior Pioneer band of Grattan. And also by Mr. Editor, "Jim of the JOURNAL," and family, are especially invited to be with us and give the audience a few "Crabs," that shall be a little spice to our "feast of reason and flow of Soul." For which, as well as past favors you will be, and are entitled to many thanks from our Pioneer Society. C. CLOSE, Cor. Sec'y Pro. tem.

From the Pilgrims.

GROTON, D. T., May 19th, 1882.

FRIEND HINE:—One year ago today the "Pilgrims" from Lowell and vicinity landed at Bristol, then the terminus of the Railroad leading over into this valley. What a change since then! One ought to have been here then, and be here now to get any idea of it. The railroad extending on from Bristol forty miles west to Aberdeen and thence southward to its Iowa division running east from Iowa and Chicago, and now north to some point on the Northern Pacific. Running side by side up the valley is the Northwestern, and before the snow flies we expect a branch of this road to be built up the valley on this side of the river. Then as you come in to the valley from the east your eyes rest on nothing but an expanse of boundless prairie almost as level as the ocean without a habitation of any kind. How changed the scene now! Villages, farm houses, barns and thousands of acres of wheat and oats, growing nicely, and hundreds of acres of sod turned over and being planted to corn. Thousands of trees have been planted and in a few years we will have as nice a valley as you can find any where in the west.

Our town of only nine months growth is still booming right along. We have six general stores, two hardware, one exclusive dry, and one in connection with a general store, one tin shop, five dealers in machinery, three lumber yards, three land agents, one physician, two lawyers, one hotel and one restaurant, meat market, harness shop, three blacksmiths, millinery store, shoemaker, two firms of painters, a saloon and livery stable. Since the first of Jan. there have been 32 more cars received at this place than at any other town in the county.

Town property has more than doubled in price since last fall and lots on the business streets are hard to buy at all.

The land is all taken for miles, and many are going eighteen miles out for locations. There have been three deaths in the Lowell party: Uncle Sheldon Ashley, a child of Mr. & Mrs. Stocking, and last week the only child of L. L. & Ida McPherson. This falls with unusual severity on them and they have the sympathy of the entire community in their great affliction. "WOLVERINE."
