STRICTLY PURE LEAD, ZINC, AND PURE LINSEED OIL.

"What shall I do with the outside of my house?" is a question often asked by those who wish to paint.

In exterior decoration, the surroundings should be taken into consideration, and the building treated in such a way as to harmonize as nearly as possible with them; especially should this be the case in suburban residences, as there is nothing that so effectually destroys the beauty of a landscape as to see a house painted in colors that are in discord with objects about it.

This subject has become so important, we have naturally taken a great interest in it and have given it no little study. We shall be pleased to answer any specific questions that may be addressed to us.

ATTENTION is called to the fact that nearly all other manufacturers of mixed paints are obliged to give a rate for the covering capacity of their paints, ranging from 15 to 25 per cent. more than this, simply because THE SHERWIN-WILLIAMS PAINT is properly made and of pure materials, and therefore admits of being rubbed out under the brush like any pure lead, zinc and oil paint, not requiring to be "flowed on," as the manufacturers of cheap paints direct their products to be used.

A BAD DAY FOR BOODLERS

COOK COUNTY, ILLINOIS, CONFESORERS FOUND GUILTY.

Seven of the Defendants in the Great Omnibus Boodle Trial Sentenced to Two Years in the Penitentiary and the Balance Fined $1,000 Each—How the Verdict Was Reached—Scenes in Court.

CHICAGO, July 6.—After a trial lasting five weeks and two days the great omnibus boodler commission's case was given to the jury at 8 o'clock Friday afternoon, after the examination of nearly 200 witnesses, and the delivery of a total of eight speeches. At 9:30 p. m. the jury returned and announced the following verdict: "We, the jury, find the defendants guilty of conspiracy as charged in the indictment, and fix the punishment of Richard S. McClaughry at two years in the penitentiary." The same phrasing, "two years in the penitentiary," was repeated after the names of Adam Ochs, Michael Leyden, Harry A. Varnell, John E. Van Pelt, Daniel J. Wren and Michael Wasserman, and then the verdict proceeded: "James J. McCarthy, a fine of $1,000," and the same amount was attached to the names of Richard M. Oliver, Chris Casselman and Chris Gels. To say that there was a hum of surprise at this verdict is putting things mildly. One bowl went up from among the spectators in the dimly lighted part of the court room, but it was quickly checked. The defendants sat in consternation. A small army of deputy sheriffs and bailiffs had completely surrounded the defendants to prevent any escapes. Sheriff Matso directing the movements in person. After the reading of the verdict the usual humdrum of legal technicalities went on unobscured, and then the crowd, which had completely filled the court room went out slowly.

The defendants upon whom a penitentiary sentence was imposed, Leyden, Wren, McClaughry, Wasserman, Varnell, Van Pelt, Ochs, were at once taken from the court room to the jail and the others were allowed to go home.

The hands of the clock above Judge Jamieson's desk showed 8:50 o'clock, when the noise among the spectators was checked by the announcement that the jury had agreed. Everybody was ordered to be seated and the jury filed in.

The defendants had entered before the twelve, and a sorry-looking crowd of men who were Leyden was the most agitated of them. His rostrum face was ashy pale, and his powerful frame shook under an uncontrollable excitement. Wren looked dark and sinister, leaning his head against the pillar near which his chair stood. JUDGE JAMIESON. Van Pelt seemed to be in a semi-conscious state, evidently the effect of his copious libations. Ochs was staring vacantly into space and Casselman looked dumfounded, as if something was going on which he did not quite understand. McCarthy had a sort of sneering leer upon his vulgar features. Varnell alone was composed, undoubtedly prepared for the worst.

Then the verdict was read by Clerk Leo. The reading of the document which was agreed by the jury, was made doubly impressive by the fact that the phrase, "two years in the penitentiary," was repeated seven times, and the words, "a fine of $1,000," four times. Ochs, Leyden and Wasserman were completely overcome. The first-manned hid his face in his hands, while Leyden sank back into his chair as if in a fainting fit. Wasserman bit his under lip, and opened his eyes wide. Varnell never moved, neither did Van Pelt, who seemed to be blissfully ignorant of everything that happened around him. Wren passed his fleshy hand over his broad face, and then began to pull nervously at his small, black goatee.

After the jury was polled the state's attorney rose and, addressing the court, remarked: "I suppose, as none of counsel for defendants is present, it is but fair to save their rights so far as a motion for a new trial is concerned." Before he could proceed any further Alexander Sullivan pushed his way through the crowd in front of the bench, and leaning over spoke a few words to the judge. Then he went to the table reserved for counsel for the defendants and said: "If your honor please—has the jury been polled yet?" When this had been answered in the affirmative, Sullivan gave the attorney proceeed: "As to the defendants who are fined, I think they are to be permitted to go on their bonds." "Yes," decided Judge Jamieson, somewhat hesitatingly, "they may go."

"No objections," remarked the state's attorney quickly.

"In relation to the defendants," proceeded Mr. Sullivan, "I desire to make a motion for a new trial and arrest of judgment."

"Only the motion for a new trial is opportune at this moment," said the court.

"Then I move that all the defendants be admitted to bail," further remarked the attorney.

"The motion, so far as the defendants sentenced to the penitentiary are concerned, is denied," ruled Judge Jamieson, decisively.

Mr. Sullivan was deeply agitated. When he began addressing the court his voice trembled and the usual pallor of his face was even deeper. There was a moment of suspense, and then Judge Jamieson rose to address the jury. "Gentlemen of the jury," he said, "the time has come when I may release you, and I am happy at this termination. The imprisonment which you have suffered was onerous, but it was such as the law imposes. It is more than covered by your conscientious discharge of one of the highest duties of citizenship. Gentlemen, I thank you. You are now discharged."

There was general handshaking between the judge, state's attorney and the jury. While this was going on Deputy Sher-

FIRES AND OTHER ACCIDENTS.

Two fires were started by incendiaries at Bessemer, Mich., Monday and Tuesday. The town for a time was in danger, but the flames were extinguished with but small loss.

A wind-storm at Coreyville, Ohio, blew down a building in which some carpenters were working, injuring ten, some of them fatally.

John Henry, of Avilla, Ind., fell from the spire of St. Mary's church Friday and was killed.

The St. James and Eastern hotels at Dunkirk, N. Y., were destroyed by fire Friday. Loss $75,000.

While Mrs. Owen Made, living near Elma, Pennsylvania, was gone to carry her husband's supper to a furnace where he worked, one of her children poured some coal oil into the stove, the can exploding and burning the four children so seriously that one died shortly after and the others are not expected to recover.

Daniel Fressler, a boy at Upper Sandusky, Ohio, Richard S. Westry, night watchman and watchman at Charleston, Ill., and Thomas Dawson, of Vincennes, Ind., were run over by the cars Sunday. Westry and Dawson were killed, and Fressler will probably die.

Frank Hurd on the Ohio Platform. TOLEDO, Ohio, Aug. 8.—Hon. Frank Hurd arrived here Saturday. He was asked how he liked the Ohio Democratic platform, and said:

"I consider it the best platform on the subject of tariff the Democracy has had for years, and it is one which every free trader and tariff reformer can most heartily support. I declare for a tariff for revenue only. Reducing the surplus, it favors the

An offer was made on behalf of Ochs, Wasserman, and McClaughry, that if the court would grant a motion for a new trial they would plead guilty and accept a $1,000 fine. Of course no attention was paid to this cheeky proposition.

The resignations of Oliver, Casselman, Gels, McCarthy, McClaughry, and Klein are now in the hands of County Clerk Wallf, and will be presented as soon as the board meets. Owing to the absence of Mr. Nelson it will be impossible to secure a quorum and matters will have to stand as they are until his return from the east.

It was decided by Mr. Grinnell and the counsel for the defense to fix upon Aug. 15 as the day for arguing the motion for a new trial for the "boodlers" who have been given penitentiary sentences.

THE ORANGE AND GREEN.

A Sunday Riot That Extended from Port Rush to Belfast.

BELFAST, Aug. 8.—A party of Irish National Foresters made an excursion Sunday from Belfast to Port Rush, near the Giant's Causeway, and the whole affair was the occasion of a disgraceful riot. The excursionists made the trip in two special trains, and when they landed in Port Rush a large number of Orangemen, who had learned that they were coming, met them at the station. The Orangemen were well supplied with bottles, stones and all kinds of missiles, and gave the visitors a warm reception on their arrival. Immediately a battle ensued, and the air was filled with flying bottles and stones. The decent and peaceable inhabitants and the English and American tourists who were in the place fled for refuge to the houses, and the mob soon had the streets to themselves. A vigorous effort on the part of the police, however, succeeded in finally checking the rioters and put them to rout.

When the Foresters were ready to return they found that the Orangemen all along the line of the railroad had been informed of the trouble, and had turned out to make the return trip as uncomfortable as possible. Whenever there was a stop under the Orangemen's hand the train, headed by the railway, and sounding some of the Foresters' bugles, and shouting some of the Foresters' mottoes, would stop and deliver a shower of bottles at them, and in a few cases pistols were used. A youth standing on the bridge at the Ballymouna station was shot and has since died. At Ballymouna a Presbyterian minister and a youth were wounded, and the whole return to Belfast was one continuous riot.

The police had been warned before their arrival at Belfast, and were ready for them, so that in Belfast there was no rioting. The affair will undoubtedly be taken notice of by the government.

The Coming Chicago Encampment.

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—The programme of the military encampment to be held here in October has been issued, and shows that the prizes to be awarded will aggregate $42,200, the largest amount ever competed for. The prizes will go to every branch of military service, and include three sham battles, grand pyrotechnic displays, massed band concerts, and dress parades. A letter has been received from J. B. Castleman, acting adjutant general of Kentucky, endorsing the action of the management regarding colored troops, providing they be encamped separately.

Killed by a Falling Wall.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 4.—While a number of laborers were at work shoveling the wheat away from a wall of the burned St. Anthony elevator, the wall fell injuring Andrew Hicks badly and killing Peter Anderson. The boys, Ed N. Markey, Thomas Dempsey, John Danielson, M. Alderschwile.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Edgell & Waine, agricultural implement and hardware dealers at Lincoln, Kan., have failed. Assets, $22,000; liabilities, $30,000.

James Hogg, hosiery dealer at Philadelphia, has failed for $30,000. J. & C. Robie, dry goods and notions, at Bath, N. Y., have made an assignment, first filing mortgages aggregating $40,000.

It is estimated that the losses of the bull clique at San Francisco, who have been manipulating the wheat market, will be between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000. Mackay and Flood are believed to have been the principal promoters of the "corner," and the opinion is expressed that a money shortage caused the collapse. The sessions of the call board have been discontinued for the present.

Baird & Dillon, dealers in silver and plated ware, Chicago, were closed up on execution Thursday. Their liabilities are about $30,000.

About 100,000 acres of pine lands in South Carolina and Georgia have been purchased by a Pittsburg and New York syndicate for $1,000,000.

Arrangements are being made for the construction of an additional track for the Kansas City, St. Joseph & Council Bluffs railroad from St. Joseph to Kansas City, the great increase of business demanding a double-track route.
