

THE END IN SIGHT.

The Cronin Murder Trial in Chicago Will Soon Be Finished.

The Path of the Five Suspects Soon to Be Known - The Attorneys for the Prosecution and the Defense Making Their Pleas.

THE CROWN TRIAL.

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—At the resumption of court yesterday morning Mr. Forrest continued his attack on the credibility of witnesses for the State. He took up the expert testimony in regard to the blood, and claimed that the State had failed to prove that there was human blood at all in the Cronin cottage. Then Mr. Forrest attacked the State's counsel and asserted that the blood in every circumstance which had been introduced at this trial, which was not brought out at the coroner's inquest, was fabricated. He closed his morning speech with a strong declaration of the probability that the State would suppress evidence favorable to the accused.

At the afternoon session Mr. Forrest took up the matter of the "Orbit" in the case. He declared it must be true because the witnesses in testifying to it had differed in the matter of details. On the main point that O'Rourke was in the house on the night of May 4 they all agreed. In details they differed. Hal Matthew, Mark Lake and John Condon, to give the State's case, differed as to details; all agreed on the main point. Therefore O'Rourke's alibi was well founded and "Orbit" alibi was equally substantial, but even if it were not it did not matter. The burden of proof lay on the State, and unless the State showed that O'Rourke was at the cottage, O'Rourke's alibi could not be for an instant supposed that he was there, the evidence of the probability of two men having been together. He then turned his attention to the testimony concerning the two knives found in Cronin's possession by Harry Fryer. Fraying out with a razor, he said, possession is prima facie evidence of ownership, as asserted that Mr. Fryer's statement that the knives were his was a million times more probable than the statement of Mr. Condon.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—At yesterday's session Attorney Forrest resumed his address by an attempt to prove the reliability of the alibi for Cronin's wife. His argument on this point was exhaustive. Not one circumstance connected with the identification of the animal by Mrs. Cronin was in his mind worthy of belief. He said that the animal, which had been in the Cronin household for many years, was not in the habit of leaving the house at night. He said that the animal was introduced at the trial to show that Cronin was in the Cronin cottage on the night of May 4. The method of identification of Cronin in Winslow, he said, was unfair and showed that the State had no bona fide belief in the man that lived there. He said that the testimony of the witness that he was in Cronin's house at the time the animal was in the Cronin household was not worthy of consideration. Mr. Forrest then gave his attention to the cause of Mrs. Cronin's death. He said that there was nothing suspicious in Cronin's movements subsequent to May 4. Not a word of evidence was introduced at the trial to show that there was in the Cronin cottage on the night of May 4. The method of identification of Cronin in Winslow, he said, was unfair and showed that the State had no bona fide belief in the man that lived there. He said that the testimony of the witness that he was in Cronin's house at the time the animal was in the Cronin household was not worthy of consideration.

SAUKVILLE, Wis., Dec. 12.—A terrible and peculiar drowning accident occurred Wednesday by which a mother and her three children were drowned at Saukville, on the Milwaukee River. A 6-year-old son of Claude Augustus went to the river bank and ventured out on the ice. It suddenly broke and he fell into the river. His mother heard his cries and rushed to his rescue. Frantically throwing herself into the icy water she endeavored to save her drowning boy. In a few moments she was beyond her depth and drowning herself. Her 17-year-old daughter, Augusta, heard the mother's cries, and rushing to the bank hastened to the spot. Seeing her mother in the water she rushed to her rescue. The ice broke with her and she was thrown into the chilling torrent, mother and daughter locked themselves together in a death struggle and sank beneath the water and ice. They were just disappearing when a young girl, the sister of the mother, saw her mother and sister, and dashed to the hole in which they were buried. She saw her mother and sister, and dashed to the hole in which they were buried.
