A Poverty-stricken Millionaire!

A Poverty-stricken Millionaire!

This seems a paradox, but it is explained by one of New York's richest men. "I don't count my wealth in dollars." he said. "What are all my possessions to me, since I am a victim of consumption? My doctor tells me that I have but a few months to live, for the disease is lneurable. I am poorer than that beggar yonder." "But," interupted the friend to whom he spoke, "consumption can be cured. If taken in time, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will eradicate every vestige of the disease from your system." "Fill try it," said the millionaire, and he did; and to-day there is not a healthier, happier man to be found anywhere. The "Discovery" strikes at the seat of the complaint. Consumption is a disease of the blood—is nothing more nor less than lung-scrofula—and it must and does yield to this wonderful remedy. "Golden Medical Discovery" is not only an acknowledged remedy for that terribly fatal malady, when taken in time and given a fair trial, but also for to be ashamed to go anywhere. NEW YORK, March 21.—The great nall of Cooper Union was packed with 5.000 Italians of New York and vicinity 5,000 Italians of New York and vicinity Friday night, called together to denounce last Saturday's tragedy in New Orleans, and more than hot blood of Italy, fired by the memory of the New Orleans affair, could not be restrained, and shortly before 9 o'clock the crowd outside the doors broke them down and a number of people were indown and a number of people were in-jured in the rush. One hundred and fifty policemen were kept busy a quar-ter of an hour to drive the new arrivals out of the hall. The meeting was opened promptly at 8 o'clock. The presiding officer was A. de Angelo. The speeches were nearly all in Italian and the denunciations of all in Italian and the denunciations of the New Orleans tragedy were almost terrifying in their vehe-mence. There was hardly a sentence that was not applauded to the echo, especially when the speaker spoke of the necessity for satisfaction for the killing. The meeting was an orderly one, barring the great excitement shown.

When President de Angelo stepped to when President de Angelo stepped to the front on the platform and rapped for order there was a lull in the noise of the hall. He said, quietly and im-pressively: "Italiani." A moment's silence, then a roar of "bravo" burst from the thousands of Italian throats. The ap-plause was resistless in its vehemence for fully five minutes, and so it was through the entire meeting. Every man was excited to the highest pitch. But a word seemed necessary to transform them into a throng of demons. The committee in charge seemed to realize this, and took every precaution to avoid any trouble. That there was danger was shown as the meeting was about to close. The resolutions were being read when several persons in different parts of the hall arose and asked to be allowed to speak. These requests were promptly refused by the chairman. The men who wanted to speak then appealed to their fellows, asking if they meant to sit there inactive and preing them to sit there inactive and urging them to act and revenge the wrongs done in

Dr. Assetta said he was there to protest against the villains killed his countrymen who had killed his countrymen in New Orleans. It was a deed not done by the American people, but by villains. He condemned the French press for its hostile ntitude and criticised its attempts to justify the massacre. The French were their worst enemics, and if war broke their worst enemics, and if war broke out the French would not be spared. The representative of the Italian daily paper, Il Cristofero Colombo, declared: "We Italian, classed as hot blooded and aiready compared to the volcances of our country, do not wish for war with this nation, our second fatheriand; our navy is certainly for other enomies; the first shot of our cannons must be simed at that odious Austrian flag, not at the stars and stripes, the flag of liberty. A just reparation is what we sak for. We demand it without fear, and the federal au thorities will surely grant it to us. We do not care to know if the eleven massacred human beings were guilty or not, but we look at it that they were acquitted by a court, and that is enough."

CHANGING MEXICAN COINS.

CHANGING MEXICAN COINS.

Values and Designs Will Probably Be Slightly Altered by the Espatile.
General Pacheco, the Mexican Minister of Public Works, has recently submitted to the Mexican Congress a report on the proposed changes in the coinage with a bill to carry them into effect. The report, says the Chicago Herald, says that the design on the Mexican dollar should be much better as a precaution against counterfeiting.
The present design was adopted in 1823, and an unsuccessful attempt was made to improve it in 1807. That failure and the report that Asiatic countries would not accept the new coin 1 spelled Congress to re-establish the old design, which was done so completely that the substitute bore the words "ocho [cight] reales" instead of a decimal muldivision, reales" instead of a decimal and division while the fineness of the silver was ex pressed in "dinero" and "grammes." Th order to improve the current silver dollar "un peso" (one dollar) are to take the place of "ocho reales." Instead of indicating the fineness in "dineros" and "grammes," it will be expressed by a simple decimal number. To do so a silver the fineness in the fine. simple decimal number. To do so a slight change will be made in the fine-ness, which will be 0.003 instead of 0.9277. The present design will be bet-ter executed and rendered more artistic. General Pacheco says that he would like to reform the monetary system of the Republic and put it on a more scien-tific basis, but he has decided to make tific basis, but he has decided to make only these changes, because the Mexican dellar is not only the basis of the National coinage, but it is also quoted in the principal markets of the world and is current in Asiatic countries and even in some of the Antilles. As regards small currency, it is proposed to coin a new piece—20 cents. The design of the 29, 19 and 5-cent pieces will be similar to that on the dollar. The coining of 50-cent and 25-cent pieces is to be discontinued, as they do not harmonize with the decimal system. In respect to gold it has been decumed not harmonize with the decimal system.

In respect to gold it has been deemed expedient to make some important changes. General Pacheco says: "In the first place it is proposed to raise the fineness from .875 to .000, the former grade being an exception for which there is no warrant. In the next place this would place the two metals in the ratio of 1 to 15½, which is the legal ratio in several nations. Besides, this would lessen the depreciation of silver, which now stands in the ratio of 1 to 15½. gold piece than $5 is to be coined. The design of the gold coin is to be improved and altered. On the obverse it will resemble the silver coin, but on the re-verse will be the bust of Hidalgo, in order that no one may mistake a gold coin for a silver one.

The bill which General Pacheco has prepared declares that the monetary unit shall be the silver dollar, 1933 fine and 27,073 grammes in weight—that is, as at present. The executive is given ample authority to earry the bill into effect. HOW TALLEYRAND WAS LAMED.

The cause of Talleyrand's lamene has long been a matter of dispute.

During the fifty-two years which have elapsed since his death, his deformity has been accounted for in all manner of ways. Some stories have it that the defect was congenial; others that it was oc-casioned by an accident which befell him in his infancy. The most curious explanation of all is that offered by a writer in the Quarterly Review. "To quote the very words of our informant, an eminently distinguished diplomat," says this writer, "Talleyrand's Vienna colleague, Baron Wessenberg, told me years ago that his lameness was owing to the carelessness of his nurse, who laid him down in a field while she flitted with her sweetheart, and on coming Some stories have it that the defec to the carelessness of an aure, was laid him down in a field while she flirted with her sweetheart, and on coming back to her charge found some pigs dining on the infant's legs. I am sure that Wessenberg told me this as an established fact, and I am all but sure that his authority was Talleyrand himself."

In the extracts from his memoirs, pablished in the Century, Talleyrand himself settles the controversy. "At the age of four," says be, "I accidentally fell from the top of a cupboard and dislocated my foot. The woman to whose care I was intrusted only informed my family of this several months afterward. * * * The dislocation of my foot had been neglected too long to be remedied; even my other foot, having to bear alone the whole weight of my body, had grown weaker, and thus I remained lame for life. That accident," he adds, "had a great infinaccident," he adds, "had a great influence over my whole life." One would suppose that a conscious ness of his own deformity would have made him more lenient to the defects of others. That this was not the case i illustrated in his reply to a questione whose misfortune it was to be cros

Society Out West.

"There are," said the drummer, "some persons who seem to think that the people of the far West, however enterprising and hospitable they may be, live in a rough-and-ready sort of style. Of course, the fact is that people of refined tastes like to be civilized wherever they are, and in these days of quick communications. tastes like to be civilized wherever and are, and in these days of quick commu-nication the people at all established centers of population live in about the same manner throughout the country. One would be likely to find as many men in dress suits at an evening social enter-tainment in a Montana or a Texas city as he would at any similar entertain ment in an Eastern city."
