CALLED BY DEATH.

Sudden Termination of the Career of Bishop Phillips Brooks.

The Great Divine Passes Away at Boston, After a Very Brief Illness—Sketch of His Life.

DEATH OF BISHOP BROOKS.
BOSTON, Jan. 23.—Bishop Phillips Brooks died at his residence, 233 Clarendon street, at 6:30 a. m. of heart failure, brought on by a fit of coughing. The death was entirely unexpected. He was taken ill Thursday with sore throat, but nothing serious showed itself until last evening. Dr. E. A. Beach, his physician, discovered late Sunday evening diphtheritic symptoms and considered a consultation advisable, and called in Dr. R. H. Fitz. At this time nothing serious was anticipated and Dr. Fitz remained only a short time. Dr. Beach was with the bishop the entire night. About 6:30 the patient was seized with a coughing spasm which lasted for a few moments, and his heart ceased to beat.

Cause of His Death.
Dr. Beach said that death was caused from heart failure and not from diphtheria. No diphtheritic membrane was discovered by a superficial examination. Bishop Brooks had said very little during his illness. He apparently had no idea that his end was near, and he did not leave any last message. On account of the contagious character of his disease it is not improbable that the funeral will be private. The bishop's brothers have been sent for, and on their arrival the matter will be settled.

Chief of His Friends.

The scene at the bishop's house was one of grief and desolation. No erape had at that time been placed on the door, but anxious friends, among whom the news spread with great rapidity, were making inquiries, on the street and in the immediate neighborhood, of every one whom they saw coming out of the house. Within the house a few of the bishop's most intimate friends, who seemed hardly to realize the sudden loss, were gathered in groups in the different rooms. The spirit that pervaded the assemblage was one of complete and overwhelming sorrow. They could not comprehend the fact that Bishop Brooks was dead, and again and again the question was asked: "Is the bishop really dead?"

Bishop Brooks preached his last sermon at the Church of the Good Shepherd, on Cortez street, last Tuesday evening.

Career of a Great Divine.

Mr. Brooks was born in Boston on December 15, 1853, of an old New England family, being one of six brothers, four of whom became honored members of the Episcopal church. His parents were members of St. Paul's church, Boston, and their children were reared under the healthful influence of Dr. Alexander H. Vinton, then rector of St. Paul's. He received his early education at Phillips academy, Exeter, N. H., founded by an ancestor of his; pursued his studies at the Boston Latin school; entered Harvard, was graduated there in 1875 and studied theology at the seminary in Alexandria, Va., after which, being ordained in 1876, he was called to the Church of the Advent in Philadelphia as assistant to his old pastor, Dr. Vinton.

In 1882 he became rector of the Church of the Holy Trinity, Philadelphia. Very young for so serious a charge, he sprang at once to the position of a famous preacher, and crowded congregations listened with delight to the eloquent simplicity with which he presented the truth of the Gospel. It was there in the first months of the war that he preached with magic force against slavery and his eloquence was widely recognized as one of the potent factors in fanning the flame of patriotism which sent Pennsylvania's sons in thousands to the front to fight for the union.

After a most successful pastorate of seven years in Holy Trinity he accepted in 1870 the rectorship of Trinity church in Boston and at the age of 25 years he entered upon the work which has proved of such unique and telling influence on church life and general religious thought in that city. The present edifice of Trinity church, noted for its unique architecture and fine interior decorations, was built for him at a cost of over $1,000,000. After becoming rector of Trinity church Dr. Brooks declined many calls elsewhere, among them a proffered professorship at Harvard and the office of assistant bishop of Pennsylvania, to which he was elected in 1886.

Men of All Creeds His Hearers.

Men of all classes and creeds gathered at Trinity church Sunday after Sunday, filling the great edifice to overflowing. The theology of this broad-minded man recognized the value of every phase of Christian activity if it but showed itself earnest and helpful. The same liberality of thought which made him willing and glad to preach the word of the Master in the churches and halls of other denominations was displayed in his own pulpits, and it was this which drew so many strangers to his sanctuary. He was in touch with the thought of the age in which he lived, and this, added to his broad sympathy with every Christian effort, made him more popular than any other Episcopal minister in the country.

Elected Bishop.

Phillips Brooks was elected bishop of the Episcopal church of Massachusetts at the diocesan convention held in Boston, May, 1891, receiving 92 of the 154 clerical votes and 71 of the 200 lay votes of the convention. The election was afterward approved by a majority of all the bishops in the United States and of the standing committees of the various dioceses.

Two Lives Lost.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 23.—Mrs. Kate Rosier, a widow, aged 25 years, and George Rosier, her nephew, aged 6 years, were burned to death Sunday morning in a fire which consumed four dwellings on Salisbury street in the Twenty-seventh ward. Four others, John Fetterlein, Mrs. Margaret Fetterlein, his wife, and Sophia and Barbara, his daughters, were seriously burned and narrowly escaped a fate similar to that of the two first named.

AN ANGRY MOB.

It Grows Furious at a Denver Minister's Activity—Deeds of Violence Follow Dean Hart's Prominence in the Sunday Closing Movement, Which Resulted in the Arrest of Theater Managers.

DENVER, Col., Jan. 23.—All places of amusement were closed Sunday night by order of the police board, and the proprietors and employes were arrested and placed in jail. Among the theaters raided were the Tabor grand opera house and the Wonderland. The places had been permitted to get under way and large audiences were present at all of the theaters when they were closed. The police were forced to make the arrests by Rev. H. M. Hart, dean of the Episcopal church, who has inaugurated a crusade against Sunday amusements and insists upon the enforcement of the law, which has heretofore been a dead letter.

After the theaters were closed immense crowds gathered on the principal streets and talked the matter over, much excitement existing. Suddenly a move was made for Dean Hart's house, and in a short time about 2,000 people surrounded it, and after hooting and cat-calling stones were thrown, smashing several windows. An arbitrary alarm was turned in and the police soon arrived on the scene and dispersed the crowd without making any arrests. Nobody was in the bombarded building at the time, the dean and his family having been removed by friends a short time before the mob arrived. The excitement soon subsided and no further trouble is expected.

DUST TO DUST.

Funeral of Ex-President Rutherford B. Hayes at Fremont, O.

FREMONT, O., Jan. 21.—Business was suspended and the public schools closed while the citizens gathered yesterday at 2 p. m. to pay their last tribute of respect to their most honored, eminent and beloved townsman, ex-President Rutherford B. Hayes. The morning dawned as bright as was the unostentatious life of the illustrious dead. Public buildings, churches, stores and many private residences were draped and bound with black, and on every hand the emblems of mourning bespoke the deep regard and sorrow of the community.

Rev. J. L. Albritton, of the Methodist Episcopal church of Fremont, read the Twenty-third Psalm after a hymn, and was followed in prayer by President J. W. Bashford, D. D., who some forty-five years ago united in marriage Lucy Webb and Rutherford B. Hayes in Chillicothe, O. Then the remains were taken to Oakwood cemetery, where the body was placed by the side of the ex-president's wife.

President-elect Cleveland was present at the exercises and expressed himself feelingly on the death of Gen. Hayes. Between the president-elect and Gen. Hayes there was the warmest of friendship. The other notables present were:

MAY GO FREE.

Daniel Coughlin, the Cronin Convict, Granted a New Trial.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—Daniel Coughlin, the only survivor of the trio of Irishmen sentenced to imprisonment for life December 16, 1889, for the murder of Dr. P. H. Cronin, will have another tussle with the law for freedom. At the October term of the supreme court an appeal for a writ of error in the interest of the convict was made by Attorneys Wing and Forrest. The appeal has been sustained, a decision to this effect having been rendered Thursday at Ottawa.

The supreme court's decision means that Coughlin is, for the time being, in the eyes of the law, free from the brand of murder; he is no longer a convict; he is as innocent, in the legal sense, as when he took his place in the dock three years ago last August with Beggs, Kunze, O'Sullivan and Burke to answer for the killing of Dr. Cronin in the Carlson cottage. But the charge of murder still hangs over him, and the new trial that the decision of the supreme court involves may send him back to confinement or to the gallows. It may, on the other hand, result in his getting his liberty.

Three of the quintet placed on trial for the murder are dead. John F. Beggs, who was acquitted, was the first to succumb, his death occurring the latter part of 1891. O'Sullivan and Burke both died in prison, the former May 18 and the latter December 8, 1892. John Kunze, who was convicted of manslaughter, was granted a new trial and released.

Rev. F. E. Wright, of Rockford, again assisted Rev. Smith, of the Ashley church, last week, and will be with us several days of this week, if nothing prevents. The interest deepens and many feel to sing that beautiful hymn as never before, commencing: "Oh! that my load of sin were gone." Please read entire.

Another laurel was added to Grattan's fame for happy surprises, Jan. 19th, when friends completely filled the home of Mr and Mrs Ambie Jenks, in honor of Mrs J's 32nd birthday. Care and sorrow, common to all, were cast aside by the throng and the scripture measure of joy reigned instead. The pantry was filled with a like measure of eatables, from chicken pie down. Before refreshments were served Henry Green was requested to represent the company in presenting the host and hostess with two easy chairs also other gifts to Mrs J., two cakes from Mrs Cranmore, being especially admired, bearing the date 1861, the year of Mrs J's birth, and the year 1893, encircled with a beautiful white wreath of flowers and leaves made of frosting. It is almost needless to add, that evening soon caused the guests to depart, all wishing Mrs J. many more such anniversaries.

STYLE IN READING.
Style means several things and they all apply to reading. Style means fashion; there are fashions in reading. Style means manners; there are manners in reading. Good manners and bad manners in print may be as impudent as anywhere. Intelligent people prefer reading that approaches them like a gentleman—sensible, earnest, and to the point. A bargain is a magnet; uncover it and needles will head your way. We offer that bargain when we say to our patrons, send us $3.40 and it will pay for a year's subscription to both this paper and the Cosmopolitan Magazine. The offer is a genuine bargain and those of our friends who are not now taking a first-class Magazine into their homes should see to it that they do not miss this opportunity.

ALL THE YEAR ROUND.

The greatest success hitherto attained in the Magazine field must be accorded to the Cosmopolitan, jumping as it has from 16,000 copies in 1889 to an edition of 150,000 copies for January, 1893. That there is cause for this success goes without saying. No other publication, of any description, before the public makes the effort to give its readers the best of everything, and succeeds in doing it as does this monthly. Its illustrations lead the world; its literary merit is certainly of the highest order that money can buy or brains produce. Each month, from year's end to year's end, can be found inside its covers something to instruct and please every member of the household. In fact a year's careful reading of the Cosmopolitan means a progressive step in the education of any man or woman in the land.

WE OFFER YOU

the monthly visits of this popular Magazine for a year, if taken in connection with a year's subscription to JOURNAL for only $3.40. This we are able to do through a special contract made in behalf of our readers with the Magazine publishers. The price of the Cosmopolitan alone is $3.00, at which price it is the cheapest of monthlies, giving as it does 1336 pages of reading matter, with over 1200 illustrations for a single year's subscription. Send your order to the Lowell JOURNAL, CHAS. QUICK, Publisher.
