Awful Disaster to Soldiers dn an Outing in Chicago.

Sudden Explosion of a Calsson-It Is Followed by a Fusiliade of Shrapnel Shot -Four Soldiers Killed-Fourteen Persons Injured.

A FATAL PARADE.

Chicago, July 17.—One platoon of battery F, Second United States artillery, was wiped out of existence Monday afternoon by the explosion of an ammunition caisson near the corner of Dakwood and Grand boulevards. Every man in the platoon was either killed outright or fearfully bruised and burned. The unrecognizable fragments of the two cannoners who sat on the limber were scattered over several acres of ground. One man had his head blown from his shoulders. The cavalry escort, consisting of two The cavalry escort, consisting of two troops in front of the ill-fated battery and one behind, was stampeded, and many of the men blown from their horses and seriously injured. Nine heavy artillery and cavalry horses were killed outright, the pieces of some of them being blown through the air. Heavy caissons were torn literally to atoms. Great counks of iron and sections of wheels were hurled hundreds of yards. Some of them pierced the stout oak doors and the plate-glass windows of the residences along the boulevard, and some buried 'themselves deep in the ground. Several persons on the street were more or less injured. One woman was firiven insane. All the houses for a block or more in every direction were honeycombed with shot, the windows being broken, the roofs punctured, furniture and carpets torn and burned and yards of plastering shaken down. The shade trees, big elms and cottonwoods, which stand along the bouleward were stripped of their branches and foliage and pierced with hundreds of pieces of shrapnel shot and fragments of iron. Blood was everywhere. Great pools of it stood along the edges of the pavements and were constantly fed by trickling streams from the mangled heaps of dead or dying men and horses. It was spattered on the telegraph poles, and the brown stone residences, 150 feet away, were frescoed with it. Five minutes after the explosion the street for several blocks looked as If two armies had fought desperately over it and had withdrawn for a moment to prepare for another sally. For the first time the troops sent out to protect the city against the strikers had experienced all the horrors of war.

Theory of the Explosion.

disaster, sent Col. Williston to the scene to secure a report of the affair. Col. Williston, while he could discover absolutely no facts concerning the cause of the explosion, has a theory which may explain it. He said:

may explain it. He said:

"My theory of the accident is that the plug at the base of one of the shrappels became loosened, some of the powder leaked out, and being ground and pounded by the joiting of the limber, ignited, the powder in the cartridges exploded, and the ignition of the other two cheets followed.

"The shrappel is probably the most deadly projectile thrown by modern guns. The 3-inch shells are of steel and carry at their tips a brass combination fuse surewed on; this tase has both a fulminate cap and a time lass, so that the shell will explode either on sentinct or at any desired range. In the head of the shell is about half a pound of powder. Back of these are the missiles that till. The bullets are arranged in layers, each layer resting in a brittle cast-iron sing. The rings are perforated so that the bullets in dearly in them. When the explosion layers, each layer resting in a britis cast-iron ping. The rings are perforated so that the bullets lie deeply in them. When the explosion bombs each of these rings is burst into a number of jagged fragments that make awful wounds. Each shell holds 150 bullets, and it is ampested the rings will burst into 150 bits—300 priesites in all, leaving out the scrape of the chalf feath?"

For many years the writer has been thrown in contact with expert typewriters in his business as an official stenographer. In view of the many gibes and sneers in which newspaper writers indulge on the subject of typewriter operators of the feminine gender, it is matter of simple justice to say that the women with whom he has been associated in his business have been without exception well educated, refined, capa-

It seems unfair to judge of any business or profession by the weaklings engaged therein, whether the work be law, medicine, the ministtry, shorthand or typewriting, and any one who cannot accomplish twice as much dictating to a good typewriter operator as with a pen is unable to do that either because e does not know how to dictate or because he has an inferior operator. Crystal Island. That known as the Crystal island is one of the small islands of which so many are dotted about in the Pacific ocean. It received its name owing to its being one mass of beautiful crystallized carbonate of lime. One of the most remarkable features of the Pacific ocean, and one that distinguishes it from every other, is the vast assemblage of small islands with which, on the map, it appears to be crowded, particularly in the portion situated between the tropics. These islands are of three distinct forms -the coral, the crystal and the volcanic. Of these the first formation greatly predominates, but the largest islands are of the last description. Of the crystal formation Crystal island is one of the few specimens known. There is a mountain known as Crystal hill on the coast of the Caspian near Baku. What is Beauty? "Question of a Blind Man!"

Replied Aristotle. But Mrs Sherwood eavs that it is "dynamite" in her article which opens the interesting pages of the July Cosmopòlitan. Beauty is afways a fascinating subject, and Mrs Sherwood's discussion is an especially interesting one. That the July Cosmopolitan is a midsummer number is shown in many Mr and Mrs Ed Fallas, of Grand Rapdirections. Three short stories, including one of sport and adventure, two travel articles, and other light matter, make up 128 pages of charming summer read-

The July Cosmopolitan marks the close of the first year since the revolutionary announcement was made that the price of that magazine, already low, had been cut to one half of three dollars a year. All sorts of predictions have come to be unfulfilled during the year-it would be impossible to maintain the rate-the quality would be lowered-the size would be decreased. But even severe critics admit that with each succeeding number there has been a betwerment in the quality of articles and illustrations, and the size remained unchanged, except the always growing advertising pages. The magazine printed for the six months embraced in Volume XVI. one million four hundred and nineteen thousands copies, an entirely unapproached record, and has doubled its already large plant of presses and binding. machinery. The walls of the magazine'snew home are rapily rising at Irving-onthe Hudson. Artistically designed by McKim, Mead & White, the new building, with its eight great porticos, will be 279 feet long by 76 feet wide, and one of Miss Anna Baumgardner is visiting the most perfectly lighted buildings in the world, having 169 large windows, each nearly double the size of the ordinary window opening.
