The second thought that comes to mind concerns those ten years. I feel a special tribute is due—over due to all teachers and administrators for their dedication and sacrifices during most adverse conditions. Many of the Junior High members of the teaching staff could easily have requested a transfer to one of our newer buildings. It is these teachers and the entire Junior High staff that I am thinking of today.

Beginning July 1, Florida will begin enforcing a new "habitual offender" law against bad drivers. Once classified as an habitual offender a driver will have his license revoked immediately and cannot get another for five years. If caught driving without a license the driver can be sentenced to jail for a year and fined $1,000. And the law is retroactive five years back.

The new law defines an habitual offender as one who's been convicted three times in five years of serious offenses: DUIL, commission of a felony involving use of a car, driving on a revoked or suspended license manslaughter involving a car, or failing to stop and ren-der aid where there are persons killed or injured in a traffic crash; also, one who has been convicted 15 times within five years for any moving violation for which points are assessed.

Michigan Bell Will Enlarge Central Office

Michigan Bell announced today a $5.5 million project to enlarge and modernize its South-Hall central office building at 1167 Cass Avenue, SE. Robert I. Thole, local Michigan Bell manager, said two floors and a rooftop structure to house mechani-cal equipment will be added to the two-story Hall portion of the existing building. Construction was expected to begin in June. Thole said this multi-million dollar project will include not only the building addition but also the installation of electronic telephone switching equipment

This newest type equipment, developed by Bell La-boratories, will provide improved and faster handling of local and long distance calls, and will have capacity for future telephone growth in the area.

The building addition, with each floor measuring 69 x 116 feet, will have a reinforced concrete frame with a face brick exterior for all floors. The rooftop enclosure for mechanical equipment will measure 63 x 45.

Thole explained the Hall structure will be virtually windowless, as are most new central office buildings housing telephone equipment.

He said such design permits better control of temper ature, humidity and dust to protect the sensitive electronic switching equipment.

When the addition is completed late in 1973, Thole said Western Electric technicians will begin installing the ESS equipment which should be operational the latter part of 1974.

This will be the third enlargement of the Hall portion of the building since it was built in 1927. Growth over the years required additions in 1941 and 1948. The Hall central office serves about 31,000 customers in the 241, 243, 245 and 452 exchanges. Contractor for the building project is Triangle Associates, Inc., of Grand Rapids. Architectural services have been provided by Graheck, Bell, Kline and Brown, Architects & Engineers, Inc., of Traverse City.

The original South building was purchased by Michigan Bell from the Citizens Telephone Company in 1923 and was connected to the adjoining Hall building when the latter was opened in 1927.

Survey Checks Consumer Buying

Questions on consumer buying and home improve-ment expectations will be asked in this area by Prograu of the Census interviewers during the first two weeks of July, according to Robert G. McWilliam, Director of nationwide effort to collect information as a guide to Federal agencies and other groups in developing programs on consumer spending patterns.

A sample of residents here will be asked if they expect to buy a house, car, or major appliance during the next year and if they have made recent purchases of these items. Homeowners will be asked about home improvements and repairs during the last three months nd any planned for the future.

Results of the last survey, taken in April, showed in increase in the number of households expecting to buy houses, major appliances, furniture, and carpets over expectations reported in the January survey. However, expectations to buy new cars and to make home improvements were not significantly changed.

Information supplied by individuals participating in the survey is kept confidential by law, and will be published only in the form of statistical totals.

The Census Bureau representative in this area is Shirley A. Ford.

WOTV New Call Letters

Effective July 1, 1972 WOOD-TV, Grand Rapids, Michigan will change its call letters to WOTV. On a recent Television interview, Willard Schroeder, Vice President and General Manager of WOOD-TV Time-Life Broadcast, Inc., presented the following explanation for the Call Letter change:

"WOOD-TV will become WOTV on Saturday, July One. The TV station will remain the same in all other respects. It will still be on Channel 8, still have the same staff, still be affiliated with NBC and still be owned by Time-Life Broadcast.

The change results from relatively recent Federal Communications Commission regulation which forbids a TV station to have the same call letters as an AM or FM radio station owned by different persons.

WOOD Broadcasting, a company of local citizens organized last year, bought WOOD-AM and FM on February 15 from Time-Life Broadcast. The purchase included the right to continue to use the call letters WOOD-AM, FM. The time span of February 15 to July 1 was granted by the FCC to allow an orderly and well publi-

We regret having to change the call letters. After 21 years, I suppose all of us have grown somewhat attached to them. On the other hand we agree with FCC philosophy that you should know WOOD-AM, FM are owned and operated by persons other than those who will operate WOTV, Channel 8.

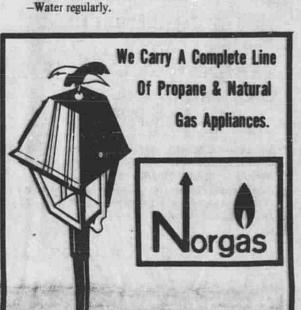

We picked WOTV from a large list of possibilities. We hope you like them. We were proud of the name WOOD TV and we promise you we'll try hard to make WOTV a name that continues to reflect the best TV service we can bring to you."

Austin indicated that on occasion an over-anxious salesman will make an error.

One of "Quick Buck Charlies" favorite tricks is known as "low balling." This is where he convinces a a customer to sign a blank contract, verbally agreeing on a price. When the contract is returned to the custo-

"The Automobile Dealer's Association is very good about policing its own ranks, and 'Quick Buck Charlie' usually doesn't last long in the business. Unfortunately, his bad deals reflect on the dealership and the owners," "We cannot blame the dealers in 90 percent of the cases. They are unable to read a customer's mind. And they cannot tell that the money they receive as a down payment is meant to just hold the car until a better deal can be found," Austin said.

"Therefore, I am warning the customer . . . until you make up your mind and select the car you want at the price you want to pay, don't sign the contract,"

"Do not sign a contract unless the dealer also signs. And, do not sign a blank contract," he said.

Because of its strong belief in the free enterprise system, Amway Corporation, a leading in-home sales company, is building a $3 million Center of Free Enterprise on its grounds in Ada.

The 60,000 square foot, 12-sided building is designed to include exhibits from the New York World's Fair Hall of Free Enterprise, created by the American Economic Foundation. Also housed in the building will be the Free Enterprise Institute, a program funded by Amway and aimed toward developing economic educa-tional programs for high schools and colleges.

Scheduled for opening in Spring 1973, the center was officially launched with Cornerstone Laying ceremonies in 1971, proclaimed as Free Enterprise Day in over 30 states.

Designed jointly by Jay VanAndel, Chairman of the Board, Richard M. DeVos, President of Amway and a group of architects and engineers the Center of Free Enterprise building is planned for maximum flexibility and efficiency of space. A unique feature of the 12-sided building is its steel structure. Each of the steel sides is of equal length, sloping toward the center of the structure. ## Pesticides Defined

Do you know the difference between insecticides, herbicides, fungicides, rodenticides, nematocides, miticides and pesticides? -Insecticides control insects.

Herbicides control weeds or undesirable plants. -Fungicides control plant diseases caused by fungi and prevent decay.

Rodenticides control mice, rats and other rodents. matocides control plant-destroying soil eel

Miticides control mites that feed on plants and Pesticides include all of the above. It is any substance that kills or controls a pest.

Dairy Breeds Are Declining

The diet-conscious consumer has been largely re-ponsible for the decline of some breeds of dairy cattle

Holstein cows dominate the Michigan dairy industry today because of growing demand for low-fat milk. High-fat Channel Isle breeds—Guernseys and Jerseys and Brown Swiss and Ayshires make up only 15 percent of the dairy cattle population.

The milk of the high-fat breeds is also high in other solids, protein, minerals and lactose. This type of milk gains less profit on today's market than that of the Holsteins because of a minimum fats and solids regulation. Dairymen who raise high-solids breeds would like to keep the minimum fat standard at its present level but increase the minimum for solids.

What makes somebody decide to be an exchang tudent? Jussi Olavi Tarkkanen talked to a friend who had been an exchange student and that spark motiva-ted an interest in traveling and in meeting people. After filling out forms, an interview, and waiting a summer, Jussi (pronounced "you-see") found himself in Ameri ca and staying with the Craig Pitcher family at 5625 Far Hill Drive, Grand Rapids, as an exchange student at Forest Hills High School.

What is it like to be an exchange student? Jussi feels that school here is much easier. In Finland they have 16 subjects a year and take three or four languages. #### State Fire Marshall To Investigate Fire

Fire of mysterious origin damaged a Saranac village dump truck June 19 according to an Ionia sheriff's deputy on patrol in the village.

Consequently Maynard Bartlett, Saranac fire chief, and his men, have requested an investigation by the state fire marshal's office.

Sirens sounded about 8 p.m. reported the sheriff deputy who, after checking at the fire station, followed the trucks to a building described as the old creamery, where a dump truck was ablaze. Volunteer fireman Paul Terrell, reportedly the first man there, found the east door to the building unlocked.

After extinguishing the fire, which did not damage the building, investigation indicated someone had re-moved all the keys from the vehicles stored in the building, including a key to an old fire truck. An air com-pressor, normally located behind the village trucks, had been re-located.

Further investigation showed the north door to the building was open and entry to the building was gained by knocking open a small door on the north side of the

Warned About Poor Food Handling

Individuals, or groups, sponsoring barbeques, cook-outs and other short term food concessions are cautioned about poor food handling practices and the spread of food borne illnesses.

Dr. W. B. Prothro, Director of the Kent County Health Department, has prepared guidelines to assist those who may plan a food service operation on a tem-porary basis. These guidelines are available free from the Environmental Health Division, phone 456-3486, and apply to Grand Rapids as well as the rest of the county.

The guidelines point out that the food supplies must be obtained from approved sources, not home prepared or canned. That food must be covered and refrigerated, cold foods held at 45 degrees or below, and hot foods held at 140 degrees or above.

Other regulations cover water supply, cooking equip-ment, and the washing and santitizing of utensils and equipment. The importance of personal cleanliness, hand washing and garbage disposal are spelled out.

Dear Editor:

I noticed with a grin and remembrance the "Thank You" letter to you and Dr. Yost.

As a graduate with the class of 1942 from an area school, I can well remember those who said, "I don't like the Class rings," "I don't like the graduation invitations" and nothing ever suited them.

But they were the ones who always had something else to do and never wanted to serve on any committee, work or otherwise. We, who were dependable never had any choice but to carry the load for the "free-loaders." I can remember decorating for every class party, planning food, choosing the class ring and the invitations, working on clean-up committees, etc. I also worked for my room and board.

We then had a class advisor and we did vote on such things as who wrote the class song and the class colors, etc.

Some 30 years later all the work details, commit-tees and such that I served on, and became involved in everything, are just fond memories to me now.

Too many young people today do not get involved but think they are too busy or the other half of the class think they are better. I've heard that too, but I believe it's up to the class advisor to get everyone involved. Everyone should graduate feeling they were needed and did their best.

Thank you From the Class of '42

Dear Editor:

In the past two weeks, several letters have appeared in this column to which I feel compelled to answer. In each case, the letter referred to the motto of the Class

First to Richard Siegle: Thank you! I could not have explained the motto better.

Second to my anonymous classmate: I am very sorry you did not have a chance to help select the class motto. The entire process was done completely by volunteer help. If you recall, we had a class meeting to-ward the end of the year. At this meeting, your class officers asked for volunteers to make decisions and plans for the class night activities and other end-of-the-year business. We decided to pick everyone that volun-

Of the 187 people in the class, only about 30 offered their help, or roughly 16%, and from that group, less than a dozen attended the meetings. So, while the entire class had the opportunity, only about 6 percent made the final choice.

Finally to Dr. Yost: I appreciate your concern over the provocativeness of the young adults in our class.
I'm sure Rick explained the motto completely to you, but perhaps a bit of background on its derivation would be appropriate here.

The original quotation, "I, a stranger and afraid in a world I never made," is from the lyric poem, "The Laws of God, the Laws of Man," by A. E. Houseman. In the poem (according to Frank N. Magill, editor of "Magill's Quotations in Content)" Houseman expresses his bitterness toward rigid rules that are set up for the conduct of man. The poet, unconventional in his own life, rebels and asks only that he be granted the nis own laws. and God would condemn him for his actions, so would he judge harshly of some of their deeds.

Then the poet asks himself, when did he make laws for them? He answers by saying according to the way the world is run, might makes right, and the laws of God and man will hold because "though both are foolish, both are strong." These lines express the poet's feelings:

"And how am I to face the odds Of man's bedevilment and God's? I, a stranger and afraid.

In a world I never made.
They will be master, right or wrong;
Though both are foolish, both are strong."

It has been said many times that ours was not a traditional class. Thus, Houseman, being unconventional himself, it was only natural that we base our motto on one of his quotations, not in condemning the Laws of God and man, but in questioning man's ideas and actions over which we had no control.

I hope I have cleared up some anxieties for some people. If anyone has further questions or comment, please contact me either privately or through use of

Thank you Dr. Yost, Rick, and anonymous friend for writing.

> Sincerely, Dennis Thomet, President Class of '72

state figure.

Real Estate Value

Ionia county real estate value has been raised nearly $5 million dollars, according to Bernard Ardis, equali-zation director. He said he had received notice from the state tax commission they had increased the equalized value of the county by $4,473,526.

The board of commissioners had equalized the county value at $121,738,110 but with the amount added by the state the real estate value is boosted to $126,-

In spreading the new property tax the local tax offi-cials will multiply the equalized value figure of the indi-vidual by the factor of 1.03675 to bring it up to the

Ionia county also had $25,379,569 in personal property bringing the overall state equalized figure to $151,-

The hordes of mosquitoes which seem to descend every time you step out the door this spring may be more than a simple annoyance.

An unusually large mosquito population may be spreading encephilitis, dog heartworm, allergies and secondary infections.

Heavy rains in late April caused flooded areas where mosquito larvae developed. A cold spell followed by warm weather then triggered mass hatchings rather than the usual gradual development of the mosquito population.

Just how many cases of mosquito-borne encephali-tis have occurred in Michigan, is not yet known, but there are in the state a number of mosquito species known to transmit the disease. The disease, which strikes children primarily, often goes unreported or is diagnosed as aseptic meningitis. Many people have min-or symptoms but don't see a doctor.

Dog heartworm is another mosquito-borne disease that has increased markedly during the past five years. Hunting dogs in particular are vulnerable to the parasite. Preventive and curative drugs can curb the disease, but we expected the parasite drugs are the disease. but are expensive, impractical or risk the dog's health. Far-reaching mosquito control programs would be a more practical solution.

"People in Michigan tend to accept mosquitoes as a necessary evil, when for as little as a dollar a year per citizen, mosquito abatement programs could nearly eliminate the problem. Michigan is one of the few states without tax-supported mosquito control programs. Here, each county or municipality deals with mosquitoes in its own way. Funds for Lansing's control, for example, come from its department of parks and recreation. If budget cuts are necessary, such minor operations as mosquito control often suffer.

Control must come through broadscale independent programs, Newson says. Permanent drainage ditches in marshy areas, implantation of mosquito larva-eating fish, and use of insecticides as a last resort are effective and inexpensive when part of a wide area tax-supported system.
