Citizens Are Asked To "Speak Up"

"Lowell citizens, here is your chance to speak up," explained Lowell Rotary Club representative Norm Borgerson, as he unveiled plans last week for a July 9 Rotary discussion entitled "What Can We Do To Make Lowell A Better Town?"

"On that date, Borgerson revealed "a panel of local businessmen and women, organizational representatives, etc., will discuss the issue brought before them, through suggestions offered by the public."

"Whatever complaint or suggestion you may have, big or small," Borgerson said, "we'd like to hear it, and perhaps following the panel discussion, steps may be taken on a corrective route, but we cannot guarantee that we'll be able to put a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow."

The panel discussion is slated to be held during the Rotarian's noon luncheon meeting on July 9, at the Lowell Masonic Lodge.

"Citizens wishing to have their complaints or suggestions aired, without repercussion," Borgerson explained, "should check any of the items on the form below, adding their comments, etc., and mail it to the Lowell Ledger, Box 128, Lowell, Michigan, and mark it "Rotary Discussion."

"If the form below, does not give you adequate room to be heard," Borgerson added, "use as many sheets of paper as you would like, leaving no stone unturned."

In the issue of the Lowell Ledger following the Rotary discussion (July 16) an accurate account of all topics discussed will be published, omitting names, of course.

Lowell citizens interested in running for municipal offices to be filled in next September's election, have until August 12 to file petitions.

Grochowalski Wins Malizia Scholarship

Tony Grochowalski of Forest Hills Central High School, a three-sport athlete, has been named the Frank Kalizia scholarship winner at Grand Rapids Junior College.

Grochowalski was one of the top overall athletes in Forest Hills' bumper crop of performers this year. He was a member of the football, basketball and baseball teams three years.

Tony was named to the O-K White Division all-star defensive team in football last fall. As a linebacker, he was in on 35 tackles, intercepted five passes and considered the "silent leader" for the Rangers.

The Forest Hills ace was also voted to the All-Conference team in basketball. He averaged 13.4 points a contest and was always assigned to guard the opposition's top scorer.

In baseball Grochowalski played shortstop on the Ranger team, which finished second in this year's race. Tony, one of the top prospects in baseball in the area, batted .300 in league play this spring and was rated a solid gloveman.

He plans to attend Michigan State University after two years at Junior College.

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

I am, as always, interested in different points of view, and this week, pass along to the Ledger readers, the reprint of an article that appeared June 18 in the Lapeer County News, written by Norma Gleason.

POINT OF VIEW

WHERE DO THE BRIGHT GIRLS GO?

By Norma Gleason

Well, you know how it is. You break an arm or leg and it's put in a cast. Suddenly, everybody you meet has an arm or leg in a cast. Or their best friend, sister or Aunt Minnie just broke a leg, or an ankle, or a foot. What it is, of course, is increased awareness on your part. Plus attention to your plight on the part of others who suffered similar injuries. There are no more people with broken arms or legs now than before.

It's the same way with women's liberation. You start thinking about it and you start noticing things. That's an increased awareness on your part. You notice things you wouldn't have noticed before.

One recent Sunday afternoon I sat on a bleacher in the sun at the Showboat Amphitheater at Lowell and watched the Lowell High School class of 1975 graduate.

And the thought that came to mind, as I saw the row of "dignitaries" on the stage was, "Where Are The Women?"

No women. All males, representing (more or less) educational and community leadership.

High School superintendents and high school principals are always men. (They allow women elementary principals occasionally.) Presidents of the Boards of Education are men. (Once in a while a token female is elected to the board. Rarely is there more than one woman serving on a school board.)

At the graduation ceremonies, even the American Legion Auxiliary award was presented by a male!

There were 59 honor graduates (if I counted asterisks correctly) - 23, male, 36 female, at this June, 1975, ceremony.

Maybe 25 or 35 years ago, those dignitaries on the stage were themselves honor students graduating from high school. And among those bright high school kids were many girls, probably outnumbering the boys. (This is typical, not necessarily because girls are brighter, but because they tend to apply themselves to their studies more diligently.)

Where are the bright girls, the honor students of 25 and 35 years ago? Why were none of them (or their sisters from other schools) on that stage? Where do the bright girls go?

Where will Kathleen Anne Anderson and Linda Sue Bailey be, 25 years from now, while Craig Allen Anderson and John Alvin Bergy are sitting on platforms somewhere waiting their turn to speak at the microphone?

The motto of Lowell's graduating class was "Not what we were yesterday... or are today... shall we be tomorrow."

Think about that in terms of gender. Where will the bright girls be tomorrow?

The bright boys will rise to the top. They will get the good jobs, the plaudits, the acclaim, the prestige, the honors, and if they're lucky, the money.

But the bright girls - they will be in the rank and file, sitting back.

Next year, Lowell, at least have your Legion Auxiliary president up on the stage to present their own award. Okay?

Quality and Hard Work Spell Success At Kropf Orchard

"We must have a lot of confidence in the fruit growing business or we wouldn't have plans to set out 50 acres of apple trees over the next three years - and we wouldn't have invested $100,000 in a new 8,000-square-foot fruit packing facility."

That was Roger Kropf speaking in a recent article published in the Great Lakes Fruit Growers News.

The recent addition now provides storage capacity for some 72,000 bushels in CA (controlled atmosphere) and another 30,000 in cold storage. In the winter 50 percent of the fruit shipped comes out of storage that same day.

"We have always worked on the principle that if we put up quality fruit and provide customers with good service, there will be no trouble in making sales."

Roger, brother Ken, and father Carl Kropf make up the three-way partnership in Kropf Orchards, located north of Lowell.

Kropf Orchards raise 150 acres of fruit, mainly apples, but with an increasing acreage in peaches and pears.

Quality and hard work have been behind these successful orchardists for 85 years since grandfather Chris Kropf started to farm and Carl recalls when they started their apple packing operation 40 years ago, they grew only 6 acres of apples.

Today they may pack out more than a thousand units a day in plastic bags, bulk cartons and field crates, according to the orders to be filled and the grade of fruit.

The bulk of the apples packed come from an association of 15 growers, including among them six who have a financial interest in the storage facilities. The six are guaranteed a five-year lease with an option for renewal at the end of the period.

They also operate a subsidiary, Kropf chemicals, supplying spraying materials to growers.

Working with growers from the time trees are planted through harvest, the Kropfs services include advice on which varieties to plant, chemicals to use, pruning methods, spraying, weed control, marketing and just about anything else having to do with fruit growing. They hold six meetings annually to take an in-depth look at orchard practices. It is important to have updated and accurate information about each orchard operation at all times.

The Kropfs employ some 40 extra persons during harvest and as their production is virtually 100 percent fresh market, all fruit is hand picked. They personally oversee all of the picking to insure top quality without bruising to the fruit.

In addition to the extra harvest help, they employ both full and part-time workers. About 12 women, mostly housewives work on the grading line. Two full-time men take care of jobs in storage, packing, pruning, machinery repairs and such other tasks as may be necessary to the operation of the orchard business.

"There's always something to be done somewhere in the packing house or the orchard," Roger said.

The biggest demand in apples is for Red Delicious followed by Ida Red, McIntosh, and Jonathan, with Red Rome, Golden Delicious practically even for fifth place.

The Kropfs believe in advertising but Roger emphasizes that quality is a necessary ingredient and without it advertising may use its effect.

Besides their regular customers, apples are moved on the Lansing retail market in a stall three days a week from August to May.

For six weeks each summer during peach harvest, the Kropfs open their roadside market on the corner of Lincoln Lake Avenue and Four Mile Road.

Our Liberty Declared

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.

DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE. On every Fourth of July, the United States celebrates its birthday. On that date, in 1776, representatives of 13 British colonies in North America adopted an eloquent statement setting forth the reasons for declaring their independence from Great Britain.

No one was much surprised at the news. War against England had already begun. Battles had been fought at Lexington, Concord, and Breed's Hill. Colonial troops had seized Ticonderoga and Crown Point. George Washington had been named to head the colonial army. The spirit of independence was abroad in the land. Many men were asking, with Samuel Adams, "Is not America already independent? Why not then declare it?"

The actual birthday of the country was much quieter than later celebrations of its anniversary. No Liberty Bell rang out the glad news to a waiting crowd. The great decisions for independence had really been taken much earlier.

On June 7, Richard Henry Lee of Virginia moved in the Continental Congress that "These United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free & independent States. Three days later, Congress voted to name a special committee to draft a declaration supporting Lee's resolution. On June 11, it named John Adams, Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Jefferson, Robert Livingston, and Roger Sherman to the committee. Jefferson was given the task of preparing the draft. The committee titled its draft "A Declaration by the Representatives of the United States of America in Congress Assembled."

Congress approved the Lee resolution on July 2. Strictly speaking, this act became the official declaration of independence. On July 4, Congress adopted the final draft of the declaration in Independence Hall in Philadelphia. This draft was largely Jefferson's work. John Hancock signed the document "by order and in behalf of Congress." Charles Thomson, secretary of Congress, attested Hancock's signature.

The public did not learn the actual words of the Declaration until July 8. The final version was called a "unanimous" declaration. But the word "unanimous" could not be properly used until July 19, when the New York delegation to Congress, which had not voted on July 4, reported that it favored the Declaration. Congress then ordered a copy of the Declaration engrossed on parchment and signed by all members of Congress. Fifty members signed the document on Aug. 2, 1776.

The ideas contained in the Declaration were not new. The English had used many of the same ideas to justify their revolution of 1688. But the simple beauty of the Declaration of Independence stirred the hearts of men and women from New Hampshire to Georgia.

When the British raided Washington in the War of 1812, the government hid the Declaration in Leesburg, Va. The Library of Congress in Washington held the original document from 1921 to 1952. Then the government moved the Declaration to the nearby National Archives Building.

Let's gather a "Basket of Posies, Soft as Silk, and Lavender Green" and bring them to the Lowell Showboat Garden Club Flower Show to be held at the Runciman School Auditorium on July 25, 4 p.m.-9:30 p.m., and July 26, 10 a.m.-8 p.m.

All entries must be in by 11:30 Friday morning, July 25. Judging starts promptly at noon.

MSU's Farm Tour In Ionia County

Michigan State University's State Farm Management Tour is in Ionia County August 21.

"The purpose of this annual summer event is to portray the management level required to operate in today's modern agriculture. The name suggests the tour is geared toward farmers, but it is also intended for the non-farmer," says William S. Pryer, Ionia County Cooperative Extension director.

Featured during the day-long tour will be two dairy operations, a swine farm, beef and sheep farm, poultry producer, cash crop operation, fruit farm and a recreation business.

"None of these farms are too distant from each other and since the county is fairly close to metropolitan areas, this should be an excellent opportunity for urban residents to see what life is like on a well-run farm," Pryer says.

MSU specialists will be at each of the eight stops to explain what makes each farm operation unique. Farm owners and managers will be glad to demonstrate how the farm functions.

"Youngsters will be able to see fresh eggs produced; cows milked; have a look at beef cattle, sheep and young pigs; ride horses; see how fruit is harvested and shipped; and how grain is grown," Pryer says.

A special feature of the day will be a noon program and picnic lunch at the Ionia Free Fair grounds. "Serving will begin at 11:45 with live entertainment presented. At 12:30 a special program on the history of Michigan agriculture will be presented, narrated by MSU Experiment Station Director Sylvan Wittwer," Pryer says.

Maps, special brochures and related information will be available at county Cooperative Extension offices throughout Michigan about a month ahead of the tour date.

"This tour should fit in beautifully with those planning vacations that time of the year because a wide variety of farm life may be seen within a relatively small geographical area. Several of the farm wives are planning to open their homes to the public for the day. So it should be an inexpensive, good educational day for the entire family," Pryer says.

Ionia County is within 150 miles of Detroit and 50 of Flint, Saginaw, Lansing and Grand Rapids. Easy access to the farm sites is provided by I-96 which traverses the southern part of the county.

Wool Maggots

Wool maggots may cause biting, scratching and death in sheep unless a proper prevention and routine inspection program is followed, says Harold A. Henneman, Michigan State University professor of animal husbandry.

"Maggots are mainly attracted to sheep that are dirty with manure or urine. Flies are also drawn to raw skin which may result from lambing, castration or docking. Eggs are deposited, hatch and the larvae feed directly in the wool and skin," he says.

The adult flies are twice the size of the common housefly and have a brilliant, metallic, bluish or greenish color behind the head. They appear in early spring and reproduce until hot weather. Life cycle for the flies is three weeks.

The best control is good management, Henneman says. Early shearing, clean, dry bedding and using protective fly repellents for castration and docking of late lambs are important preventive measures.

If sheep become infested, the wool should be clipped around the infested area and Smear 62 or EQ-335 applied. Some sprays contain dyes for future identification of infested sheep.

The Removal Or Razing Of 16 Buildings

By Dave Barnes

First visible project prior to the construction next year of the $3.2 million, four-lane, divided M-21 between the East Beltline and Ada, a distance of 5.3 miles, is the removal or razing of 16 buildings from the new right-of-way.

David W. Miller, Michigan Highways and Transportation Department project engineer for this major improvement and others in the Lowell area, says that of the 16 buildings, some like an old garage, are being razed because they are of little value, but some, like homes, are being moved to other sites, one of these 10 miles away.

Miller says the present M-21 will be removed, with actual construction probably starting next April, and it will take about nine months for the new highway to be built if there are no delays, Miller says.

The present M-21 between the East Beltline and Ada was originally built of concrete in 1928. This part of M-21 was improved with blacktopping many years ago.

Miller says the present M-21 will be removed, with the chunks of concrete and blacktopping being used, perhaps, to control erosion in some places, protect shorelines of designated lakes and for fill.

He adds the new highway will eliminate some steep hills and sharp curves.

The major improvement is needed because of the tremendous growth in traffic, says Michael Jones, Grand Rapids district traffic engineer for the MDHT. He explains traffic in the last few years has risen about 5 percent per year between the East Beltline and Ada, due to the increasing number of commuters annually.

Traffic counts late in 1973 on M-21 from Int. 96 freeway east 1.3 miles to about Carl Drive showed 9,800 vehicles traversed this section in a 24-hour period, he says, and from Carl Drive to just west of Amway Corporation, the count stood at 8,500.

Miller points out the new right-of-way is 275 feet wide, including the present right-of-way of 100 feet, the median will be 75 feet wide, the median, narrowing at the East Beltline and Ada ends of the new highway, will become a center lane to facilitate left turns, there will be 10 intersecting roads and a 50-foot "drop-off lane" at each of these intersections will facilitate right turns.

Tractor Pulling Contest In Alto

Tractors of all shapes and sizes will convene in the small rural community of Alto, Saturday, July 12, for a day of weight lifting.

Beginning at one o'clock, in the afternoon, the Alto Businessmen's Association will sponsor their annual tractor pulling contest, which last year, drew statewide entries.

Divisional classification competition, from garden to super modified, will take place at the corner of Timpson Avenue and 64th Street, where there is adequate parking and side-line seating for spectators.

After the excitement in the winner's circle has settled down, the day's activities will be climaxed with a street dance in the evening.

All proceeds derived, will be used by the Association in the sponsorship of a children's Christmas Party.

More Suggestions, Questions Needed

"Lowell citizens, here is your chance to speak up," explained Lowell Rotary Club representative Norm Borgerson, as he unveiled plans last week for a July 9 Rotary discussion entitled "What Can We Do To Make Lowell A Better Town?"

"On that date, Borgerson revealed "a panel of local businessmen and women, organizational representatives, etc., will discuss the issue brought before them, through suggestions offered by the public."

"Whatever complaint or suggestion you may have, big or small," Borgerson said, "we'd like to hear it, and perhaps following the panel discussion, steps may be taken on a corrective route, but we cannot guarantee that we'll be able to put a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow."

The panel discussion is slated to be held during the Rotarian's noon luncheon meeting on July 9, at the Lowell Masonic Lodge.

"Citizens wishing to have their complaints or suggestions aired, without repercussion," Borgerson explained, "should check any of the items on the form below, adding their comments, etc., and mail it to the Lowell Ledger, Box 128, Lowell, Michigan, and mark

it "Rotary Discussion."

"If the form below, does not give you adequate room to be heard," Borgerson added, "use as many sheets of paper as you would like, leaving no stone unturned."

In the issue of the Lowell Ledger following the Rotary discussion (July 16) an accurate account of all topics discussed will be published, omitting names, of course.

Working Women Use Less Household Energy

Michigan State University energy studies indicate that households with full-time employed homemakers use 8 percent less household energy than families with nonemployed homemakers.

These findings by MSU's Institute for Family and Child Study differ from those of a similar Ford Foundation study.

"Last year some people blamed the energy crisis on the working woman, but our data suggest the non-employed homemaker uses more residential energy than both the full-time and part-time employed woman," says Mary Ann Eickenberger, a project researcher.

The working woman also uses residential energy during non "peak load" periods, such as evenings and weekends. This helps alleviate electrical "brown outs" and power failures.

The research also found nonworking and working homemakers owned similar numbers and kinds of appliances. This disputes the theory that working homemakers substitute the energy of appliances for their own human energy.

Eickenberger's findings were part of a larger study, funded by the Michigan Agricultural Experiment Station, on the function of the family ecosystem in a world of changing energy availability.

The project, conducted during May and June of 1974, studied families from the rural and urban areas within the Lansing, Mich. Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area.

Fire Chief Issues Firecracker Warning

"There is no such thing as safe fireworks," says Lowell Fire Chief Frank Baker as he annually reminds residents during the approaching Fourth of July holiday of the dangers of fireworks. "Only when everyone knows the facts will there be an end to Independence Day tragedies from these toys."

The Fourth of July, which should be a happy highlight of the summer results in injuries to nearly 6,000 children and 4,000 adults caused by fireworks across the nation.

Leading the list of major injuries caused by fireworks are impairment or loss of eyesight, deafness, and loss of fingers and hands, says Baker. "Other effects can be severe burns, broken bones, severe cuts, and deep abrasions."

"Parents must remind their children never to play with fireworks, or to accept these dangerous toys from their friends," says Baker. During a fireworks display, children should not move in for a closer look, when the fireworks are being ignited.

Sparklers, considered safe by many parents, can approach a temperature of 2,000 degrees and remain hot long after they have stopped throwing off sparks. Sparklers alone have been responsible for burns, blindness, and even death to children throughout the United States during the Fourth of July holiday.

"To enjoy the Fourth of July, make fireworks a spectator sport, instead of a participation activity," suggests Chief Baker. This year, as is the case every year on July 4th, a fireworks display will be presented after dark at Cascade and Ada, and for the first time, in Lowell.

Coming Soon . . . Lowell Day '75

Aside from being bigger and better than last year, Lowell Day '75, to be held Saturday, July 12, will be 'fun for everyone,' with a day full of activities planned to officially start off a chain of pre-Showboat events.

Getting underway at 7:30 a.m., the day's events will end at the huge amateur talent show at the amphitheatre at 8 p.m. Dr. Clark Vredenburg, Lions Club chairman of the talent show, expects some 50 acts to appear on-stage.

According to Vredenburg, 12 acts (two to appear nightly during the week long show) will be selected to appear on this year's Showboat starring the "new Kingston Trio," and John Gary.

Pancakes . . .

Lowell Day's early morning activities will include a pancake breakfast, open to all, to be served between 7:30 and 10:30 a.m., on the lawn of the Riverside School (the old junior high) on North Monroe Street.

At 11 a.m., until 2 p.m. bingo games will be played, with the site of this activity yet to be announced.

A race of all races will take place between 3 and 4 p.m., on the Flat River, when canoeists will compete in a canoe race. No entry fee is charged (bring your own canoes), and the winner will receive four free tickets to the 1975 Showboat.

A delicious ox-roast will be served at the Riverside School between 4 and 8 p.m., giving everyone a chance to relax, enjoy a delicious meal, and prepare for the amateur show.

Awards . . .

On-stage at the Amphitheatre at 7 p.m. awards and certificates earned by the riders in the Showboat's annual bike and trike-a-thons will be awarded.

Mrs. Patti Elzinga reminds all riders that pledges solicited in this event must be turned in to her at 827 N. Washington Street, before certificates can be awarded.

The conclusion to the day's festivities will be the amateur show . . . it'll be a big day for all the workers, winners, and everyone who has come out for a 'big day of fun.'
