Civil Defense Meeting Tonight April 9 Important To Every Cascade Resident

You are Civil Defense Mr. and Mrs. Average American citizen. It makes no difference whether you live in the city, in the country, or if your home is in the suburbs, you are still the most important factor in your own safety.

The Federal government has a very functional Civil Defense program on a national level, the State Government has worked out a very good plan of Civil Defense on a State level; your county officials have done a remarkable job of caring for your safety in time of disaster, even your twp. Civil Defense officers have spent many hours trying to work out a plan for your protection in case of an emergency. Is all of this work, this time, and this effort to be wasted? Are the thousands of dollars spent on Civil Defense to be spent in vain? They very well could be if you, plain everyday citizens do not pitch in and do your part.

Of course volunteers are needed in many phases of the work in our township. In fact, we are short handed in almost every department of our organization but, the main purpose of our next meeting is to help you to know what to do in case of an emergency. In the home, on the job, no matter where you are, there is a proper procedure for you to follow.

Thursday evening at 8 p. m. Cascade Township is having a Civil Defense meeting in the Cascade School. (Tonight, April 9)

To Present Films

There will be at least three films shown, all pertaining to Civil Defense. Captain Randall of the Kent County Civil Defense program will be present to narrate the films and give a short talk on "What you as a citizen can do to help your country and community."

This meeting is of vast importance to anyone and everyone in the community who values their homes, their lives, or the lives of their loved ones. If you don't care for your own life, why should someone else have to worry about it?

It is a well established fact that the G. O. C. (Ground Observer Corps is and has always been a very important function of the Civil Defense program.

The members of this organization are the look outs in time of an alert. Theirs is the important job of letting us know what direction our trouble is coming from and from their information headquarters can tell us when and where disaster will strike.

The meeting this Thursday evening, April 9, has a twofold purpose. In addition to our regular Civil Defense program, there will be a group of presentations made to members of the Thornapple Valley Ground Observer Corps. These well-deserved merits and certificates will be presented by Frank Atherton, Supervisor of the Thornapple Valley Post.

Now don't forget the date, Thursday April 9! The time, 8 p. m. The place, Cascade School.

The new fire truck and emergency wagon will be on display. Everyone try and be present.

Refreshments will be served at this meeting.

Lyle Dykhuizen,
Coordinator

They have a son graduating from Lowell High School this June; a daughter in the ninth grade at Forest Hills High School; a son in the seventh grade at the Junior High and a daughter in the first grade at Cascade School.

Mrs. Burkhead taught at Lexington School in Grand Rapids immediately after graduating from college.

If you enjoy reading her column or have ideas along the lines she will be writing on, you can be sure Mrs. Burkhead will be interested in hearing from you.

When You Start To 'Go Broke' In Business You Cut Back; Why Can't The State of Michgan Do Likewise?

by Berkeley Smith, Iosco County News

For several months we have been reading and hearing on all sides that the State of Michigan is "flat broke."

We are not making any attempt to place the blame, for that would be too difficult. It could well be a combination of the unwillingness of both the administration and the legislature, plus the all too numerous divisions, bureaus, departments and commissions in state government to "cut back" to save the people of the State of Michigan unnecessary expense.

When a businessman sees that he is getting into trouble he has two alternatives, he can borrow money if his credit is good and hope for the best; or he can retrench and tighten up his belt and continue his business until the sun shines again—or he can shut up shop altogether.

The State of Michigan has only three choices, but it can hardly "shut up shop." It can borrow money, it can raise taxes, or it can retrench the same way a businessman does.

Knowing the situation as we do, and as everyone does, the state will attempt the first two courses first. It always has.

But borrowing money and spending more is not the answer. Borrowed money has to be paid back, and that means it has to come from somewhere.

Taxation, naturally, is the favored means of raising money by the State, as has been proven by past experience.

There is only one bad feature about that. The people of the State of Michigan are just about fed up with taxes. We have too many of them, not all of them out in the open, many are hidden.

Everybody knows that we have a sales tax, that we pay cigaret taxes, gasoline taxes, excise taxes (federal), alcoholic beverage taxes, unemployment taxes (for the businessman), business activities taxes and intangible taxes (also for the businessman). The businessman also pays personal property taxes to the local units of government and schools—and they are not low. We know this for we just paid $500 in taxes. Of this amount nearly $200 went to the county and more than $300 to the schools.

We are not protesting these latter taxes, as they are for local services, but we do not feel that we are getting value received from the other taxes which we pay.

While the State of Michigan is faced with bankruptcy, the Civil Service Commission is talking about pay raises; the legislators are talking about more money for themselves; and both the administration and the legislators are wondering how they can get it.

Our schools and colleges are faced with payless paydays, but we haven't heard about the state administration or the legislature not getting paid.

There have been commissions an study committees (the Little Hoover Committee in Michigan a few years ago), all of which have come up with ways in which the State of Michigan could save money. But, almost without exception, their suggestions have fallen on deaf ears and have been dropped. Yes, here and there a few minor economies have been temporarily adopted, but no real money has been saved.

We, as said earlier, don't have the answer, but we do feel that the time has come for the administration of the State of Michigan and the legislature to come down to earth and operate the State of Michigan like a sane, sound business, and "pull in their horns" on expenditures and restore a balanced budget by economy rather than increase taxation.

There has to be an end to taxation somewhere, and who knows, the goose that lays the golden eggs might die—it already has to a certain extent through the loss of industries and the stifling of new industry in the state.

Look for a Wet Season in 1959 Brings Mixed Emotions to Michigan

It's beginning to look like Michigan will be quite a bit wetter in 1959 than it was last year.

If so, this news will bring mixed emotions to the state's $650,000,000 tourist industry, to the sprawling conservation and recreation "industries," and to just about everybody who likes the outdoors.

Michigan suffered drought conditions during the winter and the spring of 1958, with below normal precipitation in nearly all areas. This was fine for ground nesting birds, not so good for fishermen, good for resort operators (who thrived under sunny skies), and bad for forests and fields, which lost growth, dried up, and suffered fairly heavy fire losses as a result.

But like it or not, snow and rainfall this winter have been above the normal of the last 30 years and well above the winter months of 1957-58.

Everyone will favor the higher ground water levels this precipitation might produce. But inland lakes and streams also stand to gain over last year's lows, a possibility to draw both cheers and complaints. In general, however, cheers will probably outnumber complaints, because low inland water levels reduced enjoyment of swimming, boating and other recreations last year.

Hydrologists say that there is no way of knowing whether this heavier precipitation will mean higher water levels for the Great Lakes. The big lakes are not so affected by precipitation as inland waters. However, in recent years, the Great Lakes have been very low and their levels normally fluctuate through an irregular up-and-down history. It is tempting to speculate that this inland precipitation foreshadows rises in Great Lakes levels.

For Michigan, precipitation in November was generally normal to heavy; in December, it was normal in the north but slightly below normal in the south; and in January it was considerably heavier than normal in the lower peninsula, somewhat below normal in the upper peninsula. And although final figures for February have not yet been compiled, precipitation was generally heavy and is expected to be above normal. Last winter was well below normal for nearly all months and locales.

To Present GOC Awards At Civil Defense Meeting

On Thursday evening, April 9, the persons who have earned G. O. C. awards are asked to be present at the Civil Defense and Firemen's meeting at the Cascade School at 8 p. m. and get their awards.

Certificates of participation in the G. O. C. program at Cascade have been received. There are about 200 who have served at the post since it was opened, and each person will receive a certificate.

They may be obtained from Mrs. William Spaulding or Frank Atherton.

Since both honey and walnuts promise to be on the list of February plentifuls, why not try warm honey and chopped walnuts on ice cream for a new sundae treat?

February 28 through March 7 is National 4-H Club Week. Some 69,000 4-H Club members in Michigan are taking part in this week's observance.

TV BRIEFS

News Anaylst Eric Sevaried: "No one should have illusions about television. It is never going to be primarily an educational and cultural medium. Americans would never tolerate the medium assuming a moral proctorship over their lives."

Announcer Hugh Downs: "A fellow doesn't have to be a failure to lose his job on TV. Just drop two points in the ratings and you'll find yourself walking around with your neck in a sack."

Sportswriter Red Smith, discussing TV's effect on baseball: "Let's face it: The sport of Father Chadwick and Al G. Spalding has been taken over by John Barleycorn and Lady Nicotine, who are not going to let it go as long as it sells their products. A game designed for a diamond 90 feet square has been shrunk by the magic of electronic science to fit a 21-inch screen."

LUMPY ROAD TO LAUGHTER

The Three Stooges, veterans of over 200 movie shorts, seem to spend most of their film time pounding each other into oblivion. Included in their bag of tricks are such niceties as eye-gouging, blows to the skull with mallets, chairs or anything not nailed down, and many well-placed kicks, punches and slaps. Although Moe Howard, Larry Fine and Joe DeRita have been slapping each other around for years, they wear little scar tissue. Once Moe and Larry fell downstairs in a mock fight and wound up in adjoining hospital beds. Another time Larry sustained a brain concussion when a breakaway chair failed to break. And once Moe, in a phony football huddle, clouted Larry so robustly in the jaw that Larry's eyes crossed. Moe recalls, "We shot a close-up of Larry right then. Best shot in the whole film!"

SEE WHAT I MEAN?

An official of Music Corporation of America, the talent agency, has described TV star Ann Sothern as "a bread and butter girl. Always working, always making money." Miss Sothern agrees, "Well, that's what I am. I leave the house early in the morning and I bring home the bacon late at night and the servants think I'm crazy to work so hard. And I need the servants because I can't run a house while I'm at a studio all day earning the money to pay someone to run the house while I'm earning the money!"

PROCESS OF ELIMINATION

As a youngster, Efrem Zimbalist jr., mingled with such musical greats as Rachmaninoff, Godowsky, and Toscanini. Son of a famed concert violinist and a Metropolitan Opera star, Efrem knew many celebrities of the music world who were frequent visitors at the Zimbalist home. Today, Efrem is the star of one of TV's top detective series, "77 Sunset Strip." How did the cultivated son of two such famous musical personalities ever end up acting in such incongruous surroundings? Zimbalist gives this explanation, "I never did quite know really what I wanted to do. When I got to Yale I made a list of all the things I didn't want to do. It was pretty impressive. And among the things that seemed like fun was acting. After the war I got a chance to act in a Broadway play and that made me an actor."

George Jessel: "I am not an actor. I have seldom played any part I didn't write myself."

Ann Sothern: "I'm a business girl in spite of myself."

Moe Howard, of the Three Stooges: "We've went through two generations already and I'll tell you now: Kids is still kids."

Looking In ON OUR SCHOOLS

by Helen Burkhead

The idea for this column occurred to me the night of the last Boosters' Club meeting. As I sat there I thought how unfortunate it was that not more parents were in attendance to hear the important things being discussed. Why couldn't I write a weekly column summarizing meetings of this kind and also including some of the nice things our girls and boys are doing in school? If this column makes enjoyable and informative reading it will continue throughtout the school year.

The program for the Boosters' club meeting was a well-planned panel discussion moderated by Mel Buschman, president of the High School P. T. A. Each member of the panel gave a five minute summary of his knowledge of a certain phase of the athletic program. Ed Shy, athletic director of the high school, was especially graphic in his account of the accomplishments this past year of the high school and Jr. high competitive sport program. It seemed to be a remarkable beginning for so new a school. Then he outlined a proposed program for next year including some of the frustrations involved by not having adequate athletic equipment. If, for example, we had a football field, we could have home games and collect revenue from our athletics. One statement Mr. Shy made which startled me was that in our future varsity basketball games we are not allowed to play in our own gymnasiun because of inadequate seating capacity. The playing floor and other aspects of the new gym are as fine as any in the area, but lack of bleacher space on the sides prohibits other schools from bringing their students. Thus it was pointed out that the Forest Hills athetic program cannot grow without financial support to supplement its existing equipment.

A ping-pong tournament is being played at the High School during noon hours. All grades, 7 through 10, are participating, and perhaps by this time next week I can get some word of the champions. Are there any adults brave enough to challenge any of these youngsters to a game of ping-pong?

This seems to have been a week for meetings. On Thursday I attended an evening Mothers' Club meeting at Cascade Elementary School. I was pleased to see so many fathers present. Before the speaker arrived the Mothers' Club members voted to spend $450 under the caption "Investments in our children" which appealed to me. Broken down it read something like this:

Bathroom scale	$ 10.00
Lighted bulletin boards	100.00
Maps and map cases	250.00
Cart for housing and moving reference books	90.00

The total expenditures this year, which includes some overlapping of undelivered and unpaid items of last year, comes to the amazing total of $1,375.00. This is a lot of money for a group of Mothers to earn and turn over to their school. Congratulations, Cascade Mothers' Club.

The speaker at this meeting was a welcome and pleasant surprise. Dr. Arnold D. VanHattum, speaking on the "Role of the Parent" injected humor in nearly every statement. He told us that although it is hard to be a good parent, we are doing a better job than we think we are. Parents are endowed with a natural instinct of love and joy for their children. If we let our hearts rule our decisions and really enjoy our children we will do a fine job and find the happiness and fulfillment in raising our family that is intended. He advised us to leave much of the advice written for parents by unqualified authors alone. Dr. VanHattum said there is no formula for raising a child. Each case is a unique problem, but all children need consistancy of discipline, firmness, security, and love from their parents.

Next week I hope to "look in" on the seed experiments being conducted by Mr. Dangl's 7th grade science classes, and explore the requirements for an accredited high school.
