Runciman Elevator Burns Saturday

Shown above is a picture taken of the fire at 6:15 Saturday morning with the arrow pointing to the head of the electric sorting machine division where the fire is believed to have started. Dense smoke and flames were shooting skyward when the Lowell firemen arrived.

X-Ray Unit To Be In Cascade

The Kent County Tuberculosis Society will have their Christmas Seal Mobile x-ray Unit at two locations on June 26. From 9 a. m. to 11:30 a. m. the location will be at the Farmer's State Bank, Alto, and from 1 p. m. to 4 p. m. the location will be the Cascade Pharmacy, 6859 Cascade Rd. S. E.

In one year, 250,000,000 acute respiratory sicknesses were reported by the National Health Survey. An estimated 250,000 people have TB in its active, infectious form; and 100,000 of them may not even know it. They may not be getting treatment and may be infecting others.

Take advantage of the location of the x-ray unit and have a chest x-ray and make sure you are free from TB and other respiratory diseases.

The most profitable holdovers some of our countries baseball teams have from last season are the peanuts.

Behind the Scenes In American Business

The exceptional rise in unemployment among youngsters in their late teens has received attention from Labor Secretary Wirtz. It is a problem not to be regarded lightly. Neglected, an unemployed and baffled youth can be attracted to the sort of movements that give rise to Hitlerism, to take an extreme example.

In any age, especially this one, the 18-to-20-year-old without special skills has a painful time making economic progress. He is the first to be drafted for military duty, and in peacetime he is warned and advised by well-meaning but not necessarily omniscient elders who may or may not recall clearly how they managed to "get ahead."

The bulk of the economic attention has been directed recently toward greater social security and medicare for oldsters. Some of the welfare offerings for the aged go beyond what the oldsters are requesting from their representatives. Perhaps the latter should be directed more of their attention toward opportunity for the young rather than toward welfare for the aged.

PLASTICS BOOM—With an eye on the $700-million—and still growing—market for fabricated plastic building products, The B. F. Goodrich Company recently established a building products department and announced availability of vinyl building panels and flexible vinyl flashing.

Donald R. Gray, manager of the department, said initial sales efforts would be concentrated on industrial and commercial building applications. However, he sees expanding opportunities for new products in all areas of the building industry.

The first white flexible vinyl flashing—in addition to the standard black—is being made available for industrial and commercial applications. The white material is said to have good weathering properties and exceptional flexibility over a wide range of temperatures. It also blends well with many light-colored roofing materials.

The new plastic product can be used for flashing parapets, vent stacks, fascias, roof drains, expansion joints, pipe entries and roof-wall junctures, or as a waterproofing membrane for parking decks, utility tunnels, promenade decks, shower rooms and swimming pool aprons.

TIMELY GIFTS—Watches, long a traditional gift for graduating high schoolers, are expected to register another sales upsurge this June. Sentimental consumers are expected to spend slightly more for graduation watches than they do for Christmas or birthday timepieces for teen-agers.

Market researchers at Bulova Watch Company say one in eight of the nearly 2 million members of the class of 1963 will receive a new timepiece. For half of the recipients it will be their first watch.

About 65 to 70 per cent of the gift watches will be in the $18 to $25 price range. Another 25 per cent will receive watches costing less, and 5 to 10 per cent will be given ones costing more. All told, families and friends will spend some $4.5 million buying timepieces for their favorite grads.

Mindful of the huge teenage market (more than 23 million are in the 13-19 age bracket), Bulova last year introduced a whole new group of economy-priced, jeweled-lever timepieces. The watches, called "Caravelle," range in price from $10.95 to $29.95, and are designed in 38 styles.

THINGS TO COME—A big electrical company has developed a lamp for the outside that automatically turns itself on at dusk, and off at sunrise; it's plugged into an outdoor light socket. For fishermen, coming on the market is an all-purpose kit that carries supplies ranging from first aid equipment to sunburn creams and tools for repairing rod and reel.

The trend to "stretch" garments for females advances a step further with introduction of stretch cotton gloves in white, beige and black. The maker says the "re-coverage" is permanent.

BUSINESS HELPING—Business giving of financial aid to educational institutions, a rarity until around 1950, has assumed sizable dimensions. During the academic year now ending, industry's collective gift was in the neighborhood of $200 million—an appreciable sum but much less than the nearly $500 million given colleges by alumni and other individual citizens.

Mary-Martha Guild To Install Officers

The Mary-Martha Guild of Ada Congregational Church will meet on Thursday, June 27, in the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Peterson, 7097 Conservator Road N. at 12:30 p. m. with a carry-in luncheon.

Each member is to bring one dish and her own table service. The word is End, Devotions will be presented by Mrs. Ruth Foley.

The installation of officers for 1963-1964 will be conducted by Mrs. Lenna Cramton. These new officers are president, Ruth Foley; vice president, Mona Rooker; secretary, Alice Morris; treasurer, Elizabeth Peterson; and Public Relations, Nora Collins.

Candidates to be voted for, must be member of the 1963 graduating class of Forest Hills High School. Area residents may register their votes by sending one dime and the name of the candidate they are voting to Suburban Life, 105 North Broadway, Box 128, Lowell, Michigan, attn: Queen Contest. Envelopes must be post-marked before midnight, June 27.

The winner of this contest will reign at the Cascade 4th of July celebration and parade, and will draw tickets after the evening fire works for the prizes in the Cascade Businessmen's booth.

Area Artists Work On Bas Relief

The Thornapple Valley Artists have enjoyed several bas-relief demonstrations at the Tuesday night gatherings at the Cascade Town Hall. Ervin Gutsell has taught the group this flat form of sculpture, molding clay on boards by carving features and expressions of some of our members. There has been the demonstration of pouring plaster of paris to make the negative, the use of water glass and the final pouring of the plaster of paris to produce the finished bas relief.

At the July 4th celebration in the Cascade Town Hall, the work of Mr. Gutsell and others who are working on these projects will be displayed along with many of their other art works. The teachers of the summer art program will display some of their work also. This show will be opened to the public.

Applications for the summer art classes, sponsored by the T.V.A. are still being accepted. Art instructions for the youngsters from ages 6 to 17 are being offered to all the youths of the area. There will be ten lessons of 1½ hours each for $5.00 beginning the week of July 15. You may call Mrs. J. Laird at 949-0489 if you wish to enroll or desire more detailed information about the program.

Steve Bushouse Selected For Soil Study At Alma

It was announced last week that Stephen Bushouse, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bushouse, 1201 Thornapple River Drive, a sophomore next fall at Alma College has been selected to work on a National Science Foundation soil study this summer.

The NAS grant of $19,800 was made to Alma College for a study by Dr. Ronald O. Kapp of the Biology Department to support research titled, "Pollen Analytical Studies of Middle Pleistocene Sediments". The field work will be carried out this summer in Wyoming, Colorado and New Mexico with laboratory work at Alma College.

Fire Threatens Sorting Machine Plant

The entire center section of the elevator was in flames by 6:30 a. m. as Herbert Elzinga and William Christiansen, sr., watch from the south side of the plant. Soon after this picture was taken help from Saranac, Ionia, Cascade and Ada arrived and the flames were brought under control. The loaded railroad cars shown on the track along side the plant were removed during the height of the fire with man power and a truck.

Gala Fourth of July Celebration To Be Repeated At Cascade This Year

As in recent years past, the coming 4th of July will be celebrated in Cascade with a full-scale community effort. Starting with a parade and street carnival at 11 a. m. on the morning of the fourth, there will be a full day of activities culminating in a bigger-and-brighter-than-ever fireworks display as darkness falls.

Events during the day include a canoe race and parade of decorated boats on the Thornapple River between the bridge at Cascade and the Ada dam, three or more baseball games, a firemen's water fight and streetful of booths where fun and food will be dispensed in about equal quantities.

Bookmobiles To Stop In Cascade

School is out and here comes the bookmobiles. Two big red bookmobiles "Big Red," and "Mike" will leave the Kent County Library daily until August 10, to bring library facilities nearer to Kent County residents.

A wide variety of materials both fiction and non-fiction is carried making summer bookmobile a family affair.

A complete schedule follows of the stops that are made in the Forest Hills area:

"Big Red," will stop at Martin School on Tuesday from 9 to 12 noon. "Mike" will stop at Knapp School on Thursday from 9 to 10; at the Cascade Drug Store from 10:30 to 12:30; and at the Cascade School from 1:30 to 3:30.

I have accepted a position with the Student Health Service of Michigan State University as of August 1, 1963 and therefore will be closing my office as of that date.

Although my office facilities have been offered for sale or rent, there have as yet been no inquiries. With the great shortage of general practitioners particularly in small towns, it is unlikely that my office will be occupied.

Are You A Father?

Sunday was Father's Day. Whether you received a card or present or not is not really important. What is important is, what kind of father are you? Do you set an example you would want your children to follow? If not, all your advice, commands, warnings, pleadings, will mean little. A humble christian life is worth a dozen sermons. Some fathers are proud that they have given their children good food, nice clothes, good education, fun and friends. But if you have left them with an empty heart, which only Jesus can fill, you have failed as a father. How many fathers have forgotten this. You as a father need Jesus as your Savior to make your life meaningful. Then you can be the kind of father you ought to be, caring not only for your children's bodies and minds, but most of all for their soul.

Know YOUR MICHIGAN LAW
by Attorney General FRANK J. KELLEY

(This is one of a series of public articles explaining in general terms a provision of Michigan law. Individuals who wish to determine the effect of any law upon their private legal affairs should consult a private attorney.)

The Michigan Municipal Finance Commission is a little known, but very important state agency. Citizens interested in local government should know more about this agency.

Every village, city, county, and school district in the state must get the approval of the Municipal Finance Commission in order to issue bonds for borrowings.

Aside from approving municipal borrowings, the Commission checks the legal procedures to see that the actions of each agency are lawful. The Commission has the authority to conduct public hearings and to take court action, when necessary, to enforce its orders.

It is composed of the following four elected officials: the state treasurer, the attorney general, the auditor general, and the superintendent of public instruction. The attorney general is the chairman. Two assistant attorneys general are assigned to assist the Commission in legal matters.

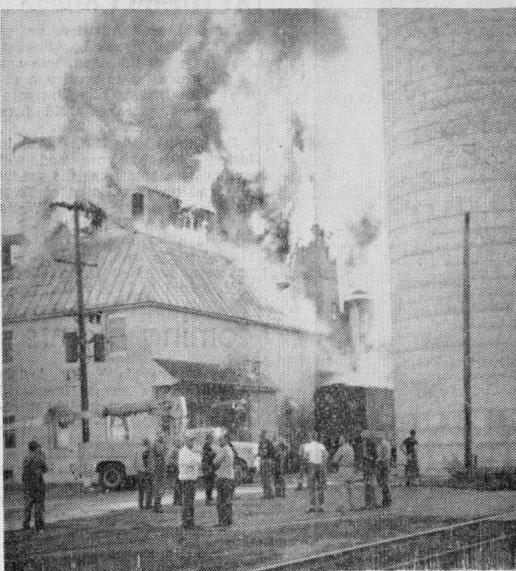

The basic purpose of the Municipal Finance Commission is to protect the credit of the state and its municipalities. It is the watchdog of municipal and state credit.

The number of applications for borrowing has jumped from 510 in 1955 to 893 in 1962. The number of applications which have been approved has increased 75 per cent in the same period of time.

Last year, for example, the Municipal Finance Commission approved borrowings exceeding $360 million. The Commission consults with municipal officers and attorneys, not only on pending applications, but also on existing and future transactions.

Hundreds Come To Fire From Area

There were hundreds of spectators from miles around who heard the fire departments from their communities leave for the fire or spotted the tower of smoke and flame from miles away. The entire building is aflame in this picture. Thousands of gallons of water were pumped on the fire from city mains and Flat river. Some of the firemen were on the job with no rest from 6:15 a. m. until 6 a. m. the following morning.

You may have grown tomatoes in your back yard for years, but until you have walked along the rows of staked tomatoes grown under glass in this area, you don't really appreciate the greenhouse tomato business.

Take, for instance, the little job of pollination. The bees did it for your garden tomatoes, but in a greenhouse there are no bees. So someone has to go along the rows (and there are literally miles of them) and shake the blossoms so the pollen will be scattered around and fertilize other blossoms.

You probably didn't bother to stake your garden tomatoes either. There was room for them to spread out and you didn't mind bending over now and then to pick a tomato or two. Greenhouse space is valuable and by staking the vines head high or more, many more plants can be grown and, of course, the tomatoes are easier to pick.

It is interesting to learn that the tomatoes develop and ripen from the bottom of the stalk up. All along the stalk are "hands of tomatoes" at progressive stages of ripeness with blossoms at the top. Tomatoes breathe and they are fussy about the right mixture of carbon dioxide, oxygen and air that is served them.

Growers have to be alert for plant diseases that could spell ruin to the whole crop.

So altogether, it takes a lot of scientific know-how to produce the luscious vine-ripened tomato we are learning to demand.

A lot of this scientific know-how and skill came from Holland with the Dutch who settled this area. Descendants of those early Dutch growers have pooled their skill and knowledge with the latest in scientific research and today's greenhouse tomato is the proud result.

Don't confuse the greenhouse vine-ripened tomatoes grown here with the ordinary hothouse tomatoes. The latter are picked quite green and gas is used to make them turn red. They are shipped in from other states and are on the market during the winter months before the greenhouse ones are available.

Greenhouse tomatoes are grown locally under about 35 acres of glass. They are available from early June to mid August. You can identify them by the green calyx that is usually left on. They look like tomatoes, smell like tomatoes and taste like tomatoes. Picked at the peak of flavor and in the pink stage, they ripen best at room temperature. The experts tell us we ruin the flavor by refrigerating them. Greenhouse tomatoes keep for quite a few days at room temperature and they should be refrigerated only when fully ripe and just before serving or if necessary to preserve their life a little longer. Goodness! I've been refrigerating mine as soon as I get them home, and I strongly suspect they may have been under refrigeration at the store.

I find there's still the old time thrill of eating a warm tomato out of hand with only a bit of salt—just as we used to—straight from the garden. They're good combined with other foods too. In fact, they add zip and glamour to any meal.

Nature Notes
by Edith Jarvi

As the walk continues, the land along the road changes. This is a meadow given over to pasture, with an occasional brush patch in it. There's a Bobwhite calling. Its nest will be in a well-protected spot in the fence-row. The eggs are hidden by an arched grass roof.

Nearby, a Yellow Warbler is singing. He likes a large bush or small tree for his nest, which is less than five feet from the ground.

The Wind Anemones are blooming with white flowers on eighteen-inch stems there in the corner of the meadow. A Bobo-link is singing as he flies over them. Perhaps his nest is there on the ground in the thick tangle of weeds and grasses, or it may be in the next field where hay is growing.

A Meadow Lark is whistling merrily from a fence post. His nest is on the ground here somewhere, well hidden with a grass arch woven over it.

The clover is in bloom and all sorts of bees are very busy in it. Those lovely swallows skimming over the hay for insects are Barn Swallows. Their nests are in that barn.

The Phoebe has her second brood in a nest on the outside of one of the sheds.

Treat Dessert Like Any Other Food

Depriving a child of dessert until he eats the rest of his meal isn't very good psychology. Roberta Hershey, Michigan State University nutritionist, says that researchers—including those at Merrill-Palmer School in Detroit—have proved that very young children treat dessert exactly as they do meat, vegetables and other nutritious foods if the dessert is placed on the table with the rest of the meal.

"Dessert should never be used as a form of a bribe," the specialist states. "It becomes too important then."

"If desserts are made from essential food nutrients," she continues, "there is no reason why the dessert should not be as important a part of the meal as anything else served."

Hamburgers, Hotdogs Are Fine Foods

Hamburgers and wieners really are excellent protein foods, according to Michigan State University foods and nutrition specialist Roberta Hershey.

What's more, they're popular with youngsters, although hotdogs may be too highly seasoned for very young children.

"If wieners have had an inredient other than meat added to them, it is likely to be nonfat dry milk—an excellent food in itself," Miss Hershey says.

MICHIGAN "NAVY" FLAG GROUND—State Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie (center), last "Admiral" of Michigan's "Navy," presents his flag to Dr. Willis Dunbar of Kalamazoo (left), chairman of the Michigan Historical Commission. Capt. Frank Nelson, last skipper of the State Highway Department ferry "Vacationland" is at right. The flag will be displayed at State Museum in Lansing. State carferries carried 12 million vehicles and 32 million passengers across Straits of Mackinac from 1923 until the Mackinac Bridge put them out of business in 1957.

Power Mowers Can Be Dangerous

Power mowers make the job of cutting the lawn a lot easier, but like most machines they can be dangerous and even deadly if not operated with proper care. Most accidents happen to the toes and feet when attempting to start the engine or when mowing on a hill or slope. If you are not careful it is easy to slip and have the whirling blade roll back over your feet.
 A four-cycle engine spinning a 20-inch blade at 3000 revolutions per minute can pick up a nail or stone and hurl it 170 miles per hour. These may hit children or others in the area and have caused a surprisingly high percentage of injuries to the eyes.
 To help prevent such accidents, Dr. W. B. Prothro, Health Officer, Grand Rapids-Kent County Health Departments, offers these timely tips today:
 1. Check the lawn before cutting and remove stones, sticks and other objects.
 2. Check all bolts, nuts and screws to see that they are properly tightened.
 3. Add fuel before starting the engine, never while the engine is running.
 4. Keep hands and feet away from mower blades when starting and mowing.
 5. Learn how to stop the mower's engine quickly.
 6. Keep children and pets at a safe distance from the mower, preferably inside the house.
 7. Stop engine before pushing mower across gravel driveways, walks or roads.
 8. Be sure of footing when mowing slopes or when grass is wet.
 9. Never plug in an electric mower when it's raining.
 10. Never cut grass by pulling mower toward you.
 11. Be extra careful on sloping ground.
 12. Disconnect the spark wire before checking or cleaning mower.
 13. Never leave crank-type starters in a charged position until ready to start.
 14. Keep fuel in marked, closed container in a safe place.
 15. Always stop the engine when the mower is left unattended.
 16. Scan the path in advance of the mower at all times for objects that might be thrown.

Completion of highway now being planned may save more than 1,600 lives in 1980 because of built-in safety factors of the new construction over present roads.

Soil & Water Conservation Municipal Water Shortages Plague Many Kent Communities; Help Needed!

Margaret Knowles, principal of the Lincoln School, has been awarded a Michigan Conservation Dept. scholarship to the Higgins Lake Conservation school this summer by your District directors.
 Miss Knowles was chosen because of her interest in a wild life conservation plan for her school and her use of soil and water conservation materials for instruction.
 "Conservation as taught at the summer sessions is not nature study, but rather the wise management and wise use of, and relationships between, all our natural resources" states Walter F. Van Dien, department education consultant.
 "Municipal water shortages and lack of safe or usable water sources are already here" declare Kent's Soil Conservation District directors.
 Cedar Springs, Lowell and Wyoming City are searching for adequate water supplies. The village of Martin, in an adjoining county, is faced with most of its residents wells unsafe because of pollution.
 "Soil and water conservation applied on all of the watersheds, large and small is important to conserve our available water supplies," say the Directors.
 Those conservation practices necessary to control rapid run-off from heavy storms are needed not only on farm land but also on the rest of our land by any and by all landowners, the directors add.

Experts Set A Credit Limit

How much debt can you afford? A roundup on credit notes that each family has to determine its own margin of safety and recommends the following procedure to parallel the way a professional would figure out that margin.
 First, figure out annual income and, next, deduct from it all necessary expenses. The remainder is "discretionary" income, money available for credit payments.
 "But this method... has to be handled with care," the editors caution. "A few misconceived entries on the income side or omissions of expenses can give you a completely false impression of your financial position."
 To guard against such errors, the magazine warns to be sure and use net income only, subtracting federal and state income taxes and other fixed deductions such as pension contributions, health insurance and union dues.
 In addition, sporadic income—the wages of a young wife who may stop working when she becomes pregnant, overtime pay and bonuses—should be excluded. And every fixed expense, no matter how paltry the amount, should be subtracted from income. On costs that can only roughly be estimated, the guess should be high rather than low.
 Finally, before figuring out money available for credit payments, savings should be deducted. Not impossible, according to Changing Times, "if you consider saving as an expense and set aside a regular amount for it in the budget. Without a cash reserve, binding yourself to fixed installment payments becomes a risky proposition. A relatively minor financial reverse could force you to default or borrow still more to pay your bills."
 When all deductions are made, the money left is the sum which can be used for credit payments.
 "Suppose you have $600 left after deducting expenses from income," the article continues. "This is money that you have been saving or spending above the level your budget indicates as the necessary minimum. Divide the $600 by 12 and the resulting $50 represents the largest monthly installments you can carry."
 If nothing is left, or not enough to cover payments, the magazine suggests that "perhaps you can make a larger down payment and thereby reduce monthly installments... or cut back on expenses somewhere."
 "If you can't do either without seriously cramping your living standards, think twice about buying that new car or television set or building a swimming pool in the back yard," the article cautions. "You may be borrowing trouble."

Pam MacIntyre Becomes Bride Of Ronald DeGreen

Last Saturday morning Rev. Raymond Gaylord performed the wedding ceremony for Miss Pamela S. MacIntyre and Ronald L. DeGreen in Central Christian Church. Pamela is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. MacIntyre of Cascade Springs Drive, and Ronald is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond DeGreen of Driftwood Drive.
 The bride wore a formal floor-length sheath gown of Chantilly lace styled with a fitted bodice. The sabrina neckline was edged in lace which was repeated on the sleeves. The three-tiered bouffant veil of English illusion was held in place with a capette of small silk organza rosettes. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of stephanotis centered by a white orchid.
 The maid of honor was Miss Linda DeGreen, sister of the groom. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Sandra Chambers, Miss Karen Hillebrand and Miss Judi Velten. Their sheath dresses were of Nile green lace with ballerina-length bell-shaped skirts. For their headpieces, they wore open pillbox hats in matching shade with nylon tulle veils. They carried colonial bouquets of yellow carnations with white centers.
 Nanette Gerling was the flower girl and John MacIntyre, brother of the bride, was the ringbearer. Best man was Robert J. MacIntyre, jr., brother of the bride. Martin Chambers, Arthur Homrich and Dan Maka served as ushers.
 At the reception held at the Cascade Hills Country Club, Mr. and Mrs. Robert VanVulpen and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lenenga were masters and mistresses of ceremonies.
 The couple will be living at 2478 Linda Avenue after a wedding trip to New York.

THANK YOU
 Mrs. Julius Boersma of 5924 Burton Street S. E. would like to thank her neighbors and friends for their many acts of kindness and their cards during her recent confinement.
