Auction, bar-b-que highlights Third Annual Youth Fair October 5

The third annual Youth Fair, sponsored by the youth groups at Cascade Christian Church, will take place this year on Saturday, October 5. The auction will begin at 2:00 on the church property, and there will be several booths operated by the different youth organizations. A charcoal chicken bar-b-que will be served to the public—with serving beginning at 4:30. Cole slaw, rolls, potato chips, pickles and beverage will be included in the bargain price of $1.25.

The Christian Youth Fellowship of the church is now soliciting used furniture, electrical appliances, farm implements, tools, vegetables, etc. that can be sold on the auction. Saturday afternoon, September 28 will be "pick up" afternoon. If you have something for the auction, please contact Miss Sharon Meines (949-3558) or Miss Robin Smith (949-0543.)

The proceeds from the Auction and Chicken Charcoal bar-b-que make it possible for junior and senior high students to attend an International Affairs Seminar for Young People, held at the United Nations and Washington, D. C. About a dozen young people are hoping to take the trip this year. A successful Youth Fair will make this possible. We seek your help and support.

For those who missed getting the Type 1 immunization there will be make up stations open on Friday, Sept. 27 from 4 p. m. to 8 p. m. in Ada Town Hall and at Rockford High School outside the city of Grand Rapids.

Reported by the Kent County Health Department in this area were the following immunizations given in the various stations:

Ada	2111
Alto	1230
Cascade	2200
Grand Rapids Twp.	2233
Grattan	1837
Lowell	4655
Martin School	2685

The next immunization for the other types of polio has been set and a better organization is being planned with more time. The first emergency planning was set up in just 10 days; and some mix ups and changes had to be made at the last minute. Type 3 polio immunization will be given on Saturday, Nov. 2, and Type 2 will be given on Saturday, Dec. 7. All three immunizations must be taken for complete protection.

Congressman Jerry Ford Reports Tax Reduction Without Spending Cut, Leads To Inflation

The tax bill (H. R. 8363: Revenue Act of 1963) is scheduled for consideration in the House of Representatives this week. The bill contains 304 pages and the Committee Report on it runs to 375 pages. The bill, representing months of work by the Committee on Ways and Means, incorporates the Committee's decisions and recommendations.

FACTS: The bill is expected to reduce taxes over a 2-year period by $11.1 billion ($2.3 billion for corporations; $8.8 billion for individuals). Present income tax rates on individuals of 20 to 91 percent are to be reduced to 14 to 70 percent in 1965. On corporations the rate goes from 52 to 50 percent in 1964 and to 48 percent in 1965 with other changes also provided.

In addition the bill contains 23 sections making changes in the tax structure. For instance, state gasoline, auto license, and certain other taxes will no longer be deductible for income tax purposes; a change is made in the taxation of dividends, in the rules for the deduction of medical expense, child-care, moving, sick pay, etc. The bill, therefore, does more than reduce taxes; it also redistributes the tax burden.

The bill does not contain all the proposals outlined by the President in his tax message of January 24, 1963. The Committee rejected some, modified others, and added a few provisions of its own. However, Mr. Kennedy has accepted the bill as approved by the Democratic majority of the Committee.

AGREEMENT: Republican members of the Committee "are in favor of a reduction in both individual and corporate tax rates" and "have always favored sound tax reduction and reform." They agree that steps should be taken to "lighten the oppressive burden of taxation." Republicans and Democrats on the Committee agree on the need for tax reduction and revision.

DIFFERENCES: An examination of the Republican and Democratic views as presented in the Committee Report reveals that the major differences between the parties involve the timing of the tax cut and some basic principles of economic and fiscal policy. The Democratic majority approved the $11.1 billion cut for fiscal years 1964 and 1965. President Kennedy asked that "the bill be enacted this year as rapidly as possible."

Republicans on the Committee contend that "a tax cut of more than $11 billion, with no hope of a balanced budget for the foreseeable future, is both morally and fiscally wrong." They are "opposed to the reduction of tax rates until there is a realistic control over expenditures." They insist that "tax reduction should be accompanied by a reduction, and not an increase, in the level of Government expenditures." Simply, the President wants this tax cut now in spite of Treasury predictions of a $9.2 billion shortage in fiscal 1964, and a $10 billion deficit in 1965. Republicans want to cut expenditures and achieve or approach a truly balanced budget before reducing taxes.

Democratic members of the Committee nearly slipped into the Republican camp when they stated in their Report that "a greater effort needs to be made, both by the executive departments and by Congress, in holding down Government spending—Top priority cannot be given both to tax reductions and to spending at the same time." In the first section of the bill they state as an objective, "balanced budgets in the near future," and declare that the Congress recognizes "the importance of taking all reasonable means to restrain Government spending and urges the President to declare his accord with this objective."

The DEMOCRATIC majority on the Committee contend "that this bill will stimulate the economy, and—after a brief transitional period—raise revenues... (which will) be used first to eliminate deficits... and then to reduce the public debt." We are also told that "the same growth in the economy which this bill provides... will at the same time reduce unemployment" and that "this bill is also needed to help reduce the persistent balance of payments deficit." Furthermore, the majority promises that this bill "will not lead to inflation." A rosy picture indeed: reduced taxes, a balanced budget, more employment, an improved balance of trade, all without inflation.

The REPUBLICAN minority believe "it is extremely foolhardy, and a cruel deception on the American people, to enact a tax cut of this magnitude so long as continuing pressures are being brought to bear by the (Kennedy) Administration for greater and greater spending." They contend that a majority of Americans agree that "it is morally wrong to mortgage the future earnings of their children and their grandchildren in order to enjoy presently the questionable luxury of grandiose spending and lower taxes." Specific mention is made of the President's insistence on enormous expenditures for "foreign aid Area Redevelopment Administration, Domestic Peace Corps, Youth Conservation Corps, urban mass transportation, accelerated public works, and general aid to education."

The Republicans insist that under this Administration the national debt will continue to grow, that the assumption of increased revenue through tax cuts is based upon a "novel economy theory which cannot be tested against any demonstrable facts," that a "program of 'planned deficits' means a long-range program of planned inflation," that increased consumer spending will produce more "work" but not necessarily more "jobs." They also hold that "the bill is another 'patchwork' of tax juggling" as far as its efforts at reform are concerned. To them the picture is not such a rosy one.

A PROPOSITION: The President and other proponents of the bill could win many converts by placing their theories and predictions squarely on the line. They can gain wide support by publicly agreeing now to support, or concede the election to, the Republican presidential candidate in 1968 if their theories do not work and their predictions do not materialize. If these "sure" New Frontier theories fail, Republicans should have an opportunity to apply their principles.

By suggesting this for 1968, I'm not conceding a Kennedy victory in 1964; I'm merely providing ample time to prove the New Frontier theories.

Open House September 30 At Work Training Center

September, 1963 marks the completion of one year of operation for the Gil Hanke Memorial Center at 524 Oakdale S. E., Grand Rapids. The board of directors is indeed appreciative of the interest shown and contributions given and in order that the public may be enlightened an "open house" is being held at the Center on Monday, September 30, from 2 p. m. to 9 p. m.

The Gil Hanke Memorial Center is sponsored by the Grand Rapids Association for the Retarded and is a work-training facility for approximately 40 young mentally retarded adults of Kent County. You will see the trainees at their jobs, the staff will be available to show visitors around and to answer questions, and refreshments will be served.

The Gil Hanke Memorial Center is under the direction of a clinical psychologist, James Split, Mr. Split attended Calvin College, is a graduate of the University of Michigan, and has his master's degree in clinical psychology from Wayne University. He spent one year at Wayne County Training School for the Retarded, one year at Ypsilanti State Hospital, working with young people who had emotional problems, and then ten years with the Children's Retreat and Training School and Pine Rest Hospital at 6850 S. Division Ave., Grand Rapids.

The Center provides not only a supervised work-training program for both educable and trainable mentally retarded adults but endeavors to at least lead some enrollees to eventual outside employment, while others remain to work under sheltered conditions with remuneration.

Also available at the Center is Parent counseling, intellectual and psychological evaluations as well as help with pre-school planning. Indeed this Center acts as a clearing house of information concerning the problems which arise in the development of a mentally retarded child.

Servicemen

Robert Michael, a 1963 graduate of Forest Hills School, is undergoing training with the United States Navy at Virginia Beach, Virginia.

During his training assignment at Virginia Beach, his address will be:

Robert Michael, 636-34-54, 1st Division Staff, DAM NECK, Virginia Beach, Virginia.

Cleanliness is thriftiness to airlines inasmuch as dirt on exterior surfaces of jet airliners can cost an extra one-and-a-half pounds of fuel per nautical mile... The reason why drive-in banks are popular with women is that they can withdraw money from the back seat while their husbands make deposits from the front...

'Get Acquainted' Potluck October 2

The Forest Hills "get acquainted" potluck will be held on Wednesday, October 2, at 6 p. m. in the All Purpose Building. If you haven't already marked the above date on your calendar, please do so now!

This informal "get acquainted" dinner is an annual event planned expressly by your P.T.A. to give all parents an opportunity to meet with their children's teachers and the new Forest Hills Superintendent, Robert Masten.

The entire faculty and/or their wives or husbands, whichever the case may be, have been invited to this dinner as guests of Forest Hills P.T.A. Not knowing exactly what the attendance will be would seemingly present quite a problem to Hospitality Chairman, Mrs. Curtis B. Dunlap; however, she and her Committee have been busily planning all the necessary details and have everything set and ready to go.

Mrs. Dunlap asks that each couple pay 75 cents at the door to cover the cost of meat, rolls and coffee which will be prepared in and served from the school kitchen. Room Mothers are furnishing the salad. Also, Mrs. Dunlap requests that each family bring one favorite dish along of sufficient quantity for 10 servings. This dish might possibly be a vegetable, relish or dessert—whatever you choose.

Please remember to bring your own table service. This is essential.

Other than Mr. Masten giving a short talk, no program has been planned. This potluck is simply a nice way to really "get acquainted" and should make for a nice sociable get-together.

Open House Is Sunday For 25th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Lyle DeArmond of 6469 Wendell Street, S. E., will be guests of honor at an "open house" next Sunday, September 29, in their home honoring their 25th wedding anniversary. Friends are invited to visit with them between the hours of 2 and 8 p. m.

This "open house" is being given by Mr. and Mrs. DeArmond's children, Mr. and Mrs. Gary DeArmond, Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Bauman, and Jon DeArmond.

The first general session of Cascade School Mothers' Club will be called to order September 30 at 6:30 p. m. All parents and teachers are urged to come to this potluck and bring their own table service.

Don't snack before, because the menu will be hot dishes (unknown but luscious and numerous), tossed salads, rolls, butter, cake and coffee. The Multi-Purpose Building at the high school will be the scene for this "The Little Red School House Days" meeting.

Please dress casually to meet the teachers who have returned and the new ones who have joined us. You will also meet some of the other new members of the Forest Hills school staff. The girls on the Board have been working all summer to make this an interesting and fun time. So, come on Moms and Dads, let's go back to school for a couple of hours on this evening, September 30, don't forget.

The Executive Board meeting will be held promptly at 9:30 a. m. on Tuesday, October 1, at the home of Mrs. William Wiersma, 6588 Wendell Street, S. E., with co-hostess Mrs. Raymond Gaylord. If you are unable to attend, please send an alternate. Thank you.

Moms, are you cleaning house and tossing out things? Well, maybe you can't use them any more, but we can. Find some corner for just a little while to keep them stored for us. We are going to have a rummage sale the early part of December.

Everyone could help a lot by starting to saving things right now. Thanks for thinking of us as you tidy up this fall.

Probably the longest dry spell in the United States lasted from October, 1912, to November, 1914—767 days. It happened in a California desert town. The town's name: Bagdad. According to the World Almanac, the probability of drawing a perfect bridge hand—13 spades—is 1 in 635,013,559,600 deals.

This Friday and Saturday, September 27 and 28, the Ada Congregational Church will be serving a variety of 40 tasty gourmet dishes at their 10th annual Smorgasbord. Mrs. Glen Morris, Jr., left, food preparation chairman and her co-chairman, Mrs. Raymond Meuser, center, have been making the final plans on the menu, while Mrs. Darwin Nellist, right, is putting the finishing touches on the decorations. Serving time will be at 5:30 p. m. and 7 p. m., both nights. Reservations must be made in advance with Mrs. William Muller, Friday nights, and Mrs. David Anible, Saturday nights.

Nature Notes

by Edith Jarvi

The fall flowers are in bloom in all the fields and along all the roads. The color is mostly yellow and white with some blue and lavender to add depth and contrast.

The Goldenrod grows in any sunny place. There are several species, some have loose plummy tops covered with yellow flowers, some are a single slim stem curved where the flowers start on the tip, another is stiff, broadly branched at the top with bright yellow flowers. The tallest of the goldenrods may be five feet tall while others may be only twelve or eighteen inches high. An interesting variety is one that has pale cream blossoms with yellow centers. This grows as a straight stem with the flowers clustered along the top, truly a cream-rod.

The white flowers are wild asters. Most of them have orchid or purple centers with yellow pollen. The individual flower heads may be one-fourth inch to one inch across. The earliest to bloom is the White Wood Aster, with rather scraggly three-quarter inch flower heads and heart shaped leaves, and the last to bloom or longest lasting is the Michelmas-daisy, which has many bright blue or pink one-inch flower heads on stems that seem top-heavy.

The most attractive aster is the New England Aster with lovely lavender-blue half-inch flower heads loosely arranged on gracefully branched plants.

All of these fall flowers belong to the Daisy or Composit family. In this plant family, what appears to be the individual flower is really a flower head made up of many tiny flowers which may or may not be surrounded by a number of ray flowers. The whole flower head may be as tiny as one goldenrod floret or as large as a giant sunflower.

Vaccine

Did you get your polio vaccine? Thousands did in Kent Co. last Saturday. What a pleasant advance to receive the vaccine on sugar cubes instead of from the point of a needle. How thankful we should be if this will conquer the crippling, killing effects of dread polio. How strange to purposely put a few polio germs into our body to prevent catching the real disease. But sad to say this idea has been practiced by millions in America in another way with tragic results. Millions have been infected with a little religion so that they feel safe for time and eternity; but in reality they have become immune to real Christianity. Being religious never saved anyone. We are true Christians only by a personal faith in Jesus Christ, who takes hold of our whole life. Have you been inoculated with religion or do you have the real thing, a living Savior?

4-H Clubs Combine Fun and Leadership

Recreation is not just a leisure time activity for 4-H Club members, say recreation specialists. It has a practical side that develops leadership and useful hobbies.

Leading a group game or song can be the first step in community service. Benefit shows, safety campaigns and establishment of community recreational facilities are examples of projects undertaken by local clubs.

Through such sharing of ideas and the practice of leading, 4-H members are gaining confidence and social approval, local club leaders report.

Appreciation for cultural past acquiring skills in arts and crafts are prominent in the 4-H recreational awards program.

The young people are also finding that if something is worth doing it is worth doing well. As an incentive for good work, the state's top 4-H member in recreational leadership will be awarded a trip to the 1963 National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, and will be eligible for one of six national $500 college scholarships.

All winners are named by the Cooperative Extension Service, and recognition awards are provided by John Deere of Moline, Illinois.

In view of what 4-H members report, youthful projects might well become life-long hobbies or even careers.

A high school graduate, who received a 1962 scholarship to start him in college, developed his talent for drawing. Besides helping to promote 4-H in his home town, his art work has benefited school and church. He completed over 1,000 sketches and paintings.

Two other scholarship winners already in college plan to expand hobbies pursued in 4-H. One is a singer of local acclaim and the other a capable leader of games and group activities.

Latest recreation program enrollment figures total nearly 370,000 boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 21 years. This is an increase of 24,000 over the previous year, according to the Extension Service.

Where Do People Have Accidents?

Where do people have automobile accidents? Is it in some distant and unfamiliar place? Or is it close to home? There's no question but what confusion in unfamiliar surroundings contributes to some accidents.

But national statistics show that the old saying, "Familiarity breeds contempt," explains a greater proportion of highway mishaps.

Sixty-five per cent of the fatal traffic accidents occur in the driver's home county. Another 15 per cent occur in a county adjacent to the driver's home county.

This bears out a belief by Michigan State Highway Department engineers. They report that the highway locations most often complained of by motorists are often the safest.

The reason seems to be that a dangerous looking spot is usually treated with great respect by drivers, while a harmless appearing stretch of road may breed that fatal contempt.

Emery Kosten at 949-2393, or Mrs. L. Koetsier at 949-3009. The cost will be $1.80 per person. We will be looking for you.

Sunday, September 29, on this Sunday, we will have the service of preparation at which time we will examine and prepare ourselves for the receiving of the Lord's Supper on World Wide Communion Sunday, which will be the 6th of October. We extend a hearty and cordial welcome to any and all who are of the Protestant Evangelical Faith to join us in this service of preparation and the coming Lord's Supper.

Soil & Water Conservation Wild Life Increases In Kent County

Twelve years ago the Morse farm, Alpine Twp., had a gully, which was a problem on the south side of 6 Mile Road.

Wilbur Kellogg, conservationist, then in the N. W. Kent Soil Conservation District, assisted Charles and Leon with a grassed waterway installation. Then grass orchard cover was increased on the north 40 acres. Since then the waterway has had to carry much less run-off. At present the Morse farm is interested in an irrigation pond for strawberry frost protection.

Four years ago, the Grand Rapids Press carried a full page of Kent's Soil Conservation District farm ponds and a descriptive write-up. Pictured were the ponds of Ward Shepard; Homer and Verl Beuschel, both in Sparta Twp.; Robert Remer, Cedar Springs, and John Wubbeling of Byron Twp. Paul Hines of the Press prepared the feature.

The continued increase in the number of farm ponds in the Kent Districts has brought about more interest in wildlife as another "farm crop." Mr. and Mrs. Willis Hatch, Lowell Twp., have noticed more ducks and other birds which use their livestock watering ponds. Birds of all kinds have a convenient water supply during the dry spells. In return more harmful insects are consumed and people get more enjoyment out of having more birds around.

Such is not the case however when fruit is ripening nor at the present time in some cornfields. Here noise makers or other repellants have to be used to protect the crops. Blackbirds and cowbirds now are pests in many cornfields. We have not much enthusiasm for cowbirds. A chipping sparrow raised a cowbird in our yard this spring. This parasite bird pestered the sparrow for two weeks in providing food for it.

Feeding habits of birds and animals has changed over the years with the growing of new types of crops and other vegetation.

Woodchucks, called the "housing engineers" for farm wildlife, now get fat on alfalfa where once they foraged mostly on clover. Hunting pressure keeps them under control. They are not always confined to farm land. This summer a Grand Rapids rose grower showed me where a woodchuck had burrowed under a cyclone type fence to get into the garden for a feast on the perennials.

Deer are causing damage in some orchards in Kent County. Albert Pitsch, Algoma Twp., pointed out sweet cherry trees which have been killed. Pitsch says deer seem to prefer to attack sweet cherries.

We found two areas with two to three log oak trees blown over by the June 9 windstorm to be harvested in one of Albert's woods. Other timber size oak can be cut in the area. Lynn Post, the former owner, had been a good manager of the woodlot. Nearby, a red pine grove protects a sandy knoll. McIntosh in the adjacent orchard showed a heavy crop due in large part to the elevation and good air drainage.

An inventory of Harold Piccards woodlot showed several large basswood, a few hard maple and many beech to be harvested. Ironwood, a weed tree, shows much competition and a few wild grape vines are to be weeded out. Soil types, site, elevation and past woodlot management all affect the species found in a woods and the quality and rate of growth.

A new Michigan Lake inventory bulletin, prepared by C. R. Humphrys and R. F. Green of the department of Resource Development at MSU shows that Kent County had 731 natural lakes and ponds in 1962, comprising 7960 acres.

Lakes and ponds of all kinds totaled 854. In area they covered 9973 acres.

Great Opportunity In Meat Industry

People are always looking for new ways to make money. There is such an opportunity in Michigan, says Dr. Ron Nelson, Chairman of the Animal Husbandry Department, Michigan State University. He says it's not a new industry but one that can be expanded—the livestock industry.

This need and opportunity in Michigan gives added emphasis to Michigan Meat Week, September 30-October 5, which is sponsored by the Michigan Livestock Improvement Association.

Michigan not only has the expanding population to provide meat consumption, says Nelson, but also all the natural resources needed for more red meat production. Michigan is blessed with abundant water, pasture land and feed.

Nelson says there is an economic need for expansion of the livestock industry. He says approximately two-thirds of the red meat consumed in Michigan is shipped in. On the other hand, Michigan ships out of state over one million tons of surplus grain every year.

Nelson says the inputs and outputs of livestock production should "get married" and settle down here together. "Michigan has all it takes for more red meat production," according to Nelson. "We have grain and grassland for feeding and houses for packing; our farmers have the know-how; and the consumers have the taste and money for more beef, lamb and pork."

"There is a demand for more livestock production here, says Nelson, "but we need producers who are willing to take the risks, who have the managerial ability, and who have access to the resources or inputs needed in the business."

Nelson says Michigan could give the livestock industry the resources it needs to supply meat. And, he says, the livestock industry could give Michigan's economy a helpful shot in the arm.

Mr. and Mrs. Campbell Hall Steketee of Thornapple River Drive, S. E., recently attended the wedding of their son, Campbell Hall Steketee, Jr., of Missoula, Montana. The bride is Miriam Gay Larsen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Herbert Larsen of Missoula.

The wedding ceremony was held in the chapel of University Congregational Church in Missoula with the Rev. Charles C. Yarborough performing the rites.

The bride was attired in a white wool suite with cranberry-colored accessories, and she carried an arrangement of pink and red roses, with satin streamers.

Maid of honor was Miss Frances Driver of Kalispell, Montana. She wore an avocado green wool suit. Her bouquet was made of yellow and white roses.

Best man was Stephen Crosby Steketee of Grand Rapids, brother of the groom, and Alvin Pelayo, of Missoula and Honolulu.

After a reception at the Florence Hotel, the bride and groom left for a wedding trip to Banff and Lake Louise in Jasper National Park, Canada. They will be at home after September 15 at 621—5th Avenue, S. E., Minneapolis, Minnesota.

The out-of-town guests from Grand Rapids, included Mr. and Mrs. Paul Frederick Steketee, Jr., aunt and uncle of the groom; Miss Sandra Steketee, and Miss Penelope Steketee, sisters of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Dirk Larsen of Great Falls, Montana, brother of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Gould of Culville, Washington; Mrs. C. M. Osborne of Lewiston, Idaho; and Mrs. Fred Driver of Kalispell, Montana.

APPLES, CIDER AND KIDS

It's a sure fire combination. When the chillier days of fall told us the apple harvest was drawing to a close, all the kids in our neighborhood headed for the local cider mill.

The best apples had already been stored for winter use, but what was left usually went into cider. We always were given all the cider we could drink, probably because we stood around looking wistful. Really, we became quite choosy. There were those who brought in just any old apples,

Harvest Moon Will Rise On October 2nd

The Harvest Moon, looking reddish and large, will make its first appearance at 11:44 p. m. on October 2, reminds Associate Prof. Hazel M. Losh at The University of Michigan astronomy department.

The Harvest Moon, defined as the full moon that occurs nearest the date of the autumnal equinox (Sept. 23), will do three things to make itself specially attractive: —"On the average the moon rises nearly an hour later each night, but in the autumn this delay is the slightest of the whole year, being around 20 minutes.

"The full and nearly full moons, rising at about the same hour for several nights in succession, give bright moonlight in the early evening and the whole night through for an unusual number of nights," Professor Losh says.

—The Harvest Moon is likely to take on quite a reddish appearance near the horizon, due to the conditions of the earth's atmosphere and not to the moon itself.

"The molecules of the air and dust particles suspended in it scatter the light, the blue considerably more than the red. Near the horizon the light rays from the moon pass through more atmosphere than from a higher altitude, and are stripped of their blue rays more than the red," Professor Losh explains.

—"The Harvest Moon is likely to appear larger than usual near the horizon. This is an optical illusion and has nothing to do with the moon itself but due to comparison with nearby objects."
