The Thornapple Lions' Summer Baseball Team surged to a second place finish for the 1966 season.

The Lions' winning their last six in a row ended the season with a 7-2 record. This left them only one game behind the pace set by Prezkop Drugs by handing them their only defeat of the season.

Airline strike extends vacation

The many inconveniences that were caused by the airline strike proved to be most pleasant for one Forest Hills area resident.

Pam Harter, 2383 Thornapple River Drive, SE, flew to San Francisco, California, just prior to the strike, therefore her intended two or three week vacation was extended to 6 weeks.

Because of her extended stay, Pam was able to enjoy many more of the wonderful sights that California has to offer, even Disney Land.

She was the guest of two former residents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Nellist of Melittas, California, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Nellist of Thornapple River Drive, and Mrs. Judy Rowe and daughters, formerly of Cascade.

Again because of the airline problems, she was the last minute fill-in bridesmaid for Karen Stiles of Cascade whose plane developed motor trouble enroute from Amsterdam, Holland, to Shannon, Ireland, and had to land at London for repairs.

Karen was to have been a bridesmaid for Judy Rodgers, also a former resident of Cascade, but because of the delay, was unable to attend, so Pam stepped in and made the wedding complete.

Medical aspects of high school athlete is theme for one-day conference

Western Michigan coaches, trainers, team physicians, and school officials will confer at Greenville, Saturday, August 20, for a one-day conference on the "Medical Aspects of High School Athletics."

"This is a new project of the medical profession to assist the coaches and trainers to assure adequate health supervision for football and other high school sports," pointed out Robert E. Rice, M.D., Greenville. Doctor Rice is president of the sponsoring Ionia-Montcalm County Medical Society. Also active in the project is Richard S. Diehl, Greenville High School Athletic Director, and the Michigan State Medical Society Committee on the Medical Aspects of Organized Athletics.

The workshop at the Greenville High School will begin at 9 a. m. and conclude at 4:30 p. m.

Morning speakers will include James Hunt, University of Michigan trainer on the conditioning of athletes; and Richard C. Schneider, M.D., Ann Arbor, member of the AMA Committee on the Medical Aspects of Organized Athletics. Doctor Schneider, a neurosurgeon, will show films of serious and fatal neurological injuries in football games.

After luncheon, the coaches & trainers will discuss "Emergency Treatment of Minor Athletic Injuries" with James S. Feurig, M.D., MSU team physician; Gayle Robinson, MSU trainer, and U-M Trainer Hunt. The team physicians meanwhile will work with Gerald A. O-

Connor, M.D., U-M team physician, on the "Management of Shoulder, Knee and Ankle Injuries."

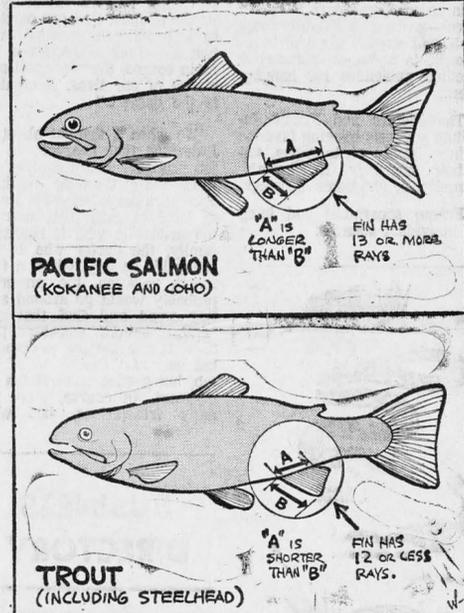

Other afternoon speakers will include Howard C. Leibe, U-M director of physical education, on "Legal Liabilities of Physicians and Coaches," and Ken E. Early, M.D., MSU equipment manager, on "Proper Technique of Fitting Football Equipment."

This conference is one of a series being held across the state by county medical societies. The groundwork was laid in June at a statewide conference held by the Michigan State Medical Society for team physicians. Doctor Feurig, M.D., MSU team physician, is chairman of the state committee.

"The doctors of medicine are keenly concerned about the health of high school athletes—and about the concerns of parents and football fans," explained Doctor Rice at Greenville. Football is a blend of proper conditioning, careful coaching, good officiating, the right equipment and facilities, and adequate medical care, the doctor stressed.

How to Identify Coho, Kokanee Salmon

Under its program to boost Michigan's sportfishing, the Conservation Department has introduced more than three million kokanee salmon in Torch and Higgins lakes within the last two springs. As part of this plan, first-year plantings of about 800,000 coho salmon were made in three northern Michigan streams this spring. Now, Department fisheries men are eager to learn how these new fish are doing. This illustration should help fishermen tell kokanee and cohos from trout so they can report their catches of these fish. The kokanee released last year now measure four to six inches and some of them should be hooked this summer in Torch and Higgins lakes. Some of the early-maturing cohos may migrate up a few of Michigan's Great Lakes streams this fall. The best bets for their runs include the Big Huron River, the Platte River and Bear Creek, where they were originally released, and the Big Manistee River below Bear Creek. Regulations are being drawn up to provide for the legal taking of kokanee and cohos. They are scheduled to take effect in August and will be liberal. --Mich. Dept. of Conservation

Faith

What do we mean when we speak of faith? According to one of the great catechisms of the church, the Heidelberg Catechism, "True faith is not only a sure knowledge, whereby I hold for truth all that God has revealed to us in His Word, but also a firm confidence which the Holy Spirit works in my heart by the gospel, that not only to others, but to me also, remission of sins, everlasting righteousness and salvation are freely given by God, merely of grace, only for the sake of Christ's merits."

To believe the promises of the gospel we must first KNOW what these promises are. We must know all that God has made known to us in the Bible, and we must also hold for truth all of the Bible. This is a sure knowledge, because it is the knowledge which God Himself gives us. We preach and we teach the Bible, because we must be spiritually educated to know God, and the better we know Him the stronger our faith will be.

We must also have a firm confidence that these promises of salvation are meant for us. This confidence is a work of the Holy Spirit, which he works within us by means of the Bible. Do you KNOW what God says in the Bible? Do you BELIEVE that God is saying this to you personally? "Believe on the Lord Jesus and thou shalt be saved, thou and thy house." Acts 16:31.

—John Guichelaar

Women declare a war on clothespin mob

Today's homemakers have declared war on the clothes pin mob and the dreary drudgery they represent. Once on Grandma's "most wanted list," this gang of washtime thugs is on its way to permanent retirement, thanks to flameless electric clothes dryers.

Until the advent of electric clothes dryers, the clothes pin mob regularly conspired with wind, rain, snow and muggy heat to make washtime "miserable" for homemakers. But with flameless electric clothes dryers on the job, housewives no longer have to battle the elements to get clothes dry. Electricity helps them shake the clothes pin habit and make washtime "comfort day" and "clean clothes day" at the same time.

Drying clothes the electric sunshine way is truly a "no squat, no squint, no stoop" operation. There is no lugging heavy baskets of clothes, no clothespins to pinch or stretch your favorite blouse and no aching backs from reaching from clothes basket to clothesline and back again.

Modern women who join the clothes pin rebellion leave the clothes pin mob and its foul weather friends far behind, according to the Live Better Electrically Program. With automatic electric clothes dryers the drying is easy. You just reach for the dial—not the clothes pin pile!

FADING AMERICANA—A concrete vestige of the old "three R's" educational theory is the one-room schoolhouse. This one, near Laingsburg in Shiawassee County, is one of 22 in Michigan that are more than 100 years old. It faces possible "retirement" in an upcoming consolidation vote. Schoolmarm Mrs. Thornton Parker and two of her students watch as State Board of Education Member Donald M.D. Thurber of Grosse Pointe raises the flag during a visit to the school.

Farmers should benefit from increased wheat allotments during 1967

The additional increase in the 1967 wheat allotment recently announced by Secretary of Agriculture, Orville L. Freeman, should result in increased income for Michigan wheat growers, according to Frank J. Light, Chairman of the Michigan Agricultural Stabilization & Conservation State Committee. The latest increase, amounting to 15 percent, added to the increase announced on May 5, gives each wheat grower a total allotment increase of about 30 percent over his 1966 allotment.

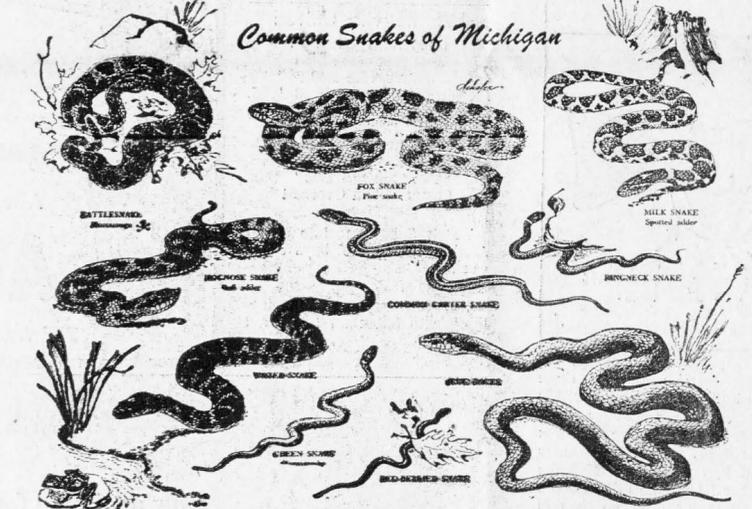

Light said that the allotment increase offers farmers the opportunity to plant more land to wheat where wheat production is profitable while maintaining their eligibility for program benefits. Wheat prices, even with the larger acreage, are expected to be well above support levels next year because of strong commercial demand at home, continued export expansion and large food assistance requirements. Therefore, farmers can expect increased income from increased production.

Light added that the increase was needed because: the former surplus has been put to use, making increased production desirable; wheat stocks are being reduced below a desirable reserve level this year; domestic and world demand continue strong and export expansion can continue if we have adequate supplies at competitive prices.

Checker board decor

Giant checkerboard squares—in contrasting colors to match decor—painted on a family room wall will create a vivid background to showcase pictures & provide guidelines for hanging them.

The Picture and Frame Institute suggests hanging favorite prints, family photographs, vacation snapshots, needlework samples, or children's drawings. Frame separately and hang in individual squares.

Summer is the active season for snakes in Michigan, and here are the ones you're most apt to see. If you shudder at the thought of meeting up with snakes, it may ease your mind to know that Michigan has only one poisonous species—the Massasauga or swamp rattlesnake. And even this rattler, confined to the Lower Peninsula and Bois Blanc Island, is not nearly as deadly as many people think. Its poison could be fatal to a small child, but there is no authentic record of a person dying in Michigan from the bite of a native rattler. Superstitions and myths have generated many false fears about snakes and clouded the generally beneficial role these reptiles play in the "balance of nature." —Mich. Dept. of Conservation

Beware! Garbage Dump Bears

Each summer, tourists are enthralled by the sight of bears at garbage dumps in northern Michigan, particularly in the Upper Peninsula where most of these places are found. Some people try to get pictures of their children posing with the burly animals. Others give these wildlife beggars handouts. All in all, some people unwittingly get too chummy with bears for their own good. From time to time, there are cases in which tourists narrowly escape being mauled by these animals. Although they may act tame, garbage dump bears should be treated like the wild, potentially vicious animals they are. If you want to see these bears or take pictures of them, do it in the safety of your car. Above all, "Don't Feed The Animals." — Mich. Dept. of Conservation

A Cracker Barrel philosopher dispenses words of wisdom

When you have a village cracker barrel you are apt to find the Old Philosopher stopping around to dispense words of wisdom. Of course, John Luther is neither old nor, by profession, a philosopher. But let's see what he had to say.

"As a writer, I knew that the happiest days are those on which I finish a tough assignment and drop it in the mail. The world takes on a rosy hue and relaxation is sweet.

"Then one summer I took a two month vacation. I had never done it before; I doubt if I will ever do it again. My family was delighted. We loaded our things in the car and set off for Cape Cod."

"The first three weeks were perfect. My mind was rested and refreshed, ready for new ideas. In the 4th week though, an unaccountable restlessness set in. By the fifth week something was obviously wrong. It was like being primed to do something but nothing seemed to satisfy. Taking the children swimming, fishing and crabbing wasn't the fun it had seemed earlier. It was a chore. Pleasure had lost its flavor."

"My wife sensed it too. 'What you need,' she said, 'is something to work on.'"

"She was right. What I really wanted was to get off by myself with a typewriter and wrestle with a few good ideas. The discovery was disturbing. Had I become so stuffy and serious-minded that I couldn't enjoy a little fun? Was I the victim of some sort of neurosis, a work compulsion from which I could not escape?"

"To some people, the fact that they like to work is as obvious as sunlight. For the rest of us though, it's often a slow and difficult discovery. I finally decided that my reaction to a two-month vacation was just about normal. Work is the main course, the meat and substance of our lives. Recreation is the dessert."

"So when I thought about it, I decided that everyone in his job probably really enjoyed the work more than he realized. The business man who works so hard to gain that contract, the housewife who is raising a family, the doctor who is fulfilling his destiny. Given a two-month vacation, the carpenter probably would go around sniffing wood and find that his hands wanted to create a product. It is satisfying to come to the successful conclusion of the job, but getting there is the excitement. Of course, there are daily frustrations, but what would life be without them?"

"Why does the good workman fret when there isn't enough work to be done? Because he finds it more tiring and the day is longer when he has to gold-brick."

"The man who does only as much as he has to turns his job into a prison. The man who does more than he has to clears the walls of this prison in a single bound. He is working of his own free will. Compulsion has been left behind. This may seem like a subtle distinction. But it's real. You can see it in the happiness and satisfaction—or lack of it—in those around you. Even if you didn't have to work, you would probably want to work anyway. What could you possibly do with yourself? You would join the bored and empty people."

"Some people say: 'I don't mind working—I just don't like my job.' Maybe so. But if they knew all that each entails, would they like any job?"

"All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy. But so does all play and no work. Progress is a funny thing. Modern machines and technology have taken the backache out of our labors. We produce more with less effort. Each decade seems to bring shorter working hours. That's fine—but where do we stop? Sometimes the less people have to do, the more they complain."

"Don't wait until you retire to realize you like to work. Start enjoying your job today!"

Thanks, John Luther, Old Cracker Barrel Philosopher.

Basic education classes to enroll 16,000 adults

The State Department of Education (SDE) reports that 75 school districts in the state are expected to conduct basic education classes for 16,000 adults this year.

The Adult Basic Education program was conducted in 62 school districts last year, serving 10,000 adults who had completed less than six years of school.

Michigan began the program in 1965 with 26 school districts and 4,000 adults participating. Michigan was one of only five states at that time which conducted basic education courses for adults. Now, all 50 states have such classes which are financed with federal funds.
