The Village Smithy

BY FRAN SMITH

Christmas season is one of memories for the Smithy.

It is a time when friendships are renewed, in person or by correspondence, bringing back a rush of memories...of school days, the war years, longtime associations in the business of writing and promoting sports, neighbors whose features have disappeared into the indistinguishable past.

Other memories like the scrawny pine brought home, a majestic tree in the eyes of a 10-year-old, but one deserving of a better fate than to wither and die on the back porch.

And the greeting sent to our first-grade teacher, who remained for many years as the all-time favorite...except Uncle Sam's diligent post office wouldn't accept the cancelled stamp which was placed on the envelope.

...the first time we were considered "grown up" enough to help trim the tree...and how much trouble we had getting the lights to burn (remember those old-time sets that worked in series?).

And last-minute dashes into the stores for various odds and ends, because you felt gifts previously purchased were not enough to sufficiently demonstrate your feelings for the intended one.

Cold nights and warm nights...snowy nights and rainy nights...calm nights and windy nights.

Like the one, shortly after marriage, when Good Friend Wife and I sat looking out a window during dinner at a truly amazing winter wonderland as snow fell in mounting blankets...only to turn to sleet moments later as we started out to visit her folks. It took an hour to drive the seven miles.

And the Christmas I was sure would produce a much-cherished bicycle, but because times were tough it wasn't there...not then, nor the next year nor the next.

Another year when one of the kids (memory fails which one it was) offered a hand-made ash tray...a veritable monstrosity, but one that had obviously been developed with loving care. And how we predicted it would crumble to dust in a matter of hours...a prophecy long since repudiated. The dog-gone thing is still around the house.

Then, there was the plane, a real honest-to-goodness model of the Ford tri-motor...which the baby-sitter's boyfriend broke on Christmas Night and never repaired.

And those nights gathered around the piano, always badly out of tune, and voices raised, hopefully in chorus, with appropriate songs of the season.

Always, too, the expectation of the coming New Year...and going over to the neighbors to watch as they fired off a big shotgun to greet the stroke of midnight.

Crowds of people, always crowds of people.

Like the night we decided to hold an open house and no one left with the result that the party spilled out into the warm December evening...and still they continued to come.

And the year we got our first color TV and, it seemed, the whole county showed up to watch Michigan State play in the Rose Bowl.

And the gathering of the clan...brothers and sisters, grandparents, aunts and uncles and cousins by the score...and the endless review of gifts received.

The festive board...and memories of tables groaning under the weight of succulent fowl and all the trimmings. And of later groaning by a stomach that seldom, these days, permits an excess of mouth-watering goodies.

Memories. Sweet at any time, but the more so at this time of year.

Kent March of Dimes Campaign Underway

The 1969 National Foundation March of Dimes Campaign has been kicked off with the announcement that Deane Brengle will serve as Kent County campaign chairman.

Brengle, vice president and general manager of Naegle Outdoor Advertising Company of Grand Rapids, said that the 1969 campaign goal has been set at $110,000.

"This is a very realistic figure, but we will be very disappointed if we don't go over the top," he commented.

The 1969 March of Dimes appeal, Brengle explained, will be directed toward the prevention of birth defects.

"Birth defects actually strike five times as many children as polio," he said, "so greater effort must be directed to finding the causes and preventive cures for the birth defects."

Medical scientists have developed RH vaccine, and the German measles vaccine...both preventive medicines. These are the types of medical advances we are working for."

"But at the same time we must support work going on right here in Kent County. We are the only National Foundation Chapter contributing to the support of two local Birth Defects Evaluation Centers...the Neuro Muscular Clinic at Blodgett Hospital and the Oral Cleft Clinic at Butterworth Hospital."

"In addition, we are contributing to aid local polio patients and working on a permanent program of community education involving facts on birth defects."

FRANK KAPUGIA

Disability Proves No Hindrance

Frank Kapugia, former Lowell resident, has set his goal as a career in teaching and he doesn't intend to let his blindness keep him from it.

Now a senior at Michigan State University in East Lansing, Frank is taking his student teaching this term at Mott High School in Warren. A speech major at MSU, he is teaching two classes of accelerated American history and one speech class.

His supervisor, Jack December, indicated that he was amazed at Frank's ability to conduct a class. He noted that the students admire Frank and are cooperative to him. There is no evidence of pity either from students or other teachers.

Working to establish an atmosphere of class permissiveness, Frank urges his students to interrupt him with questions whenever they don't understand.

He prepares his lecture material by taking notes in braille from readings by student volunteers.

Aside from his classroom activities, Frank is active in cross country, basketball and wrestling, feeling that this brings him closer to the students and allows him to know them better.

When he graduates next June, Frank will be qualified to teach government, American history, Western history and speech. He hopes to teach in Michigan.

The committee is being formed to scrutinize the possibilities of adapting the four-quarter system to the space-plagued Forest Hills school district.

Superintendent Robert Masten will present the program to the newly formed committee at their first meeting which is planned for January 7th at the Ada Elementary School.

State Road Deaths Up

Michigan traffic deaths in November soared to an all-time monthly high of 254, also topping the previous November record of 219 set in 1941, State Police provisional figures show.

The November toll was nine more than the previous high of 245 for any month set in December, 1965. It was also 40 more than 214 for November a year ago.

The contest was sponsored by Everett Ladd and judged by Richard Tschopp, Jr.

Marines Delight in Holiday Gifts

In order to show their 5th Grade Campfire Group that there is more to Christmas than just the receiving of many gifts, leaders Mrs. Gary Eickhoff and Helen Galbreath helped their group prepare a box of goodies which was sent to the 1st Marine Division in Viet Nam.

The following letter from the commanding officer, Captain James E. Edwards, Jr., describes the men's reaction to the girl's generosity.

Mrs. Gary Eickhoff
Route No. 3, Box X-14

Dear Mrs. Eickhoff:

I want to take a few minutes tonight while the tactical situation permits to thank the 5th Grade Campfire Group for their wonderful thoughts of us at this holiday period! Your gifts, your thoughts and your prayers are always welcomed and appreciated by all hands!

We have just returned from an Operation called "Meade River" and have been in the jungles and rice paddies South of DaNang for the past 22 days. Upon returning to our Battalion area, your gifts along with quite a few others were waiting for us.

Just the idea that such a group of wonderful girls and their sponsors were thinking of us over 8,000 miles away makes little significance of the past battle. We are here fighting in this country, so far away, so there can be many more Christmases for you and your children in years to come!

Whether we believe in this war is beside the point—we are all professional Marines and we fight where and with whom we are told, but we know for what reason—it's people like each of you in America that we want to defend—to insure that you have the many freedoms in the future that you have and enjoy today!

For me and for the 178 Marines that I command, I thank each of you for thinking of us during this holiday season. We all hope to be home

Road Project Planned for GR Township

Bids for grading, widening and paving of 2.4 miles of US 131 through Grand Rapids Township and parts of Grand Rapids and Plainfield Township will be opened January 8, it was announced by the Department of State Highways.

Estimated cost of the project is $1,170,000. It is scheduled for completion next November 30.

For me and for the 178 Marines that I command, I thank each of you for thinking of us during this holiday season. We all hope to be home

FH Advisory Group to be Named

Announcement of members selected to serve on the Forest Hills citizen's advisory committee is scheduled for December 30th.

The committee is being formed to scrutinize the possibilities of adapting the four-quarter system to the space-plagued Forest Hills school district.

Superintendent Robert Masten will present the program to the newly formed committee at their first meeting which is planned for January 7th at the Ada Elementary School.

Persons under 21 will be prohibited from purchasing pistols, revolvers, and ammunition for such weapons and persons under 18 will not be permitted to purchase any firearms or ammunition.

Sales will generally not be permitted to out-of-state residents, Davis said, although a person from an adjoining state can buy a rifle or shotgun by complying with certain provisions of the new act. Sales to residents of a state will be prohibited if possession of the firearm is not allowed by local ordinance.

Finds Money; Yule Spirit Is Observed

The spirit of Christmas is a wonderful thing.

No one knows this better today than members of the Lowell police force, who were witnesses Monday to a moving story.

A woman came into the station with two youngsters and handed over a small bill. She had found it on the street, the woman told officers, and was certain it probably belonged to someone who needed it for Christmas shopping.

"She looked like she could have used the extra money herself," said one of the officers.

Seek to Dispel Millage Rumors

One of the main objectives of the special citizens advisory group that seeks to assist the Lowell Area School District's financially distressed Board of Education is that of voter education.

Headed up by David R. Miller of Lowell, the committee presently is seeking to obtain 1,500 signatures of residents who would approve another millage vote if called upon to do so.

To do so, the committee is assembling information designed to separate fiction from fact regarding a number of facets in the school system.

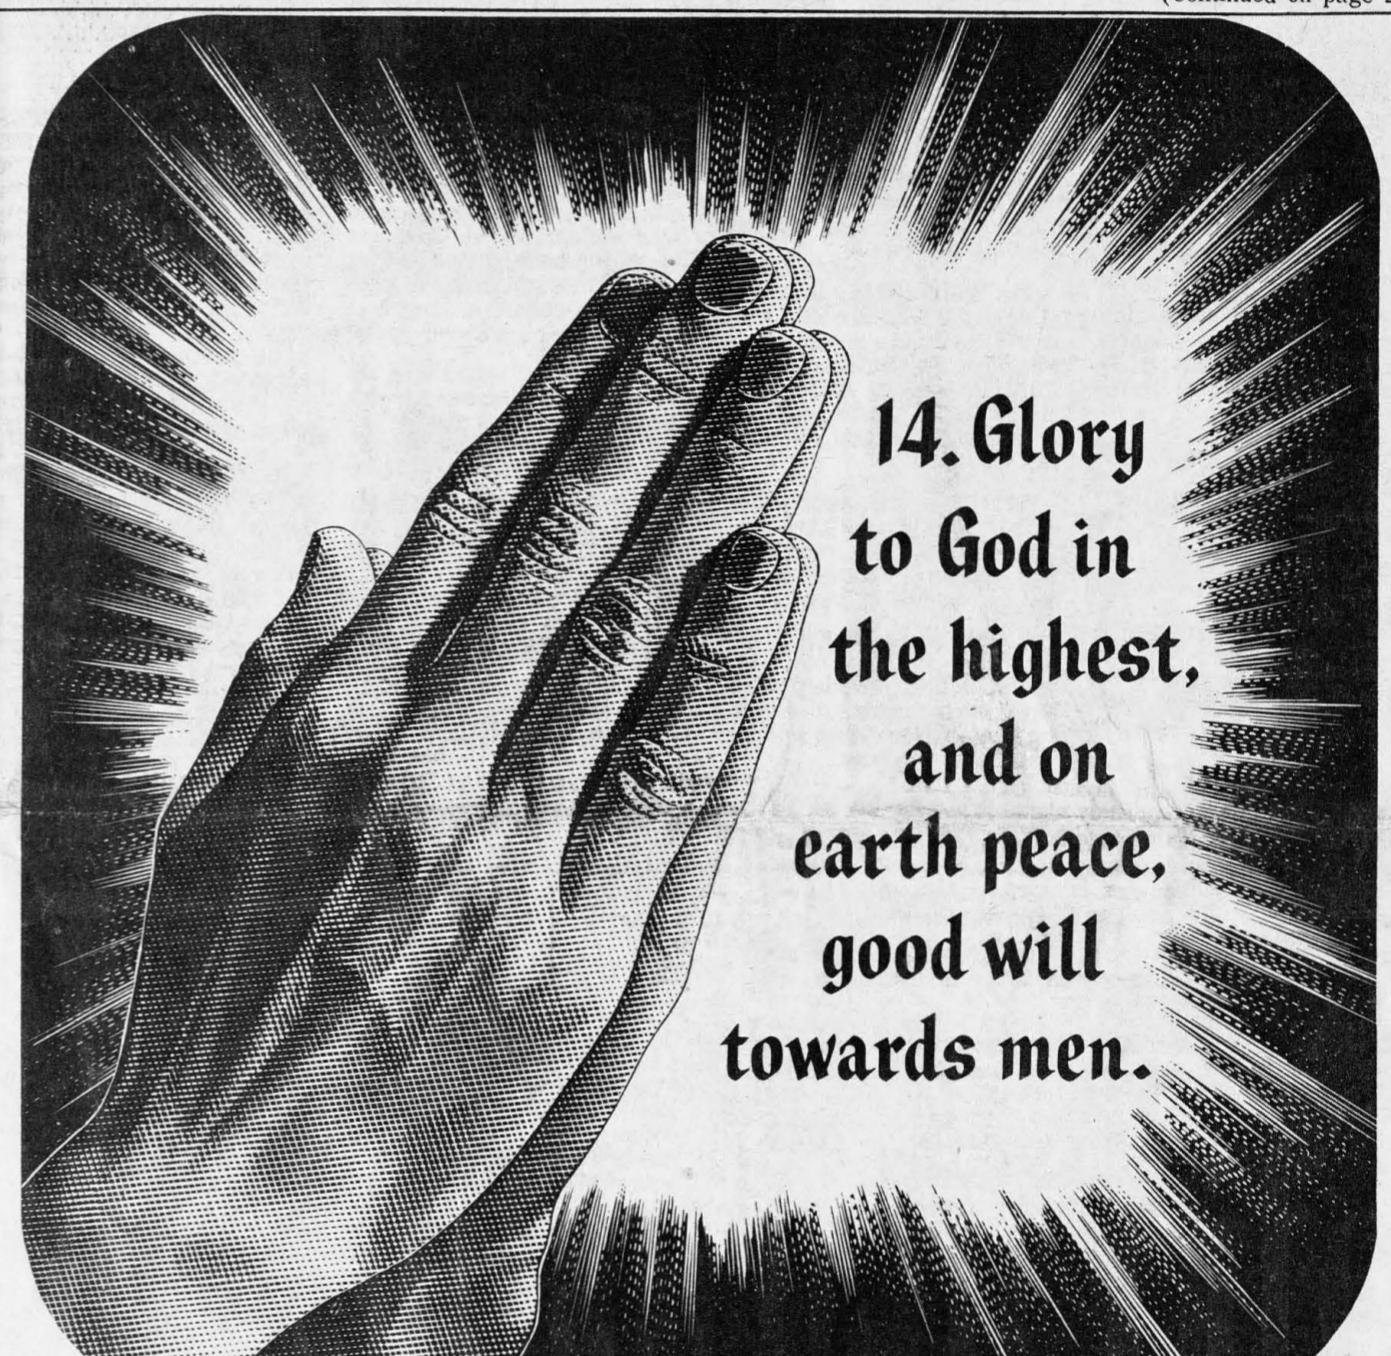

"It's rather amazing how some of the facts have been distorted," one committee member reported following last week's organizational meeting. "I'm sure that voters would better understand the need for additional millage if we can just explain it to them."

Headed up by David R. Miller of Lowell, the committee presently is seeking to obtain 1,500 signatures of residents who would approve another millage vote if called upon to do so.

This would be more than half of the registered voters in the district and would meet a board mandate that no future millage vote for operating expenses will be called unless victory is virtually assured.

Gun, Ammo Sales Under New Code

Sales of guns and ammunition will be controlled under the new Federal gun law which took effect this week.

Rex D. Davis, assistant regional commissioner of the Internal Revenue Service's Alcohol & Tobacco Tax Division for the five-state Central Region, which includes Michigan, said IRS is preparing material to help gun dealers, gun buyers and collectors comply with the new Gun Control Act of 1968, enacted by Congress in October.

Davis said the new law should not place any unreasonable restrictions on the purchase or ownership of ordinary guns used for hunting, target shooting or other lawful purposes.

Persons under 21 will be prohibited from purchasing pistols, revolvers, and ammunition for such weapons and persons under 18 will not be permitted to purchase any firearms or ammunition.

Sales will generally not be permitted to out-of-state residents, Davis said, although a person from an adjoining state can buy a rifle or shotgun by complying with certain provisions of the new act. Sales to residents of a state will be prohibited if possession of the firearm is not allowed by local ordinance.

The Four Christmas Jewels

An Original Yule Fairy Tale

(Editor's Note: The following is an original Christmas story written expressly for this edition by staff member Shirley Dygert. We hope you will enjoy it as much as we did.)

BY SHIRLEY DYGERT

Once upon a time in the Land of Hew just a few days before Christmas, King Zud and Queen Martine were awaiting the birth of their first baby. The people of the village were gathered in the square outside of the gates of the castle. They sang Christmas carols and other joyous songs while they waited for the signal from Nurse Brunhilde, who was to take care of the new baby.

Davis said the new law should not place any unreasonable restrictions on the purchase or ownership of ordinary guns used for hunting, target shooting or other lawful purposes.

Just at twilight, as the candles in the homes surrounding the village square were lit, Nurse Brunhilde appeared on the balcony high in the center tower. She smiled and waved a large blue flag toward the crowd. Then she draped it over the railing where it gently rippled. The crowd cheered.

Sales will generally not be permitted to out-of-state residents, Davis said, although a person from an adjoining state can buy a rifle or shotgun by complying with certain provisions of the new act. Sales to residents of a state will be prohibited if possession of the firearm is not allowed by local ordinance.

We Welcome Your Social Items. The Deadline Is Monday Noon.

They danced. The new baby was a boy...there was a prince in the land!

Suddenly Brunhilde appeared again and waved another blue flag. This time the people looked at each other and shouted:

"Twins!"
"How very wonderful!"

How pleased everyone was. There was an excited buzzing and then the singing began anew.

But Brunhilde came to the edge of the balcony once again. She waved another blue flag and placed it next to the others where it fluttered with them.

"What was this? It can't be," the people said in disbelief.

"Incredible."
"Amazing."

In a few moments, Brunhilde was back on the balcony with a fourth flag. This time it was pink. She gave a small bow as she laid the last flag in place beside the others.

The excitement was delicious. The king was so pleased, he sent the Royal Musicians down to the square and everyone danced for hours. What other kingdom had three princes and a princess all born on the same day?

Certainly not the Land of Hew.

No one knew much about that country any more. The two kingdoms had been feuding for so many years that the reason for the argument had long been forgotten.

As the children grew, a strange thing happened. Every time that they misbehaved, Nurse Brunhilde's nose turned a vivid green and her smile turned down. She looked very frightening.

Walter A. Sahli of the United States Immigration and Naturalization Service stated that the period within which aliens must report their addresses is almost at hand.

The month of January has been set for the address reporting period. All aliens in the United States, with few exceptions, must report their addresses to the government during that period.

Forms with which to make the report will be available to all post offices and offices of the Immigration and Naturalization Service during the month of January.

Sahli urges all aliens to comply with the reporting requirements, as willful failure to do so may lead to serious consequences.

Millage

August and November in a bid to rid the district of a lingering debt that will be reduced to about $85,000 by next June.

Miller's group hopes to be able to place the needed signatures before the board in time for the January 13 monthly meeting.

At that time, the board plans to formulate plans that could have far-reaching effects on the local system.

If it lacks sufficient support, the board is expected to initiate moves to reduce expenditures to a minimum between now and the end of school in June and to authorize half-day sessions for 1969-70.

The board already is negotiating with teachers on next year's contract, according to President Dr. Robert Reagan, and will have to make a decision on the number of faculty members to hire for 1969-70.

"What we are most afraid of," Dr. Reagan said recently, "is that we will lose many fine teachers because of unsettled conditions here."

Several board members feel that any further moves to call a millage election would have to be made at a date early enough to figure into the teacher negotiations.

Teacher salaries comprise about 85 percent of the total operating outlay for the present fiscal year... this despite a board decision not to replace eight teachers who left the system after the 1967-68 school year.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor

This letter is written to the Lowell taxpayers and voters in the main. After recovering from the initial shock and disbelief that the citizens of Lowell really will not support the school system, the following questions come to mind:

If the concerned parents who took out an ad in the local shopper urging the voters to say "no" really believed they were right and just, why didn't they stand up and be counted by signing their names to their concerned plea? Maybe they weren't sure their reasons were quite so justified?

Have those who voted "no" because of a personal dislike of a school administrator, teacher or Board member really convinced themselves they have hurt that individual and therefore won a great personal victory—if so, is their personal victory worth the loss to the total number of children involved, maybe even their own?

Did those who voted "no" because all teachers are overpaid, etc., check the surrounding districts to see what their minimum wage is? These are the places where all our good (and we've got many) teachers may apply if we can't and won't support them. They have this choice just as a person in any line of work may choose to work where the employer will give them the best in pay and benefits and working conditions. Do the voters want to send our children to be taught by the lowest qualified, lowest paid teachers in order to keep a few tax dollars in their own pocket?

Did the "no" voters who are landlords, businessmen, etc., realize how many people already living in the community would truly move out? There are many already seriously contemplating this. How many who were planning to move into the district, both renters and new home builders have now definitely decided against Lowell as their home town?

There must have been many "no" voters who are parents and grandparents. Can they actually justify their reasons to themselves, even though their own children will suffer?

How many didn't have the time and interest to listen to both sides FAIRLY, so they voted like their friends, landlord or employer said they should?

Then there were certainly the "Yes—but" voters. Mr. Influential who talked loud and long of all the school administration's faults to anyone within earshot—in his heart he knows better but his sole "yes" vote will never offset all the "no's" he has caused among the less-informed who have formed their opinions from his negative conversations.

Look at the total education our children are receiving, the system as a whole, it TRULY IS GOOD and worth the dollars invested. How many "no" voters really sat down and figured how much their own taxes would increase with the requested millage and then decided it justified cheating hundreds of children?

Last, but not least, there were still a number who did not get out to vote for one reason or another; so, in this particular issue they were "no" voters, as they as good as voted with the majority.

It has been said "to thy own self be true." Which category do you fall into, fellow voters? Weigh it carefully and be sure it's worth the consequences to come.

I believe this is another area where the taxpayers are going to have to decide if they want to continue to support universities that permit such actions. I believe this proves that the Boards of Education should not be given a blank check to operate with whether it be High School, Community College or so-called institutions of higher learning.

Donations were mentioned at the Board meeting. Perhaps the Board is overlooking several untapped sources of income. Many individuals and some organizations implied they would contribute towards an attorney's fee to try and beat the Board of Canvassor's decision on the recount.

Certainly if they would throw away money on this, they would be willing to donate more towards reducing the deficit. If the number of posters displayed in business places on Main Street were any indication of the amount of support, it might be assumed that business and industry would be more than generous to the cause.

Many citizens were willing to donate to a voter education advertising campaign. They, too, should be willing to help reduce the deficit. It is possible that many "no" voters would be glad to contribute what they consider to be their

Sincerely,
 Mrs. R. (Bonnie) McNeal

Our present Board and administration did not create this situation, they inherited it; our district has been borrowing monies every year for several years. The present Board and administration are being forced to operate on an austerity budget not completely by any means of their own making.

WALLY BUTTRICK

Ada Couple Cited for Top Sales

Wally and Bonnie Buttrick, 7660 Fase Street, Ada, were among direct distributors attending a special two-day seminar at the home office of Amway Corporation.

The Buttricks have been distributors of the more than 150 home and personal care products manufactured by Amway for about eight months.

The title of direct distributor is awarded by Amway in recognition of the attainment of a high level of sales volume.

There are more than 100,000 distributors handling Amway products in the United States and Canada. From a standing start a little over 8 years ago, the sales of Amway mushroomed to more than $36 million in sales in the United States and $2 million in sales in Canada.

fair share in finding a way out of this predicament.

Many Church groups appear willing to help. I believe the Methodist Church has already indicated an eagerness to spend church money for this cause.

But the greatest source of donations should come from the "yes" voters, who probably would be willing to donate at least as much as the 7 mills would have represented in their taxes. This alone should make a real dent in the deficit. Donations from all of these groups might even completely eliminate it.

Will Add Patrols

Reporting Michigan State Police geared for special 36-hour Christmas and New Year traffic patrols, Col. Fredrick E. Davids, department director, urged all motorists to cooperate in increased concern for holiday safety.

With Michigan's road toll headed toward a new annual high, Davids pointed out that "December's holiday season provides an especially appropriate time for drivers, and pedestrians too, to exert extra effort to safeguard themselves and others in traffic."

Michigan traffic deaths this year already are over the 2,200 mark and approaching the annual record of 2,298 set in 1966, he said.

Davids added that the general holiday excitement can distract motorists from giving proper attention to hazards of reduced visibility, snowy or icy roads and excessive speeds and he cautioned motorists against driving after drinking.

State Police patrols will be operated from noon Tuesday, December 24, to midnight Wednesday, December 25, and from noon Tuesday, December 31, to midnight Wednesday, January 1. Maximum coverage will be in effect from 3 until at least 9 p.m. on those days. Special attention will be devoted to highway sections having the worst accident experience.

Michigan accidents killed 26 persons during Christmas last year and 31 during New Year's, both being 78-hour periods.

The holiday counting periods this year will be 30 hours. Previous death tolls for 30-hour holidays were: Christmas—17 in 1963, 12 in 1957 and 4 in 1951; New Year's—16 in 1963, 64, 3 in 1957-58 and 7 in 1951.

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

The Village Inn

"On Christmas we celebrate the birth of Him who bestowed faith upon us as a responsibility and gave us the dreams of a freer, nobler humanity which lie in us like summer in the heart of winter. It costs us an effort to tune our minds to 'peace on earth and goodwill to men,' but we cannot evade the beautiful summons. For it envisions our future, and our quenchless longing to live in it puts us there for a little while."

These are the words of Helen Keller, leader in the field of Human Endeavor. May this vision of Christmas—by one who saw more clearly and spoke more eloquently than most—be with you throughout the New Year. Sincere season's greetings from Old Kent Bank and Trust Company.

Polluted Air Seen as Well as Smelled!

You can usually smell polluted air, and now—under controlled laboratory conditions—you can also "see" it.

A special filter made of a thin membrane of metallic silver enables scientists to measure the concentration of invisible hydrogen-sulfide pollutants in an air sample with laboratory precision. The scientists depend on their eyes rather than their noses.

According to Selas Corporation of America, Dresser, Pa., whose Flotronics division developed the metallic filter, hydrogen sulfide gas reacts chemically with the microporous silver membrane, reducing the membrane's ability to reflect light.

After the children promised that they would return home for their birthday and for Christmas the following year, they prepared to leave.

Prince Alexander started off with a sharp sword and a well polished shield. He rode a prancing horse on his way to look for dragons.

Prince Bartholomew was given a splendid ship with teak decks. He left port with sails full and flags flying.

Prince Canute began his journey with large maps of many countries where he might find gold.

age wrapped in green velvet in front of his parents.

"Father and Mother," he said, "when I left here a year ago, I wanted to kill a dragon. I thought that would be the most important thing that anyone could ever do."

"I searched over many lands for either a large or even a small dragon, but I never found one. Then one day as I was riding through a forest, I helped a stranger who had gotten caught under a fallen tree."

"We returned to his home and I discovered that his father was the King of Jow, our old enemy. The king was so pleased that I had rescued his son from under the tree that he sent you this golden bowl as a symbol of friendship between our two countries."

Princess Marigold unwrapped the bundle and revealed the gift, all jewel encrusted and full of sparkle.

The second son, Prince Bartholomew, who had sailed away in his ship, told of the strange lands with fierce animals. He also told of a peaceful island where spectacular fruits and vegetables grew. The people who lived there had welcomed him and when it was time to leave, they had gathered the seeds of their plants and carefully placed them in a silver box. This Prince Bartholomew gave to the king and queen.

The king said, "My son, you have done well, for these seeds will produce jewels of food to feed the people of our kingdom."

Now Prince Canute stepped before his parents. He had started out to find gold, he said, and his maps had taken him from one country to another. In all of his travels, he had met many men of wisdom. They had taught him to paint, to do sums and to build bridges as light as cobwebs. One of his teachers had sent a brilliant red mechanical bird that sang the sweetest melodies when he was wound the royal parents had ever heard.

"My teachers told me to always love knowledge, ingenuity, and beauty," Prince Canute told his family.

The Princess Marigold then walked before her parents. She described all of the kingdoms and courts, the castles and palaces that she had visited. Oh, the silks, the laces and the perfumes that she told about sounded most delightful. She had met so many fine ladies and gentlemen, too.

"But the loveliest person of all was a little woman who was a hundred and twenty-two years old," Marigold told them. "She had hundreds of great-grandchildren. She was so happy when I told her about my own parents that she gave me a present for you."

Marigold presented it to Queen Martine. It was a golden rose with a single diamond drop on one petal.

"This was a gift of love," smiled Princess Marigold, "for it was given to the little woman by her husband when they were married."

Now all of the children looked at Nurse Brunhilde. They saw that her nose was no longer green and that her smile was turned right side up again.

King Zud and Queen Martine were so happy that they not only sent the Royal Musicians to the square to play for the people, but to every father in the kingdom they sent a golden coin from the Royal Mint. To every mother, they sent a new gown from the Royal Wardrobe Department, and to every boy and girl in the kingdom, they sent a steaming plum pudding from the Royal Bakeries.

If coach Don Kemp has one wish for Christmas, it's a means of helping his Forest Hills High basketball players find their shooting eyes.

The Rangers closed out the 1968 portion of the season with a 53-50 squeaker over Wyoming Park in the O-K Red Division to level their league record at 2-2.

But, as in an earlier non-league loss to undefeated Rockford, 63-60, the Green and White hardwooders failed to find the basket with any degree of consistency.

"Our shooting against Park was about as bad as it could be," said Kemp in reflecting on a 17-for-70 team effort from the floor for a mere 24 percent shooting average. "The only thing that saved us was our defense."

Wyoming Park's defense, which saw Steve Grabarek take game honors with 14, Dave Sherwood also scored 10.

The Rangers utilized their pressing defense to good advantage in the first quarter to rach up a 19-10 lead over the bewildered Parkers and managed to maintain the margin until midway in the 4th quarter.

At that time, Collins and Dan Mosher went to the bench in quick succession with five personal fouls and it became a matter of surviving a late Wyoming rally.

Wyoming managed to score just seven field goals in 31 tries in the first half, but came back with 11 baskets in 31 attempts in the second half. Bud Miller topped Wyoming with 16 points.

The junior Rangers won the game in the second quarter in a burst during which they outscored Wyoming Park by a 17-6 margin.

The freshmen also emerged victorious over Park by a score of 68-66 in overtime.

Forest Hills managed to connect on 32 percent of its floor shots, however, and held its own with Rockford in the battle of the backboards.

Batteries lose water through constant discharging and recharging. If the water is not replenished, the electrolyte will become too concentrated, resulting in damage to the battery. Don't neglect your battery while on a trip. Get a battery capacity test twice a year.

Replace the oil filter every time you have the oil changed. This will pay off handsomely in preventing engine failure. The function of the oil filter is to trap large particles of

Food Law to Protect Consumer

A new state food law that ensures added protection to the consumer becomes effective on New Year's day as a result of action by the 1968 Legislature, and support of the governor.

Director B. Dale Ball of the Michigan Department of Agriculture, which has charge of enforcement of food laws, says passage of the act is in the interest of uniformity of food laws throughout the nation.

The new act, among other things, places emphasis on honesty in labeling. An important requirement is the complete listing of ingredients in a food product in order of their descending prominence. An exception is those food products already standardized by state or federal law.

In food products there is increasing prevalence of food additives, preservatives and artificial color. The new law provides for a system of permits for any industry that could become involved in producing a product that might later be found harmful to health.

It also gives the Michigan Department of Agriculture authority to use tolerances set up for the many chemicals used in food crop production. These tolerances have been established by the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the Food and Drug Administration following exhaustive laboratory tests to determine their safety.

Greetings from Singapore

Doug and Carol Wingeier and their family send greetings to their friends in Lowell from Singapore, the Venice of Asia, in their annual Christmas letter.

In the letter, dated September 18, Doug reported that their new bishop, Yap Kim Hao, was his classmate at the Boston University School of Theology, in 1952.

At the time of Bishop Yap's election last summer, Doug was named editor of the Daily Journal of the Constituting Conference and so got a taste of the thrill in newspaper work.

In September fourteen students were graduated from the Trinity Theological College, eight of them Methodist. Doug mentions how proud he is of his students after teaching them for four years and making them ready to assume places of responsibility in the church.

He writes "We are continually impressed by the fact that we receive so much more from them than we can possibly contribute to them."

On the personal side, he reveals that the Wingeier children are growing up rapidly. Ruth, now in the eighth grade, has become quite a young lady able and willing to help her mother. Stephen is now a seventh grader and Martha is in fourth. Philip chatters all the time.

While they are celebrating Christmas in far-off Singapore, Doug, Carol and their family, will keep their friends and relatives in Lowell in their thoughts and prayers.

Bells Peal from Tower at Ferris

The sound of music peals across the campus of Ferris State College, emanating from a new, dramatically designed carillon tower.

The 48-foot edifice was inially the long-standing dream of Lowellite Norman Borger, an alumnus.

Borger started the ball rolling, and many student organizations worked diligently to make the dream come true.

New Boot Lined for Winter Wear

WANTED — 3 or 4 bedroom homes in Forest Hills or Lowell school areas. Also small farms or acreage. c35-36

To meet the outdoorsman's need for a rugged, long-wearing boot this winter, Wolverine World Wide, long respected as a manufacturer of quality boots and service shoes, has added a new shearling-lined model to its popular Durables line. Named the "Canadian," the new winter boot has been designed to provide sure grip on most any surface. It is made to be water and acid-resistant and oil proof and the manufacturer claims that a specially developed steel shank and comfort cushion sole minimize foot strain and fatigue under the most rigorous of winter conditions. The upper leather is called Redwood Mustang and the boot features Wolverine Brand's special Durables sole and heel.
