Michigan Bell Telephone Company began conversion last week of 2,500 coin-operated units to the new 20-cent charge. It signals the end of the 10-cent local call.

Investigated by Lowell Police officers Monday, May 24, was a reported breaking and entering of the Superior Furniture Company on East Main Street. Entry into the building was gained, but nothing was reported missing.

Kent County's Mobile Health Unit will be at the American Legion Hall, 805 East Main Street, Lowell, on Wednesday, June 9, from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and 1 to 4 p.m.

Two female juveniles were apprehended for shoplifting last Saturday at the Eberhard's Store on West Main Street. They were turned over to the custody of their parents.

On Friday evening, June 25, Danny Davis and the Nashville Brass will appear at the Lowell Showboat Amphitheatre at 9 p.m. Tickets can be ordered by calling 897-9237.

Reporting a breaking and entering early Monday morning, May 31, was Zzano's Pizza on East Main Street. Eight game machines were broken into.

Involved in minor injury accidents over the Memorial Day Weekend in Lowell were Willard Perry of Ionia when he and a juvenile from Belding collided at North and Jefferson Streets Friday evening, when the juvenile failed to yield at the marked intersection; Brian DeLoof was injured as well as his juvenile passenger Sunday evening, when he lost control of the car he was driving and rolled it over on Bowers Road, near M-21; slightly injured as she lost control of her car at Grand River Drive and Division was Jannie Deane of Lowell early Sunday morning.

'You Never Stop Learning'

Mrs. Olive Bieri, left, receives her high school diploma from Lowell School Board member, Mrs. Blanche Mullen.

"I had a great time!" says Mrs. Laurance (Olive) Bieri of her now completed High School education. "Oh, I didn't do it for the diploma, it was the education."

Mrs. Bieri is 71 years young. She's also a very busy woman. Besides raising four children of her own she also had a hand in raising many foster children. She said she did it "with a lot of love and discipline."

In talking with her one gets the impression that everything is a learning experience for her. She said of her classes, "my teachers were wonderful." On Wednesday, May 26, at Lowell High School commencement exercises, she realized one of her goals and received her High School diploma. But that's not the end of the story; if some college courses are offered in the area, she'll plan on taking them "as long as it's not calculus!"

She will be honored at an open house Saturday, June 5, 2 to 6 p.m. at the Ganger home, 1176 1/2 Five Mile Road, Murr., Lake.

Three Candidates Seek Two Open Seats On Lowell's School Board

On Monday, June 14, the voters in the Lowell School District will go to the polls to elect two new members to the Board of Education and cast deciding ballots on two millage proposals.

The first millage proposal, which calls for 2.5 mills, will not increase the present tax rate. These are operating mills that are now expiring and a 'yes' vote will merely continue the taxes as they are now for another two years.

Proposal Two on the ballot calls for a one mill increase which the Board of Education says is necessary due to increased costs of operation in such areas of utilities and supplies.

Three candidates have filed for the two seats on the Board of Education made available when Mrs. Blanche Mullen and Dr. R. D. Siegle announced they would not seek re-election.

Filing for the four-year terms were Wayne Dowling, jr., of 12650 Grand River Drive; Mrs. Herman (Judy) Jansma of 1181 Riverside Drive; and Raymond Zandstra of 507 King Street.

Wayne Dowling, Jr.

Wayne Dowling, jr., has spent all of his school years in the Lowell School system. Upon graduation he spent four years in the Army serving with the Missile Defense Division.

He now owns and operates an NAPA Automotive Parts store in Lowell, with a branch store in Saranac.

He is past president of the Lowell Area Chamber of Commerce and has been a participant in the Communications Committee at the school.

Showboat Sends Out Call For Talent

Do you sing? Instrumentalize? If so, the Lowell Showboat is looking for you.

A search for talent for its annual production July 26 through 31 has been announced by the Lowell Showboat. Persons interested in joining nationally known stars in 'A Summer Celebration' may request an entry blank from the talent search committee, Lowell Showboat, Lowell Michigan 49331.

Deadline for applications is July 5 according to Dr. Clark Vredenburg, committee chairman. Applicants will be assigned an audition time.

Those selected during auditions will participate in talent night July 17, when area Disc Jockeys choose the six 1976 talent search winners. One act will perform during each of the Showboat's six celebration nights.

"I think the present system is good," Dowling explained, "I would like to help maintain the present high standards of education; promote basic education, discipline and financial stability."

"I would also like to promote good cooperation between the faculty, administration and the public," Dowling added.

Wayne and his wife, Marian, have five children with three attending school in Lowell; one each at Runciman, Bushnell and the Middle School.

The Dowlings reside at 12650 Grand River Drive, Lowell.

Mrs. Judy Jansma

Mrs. Herman (Judy) Jansma is married and the mother of two boys, ages six and nine.

The Jansmas moved to Lowell five years ago and are active members of the First Congregational Church of Lowell.

Judy is a graduate of Ottawa Hills High School and Mercy School of Practical Nursing. She also attended Northwestern University, where she studied journalism.

She regularly attends the school board meetings, served on the Millage Study Committee and the Communications Committee of the School Board. "to learn for myself, try to get information to other people, and listen to their likes and dislikes about our schools."

Having done so, she feels, "the Lowell Schools have a lot to offer, much more than I realized before I made the effort to find out."

Mrs. Jansma contends a mother of school age children would put a different perspective on matters brought before the Board, especially in light of the legislative and financial pressures which undoubtedly will be brought to bear on schools in the next few years.

Raymond Zandstra

A graduate of Godwin Heights School in 1959, Raymond L. Zandstra resides at 507 King Street in Lowell with his wife, Terry, and three-year-old daughter Shelby.

He served in the United States Navy from 1959 until 1962, and is now a Civil Engineering Technician for Prein and Newhof Consulting Engineers in Grand Rapids.

Mr. Zandstra who moved to Lowell five years ago, is a member of the First United Methodist Church of Lowell where he has served its Administrative Board, Board of Trustees and served as a Youth Fellowship Counselor for three years.

"People have asked me why I have decided to seek election to the Lowell School Board of Education. The answer is not an easy one," Zandstra explained. "There are many reasons, some of which probably even I don't realize at this time."

"There is no concrete issue to take a stand on, other than the millage issue, and I elect not to take a stand on this issue because I feel that my stand will not have any effect on the millage vote itself, and I also feel that this particular issue is of a private nature. I respect the privacy of each individual's right to vote the way he or she pleases, and therefore I reserve this right of privacy for myself."

"One of the many complex problems the Board has to deal with is the problem of communications. Our Board has established a Citizens Communication Committee, and I feel that the Board should be commended for this effort in helping to improve communications. I would like to see this committee continue to function."

"I have found it alarming that a school district the size of ours has so few candidates running for election to the Board of Education. I believe that it was this typical type of lack of interest which has motivated me to seek election."

"I care about the education of our students; I care about where, why, and how our money is being spent; and I care about the effects Sports, Band, etc., have in molding leadership qualities into our students, helping in the preparation to make them responsible adults."

"I feel that the time is right for me to seek election. I am motivated, I feel I'm at the right age, and I have the time. If elected I am confident that I can do the job that is expected of me."

"I feel that the most important issue to make is that there are three candidates running for election to two seats, why not go to the polls and vote for two of them?"

Mullen Resigns

The fact that only three women have served on the Lowell Board of Education; Grace Walker from the South Ward back in the nineteen twenties, followed by Gladys Doyle, and 30 years later by myself, puts us almost in the same class as Susan B. Anthony," explains retiring School Board member, Mrs. Blanche Mullen.

"In fact, when I was elected to the Lowell Board of Education four years ago, I had a sneaking suspicion that the School Board men and administrators actually thought I was Susan B. Anthony."

"With that background, I wish to say that I have never worked with a finer or more considerate group of gentlemen. We worked well together. And now, in leaving the Board, I find myself with conflicting emotions of regret and relief."

"Regret for the loss of the camaraderie of this group and the things we accomplished together and relief that I will not have the continual unrelenting demands on my time. I shall be able to do a few more things for myself—more music, art, travel, family and friends."

"I thank the people of Lowell for having given me this experience of serving them, and offer to the new Board members my congratulations and good wishes."

Polls Open

The two voting precincts—Lowell City Hall and the Bowne Township Hall—will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Monday, June 14.

All registered voters in the Lowell Area School District are eligible to vote.

Absentee voter's ballots for the June 14 annual School Election are now available at the Superintendent's office at Bushnell School, 700 Elizabeth St.

Project Includes Bicycle Paths

Grand Rapids Asphalt Paving Company is the apparent low bidder of four at $230,411 for resurfacing Cascade Road from Int. 96 to Hall Street, S.E.

Bids were opened last week and were referred to the Kent County Road Commission's engineer's office for tabulation and report by June 8 when the contract is slated to be awarded.

Included in the project are blacktopped bicycle paths on each side of the four-lane road, the first such paths in Kent County.

Originally, resurfacing was to take place from Int. 96 to the Village of Cascade, but lack of money determined the improvement would have to be done in two sections. Next year, blacktopping will take place from Hall Street to the Village at a cost estimated at $200,000.

Work in both years also will include removing the raised concrete median, installing curbs and gutters, and joint work will take place from Hall Street to the Village at a cost estimated at $200,000.

It is expected the major improvement will start after the middle of June.

Mailbox Library

Homebound persons in any part of Kent County are asked to call 774-3259, the Kent County Mailbox Library, for a copy of the new catalog of paperback books available for borrowing through the mail.

Persons who are in some way unable to visit existing libraries are eligible for this book lending service by mail.

Edna Schooley, director of the mail-a-book service for the Kent County Library System, said, "We would like to have more homebound persons receive this service and our new catalog brings these people up-to-date with current books. We have 1,500 titles in the new catalog and the Mailbox Library owns multiple copies of each so that several requests may be filled at once."

Books included range from the recent best sellers, such as "The Manchurian Candidate" by Arthur Hailey and "Centennial" by James Michener, to westerns, mysteries, factual books and children's books such as "Are You There, God? It's Me Margaret," by Judy Blume and "Charlotte's Web," by E. B. White.

There are many reasons why a person may be considered homebound and eligible to use the Mailbox Library, according to Mrs. Schooley.

"If there is physical disability, a lack of transportation, illness in the family, confinement in an institution, or perhaps a young mother must care for her pre-school children and cannot get out... all of these persons may ask for a catalog. We do not know who these people are... that is why we are asking persons to call and use our Mailbox Library catalog," she said.

MASB Seeks Emergency Meeting On School Fiscal Crisis

"An emergency meeting with Governor Milliken and the bipartisan legislative leadership is essential now," Earl Gabriel, president of the Michigan Association of School Boards said Saturday.

Fifty-eight members of Atwood Corporation's office and management staff will be attending a workshop Saturday, June 5, at McGuire's Motor Lodge and Resort in Cadillac.

Atwood President Donald Rocheau will chair the morning business meetings. The Lowell group will then take part in golfing on McGuire's eighteen hole course or fish the nearby lakes.

Local boards in increasing numbers are expressing their grave concerns over the devastating school finance situation. The Board of Directors expressed again its strong conviction that school finance and taxation reform must be addressed immediately.

To expedite such reforms the MASA leadership is seeking an emergency meeting with the Governor and the bipartisan legislative leadership. The purpose of the meeting will be to 1) directly convey to state leaders the magnitude of the accelerating crisis in public education funding; 2) jointly explore all feasible alternatives and to seek support for immediate state financial relief; 3) reaffirm support for the local school districts; and 4) reaffirm opposition to the increasing trend of the funding of other human service needs at the immediate expense of public education funding.

According to Gabriel, the MASA will seek the active

Grocery Cart Tale Is A Moving One

In 1937, an Oklahoma City grocer, looking for a way to encourage shoppers to buy more, added wheels to some folding chairs, lifted the seats, and put a basket on the seat and one on an underneath rack.

The grocer, Sylvan Goldman, became a very rich man, and shopping carts became a very big business. According to Chatham Super Markets in Michigan, the biggest grocery chains buy 40,000 baskets a year at a cost of $2 million.

The sturdy vehicles will hold a dead weight of 1,000 pounds, not counting the "round factor." They range from $30 to $70, and if treated properly will last 20 years.

However, the vehicles are often mistreated to the point of destruction, or are taken home by shoppers. Chatham News reports that a recent study on theft of shopping carts from a group of 39 stores showed a loss of $2.25 million, an average of $349 per store.

Intriguing Memories Hidden Behind The Walls of The Strand

"Stately stands the trees we pass every day... never missed until taken away."

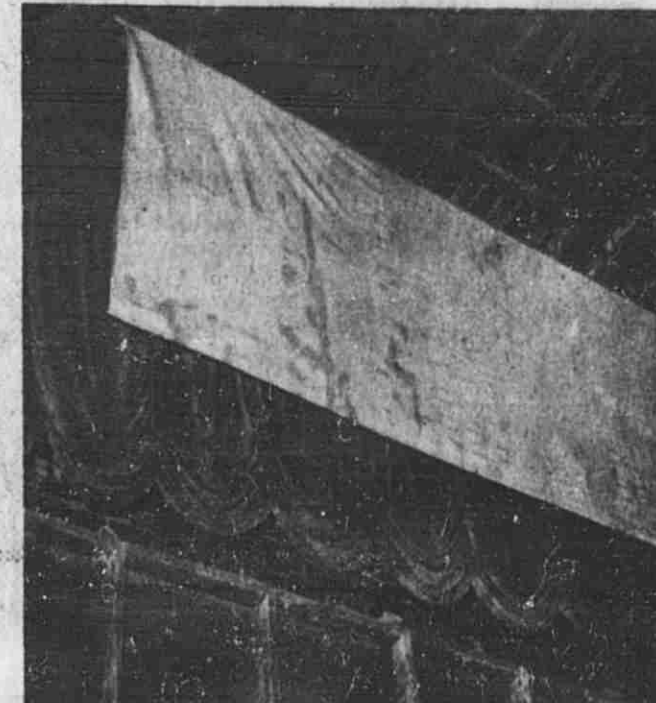

Three years before the Village of Lowell celebrated its centennial year, Harvey J. Callier built a structure in Lowell that, when completed, was heralded all over the state as "Michigan's Most Beautiful Small Theatre."

Today, the structure still stands on Lowell's West Main Street, partially filled with memories of a by-gone era when a night at the movie house was the only form of exciting entertainment.

Since that time, much has been altered in the way of things to do, but the Strand continues its role in the community...

Many photographs are still embedded on the walls of the dressing rooms, which were last used in the 1940's.

Behind the panoramic screen at the Strand Theatre, the original curtains and back-drops, held in place by the fly loft, are still intact, holding many memories of yesteryear.

controlled organ loft, a stage curtain detailed with local advertising, and four dressing rooms in the basement.

One "star's" dressing room was installed at stage level, and another above stage level had an arched ceiling and a small window over-looking the stage and parts of the auditorium.

The back portion of the building four stories high, held the fly loft, and a unique system of controls, ropes and sand bags, for the scenery and curtain drops.

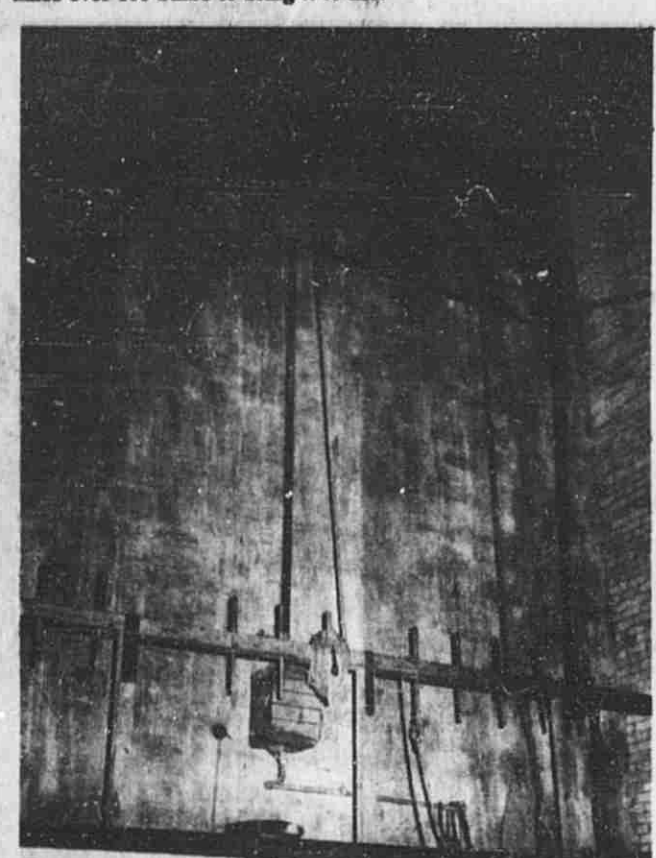

Found in the second story above the main lobby area were several offices; one for a lawyer, a beauty salon, and the management.

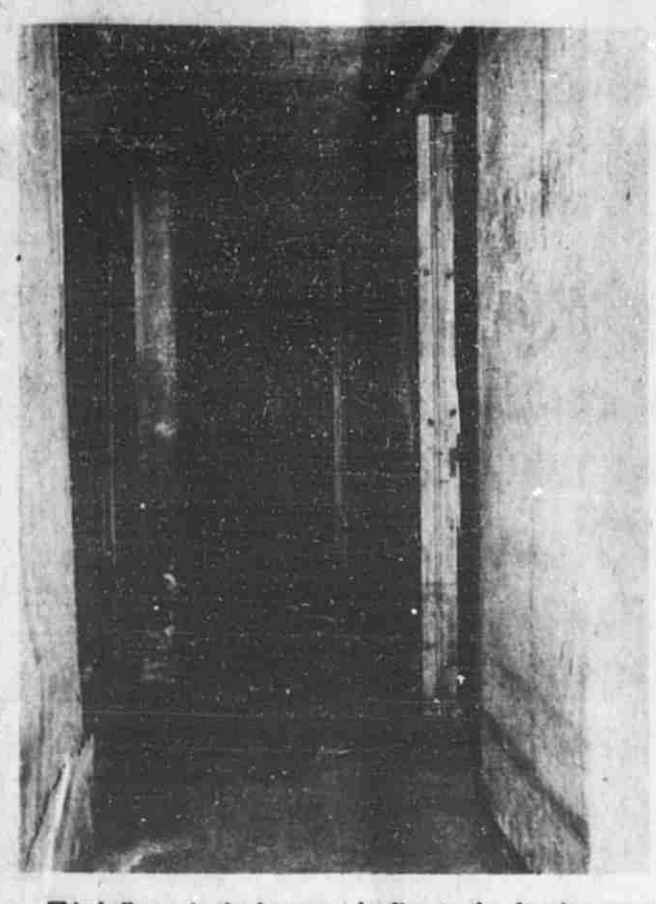

The popcorn stand is a favorite for all movie goers.

One unique feature of the auditorium at the Strand, is this ceiling dome, which when lighted, adds grandeur to the atmosphere. It takes over 100 bulbs to bring it to life.

The hand bags, as a safety measure, have been removed from the roped curtain controls.

This hallway, in the basement leading to the dressing rooms, was busied with activity.

The Strand Theatre as it is today.

The dressing room walls, today, still are etched with such names as Bill Doyle 1935, Ann Rodgers, Margaret Niles, Herb Reynolds 1935, Bob Henry 1939, Joe Hill, Pauline Christoff, Judy Hart, Bud Myers, Kay, Marion and Maxine.

In 1940, the thermostatically controlled organ was returned to the Strand in 1940, and the last of the live stage shows were held.

The Depression years saw the introduction of "Screeno" and "Bank Night," games similar to today's bingo, which drew standing room only crowds; some staying only long enough to try for the jackpot prize which could range anywhere from $25 to $200 dollars.

Things began to smooth out during the mid-1940's, and such movie greats as "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn" drew the theatre crowds.

It was in November of 1948 when the Earl Evans and Ray Engle families purchased the Strand from Callier. The years to follow produced many changes.

In October of 1953, one of the finest improvements of all times was made at the Strand. The installation of a new panoramic wide screen.

Incorporating some of Hollywood's most recent developments, the Strand took great pride in offering to the public an entirely new theory in motion picture presentation... wide screen viewing that makes you feel a part of the show, necessitating total involvement.

The Strand today has the largest screen in Western Michigan. An award in past years was made to the Strand for having one of the best sound systems for theatre presentations.

Many interior changes were made... seating was improved, the lobby area was revamped, the restroom facilities were moved to the main floor, and it was air-conditioned.

In 1972, the theatre's ownership was taken over by the DeNolf family.

The most recent change by the DeNolfs has been a new seating arrangement in the auditorium giving movie goers more leg room comfort.

It's a continual struggle to battle the television world and meet the high-rental movie company's cost, but as long as the public support is there... so will be the Strand.

As past history has proven, a movie theatre is the only place people can go to where they can absorb themselves in the picture, forget many of their everyday problems and enjoy themselves.

The theatre still remains one of the lowest cost forms of entertainment and the popcorn is great! How long has it been since you've visited the Strand?

"Stately stands the Strand we pass every day... never missed until it's taken away."

Back stage, this show bill heralding "Congo Bill" in 15 exciting chapters still adorns the wall.

Bidding On M-91 Project Is Delayed

Advertising bids for resurfacing and major shoulder work on M-91 from near M-57 in Greenville south about four and a half miles to Ellis Road has been delayed due to right-of-way and drainage problems.

The passing lane, to be on the right, will be used by north-bound traffic if there is a regular traffic lane, Miller says. This improvement will increase safety at the intersection, he adds.

Yellow Jacket Control

Looking for yellow jacket nests around the home now may reduce problems in the later summer and fall months.

"Finding and killing the yellow jacket queen now may reduce chances of being stung by these insects while working or playing in the back yard," says Clarence Collihan, Michigan State University Extension entomologist.

The queen overwinters in leaf litter, attics and other suitable places. During spring, the colony is small, primarily a nucleus to keep species going year to year. The colony gradually builds up until there are thousands of yellow jackets per nest by fall.

They are similar to the honeybee in size but have distinct black and yellow markings, where the honeybee appears to be more of a golden color.

Yellow jackets are predators and scavengers, normally feeding on insect larvae, fruit and decaying animals. They frequent garbage disposal areas and outdoor trash receptacles.

They are a bold insect, visiting picnic areas and feeding on food on your plate while you are having your meal. They also tend to fly around you while working in the yard and may sting if bothered.

Honeybees, by contrast, are vegetarians, feeding on plant pollen and nectar. Rarely will they visit a dog or trash area. The only time they sting is when their colony is disturbed or there is a danger of physical harm.

Destroy any yellow jackets you see lying about. These are probably the queen looking for a nesting area. Check your property thoroughly for potential nesting sites.

Yellow jackets will nest either above or below ground. Look for flight activity leading to small holes in the ground, cracks in building foundations or sides of houses.

Do not seal the pests nests in foundation or walls because they will seek another way out, which may be inside the home. Allow them to fly freely until chemical treatment can be applied, such as hornet and wasp aerosol. Other controls include Diazinon or Sevin.

Practice good sanitation by keeping compost piles stirred, garbage cans tightly sealed and burying decaying refuse through summer and fall months. How much of a problem the pest becomes this year depends on how much control is done between now and the build-up.

Personalized Plates Can Be Ordered Now

If you want your car ZAPPED, ZONKED, or BONKED for 1977, now is the time to do it.

According to Michigan Secretary of State Richard Austin, applications for 1977 Personalized license plates are now being accepted.

The personalized license plates cost $25 above the normal license plate fee with the funds being used to help clean Michigan's highways, Austin said.

For the first time this year, personalized license plates may be obtained for use on pick-up trucks and motorcycles.

Because of the smaller size of the motorcycle license plates they will be limited to five letters or number combinations. Automobiles and pick-up trucks still may use any six letter or number combination as the official Michigan license plate, excluding of course, obscene or objectionable combinations.

Last year more than 15,000 motorists obtained personalized license plates for their cars, Austin said, more than triple the previous year's high.

Deadline to order for 1977 is June 30, 1976. The personalized license plates will be mailed to owners about November 15, the date when all license tags go on sale.

Applications may be obtained at any Secretary of State field office.

Theft Protection Program Offered

To help reduce losses to lives and personal property through fire or theft, Allstate Insurance Companies are now offering a public service program on residential fire and theft protection to civic and fraternal organizations, schools, churches and other interested groups.

A qualified speaker will present 25 minutes of visuals and answer audience questions, and brochures on fire and theft prevention will be distributed at each meeting. Your local Allstate agent can make arrangements for this free program.

They Are Learning To Cope Again Through Community Education

For sixteen people living in adult foster care homes in the Lowell area, Monday and Wednesday afternoons are the most important part of the week. It is at those special times that they meet with the staff of the Lowell Outreach Program, presented in cooperation with Lowell Community Education, in the meeting rooms of the American Legion Building. For these people, the activities and services available here represent a helping hand toward their future independence.

According to Joe Gill, Coordinator of the program, the activities are planned by the staff to meet the needs of these people as individuals. Arts and crafts are a mainstay and include everything from knitting to woodworking, embroidery to pottery making. Sometimes they play bingo and, on nice spring days, they adjourn to one of the local parks for an old-fashioned softball game. They will, Joe says, "try anything" of interest to the group. The important thing is that, when the day ends, each person has successfully completed a project, a rewarding experience which is one more step on the road to recovery.

It's not all play at the Lowell Outreach Center. Cindy VanAllsburg's specialty is adult basic education, again planned to meet the individual need. Cindy is qualified to help her students improve their skills in such areas as reading, writing and arithmetic.

Again, it is achievement that is so rewarding for the person involved. One woman, who likes to write poetry, had the thrill of receiving her own "book."

Community Education secretaries typed the poems and bound them into a folder, much to the delight of the author.

Specializing in Arts and Crafts is Community Education Aide Rose Ennis. A most versatile and creative person, Rose takes care to plan activities that are especially fulfilling to the people with whom she works. She doesn't limit herself to arts and crafts, but finds other stimulating material to help broaden the world for these people. A volunteer at the Grand Rapids Art Museum, Rose often gives talks on art at the Lowell elementary schools and she has found that these same talks are enthusiastically received at the Lowell Outreach Center.

Another staff member is Mary Adamsek from the Grand Rapids Urban Corp. She functions as Joe's assistant, turning her hand to anything that needs doing, just as the other staff members do. Other resource people are drawn from volunteers within the community, students from Grand Valley State College, and Lowell Community Education.

The Lowell Outreach Program which came into being just last September as a part of the 1975-76 Community Education Program, is filling a basic need in the Lowell area. Because this program is operating here, each day, each person is closer to that ultimate goal of learning to live and to cope as an individual in today's increasingly complicated world.
