Lowell City Council

Land Trade Is Discussed

C. J. Christoff and Sons, Inc., may remain in Lowell after all. Wendell Christoff, representing the firm, presented a proposal to the Lowell City Council at their regular meeting Monday, October 18.

The proposal was adopted, providing some amendments are adhered to. What Christoff has been after for several weeks is ownership of a city owned parcel of land (about 2 1/2 acres) at the corner of Foreman Street and Gee Drive.

Christoff has an option to buy a nine acre parcel to the west of the city land and the company claims they need the city land for future expansion.

What Christoff proposed basically is a trade of the city owned land for an equal size parcel to be taken out of the south end of both parcels. Amendments to the proposal were that a twenty foot strip be left bordering Gee Drive for the planting of pine trees as a buffer zone.

Also a provision was established that if Christoff's do not build on their nine acre parcel as planned the trade will be nullified. The proposal is also subject to approval by an engineer and an attorney.

Christoff seemed satisfied with the agreement that has been the culmination of considerable discussion at several city meetings.

The subject seemed to be a dead issue two weeks ago when Christoff announced that he was ready to give up on the idea.

The council approved the purchase of a city radio communications system after learning that Lowell Light and Power is indeed going along with the program and will pay for their share of the units.

Whether or not the school system is going to use a $12,500 matching fund grant that was obtained by the city for building tennis courts is still an open subject.

Dave Miller, a member of the school board was present to find out the council's feelings on the subject. After much discussion, the council offered a proposal that the courts be built north and east of the middle school, with two of the six courts located on city property which is a requirement to use the funds.

Miller said that he would present the proposal to the board at their next meeting. The scheduled public hearing on the changing of Lowell's ordinance regarding liquor-by-the-glass, drew no opposition from the audience. A brief remark, opposing the changes, came from Councilman Jefferies.

Councilman Pfaller asked the City Manager to have representatives from Triangle Associates, Inc., present at the next council meeting to explain why the company is behind schedule on the city's water treatment plant.

More Senior Citizen Housing For Saranac

On Monday, October 18, Congressman Richard VanderVeen was the guest of honor at a dinner at Mill Creek Meadows, a 32 unit senior citizen housing development, in Saranac.

After being introduced by Village President Max Tullis, VanderVeen announced the approval of one of the first rent subsidy programs in the state for a 61 unit housing project in Saranac. After the announcement Saranac Housing Director Cecil Morris brought the audience to their feet with cheers and applause.

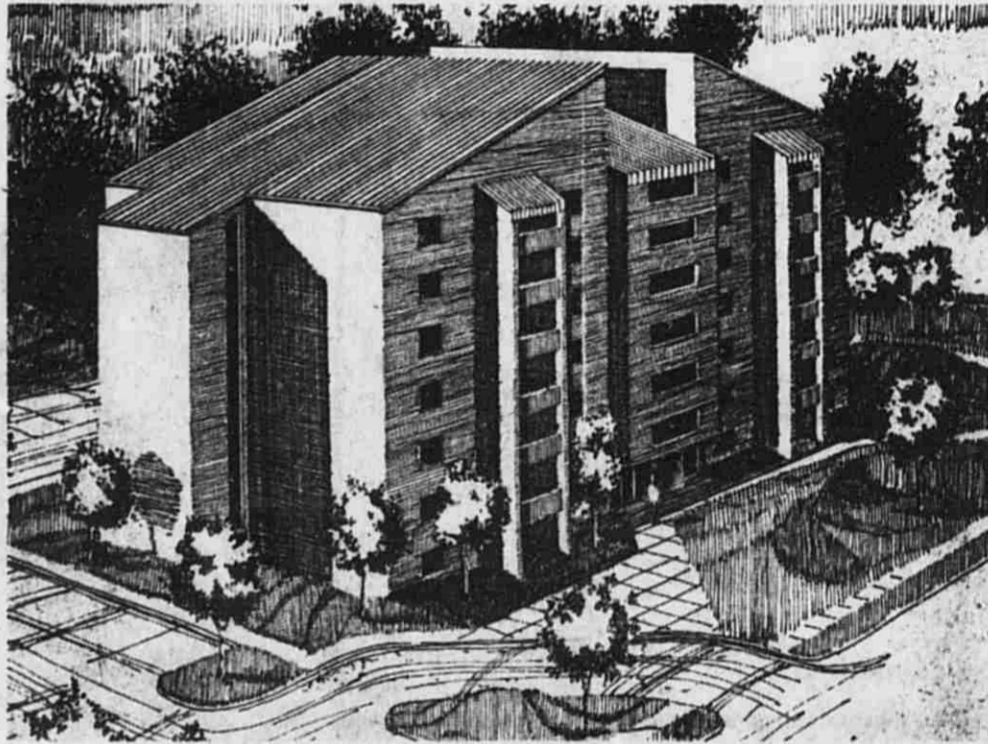

The U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development has awarded the 40-year grant to subsidize the rent payments for low-income and elderly persons in the proposed $1.4 million development. The project of the Saranac Housing Commission will contain 49 senior citizen apartments and 12 two-and-three bedroom townhouses for low income families. VanderVeen said.

The six-story senior apartment building and the low-income units will be located on a five acre parcel of land on Summit Street, adjacent to an existing complex of 32 units for the elderly.

The assistance payments, VanderVeen said, will be used to make up the difference between the established rent paid to owners for the housing unit, and the occupant family's required contribution toward rent. Assisted families will be required to pay at least 15 percent to a maximum of 25 percent of their adjusted family income toward rent.

Commitment of the funds by HUD will be followed by final approval once the agency has reviewed the housing commission's final proposal later this month.

VanderVeen, who worked with HUD in obtaining the grant, said the agency expects final approval to be routine.

Above is an artist's conception of the new housing unit that is proposed to be built in Saranac. The six story unit will house 49 apartments for the elderly and 12 low and middle income apartments.

Housing Director Cecil Morris, [right], brings the audience to their feet with applause following Congressman VanderVeen's announcement that 61 more units of Senior Citizen housing will be added in Saranac.

Construction of the project is expected to get underway next year following completion of financing.

The housing commission has a verbal commitment of mortgage money, and is awaiting approval of an FHA mortgage guarantee, a commission spokesman said.

"The rent subsidy program," said VanderVeen, "will make good housing available to many elderly persons at rents they can afford."

VanderVeen went on to note that this approval was the culmination of more than two years of very hard work by Morris, the Saranac Village Board and many others.

VanderVeen was lauded by both Tullis and Morris for his tremendous help in obtaining federal aid for both of Saranac's housing projects and the replacement of the Grand River Bridge.

Revved Up For Friday's Homecoming

Students came to classes at Lowell Senior High School Monday morning, showing their enthusiastic school spirit by wearing caps and ties for "cap 'em and tie 'em up day," which set off a full week of activities leading up to the traditional LHS homecoming festivities this Friday night.

Tuesday, the halls of the school were turned back in time, as the students appeared dressed in the '50's style. Monday and Tuesday also saw students, for a nominal fee, try to completely wreck a car purchased by the Varsity Club, and imprinted with the names of their homecoming rivals.

The two days of pounding away with a sledge hammer at the vehicle, parked adjacent to the high school, gave the students satisfaction in the fact that they had destroyed it . . . and their 'spirit' for a good homecoming soared higher.

Today, Wednesday is Tag Day, followed by Mourning Day, when the students will wear black, to show their feelings for the Greenville squad that will invade Lowell's football field.

Friday, the student body will wear their traditional school colors, red and white. Each class has decorated a hallway in the school, and the winning endeavor will be judged Friday.

The senior class, hosts for the homecoming this year, has chosen as the overall theme "Forever In A Dream," which each class will carry on their homecoming floats.

The LHS Varsity Club which has played an intricate part in promoting the intense homecoming spirit, on Wednesday night, will have charge of the "snake dance," which will start at 7 p.m.

According to Varsity Club spokesman Bill Heintzleman, the club has secured a burning permit for the bon fire which will be ignited near the High School, and refreshments will be served following a 'spirited' program of activities.

Lowell Churches Offer Assistance

Five Lowell churches have combined forces with the churches of Ada and Cascade to assist in the area FISH program which offers all sorts of volunteer services to those in need.

The original FISH organization in the area was formed by the Cascade Christian Church seven years ago, later having been joined by several other neighborhood churches that maintain a seven-day-a-week ministry.

Calling upon FISH is without financial obligation or any gimmicks to involve people in their organization. Work is done secretly even among members of FISH who do not necessarily know the total activities of this rapid-growing service organization.

Emergency transportation, foodstuffs, clothing, counseling, prayers and concern are but a few of the things that FISH stand ready to offer those "in need."

Everyone is cordially invited to attend the service.

Band Salute, America '76

The Lowell High Red Arrow Marching Band performed its Bicentennial salute, "America '76" for half-time at the October 15th football game.

The band made its entrance with a snappy drill to "Fanfare and Entry." A short percussion interlude placed the band into formation for "Look Up, America," and "Mother Country," directed by Robert Rice. Here, the flags were featured.

Under the whistle of drum major, Mike Rowe, a drum cadence moved the band into concert formation for "Let There Be Peace On Earth." The majorettes, Sheila Huver, Suzy Sinko, and Deb and Val Viscan were the main attractions as they twirled fire batons for the finale, "America The Beautiful."

For their exit from the field, the band stepped lively to "Go Arrows."

Final Year For Public Access Hunting

The 1976 hunting season will be the last year that hunters will find private lands under the Cropland Adjustment Program open for hunting, states Dorn Diehl, State Executive Director of the Michigan State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service Office.

For the past ten years, there has been approximately 60,000 acres open for public hunting without charge. Expirations and terminations have now reduced this acreage to approximately 25,000 acres for 1976. These lands were private farmlands that were participating in the Cropland Adjustment Program, which retired land from agricultural use.

Owners were also provided a supplemental agreement for an additional payment if the lands were made available to hunting.

These agreements were written in 1966 and 1967 so approximately one-half of them expired last year and the remaining agreements will expire at the end of 1976.

Diehl further states that the program has been so successful and has developed such good relations between private landowners and hunters that it is very possible that if hunters will continue to contact these private landowners, the same areas

Lowell Township Adds Natural Beauty Roads

As a result of the published public hearing held recently at the Township of Lowell Municipal Building the following roads within the township were designated "Natural Beauty Roads." Timpson Avenue from 60th Street to the I-96 Turnaround; 40th Street from Alden Nash to Timpson Avenue; and Timpson Avenue from Cascade Road to the Intersection of 40th Street.

The addition of these roads to those previously designated has increased the network of "Natural Beauty Roads" within Lowell Township. This program is in keeping with the residents' desire for the township to retain its rural setting.

Last year the Township of Lowell led all other local units of government within the county in the "Natural Beauty Roads" Program.

Then on Friday night, the conclusion of the week's activities will boil into one big event when the bandsmen from LHS will open the homecoming festivities at Burch Field in Recreation Park.

The game pitting the Red Arrows against Greenville will start at 7:30 p.m., with the crowning of the homecoming queen, the float judging, etc., taking place during the half-time ceremonies.

Final Year For Public Access Hunting

The 1976 hunting season will be the last year that hunters will find private lands under the Cropland Adjustment Program open for hunting, states Dorn Diehl, State Executive Director of the Michigan State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service Office.

For the past ten years, there has been approximately 60,000 acres open for public hunting without charge. Expirations and terminations have now reduced this acreage to approximately 25,000 acres for 1976. These lands were private farmlands that were participating in the Cropland Adjustment Program, which retired land from agricultural use.

Owners were also provided a supplemental agreement for an additional payment if the lands were made available to hunting.

These agreements were written in 1966 and 1967 so approximately one-half of them expired last year and the remaining agreements will expire at the end of 1976.

Diehl further states that the program has been so successful and has developed such good relations between private landowners and hunters that it is very possible that if hunters will continue to contact these private landowners, the same areas
