According to Township Manager Lee Patterson, with state certification of an interim census taken last December, the township could receive an estimated $35,000-$40,000 more in state-shared revenue funds. "But we're not counting on it before we get it," Patterson said. The December census showed the population of Cascade at the end of 1976 to be 8,445. An increase of 3,202 persons since the 1970 federal census.

Memorial Services For Charles White

Retired Lowell High School teacher, Charles B. White passed away unexpectedly Friday afternoon, June 10, in Novato, California, of a heart attack.

Mr. White, or "Charlie" as he was known to his students, retired from the Lowell School system in 1971. Twenty-nine out of a total of thirty-six years of Mr. White's teaching had been devoted to the Lowell School.

After graduating from Western Michigan University he began his teaching in the Allegan, Hamilton and Plainwell Schools. He worked his way through school by using a skill that he earlier had acquired by attending a school to learn the art of applying wall covering, specializing in the application of fabric backed wall coverings.

Many homes, both in this and the Kalamazoo area, may still attest to that avocation, for he used it for many years to while away those "summer vacations." Though teaching mainly business and economics courses, Mr. White filled-in when other teachers were absent, giving him the honor of having taught more subjects than any teacher in the system.

Mr. White started the school's driver education program in 1947 on his own time and with no monetary compensation until the program was taken over by the State. He was also the Vocational Coordinator for the On-The-Job Training Program, helping many students find their first jobs.

One of his former students remarked that "Mr. White cannot be remembered for his great enthusiasm, both in and out of the classroom and also his ability to make some otherwise dull subjects, interesting."

On June 19, 1977, Charlie and his wife, Hester, would have celebrated their 44th wedding anniversary.

Funeral services for Mr. White were held in California, with cremation following.

Memorial services in Lowell will be conducted on Sunday afternoon, June 26, at 3 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church of Lowell.

Besides his wife, Mr. White leaves a daughter, Mrs. Keith (Lois) Sleighter of Grand Rapids; two sons, Robert of Novato, California, and James of Washington; and several grandchildren.

Miller In; Millage Out

Lowell School District voters reaffirmed their position of last March by defeating an operating millage proposal here Monday for the second time in a row.

A total of 876 "yes" and 1,185 "no" votes were cast in Lowell while Alto tallied 130 "yes" and 244 "no" for a combined figure of 1,006 "yes" to 1,429 "no."

The results at the polls made it perfectly clear that the majority wants no increase in local taxation regardless of whatever steps the school board may have to take to stay within a budget that just won't stretch all the way.

Lloyd Miller

In the race for the lone seat on the board of education, Harold Metternick, incumbent, lost by a slim five-vote margin to Lloyd Miller, Metternick has served the local district continuously for the past 29 years and to many the stability of his experience was reassuring as other members came and went.

Reached for comment early this week, Metternick said, "Twenty-nine years is a long time but I can say this: When I leave, I've left a good school behind."

Lowell Native Wins Award

Sue Thaler Jentoft of Marquette, a Lowell native, was named the second place winner in the newly featured division of United Press International's "Award of Excellence" contest for writers of Michigan daily newspapers with a circulation of less than 20,000.

A three-article series on rape and the impact it has on the victim brought the award for Jentoft, who was the home and family editor of The Mining Journal in Marquette until May of this year.

Of the series, the UPI judges wrote: "This superb news feature uses a basis of nearly a dozen assault cases in the community, lending a timely element to enlarge upon the dilemma and social ramifications of rape in society. The articles deal with a subject of widespread appeal and, through the use of skilled writing, handles a delicate subject with honesty and good taste."

In preparing the series, Jentoft interviewed victims, law enforcement personnel and medical professionals to gain material. She joined the staff of The Journal in July of 1975 and previously taught English and journalism at Durand High School.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orion Thaler, 12920-36th St., Lowell, she is a 1965 graduate of Lowell High School and received her bachelor's and master's degrees from Michigan State University in 1969 and 1972, respectively.

For WEST MICHIGAN Sportsmen

by Denny Geurink

Quite often when we think of things that are poisonous to our systems we limit our scope of awareness to items of the well known variety—like bleaches or other cleaning agents, and improper use of medicines. But there are many other common items around us that may be just as dangerous—especially to children. (If you have children you owe it to yourself to read on.)

Take for instance, plants. We are all aware of the misery involved with poison ivy, but did you know that there are over 700 other species of plants, some growing in your back yard or home, that are known to cause death or illness? Each year, according to the U.S. Public Health Service, about 1,200 children chew or swallow these potentially poisonous plants. Many are made violently sick; some die. Yet in most cases people don't even realize the plants are dangerous.

According to the National Safety Council the list of these potential dangerous plants reads somewhat like a garden catalog. There are the daffodils, the poinsettias, the larkspur, the iris, the lilac, the valley and the foxglove. There are the wisteria, laurel, rhododendron and azalea. Also, cherry trees, cultivated and wild, the oaks and the black locust. Each is a potential danger, especially to young children with their natural urge to taste the unknown.

A child may die from eating even one leaf of a poinsettia or a few mistletoe berries. The berries of the yew will cause death if eaten; the foliage of this common ornamental tree is even more toxic. Death usually is sudden, without warning symptoms.

The National Safety Council points out that it's easy to be fooled by plants, because one part may be edible, another poisonous. The twigs of cherry trees, on which any youngster might munch, release cyanide. Peach tree leaves contain hydrocyanic acid, one of the most dangerous poisons known. Five children recently became ill after sipping "tea" brewed with peach leaves.

Rhubarb is another dangerous garden plant, but only its stalk, of course, is not toxic, but its leaves, which some have suggested could be eaten like spinach, can be fatal.

The plant variously called thorn apple, stinkweed and jimson weed deserves a place on the top 10 list of outdoor dangers because it grows almost everywhere and because all its parts are poisonous. Responsible for more poisonings than any other plant, it grows from two to five feet tall, has large leaves and funnel-shaped flowers resembling morning glories.

Position Information Centers are located in many cities and are open 24 hours a day. Find out the telephone number of your local center and keep it posted near your phone. Call if a child or any member of the family exhibits signs of an accidental poisoning.

House plants which are dangerous to children include: Hyacinth, Narcissus, Daffodil—These cause nausea, vomiting, diarrhea. May be fatal. Oleander—Extremely poisonous. Affects the heart, produces severe digestive upset and has caused death. Poinsettia—Fatal. One leaf can kill a child. One or two leaves can kill a dog. Diffenbachia, Elephant Ear—Intense burning and irritation of the mouth and tongue. Death can occur if base of the tongue swells enough to block the air passage of the throat. Rosary Pea, Castor Bean—Fatal. A single rosary pea seed has caused death. One or two castor bean seeds are near the lethal dose for adults.

"Letter From Washington"
By Congressman Hal Sawyer
Recent revelations about the extent of child pornography in this country are startling.

In testimony before a House subcommittee, author Robin M. Lloyd stated: "Large numbers of American children are being coerced into performing sexual acts for pornographers. We had thought that child pornography was mostly produced in Europe, but investigators have revealed that now much of it is produced in the United States."

He cited several examples:—In Santa Clara, Calif., police arrested a high school teacher and a photographer who had been running a porno ring for over 10 years. Some 250 different boys were involved and over 10,000 pictures were taken in the raid.

—In New Orleans, seven adults recently were arrested for using members of a Boy Scout troop in producing pornographic materials for nationwide distribution.

—Shortly after the Houston murders of 27 young boys in 1973, a man was arrested in Dallas for running a call-boy master list of some 50,000 prospects for the services of literally hundreds of boys.

Essentially, the bill would make it a felony to cause or permit a child under 16 to engage in the real or simulated performance of sexual activities being photographed. Conviction would carry a maximum penalty of 20 years and/or a $50,000 fine.

Currently, one version of the bill is before the House Judiciary Committee. As a member of that committee, I am in a good position to push for passage of this needed legislation.

If all goes according to schedule, the bill will reach the House floor yet this summer. Please let me know your thoughts on this matter by writing me in care of "A Letter from Washington," Room 166 Federal Building, Grand Rapids, MI 49503.

Carl Marcus, Community Relations Manager, Grand Rapids, reminds you:

"How and When you call Long Distance can make a big difference in savings."

Be sure you know all the ways you can save on long distance. Most people already save by dialing direct, instead of going through the operator. And, on calls within Michigan, you can save most by calling weekdays after 5 p.m. or on weekends till 5 p.m. Sunday. You save when you dial direct on out-of-state calls, too. Check the front pages of your telephone directory for the best times. When you want to dial direct, but don't know the number, you can receive long distance directory assistance by dialing 1, plus the area code of the city you want to reach, plus 555-1212. You'll find a listing of some distant city area codes in the front of your directory. If you have any questions, just call your local Michigan Bell business office, also listed in the front of your telephone book. We're ready to help. Michigan Bell

Survey Seeks Data On Future Growth

How many children do married women expect to have within the next five years? Will they average the same number as in the recent past? Answers to these questions will indicate the future growth and composition of the Nation's population, data vital to planners both in government and private business. Robert G. McWilliam, Director of the Bureau's Regional Office in Detroit, announced today that information on birth expectations of American women will be collected during the week of June 20-24 from a sample of households in this area. The questions are asked in the monthly survey on employment and unemployment conducted nationwide by the Bureau for the U.S. Department of Labor.

"What's cooking in Michigan..."
by Carl B. Olson
Michigan Dept. of Agriculture
During June, remember the lowly cow (no pun intended), standing in Michigan fields, contentedly chewing her cud. Central she's perhaps the most aware that it's nationally Dairy Month.

When it comes to hamburgers, I sometimes get tired of the same old grind. I don't mean the way the butcher chops it up, I mean the way it's cooked and served.

Knowing the fat content differences can sometimes influence your buying and save money in the family food budget. The big thing is being aware as you get "out of the old grind."

'Circle Calling' At Discount Rates

A new optional telephone service that will enable Lowell residence customers to make short-haul distance calls at a discount rate is now available. The new offering, named "Circle Calling," has been developed by Michigan Bell for residence customers who make a substantial number of calls outside their local calling area.

Circle Calling provides discounts for dialed calls within a 30-mile radius of Lowell. It costs an additional $2.50 a month, with a call allowance of $1.50 and a 30 percent discount on long distance calls to exchange centers located within 30 miles of the central office in Lowell, explained Carl Marcus, manager here for Michigan

Bell. "This new offering gives those who have such calling needs a plan they may subscribe to, and those who don't have such needs do not have to pay for such service," Marcus said. Circle Calling discounts apply at all times except from 7 a.m. to noon Mondays through Fridays. Under the plan, if a customer is accustomed to calling from Lowell to an individual 21-25 miles away, for example, the regular day rate is 11c a minute. With Circle Calling, the day rate would be discounted at 30 percent and the evening rate would be discounted an additional 30 percent. The allowance of $1.50 would give this customer up to 19 "free" or "allowable" day minutes, or up to 27 "free" or "allowable" evening minutes. After the allowance of "free" minutes is used up, the rate would then be 7.7c per minute between noon and 5 p.m., and 5.39c after 5.

Search For Qualified Families

To thousands of American families this year, the teenage face across the breakfast table could be that of a son or daughter born 6,000 miles away. More than 3,400 ambassadors of friendship aged 14 to 18 will arrive in the United States this year from 24 countries in Europe, South America, and the Far East, under the Youth for Understanding exchange program. Youth for Understanding, a non-profit organization, is searching for qualified families excited by the prospect of sharing their homes with an exchange student for six months or a year, while getting an incomparable education from the experience.

Host families provide room and board for the student, making him or her a part of their family and daily lives. Program fees and the student's natural family take care of medical insurance, clothing expenses, and spending money. Like any teenager, the exchange student needs supervision, love, and guidance. But for the family with these to give, there are many rewards. For host families, day-to-day life becomes an adventure, full of the small surprises that happen when people from different cultures get to know each other. "An international student brings a unique flavor to a household," says Philip Yasinski, executive director of Youth for Understanding. "Maybe it's the lilt of a foreign accent, a different way of cooking, or just a new way of seeing things. It's a special kind of experience that has to be lived to be understood. The more than 55,000 families who have shared this Youth for Understanding experience emphasize its value to all involved." Parents are enthusiastic about the educational benefits of the host family program. A mother who has hosted exchange students for seven years says: "I want my kids to learn more, which is probably why I have Youth for Understanding exchange students. I can't afford to be traveling and taking them to see other countries and cultures. This way I can bring the culture to them. My seven-year-old can count to 20 in French and knows Portuguese and Swedish songs. The seven-year-old next door can't do that."

But the rewards are more than educational. The host family is also forming a close relationship that spans continents and can last a lifetime. One host father puts it this way: "We are childless, but after hosting four exchange students we don't feel that way. The benefits are long-term—my previous Finnish son just named his first child after me." Youth for Understanding is the largest exchange program of its kind in the U.S. It is endorsed by and receives an annual grant from the U.S. Department of State. Since it began 25 years ago, it has exchanged more than 55,000 students worldwide. Families who wish further information on the host family program may contact their regional Youth for Understanding office or their local Youth for Understanding volunteer representative, Mrs. William Erdrige, 8600 Dygert Drive, S.E., Alto, 891-8564, who will personally interview the family and give them more information

Kropf Congratulated

C-Way Gets Bridge Bid

C-Way Construction Co. of Spring Lake has been awarded the contract for building a four-lane bridge over the Rogue River in Rockford, reports Donald R. Schofield, engineer-manager of the Kent County Road Commission. C-Way was the low bidder of seven at $942,863 for the span which will eliminate several turns in Rockford and thus permit east and westbound traffic to move through Rockford expeditiously, including that traffic to and from the Lowell area. This improvement will be part of 10 Mile Rd., a major artery most of the way between Ottawa and Ionia Counties. The new bridge will be 280 feet long, with new approaches on the west side of the river and 450 feet of new roadway on the east side of it. Width of the span will be 52 feet from curb to curb and there are to be 5-foot-wide sidewalks on each side of the bridge. Construction will start immediately and completion is slated about July 1, 1978. The bid was $357,137 lower than the estimate of $1.3 million. Federal funds will pay about 70 percent of the project, with the City of Rockford and the KCRS each paying about 15 percent. The present bridge will be kept for local traffic.—Dave Barnes.
