Lowell Police Sergeant Injured

Shooting Spree Sends Deputy To Surgery

Guashots and a high speed chase turned a quiet summer night into a nightmare for area policemen and residents. Roger P. Newton, 20, of Saranac, is in custody charged with assault with intent to murder, liable to life imprisonment, and possession of a shotgun in the commission of a felony, which carries a mandatory 2-year term.

County Sheriff's Dept., was shot Tuesday evening, Sept. 5, as he pursued a high-powered yellow Mustang through the streets of Lowell. He was reported in good condition after undergoing surgery Wednesday afternoon for pellet wounds to the forehead and right eye.

Lowell Police Sergeant Jim Hutson said that at about 10:20 p.m. he was dispatched to the area near the doctor's offices on North Hudson to check on a report of gunfire. He met Deputy McCullough in a Kent County E-unit coming into Lowell and determined that neither had found anything amiss.

Next Sgt. Hutson was dispatched to the Standard Gas Station at Main St. and Hudson St. to take a report from Mr. and Mrs. William Kritzmire of Southfield that their vehicle had been fired upon. The shooting had taken place just outside the city limits so Deputy McCullough also responded.

At about that time a series of rapid fire shots came from a yellow Mustang at the corner of Chatham and Hudson. It has been determined that the E-unit was struck five times at this point as it stood at the gas station.

Sgt. Hutson gave chase but stopped the wrong car. Two Lowell teens rushed from a nearby house to give an exact description of the car being sought. Meanwhile, reports of gunfire at Attwood to an auto and the factory sent policemen to that area. Deputy McCullough then spotted the suspect in a yellow Mustang at the light and entered into pursuit.

Tires squealing, the sports car zig-zagged through the streets and re-entered Main in front of Sgt. Hutson who was then able to radio its license number to the dispatcher. The suspect swung into a side street and it appeared that the driver was pointing something through the window at the Lowell cruiser.

"I felt it was time to stop him by all means before someone got hurt," Hutson said, "so I rammed his vehicle with the cruiser and spun him around." Unfortunately, McCullough, driving his E-unit around the same corner ran into the back of Hutson's cruiser.

While Hutson tried to start his auto, the E-unit continued in pursuit. On Riverside Drive somewhere in the 600 block, the automatic rifle shots were fired. Apparently empty, the driver of the Mustang switched to the shotgun, firing into the E-unit and hitting Deputy McCullough in the face.

TIRE COMPANY CHANGES HANDS

Lucchesi Bros. Tire Co. has been purchased by Wayne Porter, Hunt St., Lowell, manager of the business since it opened here. The name of the business has been changed to the Lowell Tire Company but will still offer the same brands and quality work. The tire service truck for on-location repair will still be in operation. Porter's wife Barbara is bookkeeper for the firm. She is the daughter of George and Dolores Dey of Lowell.

RUNCIMAN-RIVERSIDE MOMS MEET

There will be an organizational meeting for Room Mothers for Runciman-Riverside schools. All interested parents are urged to attend on September 20 at 1:30 p.m. in the all-purpose room at Runciman School, Lowell.

FOLK MUSIC AT LAAC MEET

The first meeting of the Lowell Area Arts Council for 1978-79 season will be held at the Bushnell Elementary Kiva, 700 Elizabeth, Lowell, on Thursday, Sept. 14. Gordon and Evie Proulx will entertain at 7:30 p.m. when a much larger LAAC meets. Recent membership drives have boosted their numbers from 43 to 84. Proulx and his wife are Grand Valley State College graduates, living and teaching in Lowell. Refreshments will be served and the public is welcome.

LIONS WANT TO LIGHT UP YOUR LIFE

Lowell Lions Club is holding its Annual Light Bulb Sale on Tuesday, Sept. 19, starting at 6:30 p.m. Also at this time they are collecting any old eyeglasses, lenses or frames that people don't want. These will be recycled to aid the sight-impaired.

CHARGES REDUCED

Charges of auto theft against James G. Hansma and Brian Moore, both of Lowell, have been supplanted by charges of unlawful use of an auto following examination before 63rd District Court Judge Joseph White. Bond was reduced for Hansma from $3,000 to $1,000 and for Moore from $3,000 to $1,500.

SOUVENIR SALES BEGIN

Starting Friday, Sept. 15 and every Friday until the end of October, Re-float the Showboat Campaign will have girls selling raffle tickets on the 1979 autos at Eberhards and the Lowell State Savings Bank. They will also be selling souvenir chunks of leftover Showboat, campaign buttons, iron-on transfers and "Re-float" T-shirts. If anyone can help sell for a few hours, contact Caroline Hinzman at 897-8318.

CYCLIST ARRESTED

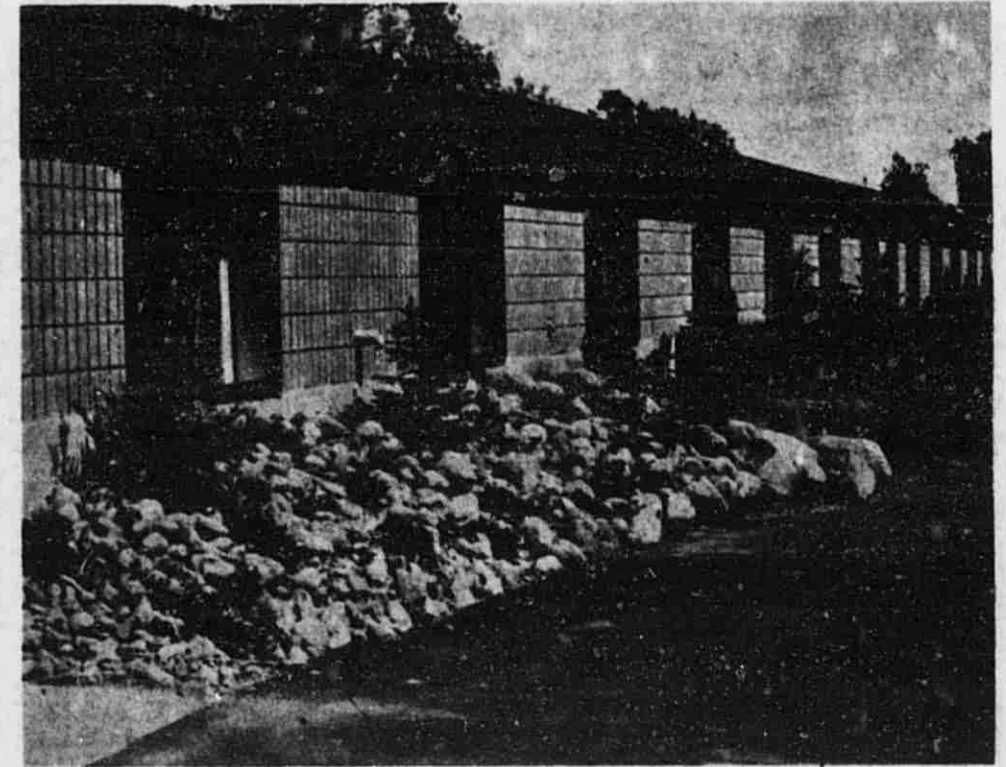

Jerry Washburn, Lowell, was arrested Saturday evening, Sept. 9, for driving a motorcycle while his license was suspended.

THANKS FOR THE HELP!

Lowell Police Department has extended thank you's to the many off-duty local officers who responded to Tuesday night's chase and shooting of Deputy Patrick McCullough. Officers from Kent County Sheriff's Dept., Lowell Reserves, Grand Rapids Police Dept., Michigan State Police, Montcalm County Sheriff's Dept., and Ionia County Sheriff's Dept. assisted in the investigation. If we forgot to say it in all the excitement, thanks again.

Cumberland Manor Ready For Occupancy

Cumberland Manor, a sprawling, 148 bed, "home for the aged", is now open and ready for occupancy according to owner John Ramjeet. The new and ultra modern facility is located just west of the Lowell city limits at 11535 E. Fulton Avenue.

Cumberland Manor is different than other senior citizen housing projects in the area, namely Cherry Creek Care Center and Schneider Manor in that this new facility's services fall somewhere in between those offered by the other two. With Cherry Creek being a total care center and Schneider Manor catering to residents who can pretty much take care of themselves to include cooking, Cumberland Manor fills a wide gap very nicely.

The construction of Cumberland Manor is ultra-modern in all respects so as to provide the safest most efficient and most convenient atmosphere possible for its residents. The entire structure is built on one floor eliminating stairs for the elderly residents and the very latest of fire safety devices have been incorporated into the building's design. The building is a large square with a central open courtyard. Many services, such as coffee nooks, are duplicated so that residents do not have to walk all the way around the building to make use of them.

To begin with, three family style meals will be served each day in one of the building's two dining rooms. All rooms are furnished with only the necessities so that residents may fill them with their personal furnishings. Other extras offered by Cumberland Manor include two all day coffee nooks, barber and beauty shop services, outdoor courtyard, organized arts and crafts, ladies guild, fishing pond, movies, library, church services, mini-store, laundry, central dayroom with color TV, and regularly scheduled minibus trips to Lowell, Ionia and the Grand Rapids malls.

Many steps were taken to make the building as energy efficient as possible such as the earthen berms built up to the window bottoms which acts as extra insulation.

Three types of rooms are available to residents. There are doubles for husbands and wives, private, and semi-private rooms. All rooms are equipped with a nurse call system, television antenna lead, pre-wired telephone, carpeting and hot and cold water.

The staff at Cumberland Manor includes a full-time administrator, licensed nurse and resident assistants besides a complement of cooks, custodians, and clerical personnel.

Fees for a resident's room and board at Cumberland Manor can be paid either out-of-pocket or if eligible, the social security system will pay all costs and still provide the resident with a monthly spending allowance.

Those interested in Cumberland Manor should call between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. at (616) 897-8413 or stop by the facility during those same hours Monday through Friday.

Crank Call Season: Beware

Must be the change of season or maybe a full moon. The crank and obscene phone callers are at it again.

Lowell Police Department warns residents that at least two phone hoaxes have been reported in the city and county. In one, the male caller identifies himself as a doctor with permission from the husband to conduct a sex survey with the wife. In the other, the crank call begins under the guise of a survey being conducted by the local schools.

There are currently no phone surveys being conducted by the schools, reports Superintendent of Schools Don Kelly. He adds that when the schools do operate a phone survey it is well publicized in advance and callers working the survey will immediately identify themselves.

Robert E. Lee Has Grand Funeral

Hey! Isn't that a dandy logo at the head of this column? Now

I have WHISTLE TOOTS and this too. The present emblem was provided by veteran endman and member of "Re-Float the Showboat" publicity committee Dick McNeal. You will be seeing a lot of this symbol on buttons, iron-ons and T-shirts, which may be obtained at nominal prices. Get in the swing and wear that thing and help RE-FLOAT THE LOWELL SHOWBOAT. ...

I came out of the column last week with egg on my face. The first meeting of the Showboat in 1932 was held in the back room of Look's Drug Store and not Forrest (Bucky) Buck, Endman and Chief Mourner, mopped his eyes and "minister" Terry Fenech, Endman, read an eulogy which prompted more howls than walls. As the crowd listened, it became apparent that "the Showboat will Re-float again".

Henry's Drug Store. Sorry about that "Deac". ...

I am glad that after a long time the endmen have come into their own. Heretofore we have been looked on as buffoons and rascals. If you read Sunday's paper you will note we performed the last rites and eulogy of the departed Robert E. Lee III with great poise and dignity. Quoting from the emotional words of Rev. Terry Fenech, the "Robert E. Lee will float again". ...

The well known episode of "Roots" has nothing on us. We have our own Chicken George. I saw him in the person of George Dey, presiding at the Barbeque last Saturday. ...

While many of our feathered friends are heading south, there, in the middle of our parade was Woody Woodpecker from WOOD in all his?—her? splendor. ...

I'm surprised that the Sunday paper didn't read LOWELL COMES CLEAN. The mayor, City Manager and Chief of Police took a bath in the Dunk Tank. I offered them a bar of soap but they just gave me a dirty look. ...

If there was ever a question as to whether Lowell is on the map there is now. The kick-off of the "RE-FLOAT THE LOWELL SHOWBOAT" campaign hit western Michigan with near the same velocity as the storm Saturday, August 19th that demolished Robert E. Lee, III.

Surrounding radio stations, publicized the program hourly. Newspapers blitzed the region with pictures and stories. The response was great. The kick-off parade was one that will be long remembered by the residents of our Showboat City. Time and space does not allow us to list each and every participant in this event. The board of directors and the City of Lowell says THANKS.

Fall Brings Red Flannel Days To Cedar Springs

Since 1939, autumn has meant only one thing in Cedar Springs, a town of 2,000—Red Flannel Days. This fall will be no different, except that the celebration has been extended from two weekends to three—Sept. 30, Oct. 6 and 7, and Oct. 14.

Activities range from the traditional lumberjack supper and queen coronation to first time events such as a blue grass concert and a series of old-fashioned contests for all ages.

On the first Red Flannel Day, Sept. 30, the lumberjack supper and queen coronation will be featured at Cedar Springs High School. The second weekend of activities will begin Oct. 6, highlighted by a free street dance to begin downtown at 8 P.M.

The last weekend of festival activities is slated for Oct. 14. The day will feature a cross country invitational "Run for the Flannels" and a six-mile road race starting from the high school. The final event of the Red Flannel Days celebration is a blue grass musical concert by "Cabbage Creek."

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor

Since I entered the race for the County Commission, a question has emerged regarding a possible incompatibility between the offices of County Commissioner and Board of Education member.

The question was initially raised the very week that nominating petitions had to be filed. I attempted to resolve the question that same week by contacting the offices of County Clerk and County Controller. Neither of those offices could answer with certainty.

I ended up in the Prosecuting Attorney's office, where I spent over an hour with an Assistant Prosecutor researching the question. The result was that there "might be" a conflict, but he couldn't say for sure. That was the day that petitions were filed, and since there was no clear conflict, I decided to file.

Finally, in an attempt to file the matter to rest, I retained a law firm to research the question and to provide a legal opinion. This endeavor cost $75 and resulted in an opinion that there probably would be an incompatibility between the offices. By that time it was too late to withdraw my name from the ballot, so I had two options: First, I could not campaign, and thereby virtually be assured of losing the election. Or secondly, I could stay in the race and fight the conflict issue when it arose.

Personally, I feel that the School Board is a community service, and the County Commission is a government position. I see no conflict. Thus, I will run 100 percent for County Commissioner. If I win, I will not voluntarily resign from the School Board. However, since the possibility of incompatibility exists, I thought it necessary to inform the voters prior to the election.

I hope that the voters of the 3rd County Commission District will support my decision so that I may serve them as their representative in the County Government.

Team Credits Showboat For Their Success

Jimmy Still, 17 and Max, 6, of Kentwood are graduates of Showboat Amateur Night who were named runner up and winner of the Showboat act as auditioned for The Mike Douglas Show and The Tonight Show.

Recognize these fellows? Showboat regulars know them as Jimmy and Max, a professional ventriloquist team from Kentwood. Jimmy Still, 17, is the son of Jim Still, Sr. who owned Jimmy's Grill in Lowell until November 1976. Max is Jimmy's younger brother and constant companion.

At age nine, Jimmy entered his first amateur contest winning first place and $50. "The Lowell Showboat really got the ball rolling for me," says Jimmy. He had his biggest thrill performing as an amateur at Showboat before (then) Vice-president Gerald Ford. Unaware of his presence, the comedy team told a joke favorable to Ford which the audience liked very much. Afterward, Ford thanked the pair and encouraged them to pursue "their talent."

At their next Showboat performance with Pearl Bailey they were named runner up. Jimmy was again encouraged this time by Miss Bailey. Jimmy is now anticipating his first national television debut. He auditioned for the Mike Douglas Show in August and will audition for The Tonight Show in October.

Stardom could be just around the corner for this young man. "I would really like to thank Lowell and its Showboat for giving me the push I needed. I hope the Showboat is rebuilt and makes some other amateur a prospective star."

Tour Industrial Plants, Sample Products

Take an industrial tour to see how automobiles, wooden shoes and red flannel underwear are made or to get a free sample of Michigan-made products ranging from beer and wine to baby food and vitamins, suggests Automobile Club of Michigan.

To tour an auto plant, contact Ford Motor Co. in Dearborn (313-322-0004) or General Motors (313-556-4444), but be advised that most of these tours are suspended during model changes.

Three of the wineries are in the Paw Paw area. They are Warner Vineyards (616-657-3165); St. Julian Wine Co. (616-457-5588), which boasts a hospitality room with chandeliers made from a 100-year-old wine press; and Frontenac Vineyards (616-457-5533).

At the 77-year-old Gerber Products Co. in Fremont, visitors are given a cup of juice and a free package of the baby food the firm has produced for the past half-century. Tours start at the brand new visitor's center (616-928-2614).

A free sample of vitamins goes to adults who tour the Upjohn Co. pharmaceuticals plant in Kalamazoo (616-323-5866) and the Pfizer Co. Division of Healthkit electronic kits and computers are assembled. Next door to the production facility is a Health Kit Customer Center, where the company's products are sold at mail order prices with on-the-spot delivery.

If planning an industrial tour, be sure to pick up hot dogs and potato chips—the free bonus given anyone touring the Peter Kellogg Co. in Battle Creek (616-966-2000) gives a gift package of its cereals to all visitors, and a sample of Jiffy muffin, biscuit and pie crust mixes awaits those who tour the Chelsea Milling Co. in Chelsea (313-475-1361).

Highway Property To Be Auctioned

Ten parcels of excess state highway property in three Michigan counties were offered for sale at public auction September 14 in Grand Rapids. The Department of State Highways and Transportation announced the sale.

The auction will begin at 2 p.m. in the department's District Office, 1420 Front St., N.W. The properties are in Kent, Mecosta and Montcalm counties.

A brochure containing sketch descriptions and annotations of the parcels may be obtained from the Right-of-Way Division, district office, (616) 451-3091. Following are general descriptions and locations of the parcels:

1 acre in Reynolds Township, Montcalm County, on the east side of Amy School Road, southeast of US-131, one mile west of Howard City; $1,500.

8 acres in Bushnell Township, Montcalm County, on the northeast corner of M-66 and Sections Road, just south of Sheridan; $500.

Energy Saving Landscaping

Landscape plantings can improve personal comfort and cut home heating and cooling costs. But, according to Joe Cox, Extension landscape architect specialist at Michigan State University, problems may occur if you neglect to consider all the effects of proposed plantings.

Take, for instance, the use of evergreens as a windbreak. Several rows of evergreens on the windward side of a building can shield the structure against cold winter winds that would draw heat away from it. If they're properly located, the same plants can channel summer breezes around the building to cool it.

If the windbreak is located too near a driveway, however, winds hitting the plants may dump their load of snow in the drive. A dense windbreak could also cut off the view of certain parts of your property or interfere with access to them. Try to anticipate such problems before you plant. Cox advises, and change your plan to avoid them.

Another often recommended energy saver, planting deciduous trees on the south side of your home for shade in summer, may work too well, Cox observes. Dense shade from too many poorly placed trees may make it necessary to use lights indoors during the day. Pruning to thin a dense cover of trees or even removing some trees may be advised.

Shade and competition for water by trees may also make it very difficult to grow a thick, green lawn. But ground covers, frequently suggested as an alternative to grass, have their drawbacks, too, Cox points out. In its place, a ground cover that needs the mowing, fertilizing and general upkeep that grass requires. But they are slow to get established—two or three years of strict weed control may be necessary before ground covers are dense enough to crowd weeds out. Once established, ground covers tend to invade areas where they're not wanted. A wall or sidewalk or some other barrier is often necessary to contain them.

Climbing vines planted along side sunny western and southern walls of houses have been shown to make a dramatic difference in the amount of energy needed for summer cooling. Cox does not recommend that you rush to turn your home into a vine-covered cottage, however.

"Pesty" bird colonies may nest in thick vines," he points out. "Their constant noise can be very annoying. The vines themselves may invade windows, penetrate masonry joints and provide ladders for insects or animals. Vines growing on a wood-sided house may trap moisture next to the wood, leading to a variety of moisture-related problems including peeling paint and wood rot. They can also make regular maintenance chores, like removing storm windows, unnecessarily difficult.

"To avoid such problems, become an attentive observer," Cox advises. "See what other people have done with their landscapes. Ask them if they're happy with their landscape changes and find out what they do differently.

"Then analyze your own ideas," he suggests. "Try to imagine the effects of the future growth of landscape plantings. You may decide that some of the less desirable effects are worth it because of the energy savings you might achieve. In any case, the results of your plantings will not come as a surprise."

"If you choose your planting carefully, your plant has a better chance to survive," Cox points out. "Buy only one plant instead of a series of plants and cover it with mulch. You're likely to have problems that require special costly care. With thoughtful planning, you may even be able to plant a handful of plants instead of a dozen. All of this will mean a savings in money, time and effort and home grounds that are attractive as well as energy-thrifty."

Volunteers Needed

Volunteers are needed for two Kent County crisis programs. SCAN (Suspected Child Abuse and Neglect) is a countywide program that provides help for its Speakers' Bureau which promotes awareness and understanding of the child abuse and neglect problem.

Its Parent Aide program, under the direction of the Grand Rapids Child Guidance Clinic, needs volunteers to help parents of the neglected or abused. An information session is planned on Tuesday, September 19 at 10:30 p.m. at the Guidance Clinic, 1101 B. Hall, NE, Grand Rapids. Training for volunteers begins October 10.

Cross Country Meets Begin

The 1978 Cross Country season for Lowell High School began last week with a non-conference dual meet at Caledonia, with the Fighting Scots coming away with the victory by a score of 23-32.

Other members of this year's team include Freshmen Ken Blain, Duke Burdette, and Kathie Day; Sophomores Mark Buterworth, Jeff Dykhuizen, and Scott Noftker; Juniors Matt Lesons, Joe Rathburn and Bill Wierenga; and Senior Bruce Havlik.

Arrows Defense Shines Against Bulldogs

Less than two minutes and four plays was all it took for the Lowell Red Arrows to take the lead against the Ionia Bulldogs Friday night at Ionia. The remainder of the game was strictly a defensive game as the Arrows blocked their way to a narrow, 8-6 victory.

A second-down pass from quarterback Mike Kaye to split end Paul Richards set the scene for the touchdown pass to tight end Frank Garner two plays later. Carl Stanford ran in for the extra points, the decisive factor in the outcome of the game.

Cheerleading Squad Selected

Lowell's Red Arrow teams can count on enthusiastic support from the 78-7 cheerleading squad. This year, all the cheerleaders are juniors.

Frosh Win Opener

The Freshman football team opened with a 14-12 victory over the Ionia Bulldogs. Scoring for the Red Arrows were Ed Lowry with two touchdowns and Bob Schrenk with a two point conversion.

A section of Showboat's railing and smokestack sections were buried amid cheers and clapping to symbolize both the passing of the old and the rising of the new Robert E. Lee. The crowd moved to the Fairgrounds, then, to eat their way through 550-some chicken dinners, $120 worth of hot dogs and spend hundreds more at the many booths.

The tomb marker is prophetic. The homemade sign signals the kick-off of a massive Re-float the Showboat campaign. So far the fund-raising and donations have netted close to $19,000 toward the $50,000 planners think may be needed.

cozy corner

By Roger Brown

Last week sometime, I heard a song on the radio that I enjoyed very much and decided to buy a recording of it. The song is a new version of the old standard, "Blue Skies". I listened intently for the artist's name when the song was finished but the radio garbled it and I couldn't catch the first name at all but I thought that the last name was Wilson.

Later that day, I had to run into Grand Rapids to the paper houses and stopped at a large record shop. Not knowing for sure which classification the artist would be under, pop, rock, country western, etc., I simply began my search looking in the W's in each section.

As I moved from section to section, I brushed off sales clerks, "just looking thank you," or "only browsing". You see, I accept a search such as this as a supreme challenge and did not want any sales clerk lousing-up my fun. I went so far as to walk out of the store empty-handed rather than letting anyone spoil my fun by helping me.

That evening, my wife said that she had to go into the malls as she was looking for something in particular. She nearly fainted when I said that I wanted to go along. Usually, when she mentions going to the malls, the fight's on. I would rather take a licking than go to Woodland and wander in and out of dress shops all evening.

At the mall, I began my search again and after scouring through the racks in two large record stores, I was just about ready to call it quits. I even went so far as to ask a sales clerk for help, but with the limited information that I had, she couldn't find it either.

Defeated, I began looking for my wife in the different dress shops but when I walked past a pay phone, an idea struck. I had heard the song on Bruce Grant's morning show on WOOD radio so I looked up the number and called the station.

I told the disc jockey my story and he knew immediately the song and artist that I was looking for. He went on to say that he couldn't understand why it was so hard to find because it was the number one country western album on the charts.

Armed with all of this information, finding the album was a snap and I bought a copy that evening. I wish that I could say I brought the album home, played it and hated it so as to have a humorous ending for this story but I loved it.

By the way, the artist's name is Nelson not Wilson. Willie Nelson; if some stock clerk had inadvertently filed it by his first name instead of last, I would have found it on the first try.

It was once thought that Venetian glasses would shatter if poison was put in them.

Now comes the pep talk. The kick-off is just the start of the game. Victory or defeat is determined by the final figures that appear on the scoreboard. The kick-off was great. We have fine field position; now let's put some points on the board. Dr. Clark Vredenburg, chairman of the Special Events Committee, has some excellent things coming up in the near future. Barb Curtis, chairperson of the neighborhood and special sales committee, is in charge of solicitations and pushing the sale of souvenir boards from the destroyed Robert E. Lee, buttons and T-shirts as well as iron-on decals. Everyone is urged to do their share in helping "REFLOAT THE LOWELL SHOWBOAT" drive. Stick around and see for yourself. See you next week.

Three Attending M.M.L. Convention

An array of national speakers, including Anthony Downs of the Brookings Institution and Alan Beals of the National League of Cities (NLC), will address the 80th annual convention of the Michigan Municipal League to be held September 14 to 16 in the Grand Hotel at Mackinac Island.

Using as its theme "Return to Main Street", the convention will focus on such topics as the rehabilitation and preservation of neighborhoods and downtown areas in municipalities, economic growth and population trends.

Michigan Municipal League at its annual business meeting prepares a slate of recommended legislation that affects city operations throughout the State of Michigan.

Attending from Lowell will be City Manager Ray Quada, delegate and Councilman Carter and Councilman Heath, Alternates.

10th Fallasburg Fall Festival Celebrates Then And Now

West Michigan's finest artists and craftsmen will display their work at the 10th Annual Fallasburg Fall Festival on Saturday, September 30, and Sunday, October 1.

From 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. some 40 exhibitors will gather at Fallasburg Park, four miles north of Lowell to show and sell their original works. Exhibits have been juried by the sponsoring organizations, the Lowell Area Arts Council and the West Central Michigan Historical Society, to insure that art and crafts of integrity are displayed.

Watercolors, oils, basketry, woodworking, stained glass, pottery, weaving, porcelain are some of the creative areas represented.

Ed McGarvey will be one of the forgotten skills demonstrators at the Fallasburg Fall Festival, Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 30 and October 1 from 10 a.m. to dusk. McGarvey will actually "work" his bees in their hive while enclosed in a screened-in area.

Emphasis at the Festival is on the turn-of-the-century. Antique autos will be on display Saturday from the Horseless Carriage Club of Grand Rapids. Forgotten skills will be demonstrated, including spinning, weaving, beekeeping, old-time photography and violin making. Fallasburg's Old School Museum will be open both days. Most exhibitors will have crafts and art in progress.

Admission is free with supervised parking for bikes and cars. A Sunday bike tour to the Village Bike Shop on Plainfield Ave., Grand Rapids. Lowell area residents can view Michigan's fall color at its best at Fallasburg by bike or car.

The Fallasburg Festival will offer numerous food booths, w/ most of the food hot and all of it homemade. The Vergennes Methodist Women's Club plan beans and "white dogs" on buns, a German delicacy, corn on the cob and lemonade. They will also have homemade breads, whole wheat, rye and pumpkin.

Alto Lions will serve barbecues, chips, relishes and vegetable beef soup.

The Easttown Food Coop will have a variety of health foods, and the WCMHS will have their traditional cider and doughnuts and apples for sale. Stop by the Moose Auxiliary booth for dessert, luscious homemade apple pie.

Fifteen acts have been lined up for the weekend's entertainment, most of them area residents. The Children's Folk Art Workshop is sure to be one of the busiest spots at the Festival. They'll do apple sculpture, clothespin dolls and pumpkin painting.

The final event of the Festival weekend will be the raffle of a handmade original "Fallasburg Quilt" commemorating the '78 Festival and historic Fallasburg Covered Bridge. Tickets are available from members of LAAC and WCMHS.
