Life-long Michigan residents of the storm. Other downed just smiled thinly and mumbled limbs made roads in the city and about the changeable weather in our beloved state in the aftermath of a wild wind-rain-sleetsnow storm which hit the area Thursday night about 8 p.m.

In Lowell, a huge tree limb downed power lines on Suffolk between Hudson and Lincoln Lake and plunged several blocks into darkness during the height reinforce it from the inside, limbs made roads in the city and townships hazardous.

Winds gusting at times to nearly 70 miles an hour ripped at shingles and tore down at least one city chimney. The plate-glass window at Modern Photographcis on Main Street was shattered but was kept intact until city crews could Lowell police officers caught three juveniles and two adults on the premises of the Boy Scout Cabin on North Washington early last Wednesday morning. April 4. All five admitted entering the premises without permission but denied breaking into the cabin. Damage done to the cabin amounted to under $100 with doors and cupboard doors broken and their contents strewn about. Two juveniles were released to their parents and one was remanded to juvenile court for probation violation. All are from Lowell. Daniel Balentine and Jeffrey Millering, both of Lowell, are awaiting arraignment with charges pending at press time. Disposition of the case is being handled by the Kent County Sheriff's Department since the incident occurred outside the city limits.

Under investigation by Lowell officers is the breaking and entering of D & D Rebuilders. It was reported to police on Thursday morning, April 5. An unknown amount of change was taken.

'Arthur Howard has retired. If "Arthur" doesn't ring a bell, try 'Curly''. Curly Howard has been in business in Lowell at various locations for 40 years, most recently at his Curly's Diner on Riverside just off Main Street. He has watched two generations of customers go through his doors and wants to make sure all of his friends and customers know how much he appreciates their business and loyalty through the years. His last day of business, Curly lettered his last special sign on the window-"Aloha".

purchased Curly's Diner and is in the process of remodeling for a new restaurant at that location.

BUSINESS AS USUAL

"It will be business as usual at Cary's, Inc. with no interruption of service to the community," says Helen Thompson, new owner of the Main Street store with her husband Jerry. Mrs. Thompson has been manager of Cary's for two years and finalized the purchase of the business last week. The building which houses Cary's has been purchased by Howard and Evelyn West, owners of Anderson's Shoes on Main Street.

GOOD ATTENDANCE

Many Lowell youngsters spent at least part of their spring vacation in the demonstrating artist's car drawing, painting and throwing pots at the potter's wheel on Michigan ARTRAIN.

Attendance was good despite horrid weather. Nearly 2,500 braved rain, sleet, snow and generally inhospitable conditions during the six days of the visit. ARTRAIN opens this week in Holland,

There will be a Rug Hooking Bee on Wednesday, April 18 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church of Lowell. The community is invited to learn more about this nearly lost traditional craft or spend the day on the project you already have in progress. There will be rug-hookers from all over the area to compare notes with. Bring a sack lunch and enjoy. If you need more information, call the Lowell YMCA or Ann Reed at 676-1583.

Ray Miller of Lowell failed to yield the right-of-way at Jefferson and Main on Wednesday, April 4, and collided with Dianne Ralys of Lowell as she was making a left turn onto Jefferson from Main.

Kraig Haybarker of Lowell lost control of his vehicle on Division Street near the upper bridge and struck a tree and sign early Friday morning, April 6. He was uninjured.

LIGHT FINGERS

Apprehended Tuesday evening, April 3, were two juvenile female shoplifters at Lippert's by store employees. A male shoplifter was apprehended at Johnson's Thrift-T-Mart on Wednesday, April 4. He was referred to his parole officer for juvenile court action.

Issued to appear in 63rd District Court on charges of larceny under $100 was Richard Sturgis Jr. of Lowell after he was caught shoplifting in Lippert's by store employees.

Modern Photographics sustained damage to the plate glass window of the studio on Main Street in Thursday night's storm. City crews boarded up the window before it could totally collapse preventing major damage to the interior of the studio.

All of Michigan felt the sting of the violent storm and area residents fared better than many others in the state. In Northern Michigan winds gusted as high as 82 miles an hour. The upper peninsula was hard hit with Sault Ste. Marie getting seven inches of snow. The Mackinac Bridge was out of commission nearly eight hours. Blinding whiteouts blocked many roads.

Consumers Power Co: and Detroit Edison crews worked through the night and day to restore power to more than 200,000 customers in the Lower Peninsula, 2,600 in the Montcalm-lonia county service area. Saranac was in the midst of that

The National Weather Service said it was one of the worst April ly, we were lucky," a weather . service spokesman said. "Had we had this same storm a month earlier, we would probably have had blizzard conditions. If it were to go through a few weeks from now, we'd probably have a tremendous outbreak of thunderstorms and tornadoes."

City Siren Will Give Warning

Lowell Chief of Police Barry Emmons has outlined city operations should a tornado warning be issued.

According to Emmons, if a tornado watch is issued, police 'spotters' are posted at various points around the city. Residents should be aware of changing weather conditions and keep tuned to radio and TV stations for the possible change to tornado warning status.

If a tornado warning is issued, one long, steady blast will be sounded on the fire department sirens. Residents should take cover in the lowest point in the southwest corner of their nomes. Those in public buildings should ask for directions to the nearest public shelter. If traveling in a car, do not try to outrun the twister. Take shelter in a ditch away from trees. ` There will be no siren sounded for a tornado watch, only for a tornado warning.

'All calls during such an alert should be directed to the city police, 897-7123, especially if a tornado is sighted locally," said Emmons. "The all-clear signal will be three long blasts of the sirens."

Kicking off the firm's longrange expansion plans, the first phase of the project will add Corporation's existing 300,000 square-foot manufacturing and warehousing facility in Lowell.

According to Rocheleau, the expansion is geared to increase the firm's capabilities of producing and distributing its marine and recreational vehicle accessories and sporting goods lines. A wholly-owned subsidiary of Steelcase, Inc. and a leader in the marine industry since 1923, Attwood Corporation has tripled its sales in the past five years. The new expansion project is only the latest in a string of Attwood's recent additions, including last year's acquisition of the Viking Anchor Division of Brunswick Corp. and the Pensacola. Florida manufacturer of "Water Reins", a recoil rope device; as well as a 67,000 square-foot expansion of the Lowell plant in 1976.

Fourteen first year teachers were granted second year probation and five interns were evaluated to full teaching sta-

The husband hates to be an overnight guest in private homes.

When he can't sleep in his own bed, he's rather pay for a motel room than freeload on friends. His explanation is that the manager of a Holiday Inn won't make him eat breakfast at 6 a.m. and then take him on a nature walk with neighborhood bird-watchers.

The wife has always been embarrassed by her husband's attitude." If you refuse their invitation to stay with them when we're in their town, they'll think we don't like them," she said. "I won't like them if I have to live with them," he said. "I'll feel guilty because their kids are sleeping on the floor so we can have their beds. I'll be angry when I want to read the newspaper but I have to play cards for fear they'll think I'm not having a good time. I'll go nuts trying to think of something to say every time there is a 15-second silence. And I'll feel dumb when I wait an hour for the bathroom door to open and finally discover I'm standing outside a

"Whenever I'm a house guest, the hostess serves cantaloupe," he said. "And besides, my manners are bad. I've had so little practice, I don't know how a polite guest should behave. Should I walk around their kids sleeping on the floor, or should I step over

"You like to read newspapers," she said. "Read the etiquette columns in the women's sections. They'll tell you the right thing to

"My mother doesn't allow me to read the women's sections anymore," the husband said. "Not since Ann Landers got a divorce. Mother said it would never have happened to Dorothy Since Women's Lib, those pages aren't called the women's sections anymore. Instead, they're called something like Lifestyle or Living or Accent. In one of these sections, there was an article about two lesbians who wanted to have a baby, so one of them was artificially inseminated with semen donated by the brother of the other lesbian. The name of the section is The Way We Live. But back to house guesting. The husband's opposition melted when the wife announced an invitation to visit Howard and Kay Bon Vivant at their condominium in Vero Beach, Florida. "Howard is a reasonable man. He won't care if I read all night and sleep all day, and he'll take me to the Los Angeles Dodgers' training camp," the husband said. "Howard won't even care if I do research on an article I'm going to write about Florida saloons. He might even help me with it, if he can tear himself away from his

That's the way it turned out. The husband never had a nicer vacation. There was a private room and bath for the guests, and no displaced youngsters. The only card game was solitaire, and not

The only bad time came when the husband was introduced to something called an executive golf course. He learned a golf course is often called "executive" when the yardage is shorter than on normal courses. Most of the holes aren't over 300 yards and some of them are less than 100. These courses are for executives who are too busy making money to learn how to hit a golf ball a great distance. This sounded like a great idea to the husband, who couldn't hit a golf ball out of sight at midnight.

Unless he hit it in the water. Bon Vivant's executive course doesn't have to be mowed, it has to be rowed. Between the trees and the greens there is no sign of dry life except for a few tiny islands where aqualungs can be rented.

Howard shot 73, the best score of his rotten life. The wife and Kay also kept crowding the scant fairway with their balls, leaving no room for the husband's ball. He was beaten by everyone, including his wife for the first time ever, and the winners laughed uproariously and unmercifully as the husband splashed his way to ignominy. It was a lousy way to treat a house guest, a lot worse then cantaloupe at six a.m., and the husband is never going to forget it, by God.

3 good ways to save when Northern Propane insulates your house

1. Saves money. Added insulation saves energy and money. You need less fuel to keep your house warm in winter . . . cool in summer. And. by having Northern Propane do the job, you're dealing with local people who not only have the experience and equipment to do the job right, but who use only top-of-theline UL classified insulation. You expect a company to stand behind the work they do ... and we do. 2. Saves Taxes. Northern Propane will show you how to get back 15% of what you spend for insulation (up to $300) on this year's federal income tax. 3. Save Now. If you sign up before May 1, 1979, we'll start you on the way to saving energy and money with a 10% discount on all insulation material. It's as easy as 1, 2, 3 to save money and have more efficient heating and cooling.

Public Hearing/Attwood Corp. Certificate of Exemption Mayor Collins then opened the Public Hearing on the Request of Attwood Corp. for a Certificate of Exemption already been granted the Industrial Zone status.

Manager Quada introduced Mr. Don Rocheleau, President of Attwood Corp. who explained the long range project.

the request for the Certificate of Exemption. This addition would require the additional hiring of 10 to 15 new employees

The second addition would be for 50,000 square feet, and a third of 80,000 square feet, could be done simultaneously and would then employ an additional 20 to 30 employees. However, he noted that the second and third additions would depend greatly on the decision of the request for the Certificate of Exemption. He stated that the first addition would definitely be built, Certificate, or no Certificate, but the Certificate were not granted, to see if it would still be excluding the basement walls and foundations; and practical to construct phase 2 or 3.

child in the United States.

If we have learned anything from the spending of the last forty years, it is that government, like a family, cannot continue to spend more than it earns, without losing that which it holds dear.

Today we know of the ravages of inflation on the buying power of our citizens. Couples, who have saved their entire lifetime, are seeing their dreams of retirement turn into nightmares. Young people find it impossible to buy a home in which they can raise the next generation of Americans. Wage earners see their sweat and toil eaten up by economic conditions of which Congress' free-spending ways are the prime culprit.

Last year the typical American took a near-record post-World War II shot to the pocketbook as consumer prices rose 9%. The Labor Department reports that the average American wage earner lost 3.4% of his real buying power last year, as price increases surpassed his wage gains. It is estimated that the actions of Congress will cost the average American family another $786 this year. Lowell, MI 49331

Plan Y Swim Program

Lowell's YMCA will be holding an open Pool Committee meeting to finalize the 1979 King Memorial Pool Program. The public is welcome to attend and bring comments or concerns on Wednesday, April 11, 7:30 p.m. at the "Y" office. Of special interest will be the direction of the swim team and a new competitive swim class.

This year there will be a new session for pre-beginners called the "YMCA Learn To Swim Program." This five day intensified program will be held after school the week of June 11. Following the new session the Lowell YMCA will then hold four two week sessions of total

"Y" swim lessons from Minnow to Flying Fish.

Applications are now being taken for summer swim instructors, who must have a current Life Saving card. All new instructors will be required to take a YSI course at Central Grand Rapids YMCA in May. CPR training is also recommended. Interviews will be scheduled at the April 11 meeting.

Mystery abounded on March 20 at the Bushnell School as Pack #3102 Cub Scouts, Webelos and parents met. The five-Cub Scout Dens were clever with all the magic tricks they planned and performed themselves. The Webelos den had an entertaining puppet show using puppets they had each made and a program they had written. Alan Johnson, Welbelos leader, gave a brief explanation of the Klondike Derby that the We-belos had competed in. Out of nine dens, Lowell boys had placed third.

The next pack meeting will be a bake goods auction on April

Parents were astounded at their tricky offspring at the March 20 meeting of Lowell Cub Scouts and Webelos. The Scouts planned and performed their own magic show and the Webelos made puppet magic with their individual creations.
