the Lowell Showboat July Country Roads seeks claim against city

Leo Pfaller, representing Country Roads, Inc. of Belding appeared before the Lowell City Council during their regular meeting of Monday, June 7. Country Roads is seeking a liability claim against the city involving a New Year's Eve 1980 fire that completely destroyed their facility at 602 Ottawa. The company specializes in refurbishing auditorium seating and thousands of dollars worth of customer property was destroyed along with the building and equipment. Country Roads has relocated to Belding since the fire.

In his presentation, Pfaller attempted to establish that the city's front end loader smashed salvagable cast iron seat frames and broke open file cabinets causing their contents of prospects to be lost to the flames. Pfaller noted that during the fire, he had requested that the loader push in the northeast corner of the building so that the wall would not fall on a semi trailer containing $30,000 worth of finished product. Pfaller said that was done as he requested, but after he left the scene of the fire and after there was any further danger to people and property in the area, the loader was used to push in the southern wall of the building causing the damage listed. The original claim asked for $302,000, but Pfaller omitted the first portion and only referred to the damage caused by the loader. When asked by the council what Country Roads wanted in damages, Pfaller explained that a dollar amount would have to be negotiated between the city, Country Roads and their insurance companies. At that, Councilman Robert Christiansen made a motion to negotiate nothing and reject the claim in its entirety. The motion was seconded by councilman Phil Schneider and met unanimous approval in a vote.

Pfaller did not indicate what course of action Country Roads, Inc. will take from

July Fourth celebration to go on as scheduled

The Lowell Fourth of July parade and celebration will go on as scheduled, that is on the Fourth of July. A group from the Lowell Calvary Church petitioned the Lowell City Council to move the parade, celebration and beer tent to Monday, July 5th. The group had a list of signatures from their members disapproving of the Sunday Observance.

The council denied the request citing reasons such as the date is too late to make such a change and that the parade is starting after most churches have ended their Sunday Services. The group insisted that Sunday is the Sabbath and "The Lord's Day" and that such festivities should not take place on the "Holy" day. The council stuck to their guns, however, and Mayor Collins suggested that if they (the church group) had gotten involved during the planning stages. perhaps they could have had the date changed.

Eskes appointment criticized

Lowell City Councilman Jack Fonger questioned the recent appointment of Gwen Eskes to the Helen Look Daley trust fund committee. Eskes was appointed as the fifth and final member of the committee by the other four members as spelled out in the Daley will. Fonger had no objection to Eskes personally, only that she is not a resident of the city and lives north of Lowell in Vergennes Township.

Councilman Robert Christiansen agreed stating that a precedent should be set now so that some years down the road the committee wouldn't end up with a majority from outside the city limits. Mayor Dean Collins, who is a member of the committee, was directed to bring up the appointment for further discussion at the committee's next meeting.

unique. Despite the anticipation of living eternally with Jesus in the trouble-free, celestial city, very few -even the best of Christians are anxious to depart this life. Only those who have lost hope truly want to die.

sorts of information from more companies, churches and organizations than I care to think about. But, I do give each piece at least a passing glance before appropriately filing it in the circular file. One such piece of mail was spared the file 13 fate, when an item in it caught my eye. The mail was the State Bar Association's newsletter, and the item that won its reprieve was entitled "What's In a Name?"

It seems that the New York State Supreme Court recently allowed a fellow named Archie Outlaw to legally change his name until after his trail for selling heroin. Outlaw said he was afraid his last name might prejudice a jury against him. The judge agreed, and granted the request. But alas, poor Mr. Outlaw is having trouble selecting a new name. It is said he's considering Reggie Jackson, Eleanor Roosevelt and possibly even Sterling Johnson, Jr. (the name of the prosecutor in the case). It would seem Mr. Outlaw has a sense

"Funny", you say? Maybe, but what name would you select if given a chance to re-name yourself? See, it's not so

A person could go the route of some Hollywood celebrities like; Slim Pickens, Harry Carey, and Rip Torn and give himself a catchy name such as those. I have heard of a Dusty Rhoades and I know a fellow named Beech, that almost named his son "Sonny". Of course, Lowell has it's own Gail Warning. The possibilities are unlimited in this area, some examples that come to mind are; Rick Shaw, Mike Rowave, Jan Itor, Roger Overenout, Milo Road, Frank Lee and Scott

Then of course, there are those who like their last name so much that they use it for a first name too. A good example is the guy whose name always used to appear in the credits at the end of a TV show for doing the sound; "Glenn Glen". I don't think I'd care for Brown Brown though. Maybe Dark Brown, or Light Brown, or possibly even Chocolate Brown, but never Brown Brown. In the book, "Catch 22", the bomber squadron's commanding officer was Major Major Major Major. It seems that someone in the Major family had risen to the rank of Major. They liked the sound of Major Major, and when a son came along he was named Major Major. And, just for good measure they threw in the same for a middle name. So, when Mr. Major was drafted in WWII, the army couldn't help but goof up and automatically promote him to a major, thus Major Major Major. A person could use this philosophy and re-name himself Doctor Doctor Doctor and get a job at Butterworth. You'd be making a hundred grand a year in no time as, "Dr. Doctor Doctor Doctor."

Then there are the names that don't exactly go well with the person's profession. The other night on Monday night baseball Howard and the gang were laughing about one of the infielders whose last name was Klutz. I once heard of a Curtain's Funeral Home, as in, "okay, it's curtains for you buster". And speaking of funeral homes, there's the Posthumus Funeral Chapel in Grand Rapids.

As you'll notice, Roger Brown is still monicker at the top of this trash, and until I come up on a heroin selling charge, it'll

The energy shortage presents a serious challenge to us as individuals and as a nation. Though we can do little about its causes, we can conserve our limited supplies. By changing the ways we think about energy - our driving habits, our heating and cooling habits, the ways we use energy around the home we can help cut back on waste. Working together, we can meet the challenge!

After considerable discussion, Commissioner Sietsema moved to amend the resolution by adding the following paragraph: "NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that said City/County arena, but the General Fund is already being decimated by budget cuts and we do not know what other demands will be made by the State on our County General Fund. He feels the projections pro to the Board may not be accurate and the Board should not obligate the General Fund of Kent County to a commitment of $5.16 million in view of commitments already made. The Voters should be heard. The General Fund receives revenues from property taxes of the County, Sales Tax and Income Tax from the State, and other sources so in a sense, the Board is pledging the full faith and credit of the County when we state it will be covered by the General Fund. If the Hotel/Motel Tax funds are not sufficient, when will these amounts be paid back?

Commissioner Froman stated his concern that if there is a short fall that has to be paid by the County General Fund, and the Hotel/Motel Tax is ever repealed at the State Level, there will be no monies to reimburse the General Fund.

Civil Counsel DeWitt explained the original bond issue $5.12 million was made before the Headlee Amendment and is a full h and credit obligation of the County. Should there be any t fall or repeal, the County and City each have the right t levy a tax to raise the funds to pay off the obligation without any further vote of the people.

Mr. DeWitt explained the second bond issue pledges Kent County as a back up of the issue. This issue is primarily an obligation of the City of Grand Rapids, but by separate agreement, the City has the 100% obligation of making up any short fall because it was fo a parking facility and they could go to those revenues to pay off

Mr. DeWitt stated the issue being addressed today is after the Headlee Amendment and if there should be a short fall in the Hotel/ Motel Tax revenues, this resolution obligates the Board to go to the County General Fund or any other fund as provided by law. I could be done through the Public Introvenent Fund, but the Board has no power to levy a tax without a vote of the people Commissioner Sietsema pointed out whether the funds come from Commissioner stetsed pointed out whether the funds come from the General Fund or the Public Improvement Fund, the revenues come from the pockets of the taxpayers. He feels they have a right to heard. He also called attention to the other bonds kent County is already obligated to pay. There might also be a possibility that the Hotel/Motel Tax would have to be raised from 3% to 5%. Panfish are taking the spotlight right now. The bluegills on most area lakes are beginning to bed and fishing is excellent. Small poppers and rubber spiders are producing well. Wax, red and leaf worms are also taking many gills. Good catches are being taken from Campau, Campbell and Logan lakes south of Lowell. The good prospects north of town are too numerous to list but nearly all lakes are now productive. Specks (crappies) are doing well in the evenings, with many limit catches of nice fish being reported. Small minnows and "pinkie" type jigs are both producing well. Northern Pike are doing well on many local lakes and many nice largemouth are also being reported. High and discolored water conditioner on our major rivers have kept most anglers from these streams recently, however some smallmouth, walleyes and cats are being taken and water conditions are rapidly improving.

As a concerned citizen, taxpayer and outdoorsman 1 was appalled to learn some of the garbage our children are being taught within the Lowell area school system. I am certain that very few of you, the local citizens, are aware of some of the highly opinionated, falsified, material being presented in our schools. During the month of May a speaker from the Humane Society addressed an assembly of Riverside and Bushnell school students. The subject matter in general was on prevention of cruelty to animals, more specifically the subject matter consisted on anti-hunting and anti-trapping sentiment. Some of the subject covered by the individual included the inhumanity of the steel leg hold trap. It was stated that pets, particularly dogs and cats, are very often caught in these traps and that in many instances the animals are dead or have chewed their foot off by the time the trapper arrives. This statement is completely false and in fact a lie, since I am certain the speaker could not be this ignorant of

New Marina opens on Cherry Creek

The twenty-five foot "S.S. Minnow" moored at Metric Manufacturing [and marina], 1001 Foreman Road, Lowell has begun its summer charter season on the beautiful Cherry Creek waterway. Skipper Charlie Thomas says, "we're booked for this week but if you're interested, check back again next week". Charlie says, "when you're in business these days, you've gotta diversify". When we questioned the logic behind the manufacturing/marina combination, Charlie replied, "well, a lotta people say, I've only got one oar in the water".

Actually, Charlie claims he doesn't know where the heck the boat came from, but strongly suspects Dick Roth as there is a sticker on the "Minnow" stating, "property of Roth Rental and Storage". An unnamed source told the Ledger office that he thought he had seen the "Minnow" careening around on a Grand Rapids golf course last winter.

That report is not verified, however.
