New restaurant to open here soon

pecting pedestrians on Main Street in Lowell will be sorely tempted to spend good time and money in the unabashed indulgence of their appetites.

The temptation for area residents will be Rivertown Mall's new restaurant, A Bit of Europe, too, which, according to mall co-owner Muriel Dilley, is scheduled to open the first week of December.

Dilley admits that, as yet, the restaurant looks years from completion. But she expresses confidence that the early-December target date can be met.

As the name suggests, the new restaruant is related to the A Bit of Europe restaurant on Cherry Street in Grand Rapids.

According to Dilley, Sonja Dreyer, Former chef of the Grand Rapids restaurant, will be heading operations in Low-

The restaurant will include a private dining room which may be reserved for special occasions. Dilley says that at least two reservations for this room have already been made.

A small bar is also planned which, in addition to a full line of beverages, will include imported wines and beers.

The menu will be posted outside the restaurant Europeanstyle, and will feature a Royal European Dinner. For $30 a couple may sample "very adequate portions" of three menu

Lowell Cable TV Department to begin home installations Monday

November 29 is the turn-on date for the Lowell Cable T.V. Service, according to Lowell Light and Power Superintendent Herb Haines

But those installing the system have no time to play with, Haines says. Plans for the installation included a cushion of two work weeks in case problems should develop. Those two weeks of "play" have been completely used up.

In Haines words, "What is being done today probably should have been done yester-

Haines said Monday that Lowell Cable T.V. is scheduled to begin serving its first customers after installers arrive on the 29th to begin hooking households to the system. The long-awaited satellite dish and tower have arrived at the head end station.

Haines says that the satellite dish, which will pick up programs like HBO and Cinemax, will be assembled by Wednesday, November 24.

At that time the headend station will be switched on and the system will be "swept" -checked for kinks.

The tower, which is lying in the municipal parking lot east of the headend station, will be installed November 29. Footings for the tower have already been

Emergency service is operable

The non-transporting ambulance service designed to fill the gap left by the pull-out of Bud's Ambulance is now in operation, according to Lowell City Manager Ray Quada.

Quada said Tuesday that the stocked and operable.'

Since the ambulance service was proposed in September, a rescue unit from Bud's Ambulance has been purchased, the unit has been stocked, and volunteers have been trained to drive the vehicle and locate rescue equipment.

According to Quada, about 15 additional candidates have

ace" Late season

It appears that one area resident waited until late in the season to see his golf game peak.

Steve Kerr, 31, or 10038 Bailey Drive, shot a hole-inone Saturday, November 20, at Saskatoon Golf Course, according to course golf pro Harvey Slater.

Using his five-wood, Kerr shot 193 yards to the sixth hole for his first hole-in-one ever. Slater added that Kerr shot a respectable 37 for 9 holes that af-

Attics fascinate me. They offer so many possibilities. Within them can be found suggestions of romance and advenure. Attics make wonderful playrooms for children. There youngsters can dress up in outdated garments and with imaginations relive events of by-gone days. Attics are made especially for rainy days. With the rain pattering gently on the roof, one feels sung and warm within the shelter of the attic walls.

An attic, too, is place of refuge. Where can you find a better place to hide and read a letter in seclusion, or work on a Christmas gift, or read a book without interruption? Here. also, can be found a refuge in the times of stress. Shut away in the quiet confines of an attic. one can find the solitude needed to organize or reorganize one's Lowell Community Education held an Open House Wednesday, November 17, in Education Day. A number of classes were open to visitors to observe, including art, furniture upholstering, and auto mechanics classes.

Consortium Director Linda Zaczek and high school counselor Gordon Gould were pleased with the turnout for Comminity Ed.'s first open house ever

To Zaczek's thinking, turnabout is fair play. Parents get to attend parent-teacher conferences -- now kids can check on their parents at Community Ed. Open House.

The Lowell High School hockey team began league play last week with two victories. The Red Arrows defeated Creston 8-4 and Ottawa Hills 9-2.

The Arrows showed balanced scoring in the opener as five different people scored the first five goals. Lowell received first period goals from Pat Harkness and Paul Whaley. Max Astor, Andy Vredenburg, and Eric Schwamberger provided Lowell with a 5-2 edge after two periods.

A goal by Kerry Vezino and two more by Whaley provided the final total of eight. Lowell's victory over Ottawa Hills was sparked by a 5 goal performance by Whaley. Following Vezino's goal, Whaley accounted for the next 5 scores. Wendal Waldroup accounted for the final two goals of the

DECLARATION in Observance of November 21-27, 1982 FAMILY TIME WEEK IN LOWELL

Our nation's freedom was born in the families that formed our thirteen colonies. During Family Time Week we pay tribute to the vital role the American Family has played and continues to play in the preservation of our free society.

The family is the birthplace of order, justice and faith, and is essential to the healthy growth and development of children into responsible adults and good citizens.

Armed and buttressed by the knowledge that he or she is an individual backed by an affectionate family, the child becomes an adult who willingly accepts community responsibilities and serves as a leader in the affairs of the nation.

Family Time Week is a positive response to those who have stated that the family is no longer of any value, that it is an outdated institution.

Therefore, I, Dean E. Collins, Mayor of Lowell, do hereby declare November 21-27, 1982, as Family Time Week in Lowell, and urge all citizens to be mindful of the fact that the stability of a community, state or a country depends in great measure upon the influence of strong, cohesvie families.

THE YMCA THANKS YOU!

The support and help of our local businesses, contributors, volunteers and friends has helped the Lowell "Y" better serve the community in 1982.

In the spirit and reflection of Thanksgiving we pause to offer our appreciation.

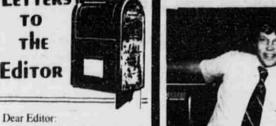

The Board of Education of the Lowell Area Schools maintains one of the Highest fund equities (as percent of total budget) of any school district in Kent County. One of the reasons is to minimize the need to borrow money while waiting for tax money. This maneuver is to save the expense of interest on borrowed money.

The Lowell teachers have asked the Board for the development of an Early Retirement Incentive plan. This plan would allow partial payment of a teacher's salary during the years of early retirement to fill the gap before social security becomes effective. The school board then hires a new teacher at a lower salary, thus saving money. Besides saving money, education is benefited by allowing teachers, whose health prevents them from maintaining the previous quality of work, to leave the profession and survive financially. In addition, a new teacher is added, bringing new ideas and enthusiasm to the Lowell Schools.

The action described in the first paragraph of this letter saves money at the expense of school employees. The idea considered in the second paragraph saves money while improving the quality of education, benefiting both teachers and students.

It makes one wonder about the attitude of a school board that enthusiastically holds to an idea whose results at best cancel each other out while denying a practice which would enhance the cause of education.

COZY corner

I guess everybody has to have a phobia of one kind or another, Mine's heights. I have to qualify that, because I'm not afraid of flyig in the least. I have about thirty hours of flight instruction under my belt, I've been up to 3,000 feet in a hot air balloon and I've ridden thousands and thousands of miles in commerical jets without ever once feeling uneasy, let alone being frightened. Put me up on a two-story roof, and I'm apt to wet my pants.

This subject comes up because of a friend recently telling me about, and showing me pictures of a trip to California, during which he took a ride up the side of an 8,500 foot mountain in one of those trams that travel on a cable. He told about how he and all the other scaredy-cats on board were in the center of the car clamoring to get a white knuckle, death grip on a vertical pole there. His wife on the other hand, was among those at the windows, and was trying to organize a group effort to get the car rocking. The husband would have strangled her, exept that he didn't dare let loose his grip on the pole. There was a bar and restaurant at the top of the mountain, and the husband said the ride back down wasn't nearly so bad with about three stiff drinks in him. He didn't mention taking a window seat though. I'd have died half way up.

While on a business trip to Detroit a couple of years ago, the wife decided we should have lunch in the revolving restaurant at the top of the Rennaissance Center. With my heights phobia, elevators are not one of my favorite modes of travel. The elevators at the Ren Cen travel in glass tubes on the outside of the building, a fact I didn't know until we were about ten floors up, and the glass shaft began. I was about the color of guacamole dip when we reached the top. All the way through lunch I tried to talk Terese into taking the stairs

On a recent trip to Chicago, the wife again decided it would be nice to have lunch at the top of a tall building there too. I was spared the Sears Tower, (world's tallest) but ended up at the top of the John Hancock building. A mere ninety some stories up. We ended up in the lounge where they have counters right up against the windows. and you sit there in your bar stool facing straight out, with nothing between you and a thousand foot drop to Michigan Street, but a peice of glass. I had trouble enjoying the lunch too.

Probably my worst experience ever, was when I was in the army and stationed in Colorado. A bunch of us were out joyriding one day, and ended up at the Royal Gorge Bridge. You may have heard of it, but for those who haven't, it's billed as the world's highest suspension bridge. I'm not sure just how high it is, but when I was there train was travelling along the canyon floor below us and it looked to be about HO gauge.

We were all standing on the walkway near the center of the bridge, when a car came across. The deck of the bridge was just wooden boards, and the whole thing felt like it was coming apart. I held onto the railing for dear life until the car had passed, and then beat feet off there, much to the amusement of my friends.

Later on the same day we toured some underground caverns Much more to my liking.

"It is better to ask some of the questions than to know all

Step forward in tournament play

Tournament play has begun for the Lowell girls basketball team, which easily defeated Ionia 43-24 on Saturday, November 20, in District play

Coach Kathy Talus reports that the game Saturday started really slowly, with the Ionia team gradually building a 6-0 lead in the first quarter. Before the first quarter ended, the Arrows came back with 5 points of their own, but not enough to gain the lead.

Midway through the second quarter a field goal by Paula Doyle tied the game at 12-12. "We dominated the game after that," Talus says. "The key to the game was cutting them down on percentages," she says. The Arrows held their Ionia opponents to a 14% average on field goals.

Kerry Cosgrove pulled down 9. The Arrows face Greenville in the last game of District play Wednesday, November 24 Despite Lowell's bad loss to the Greenville team only two weeks ago, Talus expects that the team will make a good showing Wednesday.

She pointed out that Lowell defeated Greenville once this season by getting an early lead and then letting the Yellow Jackets play catch up. She hopes to follow the same game plan Wednesday.

'OUTDOORS'

with Jack Friesner

Since I have been writing this column I have had several persons direct my attention to our own Flat River from the Main Street of Lowell downstream to it's confluence with the Grand. I must confess that having resided here and gradually growing up with the problem of degradation I had failed to notice the steadily increasing litter and trash along and within this waterway. Let me enumerate some of the problems which I have noticed. We will start at the dam and work our way downstream.

First of all, in consideration of the fishermen, who are certainly bringing in more business and capital than is any outer city activity or project. The area immediately below the dam is littered with broken cement, stones, re-enforcing rod, etc. which makes fishing all but impossible. Three or four days with a crane or dragline would be will require community participation from several sources. The trash and litter clean up, from the riverbed and shorelines will simply require manual labor and for this commodity I intend to solicit nanpower from our local non-profit organizations. I am certain that when the time comes we can count on the J.C.s. the Eagles. The Rotary, The Masons, Moose Lodge, Boy scouts, etc. I know the Qua-Ke-Zik sportsmans club will participate. I am certain we can depend upon City equipment and if necessary we will solicit local tions and solicit the necessary support concerning this project.

I know it can be done and it behoves us all, as a community, to utilize and beautify all of our natural resources.

At the present time, there are 25 boys that are members of this year's club. The program is for boys 12 to 18 years of age, inclusive, that are willing to learn - and to help others learn skills in all areas of physical education and development. The Leaders assist in various Lowell YMCA programs, serving as assistant instructors, care takers of equipment, spotters on apparatus work, office helpers, referee's, timers, scorers, etc. These Leaders are able to be involved in service and social activities with others their own age, have the opportunity to become active in community service, and have a chance to develope a system of values with an understanding of the needs and interest of others. The Leaders Club program dates back to 1884 making it the oldest of the YMCA physical education programs. Anyone that might be interested contact the Advisor - Al Eckman - at 897-

SPECIAL SPEAKER AT TOUGH LOVE MEETING

What legal action is taken against teens who are status offenders -- who are habitual truants, runaways, or substance abusers?

John Weiks, supervisor of the Crisis Intervention Program, will explain the philosophy of the Kent County Juvenile Court toward :status offenders at the regularly scheduled meeting of Tough Love, Monday, November 29, at 7 P.M. in the KIVA room of the Bushnell School.

In additon, Weiks will list some of the community resources available to parents and youth when a child's behavior is creating problems with the family or authorities.

According to Weiks, Crisis Intervention is a diversionary program provided by the Juvenile Court to keep kids out of the penal system.

To this end, Crisis Intervention provides family counseling available any day of the week (by appointment). The staff strives to meet with families on the day of referral.

Weiks, who has been with Crisis Intervention for the past five years, brings with him four years of experience as a school teacher. He is presently enrolled in the doctoral program in Counseling Psychology at Western Michigan University.

Barb Pierce, of the counseling office at Lowell High School, encourages concerned parents to attend the meeting.
