Voters resoundingly reject millage proposal

Despite a strong voter turnout Monday, voters in the Lowell School District defeated the three-year millage proposal presented by the Board of Education which called for a renewal of the 17.9 mills levied against property in 1982, plus millage increases of 3.9, 4.1 and 4.3 mills for years 1983-5.

The board's push for a millage increase stemmed from a desire to return to a six-hour school day in the Lowell School District and to partially restore cuts made in programming and staffing.

In the face of a 1498-1032 defeat of the millage proposal, board members concluded their regular meeting of the board Monday night by passing a resolution committing the group to a restoration of the six-hour day. Funds for such a move will come from the passage of a millage proposal or further cuts in non-instructional programming.

The defeat of the millage proposal made Lowell High School's continued accreditation by the North Central Association (NCA) appear unlikely. But LHS principal Gary Kemp said Tuesday morning that the officials board resolve would carry weight with officials of the NCA.

At the state meeting of the NCA held March 3 and 4, NCA official recommended, in light of Lowell's continuing five-hour program, that Lowell's accreditation be dropped. The NCA Midwest Regional meets next week in Chicago, at which time a final decision will be made on Lowell's status.

Kemp was hoping that he would be able to inform NCA officials that the millage proposal had passed and that Lowell would be returning to a six-hour day this fall, but he expected that, in spite of the millage defeat, Lowell's accredited status would be renewed as a result of the Board resolution.

School Superintendent Donald Kelly said that, though the School Board has made no official decision as yet, members of the board would "undoubtedly" place a millage proposal before voters at the annual school election to be held June 13. Board seats held by Mary Yost and Roger Kropf come up for election this year.

A millage proposal passed as late as June will affect the tax levied against district residents this summer. The board will go ahead with summer taxes, but, in Kelly's words, "we have to have something to levy."

The board met in closed session Monday night to discuss contract negotiations with the teachers -- negotiations which at this time consist of putting a contract proposal in its final form. Negotiating teams for the Board of Education and the LEA have accepted a "table agreement."

Kelly said that the contract would probably be officially ratified next week, after which contract figures would be released.

Hearing aid business to open in mall

The Rivertown Mall in Lowell will soon be the part-time home of a business which caters especially to the needs of senior citizens. The Maico-Western Michigan Hearing Aid Service is opening a branch office in the mall at 109 W. Main which will be open one Wednesday per month.

Clinton Scobey, owner of Maico Hearing Aid Service, said last week that he has difficulty attracting elderly people to his downtown Grand Rapids office. For this reason, he is taking his business to locations less threatening to his clientele, such as the Rivertown Mall in Lowell.

A 34-year veteran of the hearing-aid business, Scobey will service and sell all makes and models of hearing aids. In addition, he will conduct free hearing tests for senior citizens who suspect they may have a hearing problem.

Tests will determine if a hearing problem exists and whether anything can be done to correct a confirmed hearing loss. There is no charge or obligation for these tests.

Scobey's service center in the Rivertown Mall will be open March 23, April 27, May 25, and June 22 from 10:30 A.M. to 3 P.M.

New garage door ???

John Pasanen, of 990 N. Hudson, was awakened about 1 A.M. Saturday by the sound of a nearby crash. A short time later, Lowell Police Officers knocked at his door to tell him that his garage had been knocked off its foundations and smashed in on the north side when a pickup driven by Michael Wright went out of control.

Anderson to teach in Africa

Beverly Anderson's request last week for old mathematics books from the high school resulted in an overwhelming response.

Mrs. Anderson requested the books on behalf of her son Craig, who began a two-year stint with the Peace Corps in Lesotho, Africa, shortly after Thanksgiving.

In a letter home, Craig asked his mother to check with the high school to see if any old math books could be sent his way.

High school math teachers responded with a closet-cleaning which yielded over 200 math texts no longer in use but still in-serviceable condition.

Anderson said Thursday that she had arrived at the high school expecting to carry the books out to her car. The pile of books she discovered in math instructor Charles Pierce's room would have filled her arms about twenty times.

She's not exactly sure what can be done with all of the books, but she plans to have Peace Corps officials check the texts and ship them to Lesotho if possible.

Her son Craig, who will be pending a minimum of two years in Lesotho, is teaching math at the secondary level in the city of Teyateyaneng, not far from the capitol city of Maseru.

Lesotho (Pronounced Loo-soo-too) is an independent nation surrounded by the Republic of South Africa. Because of its high elevation, Lesotho is called the roof of Africa and has a climate distinguished by extremes of temperature. Though in the summer the temperature may daily climb into the 90's, during the winter Lesotho can be bitterly cold.

To add to the discomfort, few homes in Lesotho have electricity, and central heating is almost

March 20-26 "Tornado Safety Week" in Michigan

Michigan residents are advised by the State Police emergency management division that the coming of spring brings with it the potential for devastating tornadoes in the state.

Capt. Peter Basolo, deputy state director of emergency services, said that a proclamation by Governor James J. Blanchard designated March 20-26 as "Tornado Safety Week" in Michigan and that it alerts state residents to the need to know how to prepare themselves for possible tornado dangers. Part of the week's activity will include a tornado communication test March 24.

The proclamation pointed out: "Each year more than 600 tornadoes strike in the United States, including an average of 17 in Michigan."

"Tragically tornadoes often leave a path of death and destruction. Since 1950, more than 200 persons have been killed by tornadoes in Michigan. Property loss has been estimated to be in the millions of dollars."

"Michigan ranks third in the number of tornado-related deaths in the country. The state's urban population makes it especially vulnerable to the devastating effects of tornadoes."

"The people of Michigan should be aware of the early warning signs of tornadoes and the proper safety and emergency procedures."

"Tornadoes usually develop in conjunction with severe thunderstorms. Community siren systems and the broadcast media alert the public when a possible tornado is approaching, but often a tornado will touch down before any warnings can be issued."

"This year, state, county and local emergency services coordinators, the National Weather Service, the public and private school systems and the news media are cooperating to educate the public to the dangers of tornadoes and the safety rules they can follow to save lives."

Those persons having serious concerns regarding tornado safety are advised to contact their nearest State Police post, local civil defense authorities, police and fire departments for assistance. Some agencies have information material to distribute concerning tornado safety.

Camp Fire celebrates 73rd birthday

Camp Fire is celebrating this week its 73rd Birthday, dating from its founding as a national organization in 1910. This year's theme, "The Camp Fire spirit is soaring!", features a drawing of balloons bearing happy members upward into new adventures and toward new goals. Reaching out is always a feature of Camp Fire, too, as it provides opportunities for all to carry out the slogan "Give Service" locally or nationally.

The first precept in the Camp Fire Law is "Worship God," and Camp Fire Sunday will be observed on March 20. Lowell girls are planning to attend churches of their choice, individually or as groups, on that day, wearing their uniforms to distinguish them as members. Any who are interested are specially invited by the First United Methodist Church to join in worship there at the 11 o'clock service and to stay for refreshments and fellowship afterward.

There are seventy-nine girls who are registered members of ten Camp Fire groups in the Lowell-Alto-Parnell area this year. This area is a part of the Tawanka (Southeast) District of the Keewano Council of Camp Fire, which is a United Fund Agency.

New church in the Lowell - Saranac area

A Lowell-area couple has been nurturing the growth of a relatively new church in the Lowell-Saranac area. Robert and Kathy Roush, of 10895 Peck Lake Rd., started the Friendship Country Chapel in October of 1981, meeting with three families in the basement of their home.

In the year and one-half since its inception, the church has grown to about a dozen families and moved twice in a search for roomier and more secure quarters.

Robert Roush is acting as pastor of the non-denominational church, a task which he performs at no cost to the organization. He has taken on this responsibility with the wholehearted support of his wife, in addition to his duties as an employee of Radio Bible Class.

At this time the Friendship Country Chapel is meeting in a rented trailer attractively tucked into a grove of white pines. Access to the chapel is via a private drive which branches from Ivan Road just north of the MacArthur-Ivan intersection. The chapel's secluded location and its home atmosphere contribute to one of the church's distinctive features -- its friendliness. Worshipers at the chapel use the trailer living room as a sanctuary, and the 40-50 people meeting there must sit closely together.

Roush explained that the new corner at Friendship isn't given enough room to feel isolated from other worshippers. The structure of the worship service at the church also contributes to the feeling of community. At one point in the service, the meeting is regularly opened for a "Praise and Share Time," in which members of the congregation express praise to God for His working in their lives and share personal burdens with the other worshippers.

Kathy Roush said that when her husband and she were considering starting the church, they "felt there was a definite need to minister to people usually neglected by the church." "We want to minister to all classes," she said, which means welcoming worshippers from widely differing vocational, educational, and financial backgrounds.

To the end of attracting all types of people, the Roushs have dispensed with church membership. Robert Roush said that church membership can be a divisive tool, because membership rules almost invariably require an individual to live according to the dictates of another's conscience.

His wife Kathy added that the church does not have a list of "do's and don'ts". She believes that the public is turned off by a church which requires persons to conform to a certain manner of living before accepting them.

"If people are living to please God, their lives will be right anyblically-justified approach to alcohol use. the Friendship Country Chapel faces the possibility of another move in the near future. An expanding congregation is forcing the church to consider purchasing the property they presently rent or moving to another, more accessible location.

In any case, the chapel plans to continue its ministry to the "poor in spirit."

Kathy and Robert Roush stand before the entrance to their trailer-chapel.

HOMESPUN DEVOTIONS

by Pauline E. Spray

Even the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister. (Matthew 20:28).

My mother just can't do enough for me when I go home to visit for a few days. She asks, "Pauline, what would you like to eat?" And if I don't stop her, she insists on waiting on me hand and foot.

"You don't have to wait on me," I told her one day. "But I like to wait on people who don't want to be waited on. It is the people who want to be waited on that I don't like to wait on," she replied.

Those who seek the solitudes of others, who want the attention of all about them, are selfish - and unhappy. And, they are of limited service in this world. We can be joyful only if we forget ourselves and concentrate on making others happy.

DO YOU KNOW?
By Candace Lieberman
North American Precis Syndicate
Retailers throughout the nation have found newspaper advertising the best way to promote their products and services. Yet some aren't aware of these facts about advertising.

- Plain talk is better than fancy words in newspaper advertising. Write ads the way you talk, in short, punchy phrases.
- A little col- Lieberman or can make an ad stand out on a page in a spectacular manner. In fact, adding one color to a black and white ad can increase readership 50 percent or more.
- Properly used, white space not only helps give an image of quality to an ad, but also helps the ad stand out in the newspaper page, which is usually crowded with type.
- The headline is the most important part of any advertisement, because it determines whether the ad will be read.
- Keep the illustration large. Research shows that ads with large merchandise pictures get higher readership than ads with small illustrations or with no illustration. People want to see the merchandise you're selling.

THE WRONG WAY TO COLLECT TAXES

There could hardly be a less desirable way to increase federal tax revenues than to withhold income tax on interest and dividend income.

This is unnecessary and will result in only a minimal increase in revenues. It will also alienate and infuriate the millions of honest taxpayers who will have to put up with it.

Yet unless the new Congress takes immediate action, this ill-advised program will go into effect on July 1, 1983.

The Treasury itself admits that the vast majority of people report their interest and dividend income. The cheaters can be caught through more efficient use of the existing computerized Form 1099 system, such as requiring full information reporting of interest payments on the more than $250 billion outstanding U.S. Treasury and U.S. agency obligations not counting E-bonds.

This makes a lot more sense than forcing virtually all interest and dividend-paying banks, savings institutions, corporations, mutual funds and brokerage houses to become tax collectors. (The plan also covers U.S. government securities, including E-bonds.)

Perhaps worst of all is the mass confusion this will create. Withholding will be optional with the payer if payments total less than $150 per year. For most investments tax will be withheld from each payment, but withholding could be once-a-year on passbook and checkbook-type accounts.

We agree 100% with Mr. Paul E. Shamblins Letter: For too long now Mr. Kelly has had enough Fringe Benefits to go along with a sizeable salary.

Mr. Kelly states he resigned for Personal reasons and for the good of the school system.

The school system teachers and children do not need Mr. Kelly operating a school system ineffectively while trying to straighten out his personal reasons and problems.

If the facts as presented can be believed we're paying him even tho he chose to resign.

Somehow this is beginning to give the same odor the great L.A.S.A. deal did last year.

However the people living in the Lowell School District are smart enough to figure out once again they've been had.

They will vote accordingly on the millage increase. The School Board has cried wolf once too often for money while striking deals to give away money. (what was had) ever how much that really is.

Second annual substance abuse information night

Because of continuing concern of the part of school officials and parents, Lowell Senior High School is sponsoring the Second Annual Substance Abuse Information Night to be held March 24 from 7:30-9 P.M.

Last year's two-night program, which included talks by Lowell Police Officer Al Eckman, State Trooper Gary Knottnerus, and representatives from the Care Unit, the Treatment Center for Alcoholics, Kent Community Hospital, and others, was well received, and approximately 90 parents attending the first evening and over 130 the second.

Though informative, group representatives in last year's presentation unfortunately overwhelmed parents with their array of facts and figures. Officials at the school, therefore, chose to narrow the scope of topics covered in this year's information night.

Gary Knottnerus, a Community Relations Officer with the Michigan State Police and the father of three children in the Lowell Area Schools, will be back again this year to speak on the topic: "Alcohol and Marijuana -- Teenage Epidemic."

Knottnerus will be giving the hard statistics on teenage drug and alcohol abuse as well as detailing the legal consequences to minors found in possession of controlled substances. A film on the same topic will accompany his talk.

The other speaker for the evening will be Leslie Louisell, a dynamic lecturer for the Community Outreach Team from Project Rehab. Louisell will discuss "Preventative Action in Substance Abuse -- Where to go, What to do."

Louisell, who regularly addresses concerned citizens, will challenge parents to be aware of the extent of substance abuse in the Lowell area and what their children may be experiencing.

She will also offer advice on how to prevent a substance abuse problem from sprouting or growing and will suggest agencies which can offer counseling and answer questions.

A questions and answer period will conclude the evening. All parents in attendance will receive a guide containing the names and phone numbers of agencies and contact people who can assist them with questions and problems with children.

The meeting, which will be held in the K-Quad of the high school (most easily reached by using the south-west entrance near the band room) is open to all parents in the school district. Persons with questions regarding the presentation may call Dick Korb or Barb Pierce at 897-9202.

Today is the fifteenth of March, 1983, and just for the sake of posterity I'm going to set a few things down here for the record. The first day of spring isn't until next week, so maybe this should've waited until then. But I'm stuck for any other ideas, so it's going in this week.

The first robin sightings were reported to the Ledger over a month ago, and they are a common sight now. I've sighted my first bikini clad sunbather, but they are still not as common as robins. Unfortunately.

Though we've had a couple of sprinklings, I can't remember the last accumulation of snow in this area. I think the biggest snowfall we had all year was an unseasonably early five inches that we got way back in early November. I was with everybody else in thinking, "oh no, it's going to be one of those winters."

We've already got a weekend of camping logged. We stayed at the Holland State Park last weekend. It was a bit cooler than the forecast had called for, but it was nice to go camping again. While there, we saw several sailboats going in and out of the channel, to include a sixteen foot Hobie Cat like mine. I know how wet you get sailing one of those, so the crew on this one had to be compressed of a couple members of the Polar Bear Club. You know these guys; they're the ones who chop holes in the ice and jump in. I also saw a couple of Polar Bears sailboarding on Lake Macatawa.

Many trees and shrubs are budding out, and the grass is already turning green. My neighbor has had his maple trees tapped for two or three weeks now. We tapped ours, and set a couple gallons of sap to boil. When I came home last night I thought the car was overheating, and checked under the hood. It turned out that the sap had boiled dry, and the smelly kettle had been set out in the garage. The whole house smells like scorched maple syrup, which is not one of the spring fragrances that particularly turns me on.

Golfers have gone nuts! There is a group of golfers around Lowell who go out in snowmobile suits and use a broom to sweep the snow off the greens. I'm not talking about those golfers, I'm talking about regular golfers, the ones that aren't quite so crazy. I understand that Saskatoon had tee times booked solid for nearly the whole day two Sundays ago.

A group of my friends and I planned an ice fishing trip to the Higgins Lake area several months ago. We're leaving Thursday. One member of the group called a bait shop on Higgins Monday to ask about ice conditions, and the owner just laughed at him. So the same guy called somewhere up in the Upper Peninsula, and got the same story there: either no ice or very rotten and unsafe ice. The guy in the U.P. said they are six weeks ahead, weather wise. I guess we're still going, but we're taking different gear.

So clip this column, and dig it out next year on March 15 to see how it compares. What do you wanna bet there'll be a big difference?

Hearing Loss Is Not A Sign Of Old Age.

Chicago, Ill.—A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of one of the smallest Beltone aids of its kind will be given absolutely free to anyone requesting it.

Send for this model, put it on and wear it in the privacy of your own home. While many people with a hearing loss will not receive any significant benefit from any hearing aid, this free model will show you how tiny hearing help can be. It is not a real hearing aid, and it's yours to keep free. The actual aid weighs less than a fourth of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept. 00000, Beltone Electronics Corp., 4201 W. Victoria, Chicago, Illinois 60646.

'OUTDOORS' with Jack Friesner

The recent period of unseasonably warm weather is resulting in a great deal of activity among our fish and wildlife populations. Many large flocks of geese may be observed winging northward almost daily. Robbings have been seen through the area for some weeks now, and I have even received word of the sighting of migrating bluebirds. All of these sightings are extremely early.

The spring spawning run of steelhead, (lake run rainbow trout), is already underway. Fresh run fish are being taken below the sixth street dam in Grand Rapids. Anglers there are also taking good numbers of lake run, black suckers. Walleyes are also showing up in the catch, but I would like to remind you that the season is presently closed on this toothy, bug eyed, culinary delight. Some Steelhead are being reported in Prairie creek in Ionia, and that portion of the Rogue River, below the Childsdale dam is also producing some fish. The lower Flat river in Lowell has also produced some nice fish in the past few days. All of the fish noted above Grand Rapids are dark in color and are carry ovens which have spent the winter in the river system. The water temperatures are still too cold and the fish are going to be very slow and reluctant to feed. Ninety percent of this premature run will be taken on spawn, wigglers or flies, fished very slow and right on bottom. Lures are seldom effective until the water temperature reaches 45 degrees, it is presently only about 40 here in the Flat River.

Steelhead and Brown trout are showing up in good numbers at many of the river mouths along southern Lake Michigan. I have received at least one report of a limit catch of Steelhead and Browns, coming from the south pier at Grand Haven and several other, non-confirmed, reports of nice catches showing up from Muskegon southward.

Good numbers of nice perch, are being taken from several local lakes. Duncan Lake, south of Caledonia, has been producing perch up to fourteen inches and Big Wabasis is also reportedly yielding some good catches. If the warm weather holds, all area lakes will be ice free very soon. Perch are a very early spawner and it is seldom that we get a chance to hit the peak of their spawning activity during open water conditions. This year should be the exception. During the next few weeks, large numbers of really jumbo perch should be taken from several local lakes. Wigglers will undoubtedly be the top producer, however small minnows, mosquitos and worms, will also account for many.

These winter months have certainly been beautiful, not only from the aspect of our own welfare and personal comforts, but also for our wildlife populations. This winter could have been devastating to the over harvested deer population, but thanks to the very mild weather, they suffered virtually no winter kill and their well fed, excellent condition will result in a very good fawn crop of healthy, well fed animals. All other wildlife has fared equally well, and this spring should see record litters of all animals. The fish populations have fared equally well. The lakes were not frozen over hard enough or long enough to result in any suffocation or winter kill. Generally this will result in good fish populations. The only problem could come from the overpopulation and consequent stunting of panfish.

The Grand River Bait and Tackle shop previously located on Grand River Dr. has moved to The Combination, 526 E. Main Lowell. We should be open before the first of April. The coffee pot will always be on and the latch strings always out. I'll be looking forward to seeing you all soon.

A tax audit is not the end of the world: but here's how to avoid one

Like most taxpayers, Paul M. notified by the IRS that his return didn't think it would happen to him. But a year after filing his federal income tax return he was to be audited. That news is commonly met with some alarm, but a tax audit is not necessarily something to worry about, advises the Michigan Association of CPAs. The IRS action doesn't mean you've done anything wrong, or that you will wind up owing more tax. In fact, in about one out of four cases an IRS audit ends up with no changes being made in the tax bill. If Paul M. has complete records to back up his expenses and deductions, and has properly listed all his income, he should expect to weather the audit without any problems. Even after an audit, if he believes he has valid grounds to bring his case to Tax Court, he has a 50-50 chance of winning. While anyone might be audited, some are more likely than others, CPAs point out. What often triggers audits are deduction claims which may be larger than the average for a taxpayer's income level, certain tax shelter activity (especially with large losses), as well as heavy travel and entertainment expenses, home office deductions or casualty losses.

Paul M.'s return may have touched off any of these "triggers" or he may have been part of a "target" group selected by the IRS for close tax scrutiny.

It may also have been that information filed by his bank or employer didn't match what he put on his return; an informant may have provided a tip concerning his income or return; or his return contained confusing or misleading wording or deductions. Another possibility is he may have been selected at random in a special audit survey the IRS conducts approximately every three years.

Generally the audit notification letter contains some indication of areas that are in question. Some items may be resolved by mail. Otherwise an appointment with the IRS examiner or appeals officer has to be made.

In preparing for an audit, gather as much back-up material as possible to support your return. Be prepared to justify deductions with sales receipts, paid bills and cancelled checks.

For business expenses present a diary of persons entertained, phone calls made, and reasons for certain expenditures. CPAs strongly suggest maintaining records year-round bearing in mind you could eventually be audited.

At the same time, CPAs have some suggestions that could help you avoid being audited. If you have unusually large deductions in a specific area, be sure to include extra disclosures with your return to support that claim.

For example, you may have a larger than average deduction for sales tax because you bought a car or boat. In that case, be sure to list the property bought, and actual sales tax paid, on "Schedule A-Itemized Deductions" with your Form 1040. Also, hold onto your sales receipt.

If you claim a large charitable deduction, you are required to attach copies of descriptions of the gift and appraisals of property you donated.

Be careful to describe a deduction accurately. For example, certain legal expenses such as tax planning are deductible, while other legal expenses, like a personal lawsuit, are not.

Keep proper records. When you claim a deduction, be precise. Confusion over a few deduction explanations may lead the IRS to audit your entire return. So, keep explanations simple.

Keep in mind that the higher your income the greater your chance of being audited. A shade under two percent of individual tax returns are audited, while eight percent of returns reporting over $50,000 in income audited.

The first item of business was the discussion of the Consumers Power Pole Attachment Agreement. Manager Quada stated that based on the same 50% formula used for the City, Lowell Light and Power Company has determined that there are 101 potential hook-ups within the three mile service loop, so there would be approximately 50 customers.

The Manager explained that Consumers Power Company is in hearings before the Public Service Commission dealing with the 5% annual raise in fees to other companies using their poles, with the same standard contract. If they rule that the fee is too high, the break will be passed on to the City.

He also reported that we are ready to begin cable hook-up to Lowell Township, and it would be a supplement to this agreement with the same terms.

A lengthy discussion followed on the exchange of pole use, and the City can charge the same rates to Consumers Power for their use of City owned poles. Work cannot progress in Lowell Township until the agreement is signed.

IT WAS MOVED by Councilman Fonger that the Pole Attachment Agreement with Consumers Power Company be approved and the Mayor and Clark be authorized to sign the necessary documents, supported by Councilman Maatman.

Carried.

Council then discussed the request of Mr. Victor Leabu, new owner of the White's Bridge Dam for "Rights of Flowage" the control of amounts of water passing through the gates. Apparently these rights have never been transferred to Michael Thomas who bought it from the City originally.

Councilmembers were unaware of such rights, but launched a discussion on the possibilities that could occur if he was allowed to stop the flow of water, or restrict it, etc. There was no action taken, and Manager Quada was directed to contact the City's engineering firm for review and additional information.

Manager Quada then announced that the final accounting for the Helen Look-Daley Fund to the City and the Congregational Church, has been made with receipt of checks payable to each for $40,780.12.

IT WAS MOVED by Councilman Schneider that the following excerpt from the letter by Mr. H. William Lyle, Mrs. Daley's Attorney, be included as part of the record in the City Council Minutes, supported by Councilman Maatman.

Carried.

Manager Quada announced that the Community Development Block Grant Application has been reviewed by the Kent County Advisory Committee, and is in conformance with all requirements. The Planning Commission will develop the plan with input from local merchants in the Central Business District with final approval by the City Council. Funding could be distributed as low-interest loans, grants, or a combination of both. The program will be for exterior renovation only, at this time.

IT WAS MOVED by Councilman Maatman that the Planning Commission be directed to develop the Community Development Block Grant Program for renovation of the Central Business District, with final approval by the City Council, supported by Councilman Fonger.

Carried.

Manager Quada reported that the problem with the D.N.R. on the Sewage Treatment Plant expansion has been resolved. The lagoons and Bowes Road elevation will be left as is, so that flood water can flow around both sides and money will be saved on the project. The next step will be to try and get our priority number changed. The City is now 136th on the list, but by being ready to go with our project, it might be possible to move up, over some others who are higher on the list, but not ready to start construction.

There was no Citizen Input.

Under the Manager's Report, he stated that Bruce Ellenbass of Fishbeck, Thompson, Carr and Huber, the City's engineering firm, would do the specifications for the renovation of the Library Building. The specs will be separated into several parts, 1. roof structure, soundness of building; 2. Exterior repair of building, window casings, cap eaves, etc. 3. Interior, just doing whatever is necessary to stop the deterioration.

He stated that he would have engineering costs for next meeting.

Under Council Comments, Councilman Christiansen stated that he had had some complaints about the fencing at DeMull's junk yard. Chief Emmons replied that he had already been in contact with Mr. DeMull and new fencing is to be installed.

Councilman Schneider announced that Lowell Area Housing Commission will construct another building in the Schneider Manor Complex, with access from S. Pleasant Street.

Councilman Fonger asked if the Helen Look-Daley Committee was now full. Manager Quada state yes, with the addition of Mary Ann Gwatkin.

Mayor Collins stated that the Look-Daley Committee met the 16th and decided on a letterhead, printing of the brochure, and having some pictures made of Mrs. Daley for display.

IT WAS THEN MOVED by Councilman Christiansen to adjourn at 9:14 P.M.

Approved:
Dean E. Collins,
Mayor

City Clerk

FOCUS ON EDUCATION

As many of you read this paper, thousands of children are sitting in schools, engrossed in their "jobs" of becoming educated. Many are writing, or reading, or struggling with a math problem. Others are anxiously watching the clock, wondering when the teacher will stop talking or when lunch will come or when it will be time to get back to their real world of friends and TV. A few are totally absorbed in their school activities and truly feel that they are learning more each day about where they fit into society and the world. If given a choice, they would choose to come to school.

Most teachers, of course, want more and more of the third group of children. And most teachers are constantly striving to perfect their skills and abilities to provide that kind of experience for their classes. Recently a group of 40 educators from the greater Grand Rapids area participated in a 2-day workshop aimed at building such skills. Three Lowell teachers from the Riverside Building were among that group, and they returned with new ideas. These teachers had attended an earlier evening session introducing the idea of Cooperative Groups. Since this training, their classes have enjoyed working on social skills while working on academic projects in small groups.

This evening, Weds. March 16, while most of you readers are relaxing at home, these 40 teachers (including the three from Lowell) will be meeting again, for three hours, to continue perfecting their new skills. There will also be another 3-hour evening follow-up in April.

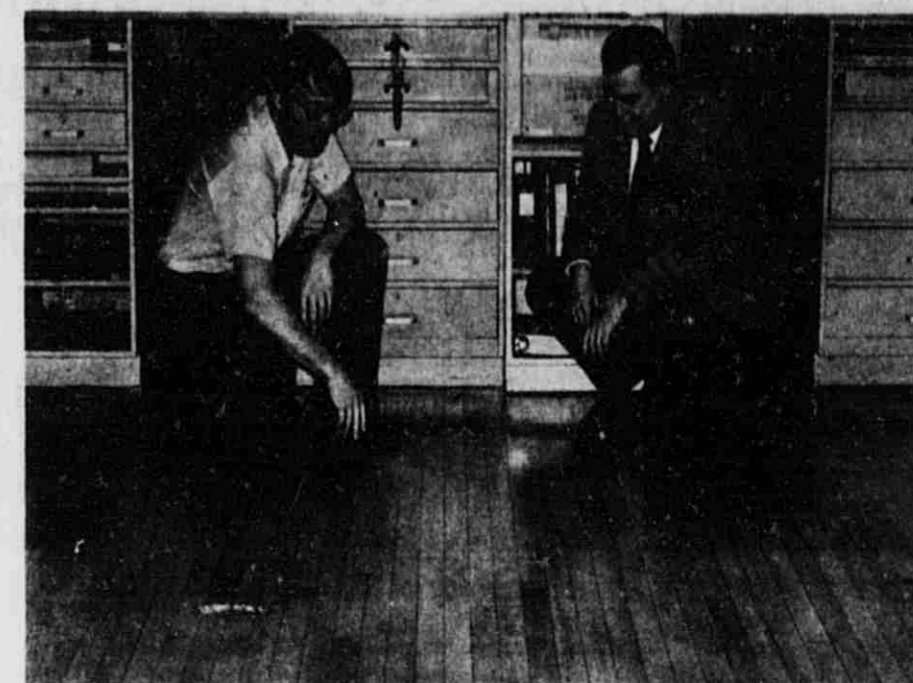

There are many similar classes going on constantly, as educators attempt to provide the very best experiences for today's youth.

Post Office has "like new" floor

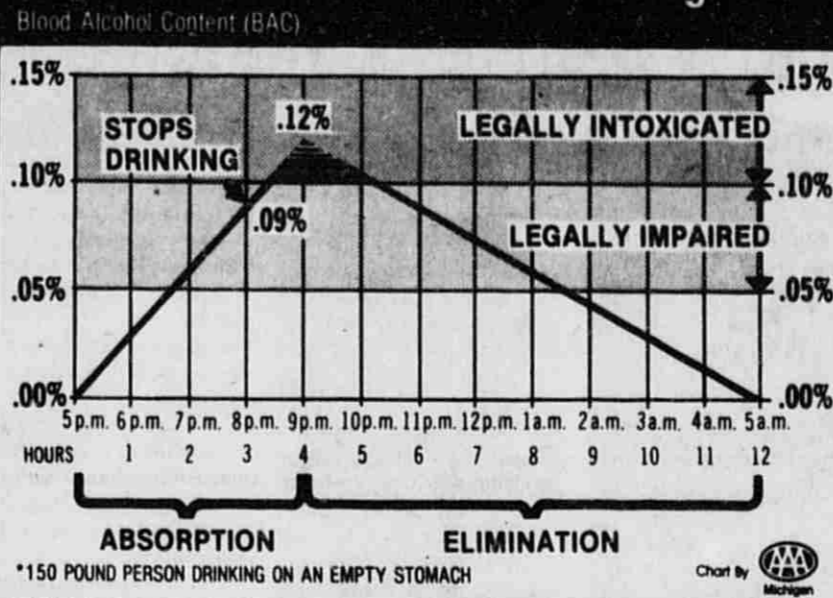

Employees at the Lowell Post Office have been looking down lately, but not because they feel depressed. The wooden floor in the interior of the Post Office, which had not been tended since 1960 or 1961, was sanded and refinished by Wilcome & Sons Floor Sanding, of 68th Street, Alto. The like-new floor was given three coats of urethane finish at a cost of $1,848.00.

Intoxication Rises After Drinking Ends

A 150-pound person who drinks eight ounces of alcohol in a three-hour period on an empty stomach has a Blood Alcohol Content of .09%, according to the above Automobile Club of Michigan chart. Even though that person stops drinking, his BAC level increases to .12% one hour later and he is legally intoxicated. More than four hours later that person could still be legally impaired and unfit to drive. At .10%, a person is considered legally intoxicated, at above .07% he is presumed to be legally impaired and may be considered impaired at .05%.

Michigan's tougher drunk driving laws, which take effect March 30, are aimed at the 1.5 million motorists who drink and drive on Michigan roads, reports the Automobile Club of Michigan.

The Auto Club's recent drinking driver study, "Under the Influence," states that on any weekend night before midnight, every 10th driver is legally drunk. After midnight, the number soars to one in five.

"In 1978, 48 percent of Michigan's fatal traffic accidents involved alcohol," the study added. "By 1981, the percentage had climbed to 56."

To help solve this problem, police officers starting March 30 can use a standard preliminary roadside breathalyzer test, in addition to a subjective touch-your-nose or walk-a-straight-line test, to determine if a drunk driving arrest is appropriate.

Those who drive with a .10 percent blood alcohol content (BAC) will be in violation of the new "per se" law. The reduction of a drunk driving charge to a lesser offense through plea-bargaining could be less likely under the new legislation while stricter license suspensions await those convicted.

Mandatory screening and treatment for alcohol abuse are also part of the new laws aimed at getting drunk drivers off the road.

The Automobile Club of Michigan's study also noted that a drinking driver is six to 25 times more likely to be involved in a crash than a sober driver. In 1978, 26,923 persons were arrested with a BAC of .10 percent, compared to 40,920 drivers in 1981.

This increase is especially alarming when considering that only one in 2,000 drinking and driving incidents leads to arrest each year in Michigan and only an estimated 22 percent of those arrested for drunk driving are convicted on that charge.

The new legislation includes these three charges:
*Operating a vehicle while under the influence of liquor (OUIL).
*Operating a vehicle while ability is impaired by alcohol (OWI).
*A "per se" law which makes it a violation for a motorist with a BAC of .10 percent to operate a vehicle, regardless of the effect the alcohol has on the person's ability to drive.

Those found guilty of the "per se" law face the same penalties as someone convicted under the OUIL charge.

The Auto Club's study emphasized that alcohol is a sensory depressant which slows response time essential for the safe operation of a vehicle. The driver who has stopped drinking hours before climbing behind the wheel still can be under the influence of alcohol.

A 150-pound person who has consumed eight ounces of alcohol in a three-hour period on an empty stomach has a .09 BAC. One hour later, even though not drinking, the BAC increases to .12 percent, above the legally drunk level.

While the new laws make it a violation to drive with a BAC of .10 percent, a BAC above .07 percent may result in an OWI conviction.

unheard of. Information supplied by the Peace Corps frankly tells incoming volunteers that they will quickly learn to do their work where the heat is and often that means working curled inside a sleeping bag.

Mrs. Anderson said that Craig had talked about joining the Peace Corps for years, drawn to join the organization by a love of travel and a recognition of the needs of people less fortunate than Americans.

"It probably all started when he was an exchange student in high school," Mrs. Anderson added.

Craig was one of 28 Peace Corps Volunteers assigned to Lesotho. Following a six-week orientation period, he and the other volunteers were given specific teaching assignments. Craig began teaching January 24, and, according to Mrs. Anderson, "seems to be really enjoying it."
