ICE CREAM PARLOR OPENS

Crystal's Ice Cream Parlor located at 1004 W. Main, next to Crystal Flash is celebrating its Grand Opening now through Sunday. The new shop features old fashioned hand dipped ice cream cones, sodas, sundaes, malts and banana splits. The decor is also old fashioned, and interesting as it features several enlargements of old photos from Lowell and the surrounding area. The enlargements were created by Dave Miller of Lowell. Doris "Chris" Van-Allsburg, owner of the Jersey Junction Ice Cream Parlor in Grand Rapids, helped decorate the store. Chris is the daughter of William Christiansen, owner of Christiansen's Drug Store and Ice Cream Parlor, so she knows a bit about the ice cream business. Get cones at two for one prices, 10 cent popcorn and free helium balloons with your purchase all this week.

T.J.'s PIZZA AND PARTY STORE OPENS

T.J.'s Pizza and Party Store located at 2186 West Main St., Lowzell has opened both the restaurant and party store. The restaurant features T.J.'s famous pizza, but also has a menu to suit any palate, including Mexican favorites, burgers, hot dogs, fries and other American food. Also on the menu, and expecially pleasing in this heat, is Miller's hand dipped ice cream. The restaurant is open seven days from 11:00 A.M. until midnight Sunday thru Thursday, and 11:00 A.M. until 1:00 A.M. Friday and Saturday. The party store features a selection of party and grocery items, to include a wide variety of beer and wine, warm or cold. The party store is also open seven days from 6:00 until midnight Sunday thru Thursday and 6:00 A.M. thru 1:00 A.M. Friday and Saturday.

City gives initial approval to pursuing a "Gus Macker" park

The approximately 25 "Gus Macker" supporters gave the Lowell City council a round of applause following their agreement to commit to helping pursue a new city park with the "Macker" as the main theme. Jerry Kellogg, a spokesperson for the group, told the council that they had circulated petitions asking for support in keeping the "Macker" in Lowell, and developing a "Macker" park. To date, Kellogg said that the group had about 500 names of Lowell city residents, and 1,500 area residents. Kellogg urged the council to, "try as our elected officials to keep "Macker" in Lowell.

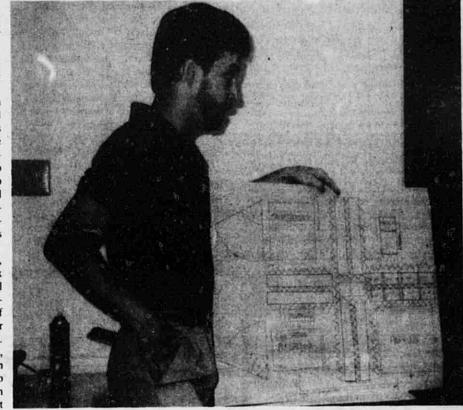

Another member of the group, and a realtor in the area, Dick Bryan reported to the council that he was working on a deal involving the possible donation of about 25 acres west of the water treatment plant on Bowes Road. Bryan said that the site needs fill, but he had been in touch with people looking for a place to dump fill dirt at no cost. Bryan said he needed written support from the city before he could proceed with his negotiations on Scott McNeal then made his presentation of at least an initial concept of what the "Macker" portion of the park would involve. McNeal said that the "Macker area would require about ten acres, and would consist of an "X" of city-like streets, bermed along their length to provide elevated seating for spectators. McNeal explained that the streets could be designed to double as campsites, tennis courts, parking lots and playgrounds throughout the year. Besides the streets, the "Macker" plans call for some type of building in which to house their backboards when not in use and to serve as "Macker" headquarters during "Macker" week

Additional plans for the park included restrooms, showers, baseball/softball fields, soccer fields, and other sport or recreation facilities

Councilman Jim Maatman was the first to speak for the council, saying, "I'd like to see this pursued". The other council members echoed his sentiment. and agreed to put their support in the form of a letter, but stopped short of committing any city funds at this point.

City manager Ray Quada explained some of his feelings toward the "Macker" park issue. Quada first explained the situation that exists regarding recreation in the city. According to Quada, Lowell is quite unique for a city its size in that we have a YMCA that virtually handles all of the recreation within the city, with the exception of school programs, and Little League. The YMCA is funded out of the King trust, and fund raising projects throughout the year, with the city contributing only $3,500 annually to the operation of the pool. Quada pointed out that $3,500 is very little, comapred to what other cities Lowell's size spend on recreation. With this in mind, Quada suggested that the citizens might get behind the "Macker" park plan and support it with a millage increase, that would help build the park and provide for its maintenance in the future.

Quada said. "this job sometimes requires that I be a wet blanket", and went on to explain that simply drawing money from either the Lee Fund or Helen Look Daley trust, without some Airport Board; Dr. Orval McKay income for maintenance provided would not be an acceptable means of funding the project.

Quada also suggested that the 'Macker" group should work closely with not only the city, but the school, YMCA and other groups interested in recreation.

Quada and Maatman were appointed to represent the city on the "Macker" park planning

In other council business, the council approved a rezoning request from the Lowell Nazarene Church on a parcel of property immediately east of their present location at 211 N. Washington St. The property was formerly dential but the church has plans of building a 34' x 90' activity building on it, with a parking lot for approximately 50 cars. The building will be used for Sunday school classes, wedding receptions, etc. and will include a kitchen, rest rooms and a small office.

The council approved eight reappointments to various city boards. The re-appointments were Dr. Orval McKay, Leonard Jackson and Ray Quada to the

The council approved expending $3,100 for paving the alley behind Lowell Auto Body from Washington Street up to and including the width of the small park in that block. The area where the caboose sat in the park will also be paved, providing 3 or 4 new parking spaces.

The council also approved a $2,350 contract with Highway Maintenance Specialists, Inc. for the repair of cracks in several miles of city streets.

CORRECTION

Last week's Ledger article about the shooting death of James Pfaff stated that Pfaff had been involved in a previous incident in which he held a hostage at knifepoint. We have learned that this information was incorrect in that a hostage was not held during the incident. Also, our article said that Larkin's Saloon had been closed for over an hour prior to the shooting, when in fact they had closed at 2:30 A.M. on the previous day, and were not open on Sunday, the day prior to the shooting. The Ledger regrets both errors.

We dream of doing great things for the Lord in the dark corners of the earth. Faraway lands and the lure of the romantic stir our imaginations. However, if we listen, it's very likely that we'll hear the opportunity for service knocking at the very door of the house we live in. It's summertime, and everybody is supposed to be able to take life a little easier, but here I am, racking my noodle for this week's column. I'v tried to figure a way to stretch a little incident where I put on a pot of coffee in our Mr. Coffee coffemaker, and then got in the shower. When I got out of the shower, the coffee had run all along the counter, and down on the floor, ten cups of the stuff. Seems I forgot to put the pot in the machine. I thought I might start such an account with a clever quote on ignorance or stupidity, so I referred to my book of quotes.

While reading through the section on ignorance, I came across a Kin Hubbard quote, and was reminded of a conversation I had recently that revolved around this clever, witty newspaper columnist from Indianapolis. His real name was Frank McKinney Hubbard, and that's about all I know about him, other than his stuff is timeless, priceless, and much better material than any account I'd be able to come up with regarding my Mr. Coffee incident. So, like I said in the first sentence, it's summertime, and I'm going to take it easy by passing along some of Kin Hubbard's wit.

On conformity Hubbard wrote, "You won't skid if you stay in a rut", and "a rut is a grave with the ends knocked out".

On the subject of diplomacy, Hubbard said, "a diplomat is a fellow who lets you do all the talking, while he gets what he wants".

On fame, "after a fellow gets to be famous it doesn't take long for someone to bob up that used to sit by him in school", and "and the other indication of fame is when some insane person imagines that he is you"

On family, "most parents don't worry about a daughter until she fails to show up for breakfast. Then it is too late.", and "only a mother would think her daughter has been a good girl when she returns from a date with a Gideon Bible in her handbag". Also on the subject of family, "The reason parents no longer lead their children in the right direction, is because the parents aren't going that way themselves.

On the American Flag, "It seems like th' less a statesma amounts to th' more he loves th' flag".

On friends, "A friend that ain't in need is a friend indeed". On government, Hubbard quipped, "Now and then an innocent man gets sent to the legislature On homes Hubbard was right on the money with, "The man who owns his own home is always just coming out of the hardware".

On ignorance, (which is where this all got started), "'Tain't what a man don't know that hurts him; it's what he knows that just ain't

On unions, "We all belong to a union when it comes to wantin more money and less work"

On money, Hubbard wrote, "The safest way to double your money is to fold it over once, and put it in your pocket", "The only problems money can solve are money problems", "When a fellow says, 'it ain't the money, it's the principle of the thing', it's the money" and "Only one fellow in ten thousand understands the currency question, and we meet him every day".

On age. "You've got to be fifty-nine years old to believe a feller is at his best at sixty".

On oratory, "Why don't the feller who says, 'I'm not a speechmaker' let it go at that instead 'o givin' a demonstration?".

On riches, "A rich man and his daughter are soon parted", and on poverty Hubbard declared, "I once knew a man who was so poor he owned twenty dogs"

Next week, Mark Twain, then Will Rogers, then Abraham Lin-

Former Lowell resident Mark Murphy bagged this 240-pound black bear, June 28 while hunting near Gravel Mountain, near Granby Colorado. He took this bear with one shot from his compound bow at a distance of 8 yards. It was a 6 year old boar and will probably qualify for the Pope and Young Record book.
