

SPORTS PAGES POSTPONED

The Ledger had scheduled a four page section featuring the Lowell High School winter sportes teams, but due to a malfuntion with our camera we ended up with two rolls of blank film from three separate photo sessions. We are currently working with the athletic director and coaches in an effort to get the pictures re-taken so that the winter sports section can be published next week. We are sorry for the inconvenience.

Well...ya'll got your Christmas shopping done? You do realize that there are only about three weeks left before the fateful day when you have to have all your gifts under the tree, don't you? I noticed that the Grand Rapids Press published a calendar of the remaining days before Christmas with a list of things you should be doing each day to prepare for the holiday. The calendar had one flaw however, it didn't take into account the fact that most of us still have other commitments on those days. Going to work is a good example. With that in mind, I figured somebody ought to publish a suggested pre-Christmas schedule for the working person. So here it is. THURSDAY, DEC. 1: Read the ads in the paper looking for possible gift items, fall asleep on the couch after supper and the news. FRIDAY, DEC. 2: T.G.I.F. and who gives a hoot if Christmas is just around the corner.

SATURDAY, DEC. 3: Sleep in, it was a tough week. Get those chores done around the house. After all, what comes first; storm windows or stocking stuffers?

SUNDAY, DEC. 4: Read the Sunday paper paying particular attention to all the stuffers looking for more gift ideas. Watch football in the afternoon.

MONDAY, DEC. 5; Buy beer and pretzels, then watch the big Lions vs. Vikings game on Monday Night Football.

TUESDAY, DEC. 6: Go to bed early because you stayed up until 1:00 A.M. watching the football game. WEDNESDAY, DEC. 7: Look for those newspaper ads and flyers with the gift ideas you found. Wife says she burned 'em in the fireplace. THURSDAY, DEC. 8: Ask the wife and kids what they want for Christmas, then tell them that what they want is way too expensive. and go into your "Christmas is too commercialized" routine.

FRIDAY, DEC. 9: Decide that you are going to stick to your guns about Christmas being commercialized, and start looking for ideas of things to make as gifts.

SATURDAY, DEC. 10: Go to the lumber yard for plans and boards and junk to make gifts with.

SUNDAY, DEC. 11: Go down into your workshop and get started. After two hours you make up your mind that you don't have time. and go read the flyers in the Sunday paper looking for gift ideas. MONDAY, DEC. 12: Ask your wife for her sizes, and get slapped when you mention that they are larger than last year's. TUESDAY, DEC. 13: Try to find the names you drew at Thanksgiving for the people you have to buy for at the big family Christmas. Then call all over the state trying to figure out whose name you've got by the process of elimination.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 14: Come home from work with a positive. tment to do some shopping, only to find out that tonight is the kids' school Christmas program. THURSDAY, DEC. 15: Come home from work with a positive commitment to do some shopping, only to find out that you've been called to substitute on your bowling team because one of the guys had to get his shopping done.

FRIDAY, DEC. 16: Drive in to the malls with good intentions, but get bent out of your skull when you find that the closest place to park

SATURDAY, DEC. 17: Get up early to get your shopping done, only to find out that it snowed a foot and a half in the night, and you spend the rest of the day shovelling.

SUNDAY, DEC. 18: Drive to the big family Christmas gathering. picking up a jug of hootch on the way as a gift for your uncle. When the gifts are opened you find out that you really had your cousin's five year old kid's name, and your cousin won't let you give the kid

MONDAY, DEC. 19: Tonight's the night you are going to get that shopping done you've positively made up your mind to that, but the boss mutters something about the holidays coming up and a job that just has to get done, and you end up working late.

TUESDAY, DEC. 20: No matter what, you are going to get that shopping done tonight, but an old school chum that you haven't seen in years is home for the holidays, and he pops in on you just as you are leaving WEDNESDAY, DEC. 21: You've been going night and day for two weeks or more, your resistance is down, and the flu bug catches up to you. Panic sets in.

THURSDAY, DEC. 22: You're maybe feeling well enough to do some shopping, but the wife insists that she has to get her shopping finished up, and you end up babysitting.

FRIDAY, DEC. 23: The gang at work decides to have a little impromptu shop party, and you roll in at 2:00 A.M. SATURDAY, DEC. 24: Still weak from the flu, hungover, short on sleep and panic stricken you spend the entire day fighting the throngs at the malls. In this last minute moment of weakness you wind up buying all those expensive things you got so bent about way hack on the 8th. just like the wife and kids knew you would. SUNDAY, DEC. 25: MERRY CHRISTMAS!!

A split second of awareness turned Consumers Power lineman Tom Burghdoff into a hero and saved the life of a father of

It happened in mid-August as Burghdoff drove his company truck along M-50 south of Alto, his thoughts running ahead to the job awaiting him in Freeport.

"I was wondering how long the job would take and whether it would be straightforward or not," said Burgdoff, 39, who works out of the company's Hastings office in southwestern Michigan.

He never got to find out.

Something he glimpsed-seen for an instant, then hidden by a barn-made him swing his truck around and head back to the farm he had just passed.

"Out of the corner of my eye I thought I saw a tractor tipping over." he said. "I don't know how I happened to catch it; it was back off the road some. And I wasn't really sure that I had seen it."

HBO pigs out at 'Porky's' By Andrew J. Edelstein

If bathroom humor, locker If bathroom humor, locker room humor or humor obsessed with bodily functions turns you on, then turn on your pay channels this week. HBO and Showtime have two offerings that will delight you. sophisticated humor, look elsewhere.

MARVELOUS MEL - You either love him or you hate him. Depending on your per-spective - or tolerance level - Mel Brooks is one of the prossest or funniest comics in America today. Judge for yourself when Showtime airs "An Audience with Mel Brooks" on Dec.6.

On the special, taped before a London audience, Brooks is oined by his wife Anne Bancroft as well as comedian Ronny Graham and Shak

You'll also see three clips from Brooks' new film, "To Be or Not to Be," which is set for Christmas release. It's a remake of one of the funniest film comedies, a 1942 Jack Benny-Carole Lombard vehi-cle about a Shakespearean troupe in Poland fleeing from the Nazis.

PIGGING OUT - Another test of one's definition of good taste is "Porky's," the film about adolescent hijinks in a the film, which stars Alex tacky moments.

*Put out all cigarettes and flames. A spark can ignite hy-drogen gas from the battery.

Use these safety tips when jump starting

"Make sure vehicles don't touch. Set parking brakes and put automatic transmissions in park; manual transmissions in neutral; turn ignition off.

*Add battery water, if needed. Replace caps, cover with damp cloth. Don't jump-start if fluid is frozen

Year-end Tax Planning

If you earned investment income from stocks and bonds this year, it's probably worth your while to learn how to lower your tax liabilities by buying and selling your assets. It's a game anyone can play provided they un-derstand the different ways tax laws deal with long or short-term transactions, says the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants.

For tax purposes, investments are divided into two categories: long-term and short-term. Longterm investments are held more than a year while short-term are held for a year or less. Only 40 percent of long-term gains are taxable, while 100 percent of short-term gains are taxed. One dollar of long-term loss is only worth 50 cents off your taxable income but one dollar of shortterm loss is worth a full dollar.

To demonstrate the tax rules, let's say you bought 100 shares OI AD months ago at $10 a share, then sold the shares for $20 a share this month. That would give you a short-term gain of $1,000 and every dollar would be added to your taxable income. If you continue to hold those 100 shares for an additional three months, and the selling price remains $20, you would still have a gain of $1,000. But it becomes a long-term gain and ony 40 percent of it, or $400, is listed as income But under tax laws, losses work another way, CPAs say. For instance, if you bought 50 shares of XYZ Computer Company 13 months ago for $25 a share and sold them this month for $5 each, you'd have a longterm loss of $1,000. Only $500 would be deductible from your ordinary income. If, however, you became aware of the loss before the 12 months elapsed and sold for that same price, you'd have a shortterm loss and the full $1,000 loss would be deductible.

How do these rules affect your year-end tax planning? It depends on the amount of your gains and losses and if they are short-term or long-term.

Providing you have a lot of long-term losses this year, try not to let half of those losses go to waste, CPAs advise. To take advantage of the full amount of your losses, look for any shortterm gain.

In other words, if you have $1,000 in long-term losses, you will only be able to deduct $500 worth of losses from ordinary income. But, sell some short-term assets and produce $1,000 of short-term gains and those shortterm gains will completely offset the long-term loss.

Generally, it's good tax planning to avoid long-term losses and long-term gains in the same year, CPAs note. If you end up with a lot of long-term losses this year, look for short-term gains to your long-term gains to balance them out and hold onto your long-term gains until next year when you can claim the full tax break on long-term gains.

You may find yourself with a lot of long-term gains this year but you may not want to do anything only 40 percent of those gains are taxed.

However, if you owned stock in a company and that stock became worthless in 1983, you must claim the loss this year.

You can only claim such a loss in the year in the year it occurred, whether short-term or long-term. CPAs say.

The general rule in selling securities at year-end for gain is to act by December 22. Sales of securities for a gain have to be completed within calendar year 1983 and they usually take five business day to become settled.

For those selling at a loss, the sale date rather than the settlement date is considered the date the transaction is completed. So you can sell at a loss until December 30.
