LAST LEDGER OF THE YEAR

As has become a tradition here at the Ledger, we will not, we repeat, NOT publish a paper next week! Our next edition will come out on schedule (we hope) on Wednesday, January 4, 1984. We are all taking a well-deserved vacation, and our office will be closed from 5:00 P.M. Thursday, December 22 until 8:00 A.M. Monday, January 2. For those of you who depend on our TV Magazine, you will find that we have taken care of you by publishing listing for Friday, December 23 through Thursday, January 5, 1984. We waited until the last possible moment to have our listing run out of the main computer in Atlanta, GA so that they are as accurate as we could get them at this early date. The listings are constantly being updated at Tele-Log Services and were run out on Monday of this week and then flown here via Republic Airlines VIP service Monday evening.

OTHER HOLIDAY CLOSINGS

State Savings Bank will close all day Saturday, December 24 and Monday, Decmber 26 and will re-open for normal hours until Monday, January 2 when they will again close all day. Great Lakes Federal Savings and Loan will be open normal hours, except they will close all day on Monday, December 26 and Monday, January 2. First Security Bank will close both on December 26 and January 2 and will otherwise be open normal hours with the exception of the drive-up window closing at noon on Saturday, December 24 instead of at the normal 3:00.

The Post Office will be closed with no local or rural delivery on both Monday, December 26 and Monday, January 2

Lowell City Hall will be closed on both Monday, December 26

What the retail community is doing on the two Monday holidays seems to be anybody's guess. We do know that some will be open and some closed, but to trying to sort it all out here would be futile. We do believe that MOST will be open for business on January 2, but MANY will be closed on December 26.

All schools in the Lowell School District began their Christmas Holiday on Wednesday, December 21 and will resume classes on Tuesday, January 3, 1984.

CHRISTMAS PROGRAMS TO BE AIRED

The Lowell Cable Television Department has announced the broadcast times and dates for the various school Christmas programs that were taped for Lowell's public access channel 2. On Wednesday, December 21 the High School Christmas program will be aired at 6:30 P.M. On Thursday December 22, cable customers can watch the Bushnell program at 6:30. Alto Elementary will be broadcast at 6:30 P.M. on Friday, December 23. All four programs will be aired on Saturday, December 24; Alto at 10:00 A.M., Bushnell at 10:45 A.M., Runciman at 11:30 A.M. and the High School at 12:10 P.M.

MEMORIAL FUND TO BENEFIT BOY SCOUTS

Donations for the William J. Nowak Memorial Fund are now being accepted at the State Savings Bank, 414 E. Main St., Lowell, Funds contributed in Mr. Bill's name will be used to benefit Scouting activities within the structure of Troop 102 of Lowell.

ATTENTION FORMER HOCKEY PLAYERS

The Lowell High School Hockey Team will be playing against Former high school hockey players on Wednesday December 21 at 9-00 P.M. at the Cascade Ice Arena, Following a two period game against the Lowell Varsity, the Alumni will be divided into two teams for a game. Players from 1973-78 will comprise one team and players from 1978-83 will make up the other. Cost will be $2 per player. The public is welcome.

COMMUNITY EDUCATION INFO

Registration for second semester Lowell Community Education classes will be the week of January 16. Please watch the January 11 issue of the Grand Valley Ledger for a complete list of classes.

1983, The year in review

The year 1983 is all but behind us, and as we begin our synopsis of the the year's events as recorded in the pages of the Grand Valley Ledger we get that same gut feeling that we get every year at this time . . . how boring! But, as we get into this project I'm sure we'll find that 1983 will be like most other years, and a heck of a lot more happened than we thought. So read on, and we're sure you'll agree with us that 1983 wasn't such a dull year

JANUARY

The year began with the Lowell Area Schools deadlocked with the Teachers in contract negotiations. The teachers were asking for a 5.1 percent pay increase, and the school board was offering 3 percent. A task force Haight Jason Robertson, Jayne Association was called in by the teachers to review the school's budget, and determine if the school could afford the teachers' demands. School Superintendent Don Kelly commented, "If we had excess funds, we'd have the kids in school for a six hour day, I guarantee you". The Lowell Schools had been operating on a five hour day since 1981.

The Lowell High School debate team won the OK league championship finishing their season in that league at 12-0. The debate team also competed in the Grand Rapids City League where they finished a strong third. Members of the team were; Maia Driedger, Jenny Dine, Steve Kropf, Michele Geldersma, Sandy Gruizenga, Mark Weber, Chris Jasinski, Ian Althaus, Stephanie Kidder and Savings and Loan here. Sergeant coached by Jane Gillespie.

Nelson Stormzand, aged 68, passed away suddenly on December 28, 1982. "Stormy" had lived and worked as an auto mechanic his entire life in Lowell and was a volunteer fireman.

The Lowell School Board voted to levy half of the school propery taxes in the summer, and the remainder in the winter. The cal landmark. move was adopted because of delays in getting funds from the financially strapped state coffers. Assessing half of the taxes in the summer would give the school some badly needed funds to get rolling with in September.

In a special meeting on January 17, the Lowell Board of Education voted to shuffle its administrators around. The new assignments were as follows; Alto Principal Jim White, Bushnell Principal and Curriculum Director Dirk Venema, Runciman Principal and Special Ed. Director Bill Kirby, Middle School Principal Dave Burdette and Middle School Consultant John Gabrion. Superintendent Don Kelly commented, "There's nothing negative about it, the board wants to see if we can't perk things up".

John and Karen Bosserman of Grand Rapids got City Council approval to open a canoe livery in the city. James Valentine is sworn in as a new Lowell Police Officer. Greenville slides past the Red Arrows Varsity Basketball team in their first meeting of the season, 66-64 in overtime. Both teams are having exceptional seasons and are vying for the championship.

About a hundred upset parents show up at a special meeting of the Lowell School Board on January 24 to protest the recent shuffle of admistrators. The board sticks to its plan however, and went on to the scheduled business of setting a millage figure for the upcoming election. The board decided on asking for 21.8 mills of voted operational millage, a 3.9 mill increase. Administrators explained the increase

The headline read, "Board decides against 1983 Lowell Showboat". The directors of the 50 year old tradition made the painful decision after reviewing the previous years' books and decided that they needed to concentrate on fund raising activities to pay the Showboat's $45,000 debt before putting on another show, and risk going even further into the

Well, the deer hunting season, except for the late archery season which runs thru Dec. 31, has come to a close. I hate to say I told you so: but just as I predicted the kill locally was down about 30% from last year. We are now in for hard winters for the next two years and the deer herds are going to suffer even more due to heavy snows, cold weather, and an increase in predation by dogs and coyotes.

Yes Coyotes: they are increasing in numbers locally at an alarming rate. I personally know of at least four being taken by fox trappers within ten miles of Lowell and I am sure that the total taken would be approx 10 or 12 within this area. I know of one goat and one small dog being killed and at least partially eaten by these proficient predators within this area. While coyotes are not a direct threat to a healthy deer population they certainly do raise havoc at fawning time in the spring, or at times when the herd is weakened by bad

Mange is starting to have an impact on local fox populations with many mange infested animals being found dead. Fox are far too numerous through out the area with an average of eight to ten animals per rural section, whereby these sections should have no more than 4 to 6 in order to sustain a healthy population. Since mange is a ommunicable disease I believe that prior to next fall at least one half of these predators will perish, from mange alone. This epidemic of mange within the fox population is going to have an impact on the coyote population as well. However since the coyotes are more widely scattered and in lower numbers, fewer of them will contract the disease. Now due to lessoned predation from the fox. the rabbit, partridge, mouse, woodchuck, etc. is sure to increase. The coyote is now going to find their prey animals more abundant and with this increased food supply they will increase rapidly before the fox has a chance to rebound from this mange outbreak. Within two years this coyote population will be firmly implanted through out the area. They are larger and more efficient than is the fox and in fact prey upon fox. Thus the fox will not come back in the numbers of the past and the coyotes will steadily increase. I hope their numbers do not reach the level whereby they become a problem for the local farmers but this certainly could happen.

Ice fishing is beginning locally and should be in full swing by next weekend. Several of the early ice lakes are already producing "Gills" in good numbers. This early ice fishing is always the best of the winter and most all area lakes with safe ice will be producing good catches of gills, perch and crappies. Early pike fishing with minnows is always good. We have a complete line of bait, tackle and B.S. at the Combination on East Main in Lowell. Please stop by. Call 897-6111 for local honest, fishing information. We have two good bait shops in Lowell, our shop and Fritz's Bait and Tackle on West Main. I would like also to take this opportunity to wish you all a very Merry Christmas.

RARE EARTH TECHNOLOGY REDUCES X-RAY EXPOSURE RISKS

When an x-ray examination becomes necessary, it's now possible to get the health protection from that x-ray without having to worry about being exposed to unnecessary radiation, medical experts say. Elements which are found in the earth's crust in only trace amounts-"rare earth' elements—are improving the safety of x-ray examinations at many hospitals around the country. A 50 percent and higher radiation reduction has been made possible through the use of "rare earth" intensifying screens and orthochromatic x-ray films. The Kodak Lanex and Min-R screens which contain these "rare earth" elements absorb more x-radiation and gy to light than calcium tungstate, which for many years was the primary phosphor used in intensifying screens. Looking for a little elbow room, which is an absoopen the theater for a limited 10 check of the facility at about 8:00 lute must if you're going to have a cocktail, I wandered off into the week schedule. I know he was going to try some new of green gas escaping from the who she is now, but I didn't then, as I just stared blankly at her when things to attract more customers plant. Because a southerly she said hi to me. I did have the excuse that I hadn't seen her since during the ten weeks, and make a breeze was carrying the cloud to- their wedding about three years ago, and they moved to Houston decision at the end of that time as ward the residential area on the shortly thereafter, but that didn't hold much water because she had to whether or not he would con- city's east side, Martin who is remembered me. and the Grand Valley Blood Promated that about 400 pounds of case, which for you laymen is one of those shallow type drawers that the deadly gas escaped when a people hang on the wall and put knick-knacks in. Some people call them printer's drawers, but printer's drawers are actually an article of clothing that we put on first thing in the morning.

Anyway, I have a California job case on my family room wall, and it's full of old wood type and copper, zinc and lead engravings. When Mary saw it a couple of years ago, she asked if I had any of that stuff laying around the Ledger that she could put in her job case. I said, "sure", but we should have rounded it up when she was in town, because she hasn't been to my house since, and I keep either forgetting or running out of time to get the stuff together for a family gathering where I'll see her. She called last week to remind to bring the type and engravings, but I just didn't have time, so now I think she thinks I'm avoiding the issue, and . . . oh boy . . . I took off to see how the football game was going.

I was talking to my cousin Monte, who was camped out in front of the tube when they rang the dinner bell. Well, they never had to call Monte or me twice for chow, so we ended up first in line. Since we're the most heavy duty of all the cousins, we took a lot of abuse for heading up the line. I figured it was about time I tried the garage.

Ah, peace and quiet. In fact, I was the only one there until I was nearly done eating, which must have been at least two minutes. I got more abuse for being at the dessert table before most people had made it through the chow line.

With dinner over, it was just 4:00 and time for the big Lions game, so most of the guys flopped somewhere near the TV, and groaned about having eaten so much. Only one problem, just as Tampa was getting set to kick off, it was decided that it was time for the kids to open there gifts, and the tree was right next to the TV. I don't know if you've ever tried watching a football game with file teen little kids between you and the TV, but you can rest assured that it just plain doesn't work.

Then I remembered, my grandpa in his infinite wisdom had a lit-tle black and white portable set up right by the bar. About eight of us guys converged on it at the same time, and before long we had it moved to the solitude of the garage. Perfect . . . the Lions could have looked better, but otherwise, things were just perfect.

Thanks Grandma and Grandpa, it was a great party!
