Arrested by Lowell Officers and lodged in the Kent County Jail Friday evening, May 4, was Steven Mikulski, of Saranac, for driving while license suspended. Second offense.

Receiving an appearance ticket to appear in 63rd District Court at a later date was Andrew Stormzand, 18, of Lowell on charges of Assault and battery which occurred on Thursday evening May 3.

Harry Edlersma, 35, of Lowell stood preliminary examination in 63rd District Court Tuesday, May 1 on charges of Criminal Sexual Conduct 3rd Degree, in connection with an incident in Lowell in March of this year.

Family dog saves five

The Robert Applegate family of 8523 Bluewater Hwy., Saranac was awakened by their barking family dog in the pre-dawn hours Monday. When Robert C., 38, and his wife Linda, 34, got up to investigate they could feel heat coming through their second story bedroom floor. They immediately awakened their three children, Robert H. Christine, 14 and Jason, 7, in the other upstairs bedrooms. The smoke and flames had already made the stairwell impassable, forcing the family to jump from a second story window. Linda was injured in the fall and was later taken to Blodgett Hospital where she was listed in fair condition. The other family members were treated for minor injuries at the scene. The family dog that had alerted the Applegates died in the blaze.

Following their jump to safety the Applegates called for help using a neighbor's phone. First on the scene was Ionia County Sheriff's Deputy Julie Wiles. Wiles was followed by units from the Saranac Fire Department, Lowell Fire Department, E.T.T. Ambulance and volunteer paramedic Robert Clark of Saranac. Clark treated the Applegates for their injuries, and was later assisted by the paramedics with the ambulance.

The blaze was not brought under control until the entire structure had been gutted. Preliminary damage estimates were set at $50,000. The cause of the blaze has not yet been determined, but the fire appeared to have started on the first floor in the northwest corner of the dwelling.

The barking of the family dog alerted the Robert Applegate family to the first floor fire in their home during the pre-dawn hours Monday. The five members of the family leaped from upstairs windows and escaped with minor injuries, but the dog was lost in the blaze.

Public access channel back

Most Lowell Cable TV subscribers have probably noticed that the local access channel has been off the air for a month or more, with only the color bars and National Weather Service Broadcast being aired. The local access channel went off the air when the computer that displays the various public notices developed a technical problem, and was sent in for repairs.

Since the computer is not expected back in operation for several weeks, LCTV has partially corrected the problem by moving the weather broadcast and color bars to channel 9, and using an inexpensive computer to broadcast public service messages on Channel 2. The replacement computer is incapable of simulcasting the public service announcement and the weather audio necessitating the move of the weather channel.

When the computer is repaired and back on line the local access channel and the weather will again be broadcast on Channel 2. Herb Haines, manager of LCTV would like to remind anyone affiliated with local non-profit organizations that public service announcements are a free service of LCTV. Announcements can be placed by calling the LCTV office at 897-8405 between 8:00 A.M. and 5:00 P.M. Monday thru Friday.

Lowell teachers honored

Today, Wednesday, May 9 is "Teacher Day U.S.A." across the nation. Both the Lowell Board of Education and the Lowell City Council have adopted proclamations recognizing the essential role of teachers in the community. Students at the Lowell Middle School planted a tree in recognition of the dedicated teachers there.

In addition to other recognitions every teacher in the Kent Intermediate School District will receive an apple, compliments of Lowell Board of Education President Roger Kropf. Kropf also just happens to be president of Kropf Orchards, 12025 4 Mile Road, Lowell.

Teacher Day U.S.A. has a two-fold purpose: to recognize the contributions made by all teachers to society and to help emphasize to everyone the fundamental importance of America's Schools.

Barber named to WBCH All-Stars

WBCH Radio in Hastings announced its 1983-84 All-Star Basketball Team, compiled by sportscasters Dave Hess and Paul Ballinger based on their observations while broadcasting Lakewood High School's regular season games.

Among the ten all stars was Jason Barber of the Lowell Red Arrows. Jason was a key performer on a Red Arrow team rated among the best in the school's history. His fine floor play and marksmanship were keys to Lowell's 59-48 win over Lakewood on December 9 and a hardfought, come-from-behind 62-60 Red Arrow victory at Lakewood on January 27th when Barber scored the winning basket with two seconds remaining in the game.

Poison proofing your home for summer

Warm weather brings the joys and dangers of being out-of-doors. Western Michigan Poison Center has already noticed an increase in the number of poison calls concerning out-of-doors poisonings.

Permanent antifreeze, which contains ethylene glycol, and car windshield washing solvent are very poisonous. They can cause damage even in very small amounts. Many small animals have died because they lapped up drained radiator fluid from the driveway. Children can become blind with just one to two swallows of windshield washing fluid. Cans of oil, gasoline and other automobile products can cause pneumonia if taken internally. Pesticides, herbicides, and rodenticides can also cause many problems if taken even in small amounts. Keep all these products locked up in cupboards so that little ones cannot get at them. Also keep them stored in the original labeled containers, not in familiar pop bottles and cans.

Some plants, berries and shrubs are also potentially toxic. Narcissus and daffodil bulbs are very toxic. They can cause stomach problems, seizures and liver problems. Know the names of all plants, shrubbery and berries which are found around your home. That way, if someone ingests part of a plant, time will not be wasted while getting it identified. If possible, call the poison center before purchasing plants and shrubs to find out if they are toxic.

Mushrooms will also begin growing soon. Do not eat any picked mushrooms until it has been identified by a mycologist. Poisonous mushrooms can cause severe stomach and liver disorders, while others can cause death. If possible, rid them from the yard so that little ones cannot pick them. Time is so important to the poisoned patient. Be sure to call the Western Michigan Poison Center whenever a possible poisoning occurs. The Center can then give immediate treatment recommendations. The Poison Specialists can be reached 24-hours a day by dialing a direct WATS number. The toll free number for the 616 area is 1-800-442-4571 and state wide the number is 1-800-632-2727. The phone number is also listed inside the front cover of the phone book.

New Club Forming

Due to the great interest in the young women in our community, the Lowell Women's Club has voted to introduce and sponsor a General Federated Womens Club called the Junioresettes, which will include High School Girls from the 9th, 10th and 11th grades.

This will be the only Federated Club to be organized in Michigan for young women. Enriching and exciting opportunities await members of this new Junioresette Club. Education, theatre, conservation, home life, International and Public affairs are just a few to mention, but the clubs primary concern is working for the improvement of local communities through volunteer service.

All girls in the 9th, 10th and 11th grades and their mothers are cordially invited to our informational tea given May 23rd at 3:15 P.M. at the Schneider Manor meeting room, 725 Bowes Road, Lowell, Michigan. See you there!

You say you have some land for sale? Well, the State of Michigan just might be interested - especially if it is located near an urban area, has fishing and hunting possibilities or accesses any of Michigan's lakes, streams and Great Lakes.

Under provisions of the Kammer Recreational Land Trust Fund which was passed in 1976, the state has purchased land for recreational purposes. So far, the fund has spent nearly $50 million for such land - ranging in size from single lots along the Great Lakes to 1,000-acre plots along the Manistee and AuSable Rivers.

This year the Land Trust Fund Board has again started its annual search for recreational land which may qualify for purchase with funds from the sale of oil, gas and mineral leases and royalties on state-owned lands. The board has almost $11 million available to buy land over the next year.

If you have land that you think meets the requirements and are interested in selling to the state, nomination forms must be submitted by June 1 to the Office of Budget and Federal Aid, Department of Natural Resources, Box 30028, Lansing, Michigan 48909. Further inquiries should also be directed to the same address.

This program is one which I wholeheartedly support. It provides an ongoing means for the state to protect valuable environmental lands while also providing additional recreational areas for the people of Michigan to spend their leisure time.

However, since its inception, the Kammer Recreational Land Trust Fund has been subjected to "raids" by the Legislature as a means of finding additional monies for other purposes. Had it not been raided, the fund would have now reached its $150 million cap.

To prevent such "raids" from recurring, legislation has been introduced that would place before the voters in November, a constitutional amendment creating a new Recreational Land Trust Fund. It would be patterned closely after the Kammer Recreational Land Trust Fund but would make it unconstitutional to tamper with the fund or borrow from it for other purposes.

I will support the measure in the Legislature and, if successful, work for its passage in November, because I believe this is a worthwhile proposal.

In my travels about town recently, I was amused by a poster tacked up in the service department of Vennen Chrysler, Dodge and Plymouth. It was a picture of Snoopy and his pal Woodstock out for a round of golf, with a caption that read, "Mondays are the sandtraps in the fairway of life". Boy, ain't that the truth. In fact that's putting it rather mildly. In fact that's putting it so mildly that I feel compelled to describe how I feel about Mondays in a little stronger terms.

Picture: Snoopy and Woodstock falling from an airplane with a tangled parachute trailing behind. Caption: Mondays are the unopened parachutes in the blue skies of life.

Picture: Snoopy and Woodstock walking down the road with a semi truck bearing down on them from behind. Caption: Mondays are the faulty brakes in life.

Picture: Snoopy and Woodstock reading a People magazine. Caption: Mondays are the Boy Georges among the Bo Dereks, Cheryl Tiegs and Goldie Hawns of life.

Picture: Snoopy and Woodstock riding on a garbage truck. Caption: Mondays are the garbage cans from the dog pound.

Picture: Snoopy and Woodstock flying through the air at the playground. Caption: Mondays are the broken chains on the swing-set of life.

Picture: Snoopy and Woodstock at the hockey game. Caption: Mondays are an errant puck in the face.

And finally we find Snoopy and Woodstock back on the golf course all lit up with their hair and feathers sticking straight out and their skeletons visible as in an X-ray photo. The caption would read: "Mondays are a sudden thunderstorm at the golf course."

I guess that kind of sums up how I feel about Mondays. Actually, my Mondays aren't nearly as bad as Tuesdays, or press day as we call it. I had to write about Mondays though, because I couldn't begin to describe most Tuesdays in a family newspaper. Have a good week, a better weekend, and don't worry about Monday... it'll get here soon enough.

HOMESPUN DEVOTIONS

by Pauline E. Spray

Stablish thy word unto thy servant, who is devoted to thy fear (Psalm 119:38).

"Oh, I'm so tired! You should have seen all the work I did today," a little boy told his mother when he came in from school. His mother listened attentively and then asked, "What did you do?" With an air of importance the lad replied, "We had to write three words."

Immediately after His baptism, Jesus was led into the wilderness where He was severely tempted by Satan. Three times He defeated the enemy with three words - "It is written." Jesus solved the problem of temptation by quoting the Word of God. It is still the best tool for defeating Satan.

What better way is there to foil the enemy when he tempts one to despondency than to quote God's Word, "My soul shall be joyful in the Lord"? When assailed by one's enemies, "Through God we shall do valiantly: for he shall tread down our enemies"? When troubled by unhealthy thoughts, "My meditation of him shall be sweet"? When discouraged, "Who satisfieth my mouth with good things"? When tempted to seek help outside of God, "Thou shalt guide me with thy counsel"?

When Satan annoys, remember these three important words - "It is written."

Prayer: Heavenly Father, I thank Thee for Thy Word and what it means to me. It is the best tool I have for defeating Satan. Help me to cherish Thy Word. Stablish it in my heart that I may never fail Thee. Amen.

Team Depth carries Lowell girls to win over Cedar

By Tammy Nagy

The Lowell Red Arrows wasted no time showing the Cedar Springs Red Hawks what a track meet is all about. Coach Kathy Talus' team handed Cedar a 107-21 loss last Tuesday and captured 14 first places on their way to victory.

Lowell had the depth and the strength in the field events. Lynn Dowling and Kathy Rupp used a one-two punch in the discus with respective throws of 93.8-1/2 and 87-1/2. Again, but in the shotput, Dowling claimed first (35.3-1/2) and Rupp rounded out Lowell's scoring in that event with a third. Cathy Kazmier and Paula Doyle high jumped 5-0 and 4-8 for first and second place. The Arrows received all of the points in the long jump with a sweep. Kazmier led the contingent in the event with her 14-foot-2-1/2 leap. Teammates Tonya Phillips (13-3-1/2) and Heather McKinnon (12-6) followed.

Lowell dominated the distance events. Not only did the Arrows claim all first places, but they claimed all second and third places as well. Liz Desser won the mile (6:00), followed by teammates Trudy Watson and Missy Brown. Phillips won the 440 yard dash (1:12.6), Kim Cridler and Ginny Gesler picked up second and third victories. Watson was the top finisher in the 880 run with a 2:57 finish, while Nancy Stencil and McKinnon rounded out the scoring in that event. And finally, Desser again finished first, this time in the two-mile clocking at 13:20. Brown and Cridler finished second and third.

Lowell was strong in the relays, winning three of the four. The Arrow relay squad of Cridler, Vicki Harris, Stencil and Phillips logged 13:55 finish to clinch the two-mile relay. In addition, Harris and Phillips teamed with Doyle and Watson taking top honors in the Mile relay, finishing at 5:07. In the 880 relay, Doyle, Denise Southland, Amy Versluis and Cindy Dumas clocked 2:05.8 earning first.

But besides the relays, the Arrows used strength in the sprints to outscore the Red Hawks. Southland and Dumas turned in good performances to finish second and third in the 100 yard dash. Versluis captured first in the 220 yard dash (29.7), while Dumas and Terri Jones finished second and third respectively. Kerry Malone turned in an excellent performance earning first (18.6) in the 110 hurdles, while Ann Droog finished third. In the 300 hurdles, Doyle captured the top spot in 52.5 and Droog collected another third.

The Arrows were consistent in the hurdles. Doyle produced a first in the 110 hurdles in 18.7, teammates Malone and Droog followed for the sweep. Doyle was a double-winner, taking top honors in the 300 hurdles in Jackets 75-55.

Lowell flashed its power where it usually does -- in the field events. In the long jump, Kazmier leaped to a new school record earning her first (15 feet 5-1/2) and also earned first in the high jump (5-3-1/4). Dowling captured top honors in the shotput with a heave of 35-3. Other finishers in the field events were: Doyle, third in the high jump; Rupp, third in the shotput; Dowling and Rupp finished second and third in the discus; Phillips rounded out Lowell's places in the long jump taking third.

The Arrows were consistent in the hurdles. Doyle produced a first in the 110 hurdles in 18.7, teammates Malone and Droog followed for the sweep. Doyle was a double-winner, taking top honors in the 300 hurdles in

"Salute to the Best of Class 1984"

For the second year, a unique public service program honoring area high school students for their academic achievements, will again be sponsored by WOTV and General Motors Corporation.

The program entitled "Salute to the Best of Class 1984," recognizes these achievements by featuring the students in TV public service announcements. More than 160 students from 103 public and private schools in 16 western Michigan counties will attend the taping sessions at the Gerald R. Ford Museum in Grand Rapids on May 3, 1984.

According to Ronald L. Korte, manager of Rochester Products Division - Plant No. 1, and chairman of the General Motors Grand Rapids Public Affairs Committee, "Too often students who are academic achievers are not given the same recognition that athletic achievers receive. This is especially true this year as the Olympic games become a major focus of our attention." Korte also noted, "As a company long associated with the mark of excellence, General Motors and its western Michigan operations are pleased to join with WOTV in recognizing these fine young people who have excelled well beyond the standards set by our educational institutions."

Jim Saunders, president and general manager of WOTV added, "We hope that the recognition and tribute being given to the Best of Class for 1984 will encourage and challenge the younger students of our viewing area to also excel academically using these students as role models."

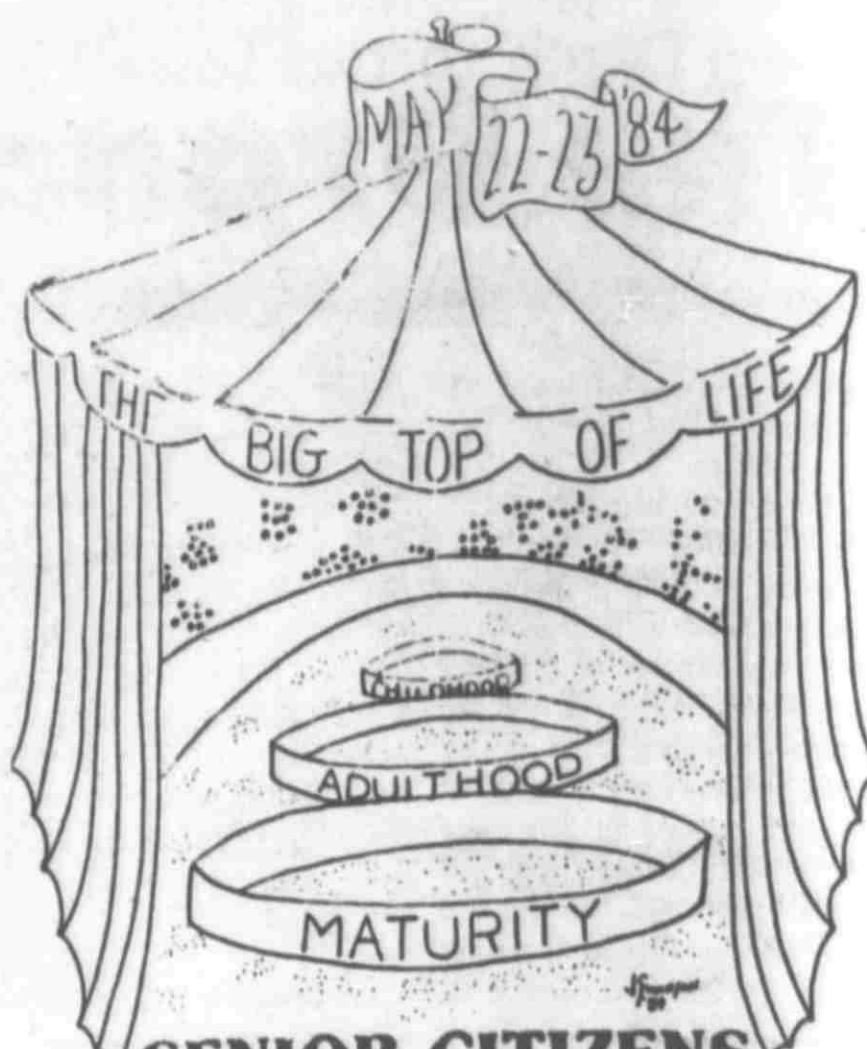

In western Michigan, the one minute "salute to the Best of Class 1984" public service announcements will be broadcast over WOTV starting June 1 and continue through June 30.

Representing the Lowell Senior High School is Cathryn Margaret Cridler.

SENIOR CITIZENS CELEBRATION DAYS EASTBROOK MALL

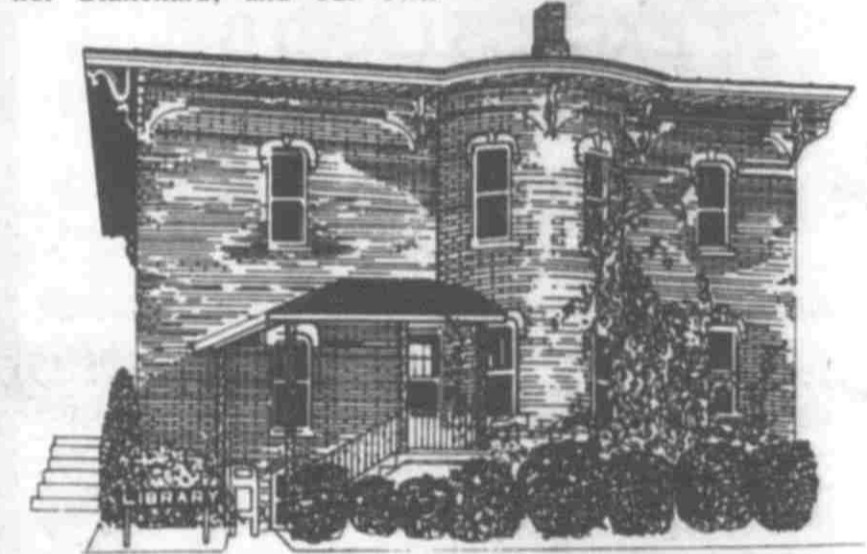

"The Big Top of Life" is this year's theme for the seventh annual Senior Citizens Celebration Days to be held May 22 and 23 at Eastbrook Mall. Held during Older American's Month, this year's event promises to be better than ever. The event celebrates the contributions older citizens have made and continue to make in our communities. The celebration includes stage events, on-going demonstrations, health screening and one of the largest displays of senior citizen art in the State of Michigan.

Libby Maynard, Director of Michigan's Services for Older Americans, representing Governor Blanchard, and our own Tootsie Van Kelly will be present at opening ceremonies on the stage at Eastbrook Mall at 12:00 noon, Tuesday, May 22. Present also at the opening will be local school, governmental, and agency officials.

Over 1,000 senior citizens and other participants are expected to attend from twenty-three school districts. This year the celebration is sponsored by the Kent Regional Community Education Association.

Area senior citizens and non-senior citizens are invited to attend this free event. For more information, contact Lowell Community Education at 897-8434.

THE LIBRARY OF COURSE!!

These are just a few of the winning experiences relayed in the Kent County Library System SUPER - PATRON CONTEST. The 17 SUPER-PATRON winners, one from each branch, were selected from 125 applicants who described how the library had helped them to solve a problem, complete a project, achieve personal growth or advancement. The contest winners will be highlighted throughout National Library Week (April 8-14) to exemplify the utility of the library.

The panel of judges included Pete DeMaagd (Grand Rapids Press), Susan Lovell (Cadence), Colleen Pierson (P.M. Magazine), Becky Lynn (Channel 17) and Mark Lewison (Advance). Winners were each awarded a $50 gift certificate to Schuler Books.

Congratulations to the following contest winners:
ALTO: Tom Mellon, 7023 Alden Nash Road, Alto.

Two years ago it was my responsibility to plan and construct the plumbing, heating and electrical systems for a large, eight-family apartment building. Since I'd never tackled anything of this magnitude before, a great deal of research was the first order of business. Mrs. Mulder (the librarian), helped by sending for many books related to my three-fold challenge of plumbing, heating and electrical.

I would say that these books plus my own technical library gave me the knowledge and confidence to design the required systems. All these areas of construction passed inspection and today are performing as required.

I'd like to say that the small library like ours here in Alto is quite limited in size, but with the help of an interested and personable librarian, it becomes as functional as one in a larger city. The ability to search for and obtain special reading material from other libraries has been a great asset to me.

LOWELL: Nancy Wills, 2277 Lowell View, S.E. Lowell.
During the winter of 1981, I spent January, February and March nursing two of my children through tonsillectomies and all three of my kids through the chicken pox. It was a time of intense family togetherness. My husband and I took turns getting out of the house. He joyfully went to work; my place of refuge became the library. I have long been a super-patron, but those three months saw me getting to know the new librarian on a first name basis.

I happened onto the Miss Read series of books. I clung to them like a dog with a bone because they were full of ordinary people living with and running up against baffling, irritating, common, ordinary problems. I saw myself in many characters personalities. In true English, stiff upper lipped fashion, they were persevering through it all, and so must I. I did persevere. My children did recover. I still have my dog-eared paper listing the twenty-four Miss Read books and I did read each one. I even uncovered the author's real name!

Understand some basic rules for successful investing

Any good coach tells his players, "Get the basics right and you'll be a winner." Investing is no different, according to the Michigan Association of CPAs, which advises following certain investing rules to be successful.

That sounds simple, but nevertheless, most CPAs and investment advisors will tell you that their clients usually manage their investments with total disregard for these rules.

Here, simply stated, are the basic rules to help you win in the investment game.

Before thinking about investing, be sure that you have enough on hand to pay your household bills, that you have adequate insurance coverage on your property, health and life, and that you have a three- to six-month cash reserve in a money market-type account.

Choose investment opportunities that suit your temperament. If you shudder at the thought of losing any of your investment dollars, speculative investments are not for you. But if you enjoy the risk involved in such investing, you may end up with a larger profit than you would in a more conservative venture.

Before you get caught up in the excitement, put down your investment objectives on paper. You need to state how long you are willing and able to tie up your money in a single venture, what kind of return you hope to receive, and when you would be satisfied with a profit and move your money into another investment.

Balance your investment portfolio with investments that run the gamut of risk levels. Cushion speculative investments in stocks, for example, with a purchase of the less active Treasury Bonds.

See that the professionals you hire work as a team. Ask your CPA to consult with your securities broker, lawyer, insurance agent and any other investment advisor you've engaged.

Review your investments twice a year. What may have been a wise investment several months back may have lost its luster today. A slowdown in inflation, for instance, can make the effective rate of return on bonds extremely attractive. When the inflation picture changes, that will change also.

Sometimes, it's wise to let yourself go with the flow. If the stock market has given you handsome profits and it appears the market will continue to perform well, don't let the jitters push you out of stocks prematurely. Along those lines, consider the case of mutual funds. If you study the performance of the most successful mutual funds over a six-month period, many analysts say you should switch your investment into one of these top performers.

Understand how your tax bracket will affect your capital gains and interest income. Generally, if you are in the 40 percent or higher tax bracket, you may need certain tax-advantaged investments. But, it's best to regard the return on the investment as your prime goal.

Abiding by these rules will not guarantee success. But they can keep you from taking some false steps.

Finally, DON'T TAKE TIPS! Good advice comes from research and professional judgment. Tips usually come from empty speculation. Free advice is worth what you pay for it.

Day camp site announced

It is one of four Day Camp opportunities offered to area youth by Keweenaw Council of Camp Fire, according to camping administrator Heather Palmer.

Other Camp Fire Day Camps will be held at Townsend, Richmond and Palmer Parks. Each Day Camp will be held during the month of June and will feature a different theme. Girls and boys entering kindergarten through eighth grade are welcome. Camp Fire membership is not required.

Fees will be charged to help defray expenses. Attendance will be limited, and advance registration is required. For further information or to receive a free Day Camp brochure, call Keweenaw Council of Camp Fire, 949-2500, weekdays between 9 A.M. and 5 P.M.

Attend Public Power Agency conference

Herbert Haines, manager and electric companies from in Grand Rapids last week. Con-
Ivan Blough, Board members of throughout the state attending ference speakers presented a Lowell Light and Power were the fifth annual meeting of the summary of the current situation among the officials of municipal Michigan Public Power Agency in the electrical industry, as well as projections for the future.

MPPA was incorporated in 1978 to permit member communities to work together to assure adequate, reliable sources of power for the future. There are currently 18 member communities. Since 1978, MPPA has completed the purchase of ownership interests in two coal-fired electrical plants -- the Consumers Power Company Campbell No. 3 facility on the shores of Lake Michigan and the Detroit Edison Company Unit No. 1 on the east side of the state. Studies are currently under way on projects to meet members' needs in the future.

Matthew E. McLogan, Michigan Public Service commissioner commended the cooperation between municipalities and investor-owner electric companies. He stated that continued cooperation is essential if electrical customers are to continue to receive adequate power at competitive prices.

McLogan also commented on the feasibility of municipal electrical plants burning solid waste to generate steam and electricity. Recent studies indicate that cities who have the responsibility for solid waste disposal may be able to derive substantial benefit from incineration. There is a proposal before the legislature in Lansing to permit a community to issue bonds for the design and construction of waste to fuel projects.

Robert Queller of the Citizens Research Council of Michigan predicted that the population in Michigan will be about the same in the year 2000 as it is today and that there will be a higher percentage of senior citizens. While the automobile industry will continue to be vital to the state, there are signs that the economic base is changing from manufacturing to service and trade based. This will probably mean that wage rates will be lower than at the present, in comparison with other parts of the nation. As a result, the availability of competitively-priced electricity is essential to the continued stability of the economy in the state.

Alex Radin, Executive Director of the American Public Power Association predicted that the era of larger electrical generating plants is over. In the future, plants with capacity of 400-600 megawatts will be more common, as opposed to the 1,000-1,200 megawatt facilities in current use. Increased construction costs will also lead to the use of older existing plants, and to more frequent transmission of electricity from one region to another to balance loads and demand.

Radin stated that in the last 10 years, the real cost of electricity has increased 57%, which is less than other sources. He added that since electricity is such an important element in budgets for residents as well as business and industry, it is essential that power prices be maintained as low as possible. "This will require a flexible strategy that takes maximum advantage of conservation, utilizes load management, seeks to avoid overbuilding... and emphasizes those means of producing electric power that offer the lowest unit costs, with the least possible adverse effect on the environment."

Everett Smith, representative of the Electric Power Research Institute, provided a look into some of the innovations for the future, such as fuel cells, heat pumps and cleaner coal-fired units. He stated that these and other innovations show great potential, and some can be operational within the next 10-15 years.

Wind storm delays service

Due to the severity and scope of the high-winds storm that swept through Michigan on Monday, April 30, 1984, Consumers Power Company customers which had expected new electric service in the next two weeks, will not have their scheduled dates met.

"This storm has devastated mid-Michigan, at one time interrupting the power to about 95,000 electric customers in the Central Region," said Prateep Ghose, region general distribution superintendent. "Our crews will be spending all of their time this week restoring service to customers and all of the week of May 6 cleaning up and recovering our electric system," said Ghose. "As a result, we will not be able to meet new electric service requests for at least two weeks," he added. "We ask our customers to bear with us as we cope with this major emergency."

During the course of the storm, 350,000 Consumers Power customers in the lower peninsula had their power interrupted. Consumers Power crews are being assisted by approximately 55 repair crews from Ohio and Indiana utilities. In several locations throughout the state, American Red Cross chapters have set up temporary shelters in coordination with municipal officials.

For comparison purposes, the most recent storm affecting a large number of the utility's customers statewide was in July 1980 when approximately 105,000 customers had their power interrupted.

Confederate Air Force

The West Michigan Squadron of the Confederate Air Force, in support of the 1984 Transportation Week activities, is arranging for the appearance of a number of WWII aircraft at the Kent County International Airport, Saturday and Sunday, May 19 and 20.

Tentative line-up of aircraft which will be on display includes:

Boeing B-17, the Flying Fortress, best known 4-engine bomber of WWII.

Junkers Ju-52, Workhorse of the Luftwaffe, tri-motored troop and equipment transport.

Douglas C-47, the world's best known transport plane, carried nearly everything from D-day paratroopers to fuel and medicine in the Berlin airlift.

Fairchild PT-26, North American BT-14 and T-28. Primary, Basic and Advanced trainers.

The Beech AT-11, a bomber trainer of WWII, the West Michigan Squadron's own aircraft, which members plan to restore to "like new" condition as a flying memorial to the men and women who built and flew these planes 40 years ago.

Confederate Air Force members will be on hand to answer questions, and some of the airplanes will be open for walk-
