King Milling Co. dominates City Council meeting

With three items on the agenda, The King Milling Co. pretty well dominated the Monday, July 16 meeting of the Lowell City Council. King Milling has two new projects in the works, and a problem with an old project that all need action from the council.

King has planned a truck parking and maintenance facility on property that they own south of Main Street and east of the Flat River. The property is the site of the company's old feed mill that was razed a few years ago. King plans to fill and grade the entire area and enclose it in with chain link fencing to secure their growing fleet of 20 or more vehicles. The facility would also include a building for maintenance work and storage of parts.

The snag in the new facility is that two designated city streets, Lafayette and Kent, run through the property. King Milling is asking that the city vacate these streets. The streets in the area in question never were developed and the old feed mill was constructed on and stood over those streets for 100 years, according to Brian Doyle who spoke on behalf of the milling company.

The council apparently sees the vacation request from King as an opportunity to gain control of the King owned parking lot on the south side of Main St. just west of the Flat River. The parking lot was improved by the city and is rented for the annual property taxes on a lease that is renewed yearly. The council has hinted that they would approve the street vacation if King would commit to a long term lease or sale of the parking lot. Local businessmen Bob Pfaller and Dave Clark, Jr. both said that they would like to see a commitment from King concerning the parking lot before the council grants the vacation request. Clark said that with the loss of Main Street parking always a threat from the State Highway department, it is critical that the business district retain all the off street parking that it possibly can.

Doyle told the council that the King Milling Co. has no intention of building on the parking lot, but their legal counsel has recommended that they retain possession. Doyle listed three reasons why they would never build on the site. One, it is all fill and not stable enough for a building. Two, it is too small for the construction of a building of any significance. And three, it is the site of the original mill constructed by the Doyle family in 1847, and since the King Milling Co. was recently recognized as the oldest existing business in Kent and Ottawa Counties, there is a lot of sentiment for the piece of property. Doyle said that the company is considering a joint venture with the Lowell Area Arts Council to construct some sort of an historical monument on the site.

The street vacation issue never came to a vote however, as Councilman Phil Schneider made a motion to pass the issue over to the Planning Commission for their recommendation. The Planning Commission meets next Monday, and their opinion should be ready for the issue to again come before the council at their August 6 meeting.

The King Milling Co. is also planning another project, the construction of a second 500,000 bushel grain storage bin. The new bin would be constructed east of the existing huge bin located near the corner of Ottawa and Hudson Streets. Since the structure is much higher than the 40' allowed by ordinance and set closer to the lot line than the specified minimum of 20', the council set a public hearing to discuss possible zoning variances on August 6 at their regular 8:00 meeting.

Along with the storage bin, a drying system, unloading and scale facilities will also be constructed. The milling company is seeking a Public Act 198 tax relief on the project which could mean a 50% tax cut for up to twelve years. The council will also conduct a public hearing on the 198 request on August 6.

The problem that needs a band aid is connected with the first 500,000 storage bin, constructed about two years ago. In order for trucks to make a wide enough swing to come onto the unloading ramp squarely, they must cross city property to the rear of the Hudson St. Department of Public Works garage. Doyle and City Manager Ray Quada were not certain at this point how much space the big rigs need to negotiate the turn, but they say they will have a definite answer after studying the traffic flow of some 500 trucks that will unload there over the next two weeks.

The milling company is seeking an easement for the use of from twenty to forty feet of city property, but Quada recommends that the issue be studied and either enough land be sold to King to accommodate the big trucks, or at least be bound by a detailed easement agreement that would clearly define the boundaries in the area.

As Quada sees it, there is a possibility that the trucks could encroach far enough to hamper future expansion of the D.P.W. garage, and create a hardship for the city. Quada says he doesn't have an answer yet, but feels that something can be worked out that will work for both the City and King Milling Co. This issue will also return to the agenda at the August 6 City Council Meeting.

BRING YOUR BAKED GOODS

As part of their fiftieth anniversary celebration, The State Savings Bank will have a large tent erected on the corner of Washington and Main Streets near the bank building. Space in the tent is being made available to any non-profit organization that would like to participate in a bake sale on Friday and Saturday, August 10 and 11. The bank is planning numerous activities, giveaways and attractions and a large crowd is expected both days. This should be an excellent opportunity for your organization to make some extra money selling baked goods. If interested, please call Chuck Myers at the bank, 897-9277.

Macker is one of smoothest ever

This shot is typical of the fast paced action during this year's "Gus Macker" (we won't go into the rest) Tournament. Court monitors called "Gusbusters" kept rough play and short tempers to a minimum, making this year's tourney one of the smoothest ever, despite its huge turnout. The Lowell City Council even agreed to send a letter of commendation to Scott McNeal and other tournament organizers for the excellent job in handling this year's competition.

Grand Valley Blood Center has extended its hours for July

In order to avert a possible blood shortage in late July, the Grand Valley Blood Center has extended its hours of operation to include additional evening hours.

For the weeks of July 16, 23 and 30, the Grand Valley Blood Center, 1055 East Fulton, will be open on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday from 8 A.M. to 8 P.M. On Thursdays and Fridays of those weeks, the center will be open for blood donors from 8 A.M. to 4 P.M. and it will also be open Saturday mornings from 8 A.M. to noon.

"By staying open on these evenings, we hope to make it as easy as possible for people to fit a blood donation into their summer schedules," said John Freiberger, director of donor resources for the Grand Valley Blood Program.

"And, too, we are concerned about having an adequate supply of blood for the hospital patients throughout July because we do not have as many businesses sponsoring blood drives at this time of year as we do in the fall and winter months. Employee vacations are the primary reason that mobile blood drive commitments drop off somewhat in the summer, but we continue to need approximately 100 pints of blood every day for our hospital patients," said Freiberger.

The need for blood during the summer may even be higher than at other times of the year because there is often an increase in accidents and because many people put off elective surgery procedures until their summer vacations.

Individuals between the ages of 17 and 66 may donate blood if they weigh more than 110 pounds and are in generally good health.

Persons wishing to make an appointment to donate blood during July are urged to call the Grand Valley Blood Center at 774-2300.

Capitol Column

by Senator Dick Posthumus

It is obvious that the business and industry climate in Michigan is faced with a multiple number of problems. Many factors important to business, such as taxes, the state debt, welfare expenditures, unemployment compensation benefits, workers' compensation benefits, wages and energy costs, have proven to be the main reason for firms in Michigan to move and relocate to other states like Indiana.

In comparison to Michigan, all business costs in Indiana are virtually lower. Per capita workers' compensation costs in Michigan are the highest in the nation. Michigan also pays higher wages than Indiana, as well as higher unemployment compensation rates. In addition, state and local income taxes and property taxes are also lower in Indiana. These figures are enough evidence to explain why Michigan has lost 50 firms and 6,000 jobs in recent years to Indiana alone.

There is no question that we in Michigan have a long way to go to become competitive. The lawmakers in Lansing are very much aware of the great need for reform in workers' compensation, unemployment compensation, our overall tax structure, and other areas affecting Michigan businesses. My colleagues and I have introduced a number of bills that will assist in our reform effort. These bills address some of the areas of greatest concern to business and industry. For example, legislation has been introduced to remove unemployment and workers' compensation costs from the Single Business Tax base. Furthermore, bills repealing the prevailing wage requirement for state projects and FDC projects have been introduced. Another bill requires the unemployed to wait one week before collecting unemployment benefits and would result in a savings of in excess of $50 million dollars in just the first year.

Finally, one of our top priorities in the area of business reform is a comprehensive overhaul of Michigan's workers' compensation system. This is often cited as one of the prime reasons why business owners have moved facilities and jobs from Michigan to other states. It will obviously take time to bring about these proposed changes; nevertheless, the fact that we are discussing them represents a major reward to our business climate.

Krause at the House

VICTOR C. KRAUSE - STATE REPRESENTATIVE - NINETIETH DISTRICT

TO: Speaker of the House of Representatives, Gary Owen
I write a column for the weekly newspapers in my district called KRAUSE AT THE HOUSE. In an attempt to honestly communicate with my constituents, I write the column myself rather than use staff material.

I planned on writing my last column this summer on June 14th, the target date for completion of the tax rollback and appropriation bills. Here it is nearly a month later. I missed all of my column deadlines, and we still have not voted on the important issues. I really have to wonder if the taxpayers in this state are getting their money's worth out of the 148 legislators who are traveling back and forth to Lansing every day to do nothing.

Give us a break. We were elected by our constituents to represent them in the legislative process. Most of us in the House have been ready for a long time to debate the tax and budget issues, and vote the bills up or down. Forget your political posturing and let's get on with the job.

Do you think you're making us full-time legislators by bringing us back to Lansing every week? Consider these facts. This year-to-date the House has met 83 days in session. That's less than an average of 3 days per week. Many of the daily sessions lasted less than an hour. Who's kidding whom? This isn't representative government. If you want a part-time legislature, why not support my proposal for one. P.S. I just wrote my weekly column. This is it!

CANNING WITH FRIENDS

And Other Tips for the Time-Conscious Householder

Recently one of our readers wrote THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS magazine about her pleasant experiences in putting up summer produce. Here is her story.

"I'll be the first to admit that the 'secret' I'm about to divulge isn't a very well-hidden one. Pioneer folks, and even my own grandparents, used the technique that my friends and I discovered in this modern age. It's based on the same idea as the old-timey barn raisings, corn shuckings, and apple squeezings.

"In other words, if you want to try putting up some goodies this year, get together a group of friends who'd like to try it too... and have a party! Perhaps you can find at least one experienced hand to direct the activities and teach everyone how to can properly. If not, you can certainly rely on the advice given in well-tested cookbooks.

"My first attempt at community canning came in blackberry season after nine of us novices agreed on a suitable weekend when the fruit was at its peak. By 8:00 AM on a sunny Saturday, our motley crew was spilling out of various vehicles at a spot where prior scouting had revealed the best berry brambles for miles around. By 10:00 AM we had more blackberries than we ever wanted to see again, and the July sun was getting overly warm.

"On the way to the potluck brunch at my house, we detoured to a nearby river and cooled off. It was early afternoon before the serious jelling began.

"While the dark berries boiled in assorted pots to the ideal jelly-ready state, children played, adults chatted, visitors arrived, and we took turns stirring the fruit. At the right moment, we created a full assembly line of jelly-jar washers, ladlers, and sealers. All the containers were finally processed just as the sun set and the children began to get sleepy. It had been a full day of friendly fun and companionship, and every participant took home several jars of tasty blackberry jam.

"After other such weekend rendezvous later in the season, shining glasses of grape jelly decorated our pantry shelves and corn shivers in the freezer. My friends and I found these episodes to be great excuses for getting together - having fun while accomplishing what could have been a laborious task.

"In between these grand gatherings, my husband and I found simpler, quieter ways to put food by without overstraining our tight time budget. When apple season came around, for instance, I arranged for a friend who wanted to can applesauce to come for supper one evening after work. While I prepared a quick meal, she peeled apples. By bedtime we had prepared six quarts of fresh, saucy winter fare.

"When the garden started producing tomatoes in earnest, I chopped up several of them with some peppers and garlic, put them into the slow cooker, and let the mixture simmer all day. By evening it had cooked into a tasty tomato sauce, which I put in containers for the freezer. Using the same method with chopped apples and spices produced excellent apple butter that was ready by dinnertime for its hot water canning bath.

"I enjoy the quiet moments that my family tucks into our busy schedules in order to put away food for the coming winter, but I especially cherish those warm community canning days. The memories from such occasions remain warm and comfortable far into the cold nights of winter."

Looking for Mr. Goodbook

By Cathy Clair
Lowell Branch Library Manager

In the mood for easy summer reading? If so, consider taking a book to the beach or on a trip. Some new books which may be of interest are:

FAME AND FORTUNE by Kate Coscarelli. The story of four friends who face major, and potentially devastating, changes in their lives. Set in glamorous Beverly Hills, and played against a glittering backdrop of wealth, this story deals with love, power and deceit.

SECRET UNDERSTANDINGS By Morris Philipson is both a profoundly moving story and an exemplary exploration of what it means to be true to oneself. The author succeeds in portraying a contemporary woman - independent, creative and worldly - whose conjugal love is put to the ultimate test and triumphs.

In the tale, Shelagh Jackman struggles to be true to what she considers her best self in shared experiences with all the important figures in her life including her husband, parents and children.

LOVE'S ABIDING JOY by Janette Oke is the sequel of Love's Long Journey, and is the latest in the Prairie Romance Series. This too is a warm and gentle story of love and joy. In the last novel, Missie and her husband are separated from Missie's parents as they homestead in the far west. In this new story, the frontier railroad bridges the miles and make a joyful reunion possible.

DAUGHTER OF MARGINAC by Constance Heaven is a romantic novel set in 19th century France. An abandoned daughter's search for her father leads the main character to a new love as well as a confrontation with her past. Played out against the glittering social life of Paris, this novel of passion and intrigue is also a story of a young woman's search for independence.

The Lowell Library, a branch of the Kent County Library System, is open from 12:30 to 5:30 Monday, Friday and Saturday; and from 12:30 to 8:30 Wednesday. Branch Manager, Cathy Clair, is available to assist you with your reading needs. Our telephone number is 897-9596.

Unity Day Tea planned

This Saturday, July 21, 1984 is Unity Day for women across the nation. In 1848 Lucretia Matt and Elizabeth Cady Stanton called the First Women's Rights Convention, in Seneca Falls, New York, and women signed a "Declaration of Sentiments" declaring their equality. 136 years later an updated "Declaration of Sentiments" may be signed at a Unity Day Tea at 2 P.M. at the home of Priscilla Lussmyer on Beckwith Drive north of Lowell. Now the Women's Hall of Fame has been established in Seneca Falls, a part of a National Women's Historical Park. The Stanton home has been bought and other sites will follow (the site of the first convention is a laundromat!). In addition, a National Women's Center and Educational Institute is in the planning stages, to provide a "think tank" leadership training and retreat center for women. To this end, the tea on Saturday will also be a tax-deductible fund-raiser.

College News . . .

John Kloosterman, of Ada, was among the approximately 200 students who attended the fifth session of freshman orientation at Western Michigan University from July 5 through 7.

Debra Pratt of Lowell attended the fourth session of freshman orientation at Western from July 4 through 6.

About 2,400 prospective students are expected to attend one of 12 sessions at Western scheduled between June 26 and July 20.

"Orientation is the key element in the admissions process," said Raymond A. Passkiewicz, WMU director of orientation. "Orientation helps students fulfill all academic and non-academic requirements before the start of the actual school year."

Parents were invited to accompany their student to attend a one-day parent orientation session.

Classes for Western's fall semester begin Wednesday, Aug. 29.

HOMESPUN DEVOTIONS

by Pauline E. Spray

The righteous cry, and the Lord heareth, and delivereth them out of all their troubles (Psalm 34:17).

Before the days of electric lights, the kerosene can had to be refilled frequently. The empty oil can was often minus its spout stop by the time Johnny arrived at the store. Some storekeepers pushed potatoes down over the stopless spout to keep the fuel from spilling out. One enterprising merchant substituted gum drops. Johnny didn't mind the kerosene flavor in the least.

Every day we use substitutes. Often substitutes are every bit as good as the real thing. But this is not true in the spiritual realm. Nothing can take the place of the joy God's presence brings to a trusting heart. Only in the Lord can we find understanding and comfort. No other person can deliver us in times of trouble or give strength in times of weakness. In Him can be found all of life's fulfillment.

They that seek the Lord shall not want any good thing. When the righteous cry, He hears, and He delivers them from all their troubles. There is "no substitute" for God's love.

Prayer: Dear Lord, Thou hast not promised that I would never be troubled with troubles. But Thou has promised to help me and deliver me from my troubles. Hear my cry. I trust Thy care. Amen.

I must tell Jesus all of my troubles; he is a kind, compassionate Friend; If I but ask Him, He will deliver, Make of my troubles quickly an end.

Three G.O.P. hopefuls speak before Rotary

Dr. Drew Allbritten

The Lowell Rotary Club hosted a forum for three of the four candidates seeking the Republican nomination for U.S. Representative from the 5th Congressional District last Wednesday during their weekly luncheon and meeting. Dr. Drew Allbritten, Greg Doublestein and Keary Sawyer each spoke for five to ten minutes, and then answered questions from the Rotarians. The fourth candidate in the race, Paul Henry was invited but, regretfully had to decline because a prior commitment.

Allbritten is a Reagan Administration appointee to the board of Housing and Urban Development, a former state legislator, a community leader, teacher, counselor and administrator. Allbritten is pro-life, for school prayer, the death penalty, a strong defense and a constitutionally limited government spending. He is against gun controls, equal rights and growth of federal government.

Doublestein has worked for both the legislative and executive branches of the federal government. Five years for Senator Mark Hatfield and over two years for the Reagan administration. He is currently Dean of Administration and Student Services at Jordan College in Cedar Springs. He is a pro-life candidate supporting a balanced budget and would moderate military spending.

Sawyer is the son of the current 5th District Congressman

Hal Sawyer. He is currently a trail lawyer with the firm Timmons & Sawyer, P.C. of Grand Rapids. Sawyer has prepared detailed position papers on jobs in the 5th District, crime and other subjects that he feels are important. He supports a balanced

Puppet show planned

The Lowell Area Arts Council is planning a family event in Richards Park at 4:30 P.M. on Sunday, July 29. The event will center around a puppet program entitled "What's Up In Whimsy". The puppeteers are a group called the Flying Dragon Puppet Theatre from Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. The group has just finished a week at Interlochen and features eight foot high puppets. The berms in Richards Park should provide a natural outdoor amphitheater, and residents are urged to, "bring a lawn chair and enjoy".

A picnic will follow the puppet program. No plans have been announced in case of inclement weather.

The decimal system was invented in ninth century India.

Greg Doublestein

would get tough with criminals to include capital punishment and says he would work hard to represent the voters of the 5th District.

One of the four will be elected on August 7 in Michigan's primary election.

Gus Macker to speak at library

Area sports figures will be the focus of attention at the Kent County Library's Team '84 Hot-test Headliners program the week of July 16-20. The presentations will be held at various branches throughout the county and feature local heroes including cross-country walker Ginny Broersma, Golden Gloves Champ John Ebers, Butterfly National Sailing Champ Jerry Bakke and basketball enthusiast Gus Macker (A.K.A. Scott McNeal). The Double Dutch Angels and area gymnasts will also be appearing.

Gus Macker to speak at library

Lowell's own "Gus Macker" Scott McNeal will appear at the Lowell branch at 2:00 P.M. Wednesday, July 18 and at the Alto Branch on Thursday, July 19 at 11:00 A.M.

Organizer of the local Gus Macker Tournaments, Scott has been an avid basketball enthusiast and tournament offico (and indeed the originator of the 11-year-old event).

This year's tournament (July 13-15), involved over 450 teams who competed in 3 on 3, half-court basketball in 28 Lowell courts and yard courts.

Keary Sawyer

McNeal is 28 years old and teaches in Kent City. He also coaches girls varsity and boys J.V. basketball.

The Gus Macker Tournament is soon to be featured in the second edition of the book "In Your Face Basketball Fun". The tournament has also been written up by Associated Press and Sports Illustrated.

Raab is a candidate for Ionia County Sheriff

Vern Raab, a ten year Air Force veteran (Military Police and Korean), and former Ionia business owner is a candidate for sheriff for the second time since his return from service. Although defeated in a close race (1968), Raab, a life long resident of Ionia County, still remembers the strong support he received from many area citizens and believes it is time for a change in administration in the Ionia County Sheriff's Department.

Among others, law abiding citizens have commented that slow departmental response time has often delayed assistance and services, and that they have also experienced occasional harassment and indifference on the part of some personnel. Generally speaking, it appears that the attitude is, "There is never a cop around when you need one," or "The only time you see a cop is when he's giving a ticket"!!!

Raab believes that COMMON SENSE MANAGEMENT and LEADERSHIP will improve the overall services and image of the department. AVAILABILITY and VISIBILITY are key factors in accomplishing this task. Working with, and for, the law and goals is long overdue.

ty is mandatory. Establishing mutual respect and cooperation between law officers and the public is also a must. Raab also sees a requirement for more emphasis on reducing serious crime and offenses within the county. Numerous complaints were received concerning the increased use of drugs, breaking and entering, assaults, disorderly conduct and vandalism.

In addition to his Military Police Training, Raab has attended Ferris State (Administration), and Lansing Community College (law Enforcement and Management). He is married to the former Wanda Wright who was also born and raised in the Ionia area. Vern and Wanda have two adult daughters and two grandchildren who also reside in Ionia County.

Vern is a member of the Elks, Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legion, Military Order of the Cootie (Honor Degree of V.F.W.) and Judo Black Belt Association of the United States. He has actively supported numerous area community projects and activities. He also holds a 5th degree black belt in Judo, and is a graduate of the famed Kodokan Judo Institute in Japan. As an instructor in Combat Measures in Police Methods, he has instructed Judo self defense training in the United States Air Force and for local law enforcement agencies and youth activity programs in Ionia area schools.

By Roger Brown

I guess I never finished my story about the small mountain of crushed washed stone that graced our patio earlier this summer. If you happened to have read that column, Terese had ordered three cubic yards of stone to be used in place of the rotting mulch that we had around our shrubs. The program included the removal of the large stones that we had for a perimeter around the house, replacing them with landscape timbers buried flush with the ground, and then spreading the washed stone around the shrubs. Well, I guess you know that by devoting my column to the subject, and fingering Terese as a bit of a taskmaster, there was nothing to do but do it. For several consecutive evenings I thought perhaps I'd gone back in time and was helping build the pyramids or somethings.

The first thing that had to be done was to haul away all the big rocks that nearly surrounded the house. We had about 120 lineal feet of rock border around three sides of the house. At an average of about ten inches in diameter, that's roughly 144 of those big stones that had to be excavated and hauled 200 feet away in the neighbor's wheelbarrow. At about eight stones per trip, that's at least seventeen trips to the back forty, and before I was done I felt like my arms had been pulled from their sockets. The next morning I tied my shoes without bending over.

The next evening I had to remove all the old mulch, ground plastic and a few inches of dirt from about the shrubs. It was hot and dirty work to be sure, but it did beat hauling those rocks. With all the old stuff removed, I was then ready to start with the new stuff. Even though I still had a long way to go, I at least felt better about doing something positive, rather than undoing something that had been a whole lot of work to construct just a few years ago.

Next I began installing new ground cover and the landscape timber perimeter. Did you ever try cutting one of those big landscape timbers with a dull rusty hand saw? Don't! I thought I was going to have a coronary before I got through the first one. Luckily I only had to cut three. I considered gnawing off the last two, but stuck with the hand saw.

Finally, I was ready to begin hauling away Mt. Terese, as I had dubbed the three cubic yards of washed stone in my column. Now, three cubic yards sounds pretty innocent, but let me assure you... that's one heck of a lot of stone to shovel into a wheelbarrow, cart away, dump and spread around. I also have a sneaky suspicion that there was considerably more than three cubic yards of stone. The wheelbarrow was rated to hold four cubic feet, and full it would only take about twenty loads to haul away three yards. I know I made more like fifty trips with that wheelbarrow, or maybe it only seemed like fifty.

Well, that's one project I don't have to worry about anymore, we can use our patio again and it made the house look much nicer. I only have one problem... since hauling that wheelbarrow around every night for a week, I'd like to know where I can buy shirts with a fifty inch sleeve length.

On Venus, the sun rises in the west, sets in the east.

The small letter "a" first appeared during the fourth century. It was a rounded letter used in place of a capital. By about 1500 it was seen in its present shape.

K College Commencement ceremonies held June 9*

Kalamazoo College held its 148th annual Commencement ceremonies on Saturday, June 9. More than 290 seniors, accompanied by faculty, trustees, and distinguished guests marched in colorful procession from Stetson Chapel to the quadrangle to participate in the Commencement exercises.

Joe H. Stroud, editor of the Detroit Free Press, delivered the address "Ask What You Can Do." Both Stroud and Dr. Jitsuo Morikawa, minister emeritus of the First Baptist Church of Ann Arbor, were presented with honorary degrees.

Clifford J. Mulder son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Mulder, 9494

Bailey, Dr. Ada, was one of the graduating seniors.

Founded in 1833 and recognized as one of the nation's 100 oldest colleges and universities, Kalamazoo College offers majors in 23 fields to 1100 students. Using a year-round calendar, the innovative K-Plan carefully integrates off-campus experience in foreign study, career development and senior individualized projects, with a traditional, liberal arts education.

Although bats are among the most relentlessly persecuted animals on Earth, Europeans recognize their beneficial value to man as pollinators of fruit and nut trees, dispersers of seeds and predators of pesky insects, says International Wildlife magazine. Bats are legally protected in all European countries as well as in Russia. In fact, thousands of bat "houses" have been placed in national forests throughout Europe, especially in England.

BILLS AND ACCOUNTS PAYABLE TOTALS

General Fund	$30,182.14
Major Street Fund	260.60
Local Street Fund	362.58
Sewer Fund	10,640.11
Water Fund	30,579.62
Equipment Fund	2,773.39
Lee Fund	285.00
Trust and Agency Fund	370.00

The first order of business was the setting of a Public Hearing date on a request by King Milling Company to vacate portions of Lafayette Street, South of Main, and Kent Street, west of South Monroe Street.

Manager Quada stated that they have no intentions to build anything at this time, and suggested setting the second meeting of July, (July 16) as a hearing date.

IT WAS MOVED by Councilman Thompson that the Public Hearing be set for the July 16 meeting.

A discussion by Council followed in which concerns were expressed about the possibility of losing the Main Street Parking lot, and especially the City's only right-of-way into that area.

Manager Quada stated that such a hearing would be good to avoid any type of misunderstanding on how Council feels.

Councilman Fonger stated that the City has put a lot of money into the development and maintenance of the parking lot, and shouldn't give the right-of-way into it.

Councilman Thompson stated that in any case, they have the right to request a hearing and that should be granted.

Councilman Fonger asked when the last hearing was held on the same subject, stating that some kind of agreement must be reached, nothing was cleared up before, and he is sure that it won't be cleared up this time.

The Motion to set the hearing date for the July 16 meeting was supported by Councilman Fonger.

Carried.

Manager Quada headed the continued discussion on the Parks projects, stating that Bieri Brothers have looked the property over at the West End Park and given a cost of $2,000 to level by plow and disk, and establish a grade.

East Recreation Park will need to be looked at professionally, for grades, perhaps it could be tiered into sections, for the location of several different soccer fields. He asked for permission to go ahead with the grading and leveling by Bieri Brothers.

IT WAS MOVED by Councilman Collins that Bieri Brothers be hired to level and grade the West End Park, at a cost not to exceed $2,000, supported by Councilman Fonger.

Carried.

The discussion continued on East Recreation Park. Manager Quada stated that the cost for a study on the segment of the park should run about $2,500, he would get an estimate first, and if it came to more, he would return to Council before proceeding.

IT WAS MOVED by Councilman Collins that an engineering study be done for the East Recreation Park to determine the best layout, at a cost not to exceed $2,500, supported by Councilman Thompson.

Carried.

Manager Quada suggested that Council go to Recreation Park to look at the new horse arena and areas that have been proposed for changes at the Fairgrounds. Council concurred.

There were no remarks from the audience.

Under the Manager's Report, Manager Quada stated that at the next meeting there would be a recommendation to Council from the Planning Commission on the proposed rezoning on the West side of the city. It must lay for 15 days before Council action.

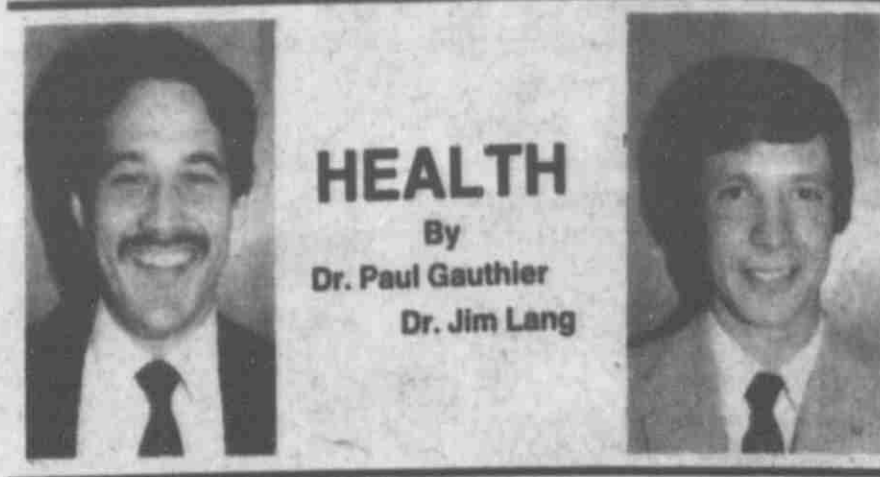

There were no Council comments.

IT WAS MOVED by Councilman Collins to adjourn at 8:37 P.M.

Approved: July 16, 1984

A Few Minutes With Roseola

Dear Drs. Gauthier & Lang:

What is roseola? What is the difference between roseola and measles? How can a person tell if it is roseola or measles? Is it contagious? Is there fever and itching with it?

Roseola (Exanthem subitum) is an acute viral disease of infants and young children which can occasionally occur in epidemics. More than 95 percent of the cases occur in patients between 6 months and 34 years of age, with the peak incidence at around 2 years. The disease occurs throughout the year, with some concentration of cases in the spring and autumn months. It attacks both sexes equally. In the rare epidemics reported, the incubation period was estimated to be from 7 to 17 days, usually about 10 days. Although the degree of contagiousness is not known, one may assume that it is contagious in the same fashion as are other childhood viral diseases and that precautions be utilized accordingly.

The onset of roseola is sudden, with fever which rises abruptly as high as 105°F. The fever remains high and continuous often lasting 3 to 4 days. The child may not appear ill, and often is quite playful, despite the marked temperature elevations. In other cases, however, the child may be quite irritable. Initially, there are no other signs pointing to illness other than the temperature elevation. In fact, the outstanding feature of roseola is the absence of physical findings sufficient to explain the high fever. In most cases, the diagnosis is suspected chiefly by the exclusion of other possible infections which could cause such high temperatures in children (ie ear infection, kidney infection, pneumonia). Typically, the high fever falls abruptly to normal on the third or fourth day. Just before or shortly after the return of the temperature to normal, a spotty rose-pink rash begins to appear. The rash usually begins on the trunk, and gradually spreading to the arms and neck, with slight involvement of the face and legs. The rash, usually not itchy, soon fades, rarely lasting as long as 24 hours. Puffiness of the upper eyelids along with swelling of the "glands" (lymph nodes) of the neck also tend to be hallmarks of roseola.

Roseola and measles (Rubeola), although both of viral origin have notable differences in their pattern of infection. In measles, though there is usually a fever of variable degree for 3 or 4 days just before the rash, the temperature becomes abruptly elevated to 103° to 104° F at the time of appearance of the rash and remains elevated for the next 2 days or so. As noted earlier, with roseola infection the rash appears with return of the high temperature to normal. In addition, infection with measles tends to be accompanied by congestion, cough, and conjunctivitis (pink eye).

The most common and least desirable complication of roseola is that of the possibility of a seizure. The seizure is thought to be caused by the markedly high body temperature rather than by the virus itself. The seizures are self-limiting, disappearing with the return of normal body temperature. Very rarely are there any lingering ill-effects from the seizure activity.

Currently there is no treatment for or prevention of roseola. It is considered to be a benign, self-limiting viral disease of childhood. Symptomatic treatment consists of acetaminophen (Tylenol) or tepid water baths for temperature elevation, repeated at 4 hour intervals. In any event, should your child develop a persistently high fever as does the child with roseola, we strongly recommend that he or she be examined by a physician to rule out the possibility of other, more serious infections.

SUMMER SUN SAVVY Bean Day highlights dry beans place in food processing

Summer's got to be almost everyone's favorite season. You're outdoors more, playing in the warm sunshine, and enjoying the glowy looks of a toasty tan.

But before you head off to the beach, or the tennis court, or the boat this summer, you should know the perils of overexposure to the sun's rays, and how you can help save your skin. With basic skin-savvy, and Noxzema Skin Cream for summer skin conditioning, you'll weather the season beautifully.

Sun Alert
Dermatologists have long recognized the fact that the sun's ultra-violet rays are responsible not just for sun tanning, but for other problems, too: dry, leathery skin, premature wrinkles, even skin cancer. And although these effects won't be visible immediately, they can show up later—and there'll be no way to undo the damage.

Get Tough With The Sun
A few sun-wise precautions can help you protect skin from harm: "Be a sane sun worshipper by using the right sunscreens for your skin type. Stock up on at least two different types: one for the more sensitive areas and another for the rest of your body. Use them whenever you're in the sun, not just on the beach. Reapply about once every two hours and before and after each dip. "Be careful of sneaky suntraps like cloudy days, pools, and beach umbrellas. The sun's rays can go through fog and clouds, water (up to three feet down from the surface), and even "bounce off" sand, so always be prepared by slathering on a generous layer of your sunscreen.

Plan A Tan

Don't head for the hottest place in the sun and attempt to get a fast tan—take sun-tanning slowly. Your first few times out should be no more than 20 minutes (less if you have fair skin or burn easily). Then add about ten minutes each day. Plan your tanning time before 11:00 a.m. and after 3:00 p.m. The high point of the sun's day is from noon to 2:00 p.m.—that's when the direct rays have the most burning power. So during that time, cover-up with a long, cotton beach dress, plan a picnic out of the sun, or take a cozy, midday siesta!

When Coolness Counts
If you overdo your tanning and end up with red, sunburned skin, you need to cool it fast and help guard against dryness. Treat it to Medicated Noxzema Skin Cream. Tingly, white and greaseless, Noxzema takes the sting out of a sizzling burn—actually reduces skin temperature on contact. Smooth it on sunburned hot spots like shoulders, ears, chest and neck and feel it go to work to soothe and refresh, instantly. And non-drying Noxzema makes the perfect summer complexion beautifier, too. Use it morning and night to cleanse your skin of summer dirt, oil, and perspiration, while it leaves skin feeling tingly clean and wonderfully soft.

Quito, the capital of Ecuador, sits almost directly on top of the equator. Because it is 9,300 feet above sea level, it enjoys a spring-like climate throughout the year.

"Food processing using Michigan grown dry beans was the focus of Capital Bean Day this year," said LeRoy Schluckebier, Chairman of the Michigan Bean Commission, the sponsor of the event. Several products from all over the United States, but made with Michigan Beans were served to the over 1500 persons in attendance.

While dry beans are a mainstay of the canning industry, with products such as pork and beans, baked beans, bean salads, and plain beans packed in brine, their appeal goes far beyond the can.

Dry packaged beans account for about 10% of the domestically used beans from Michigan, and that market shows some positive trends. Nutritional foods, back to basics, and cooking from scratch are all great for that business, says Schluckebier.

The Northern Lights Bean Company is a relative new comer to the package business and is headquartered at Filion; in Huron County.

In terms of canning, producing some sort of product using dry beans has long been important, especially in the off season from fresh vegetable production. Historically when there was no fresh corn, potatoes, tomatoes, etc., available, a canner needed something to run on their lines, and dry beans fit the bill. They store easily, are available year around and there is a good market for the finished product.

But consumer tastes change, and baked beans and bean salads are now found on the grocery shelves where there used to be just Pork and Beans.

"And that isn't the end," says Jim Byrum Executive Secretary of the Bean Commission, "canners are looking at new products using Michigan grown beans at a great rate than ever before."

New technology is also being applied to the dry bean, especially freezing. Frozen ready-to-serve bean soups are available in both the consumer and foodservice markets. Frozen entrees, and aseptically packaged menu items, that can be prepared in a microwave, may be next.

Byrum, who works closely with many companies on product development, stresses that while the traditional can and package are very important to the dry bean industry of today, five to ten years will undoubtedly bring new items to the market.

As an example, a frozen pastry product with a bean and ham, chili, and vegetarian filling are all being produced by a California company.

Researchers at Michigan State University are evaluating whole bean flour, and the components of the bean; starch, fibre, and protein for possible new uses.

These new non-traditional menu items that are nutritious, and have strong consumer appeal, have spawned a whole new type of food processing, the "commissary" or central kitchen for multiple outlet restaurants. To insure quality control, and allow quantity purchasing, this approach seems to be the answer.

While many in government seem to have just discovered the food processing industry, it has been growing at a phenomenal rate in recent years.

In the dry bean business, there are often 2 or 3 different companies involved in processing a bean from the time it leaves the farm, till it reaches the consumer, in a restaurant or at home.

Byrum maintains that the food processing industry will continue to expand. New technology will undoubtedly foster totally different food concepts in the future, but the raw materials for these new technologies will undoubtedly remain the same.

Dry beans will continue to expand in their importance as a part of the food business in the years ahead.

A Leader in Energy-Saving Resource Recovery Systems

One American company that's been a leader in energy technology for more than 65 years designs or supplies the equipment that produces over 40 percent of the thermal electric energy generated in the free world today.

Known for its energy technology worldwide, this firm's experience in the combustion of a variety of waste fuels extends back to the early 1930s. Its resource recovery systems are predicated on using simple preparation steps and efficient burning of refuse in a versatile furnace design that has been tested and improved for over 50 years.

A mid-1960 survey showed that systems from this company, Combustion Engineering, Inc. (C-E), were turning more refuse than all other continuous systems combined. At that time, the U.S. was using incineration to reduce the volume of waste, not to recover waste energy.

According to experts at the company, a single line of waste processing equipment can handle and prepare municipal solid waste at the rate of 100 tons an hour. Multiple line systems can economically process over 3,000 tons a day. In this system, more than 90 percent of the ferrous metal in the waste stream is extracted in a form that is readily acceptable to scrap markets.

A resource recovery system that can help communities create energy from garbage.

Other subsystems in the process line also use field-proven techniques for maximum reliability and availability. The primary output of a processing system is the refuse-derived fuel that is burned to generate steam used to make electricity.

To ensure that a solid waste problem is not simply converted to an air, water or noise pollution problem, the company designs systems that integrate engineering solutions with overall community requirements and objectives. To design such a system, the company calls on its many engineering disciplines as well as its planners, economists and any other skills that may be required.

Big house, small move

This large three story home formerly owned by Olive McQueen was purchased by the State Savings Bank, re-sold and moved to a new location south of the bank on Kent Street. The movers attracted lots of "sidewalk superintendents" during the week or so that the operation covered. The bank has no definite plans for the property, but Bank President Keith Caldwell said that the site will likely be used as parking for the present.

Rezoning approved

By a unanimous vote, the Lowell City council approved a new zoning map for the west side of the city Monday night. The new zoning map, which includes all of the city west of the C & O Railroad tracks, has been a project of the Lowell Planning Commission for over two years. The new zoning map, along with the old zoning map were published in the June 6 issue of the Grand Valley Ledger.

In highlighting the changes, Lowell City Manager Ray Quada pointed out that some sorely needed industrial property had been designated north and south of Bowes Rd. west of the Valley Vista Trailer Park and also the area that is currently Harry DeMull's auto salvage yard. The large parcel of property owned by Dr. Harold Myers located south of Main St. just east of Thomet Chevrolet and Buick has been changed from residential to commercial. This property was once proposed as a site for a strip mall. Property along the south side on Main Street between West and Pleasant was also changed from residential to commercial, bringing it more in line with what it is currently being used for.

There are numerous other changes, but Quada did not go into them in detail. In order for the council to have overridden the planning commission's proposal, a four-fifths no vote from the council would have been required.

Maatman announces appointments

Lowell Mayor James Maatman made several appointments to various committees at Monday's Lowell City Council meeting. Ralph Fluger was re-appointed to the Lowell Board of Review. King Doyle was re-appointed to his seat on the Light and Power Board which also serves as the Cable Television Board. Bobbie Adams and Dr. Orval McKay were re-appointed to the Lowell Planning Commission, and Robert Elzinga was appointed to a Planning Commission seat vacated by William Barber. Barber did not wish to serve another term.
