Along Main Street

DID YOU KNOW?

Extra curricular clubs and groups meet outside of normal school time, as not to interfere with the academic schedule of the students?

The name "Red Arrows" has been the Lowell Senior High School mascot symbol since the late 1940's. Before that we were known as the "Red Birds", "Red Devils" and "Big Reds"?

That "Pride and Respect" is the motto and theme of our Lowell Senior High School? This year Lowell Senior High is proudly observing its 107th year of operation? This information has been supplied by the Lowell Citizens for Education.

FIREMAN'S PANCAKE BREAKFAST

Get your appetite ready for stacks of pancakes, sausage, eggs and coffee Saturday morning, March 30. The Lowell Volunteer Firemen are having one of their famous "Pancake Breakfasts," from which all proceeds are used to buy new fire equipment. The firemen will be serving up hot cakes from 7:00 until 11:00 a.m. at the Lowell V.F.W. Hall next to City Hall. Adults are just $3.00 and children are only $1.50.

SEVERAL DOWNTOWN STORES NOW OPEN WEDNESDAY EVENINGS

Several members of the Lowell Area Chamber of Commerce have established Wednesday evenings as a uniform time to remain open until 8:00. Those participating are; Anderson's Family Shoes, Carole's Critters, Cousins' Card & Gift Shoppe, Hinkley Drug Store, Lambert Variety, Modern Mini-Lab and Camera, Modern Photographics, Modern Printing, Pfaller's Riverfront Clothing and White Lace Fashion. It might also be a good time to remind area shoppers that Wednesday is also an evening when the car dealers are all open and many of their service departments are also working late.

TIGERS ARE PACKIN' 'EM IN

We received a nice note from Emory Bowen this week. Emory winters in Zephyrhills, Florida and reports that the Tigers are playing to a packed house at every home game in Lakeland. Emory said he ran into Doc and Darlene Wescott at a couple of games. He also reports that the tourist business seems to be flourishing in Florida this season. By the way, Emory, we really like the oranges on the front of the post card!

Friday blaze destroys barn

A barn on a farm owned by Stanley Ralys was totally destroyed by fire Friday afternoon. Units from Lowell and Alto responded to the call that came in at about 1:50 p.m. The Ralys farm is located at 11530 40th St., S.E.

Lowell Fire Chief Frank Martin could only guess at the cause. "It was windy that day, maybe the wind caused bare electrical wires to arc," said Martin, "but we probably won't ever know for sure what caused it," he added. Martin placed an estimate on the loss at around $10,000. The owner of the barn was home at the time, but did not detect the blaze until it was well involved.

"About all we could do by the time we got there was protect nearby buildings and control the grass fires," Martin said. There was no hay or livestock in the barn. "A car and some miscellaneous tools and equipment were lost to the blaze," Martin said.

Lowell and Alto firefighters could do little more than watch the old barn owned by Stanley Ralys burn to the ground last Friday. No cause for the blaze has yet been determined.

Open house attracts 200 plus

Roger Kropf thinks its high time for some positive talk about agriculture. Kropf is a partner with his father Carl and brother Ken in Kropf Orchards and Kropf Chemical Co. An open house at Kropf Chemical last Friday drew well over 200 area farmers and growers. Kropf says, "They aren't ready to throw in the towel, or they wouldn't be here."

Representatives from five chemical companies were on hand at the open house to pass out literature on their products and to answer any questions that the farmers and growers had about the various fertilizers and pesticides. It was also an opportunity to show off the new storage and mixing facilities at Kropf Chemical's 12025 4 Mile Rd. location.

The new facility was finished last fall, and is capable of storing various fertilizers and nutrients in huge bulk quantities. A front-end loader gathers scoops of these various products from different bins and transports them to a large mixer, they are then blended into pre-determined mixes that are customized to the farmer or grower's needs.

Working from soil samples and other sources of information, Kropf Chemical manager Jim Nauta recommends fertilizer blends for each individual customer. The company got its start when Kropf began getting requests for fertilizers and chemical advice from area growers selling apples to Kropf's for packaging and shipping. "The free advise service grew into a business about 14 years ago," says Kropf. Now the company has hundreds of customers, mostly in the Kent, Ionia and Montcalm County area.

Besides the fertilizers, pesticides are also a big part of the agriculture chemical business. Again, working from various samples and other sources of information, Nauta advises his customers on the proper kind, and use, of the myriad of herbicides, insecticides and fungicides available to the modern farmer or grower. The chemicals are stored in a specially designed building which is heavily secured. "The security is for two reasons," says Kropf, "some of them can be very dangerous if not handled properly, and they can be very expensive. Some of that stuff can go as high as $200 per gallon," Kropf said, adding,

"somebody could walk out of there with $1,000 in each hand, so that's why we're so careful."

Kropf and Nauta were delighted with the turnout at the

Tougher Sentences For Child Abusers

There are some issues that go beyond partisan lines. One of those issues is child sexual abuse.

Responding to a growing number of criminal sexual child abuse cases, coupled with a low conviction rate for offenders, two state senators introduced bipartisan legislation today imposing tougher sentences, especially for habitual child-abusers, and providing for counseling treatment to deal with inter-family rape and incest. A portion of the package also allows an abused child to be questioned on closed-circuit television instead of being cross-examined in court.

The cornerstone of the nine-bill package is legislation mandating minimum sentences for those convicted of criminal sexual conduct with a child. First degree criminal sexual conduct would carry a mandatory minimum sentence of five years, while second and third degree offenses would bring a minimum of 90 days in prison. In addition, the court may require the defendant to pay the medical and psychological costs of the victim. Priority would be given to sexual abuse cases where the child is less than 17 years old.

During the trial, a part of the package allows the child to be placed in another room, while the rest of the participants could observe the child's testimony on a television monitor in the courtroom. Through an intercom system, the defendant's attorney could then cross-examine the child without forcing the child to face the emotional stress of a courtroom setting.

A part of the package also stipulates that the entire family be evaluated with a multi-disciplinary assessment test to determine not only what sort of treatment would be best for the family, but also which offenders are beyond help. The purpose of the package is not only to stiffen the penalties for offenders, but to help the members of a family work together after the offender is released to rebuild the family structure, if possible.

A major part of the program also requires the Michigan State Police to maintain a central registry of persons convicted of criminal sexual conduct with a child. Before a child care center or day care center hires an employee, the name of the prospective employee must be submitted to the State Police to make sure the person has never been convicted of criminal sexual conduct with a child under the age of 17.

There are 32 states requiring a minimum sentence of a least one year in prison. Of those 32 states, seven require either life imprisonment or the death penalty. It's time Michigan legislators, on both sides of the aisle, helped Michigan join other states in combating the practice of child sexual abuse. This package of bills would be a start in the right direction.

Computer training at Kent Skills Center

Mrs. Nancy Ryder with daughter, Robin.

"Computers are the new way of life and I want all the qualified training I can obtain for my future career."

Those words were uttered by Lowell High School senior, Robin Ryder as she explained the computer's functions to visiting students and parents while serving as "student demonstrator" at the recent College Ave. Kent Skills Centers' open house.

Robin, 18, daughter of Mrs. Nancy Ryder, 11397 Sara St., Lowell, is a student in the computerized accounting course at the Grand Rapids based Skill Center. She was selected by course instructors to help open house visitors because of her experience and advance knowledge of the computers.

Ms. Ryder is looking ahead to a life-time career as a Certified Public Accountant (CPA) when she graduates from Lowell this spring. Next fall she plans to pursue her career either at Davenport College or Grand Rapids Junior College.

"The computers at the Skill Center are the latest, the training has been excellent and I feel when the course is completed in June, I will have the knowledge and background needed to continue my education on the college level," added Robin.

At first, Robin was scared at the thought of working with computers. It was all a mystery, but after some basic instruction, Robin realized it wasn't as scary as she thought. After the first week it became fun and she moved near the top of her class at the Skill Center.

Ms. Ryder spends 2-1/2 hours daily in the course at the Skill Center, then returns to Lowell for classes in Consumers Education and English Eleven. She either drives the family car or takes one of the school buses to the College Ave. facility.

Robin's mother, Nancy, a life-time Lowell resident, made her first appearance at the Skill Center during the annual open house and was impressed with the facilities and the many courses offered tuition free to Kent Intermediate School District students.

"I am glad Robin has established her priorities and goals and that such a facility as Kent Skills Centers are available for students to pursue their career ambitions. I am very impressed with the latest equipment in the various class rooms. I wish this type of training was available when I went to high school. If a student is looking for a vocational career, I would recommend looking at the programs offered at the two Skill Centers," concluded Mrs. Ryder.

HOMESPUN DEVOTIONS

by Pauline E. Spray

...he looked for a city... whose builder and maker is God (Hebrews 11:10).

Candy was a scarce item at our house. When Dad returned from town with a sack of candy, we huddled around the table while he rationed it out in equal portions. Around and around he went adding a piece to each little pile until the sack was empty, making certain we each had the same amount. While the rest of us thought of the present and satisfying our appetites immediately, our sister, Opal, looked to the future. After we'd licked the last drop of sweetening off our fingers, she would appear nibbling daintily on her sweets. We watched (and drooled) in silent agitation.

Abraham and Lot also came from the same stock and environment. They had much in common. But they differed in that Lot thought only of the present when he chose the whole of the plain of Jordan, while Abraham thought of the future and the heavenly city. Lot was near-sighted. His uncle was far-sighted and glimpsed the reward waiting in the distance.

It's wise to improve the present, but we must not become so involved with temporal demands, Christians, that we neglect to look to the future. When it comes to this, we could all take a lesson from "Opal's example."

Prayer: Heavenly Father, I thank Thee for the promise of an eternal home. May I never grow so busy and near-sighted that I neglect Thee and thereby fail to lay claim on that heavenly mansion. Keep my eyes on the prize. Help me to look to the future. Amen.

mon. But they differed in that Lot thought only of the present when he chose the whole of the plain of Jordan, while Abraham thought of the future and the heavenly city. Lot was near-sighted. His uncle was far-sighted and glimpsed the reward waiting in the distance.

Teen Institute Day A Success

A beach party in Michigan in the middle of March may sound a little unusual, but it was a fitting end to a most unusual Saturday. On March 23, LHS student group, Teens Involved, sponsored a "Teen Institute" at the Lowell Middle School.

The day began at 8:30 a.m. and lasted until 11:30 p.m., climaxed by a dance with a beach party theme. The Teen Institute offered students an opportunity to have fun without using chemical substances. Activities included family groups, where teens and adults had the chance to discuss their feelings and problems; energizers, or activities to get people pepped up for other activities; alternative highs, which offered different activities for students to do instead of abusing chemicals; and skill builders, which included listening and communication skills.

Students chose from a wide variety of sessions, including photography, creative writing, using computers, and dog training. Sports activities such as volleyball, basketball, weight lifting and aerobics were also available.

Rope twirling, taught by Ralph House of Grand Rapids, was a popular alternative high. Mrs. Joanne Frey of Lowell was so fascinated with the skill that she purchased one of House's ropes. "I'm taking it to work on Monday," she said.

LHS English teacher Jill VanAntwerp commented that her creative writing sessions "went really well. The students wrote some very nice poems."

Teens involved, along with coordinator Barbara Pierce and advisor John Belaski, drew heavily on community resources to finance the project. Local service clubs generously provided funds to help as well as the Lowell Board of Education pledged $150 to offset some of the costs and gave their sanction to the event. Several area merchants and individuals donated food, among them were Lowell Bakery, Cousin's Gift Shop, Kropf's Orchard, Heritage Meat Market, Lambert's Variety. Parents and high school staff members donated cakes for the cake decorating classes. These became part of the desert at dinner.

Fittingly, the night ended with the dance. Students and adults who had spent the entire day together finished the night with the group dancing to the song "Just One More Night."

"I wish we could have one more night for this to go on," said senior Jodi Foster. "This has been fantastic."

Plans are already in the works for another, larger Teen Institute to be held in Lowell.

The first flush of the coming of Spring on a farm is MUD. You work with that for a bit and then you notice other new beginnings and start to think about what needs to be done.

The event I look forward to every year is the call through the house, "Come here, I have something for you." I know it is his Spring gift to me. It is very special. It has been for almost thirty years. "A bouquet of pussy willows! How beautiful! Did you have a hard time getting them?" (He fell in the marsh one year reaching over just a little too far.) We laugh, remembering!

Spring is, just around the corner and with bouquet in hand, I pause to appreciate his labor, his craftsmanship and artistic abilities in being a farmer.

Safety Tips For Kite Flyers

Few childhood experiences can match the thrill of flying a kite each spring. Yet all that fun can be gone in the twinkling of an eye, if thoughts of safety drift away.

For the "Peanuts" character Charlie Brown, the trouble always started when the "kite-eating trees struck," but Carl Flum, area manager of Consumers Power Company's Greenville headquarters, reminds kite flyers that electric lines and poles can be just as hazardous. In fact, while the majority of kite flying accidents occur when a child tries to untangle a kite from a tree or power line, Flum says using metallic or wet string, that can conduct electricity, is also very dangerous.

To avoid these hazards and the serious injuries they could bring, Flum urges parents and children to observe these simple safety rules:

1. Use wood, paper, or plastic in making your kite. Wire or metal materials make bad kites.
2. Use dry string to fly your kite...not wire or anything metallic, that could conduct electricity.
3. Fly your kite in an open area, away from the electric lines and busy streets.
4. Watch the weather. Flying your kite in the rain can be very dangerous.
5. If your kite becomes caught, don't climb a tree, TV tower or power pole to get it down. This, most common of accidents, can result in serious burns.

6. If your kite is snagged by an electric wire, never pull on the line. Instead, call Consumers Power for help.
7. If the power line falls, stay away from it. Once again, call Consumers Power.

Consumers Power Company has films on kite safety. For teachers who would like to show them, contact the company's Educational Services Program and ask for either "Overhead Lines...A Matter of Respect" or "Electrical Safety From A to Zap." Either call the public affairs representative at your local Consumers Power office or write the company's headquarters. The address is 212 West Michigan Ave., Jackson, MI 49201.

Remember, LOOK UP, STAY AWAY, STAY ALIVE.

LHS Girls Track Update

The Lowell Girls Track Team began practice two weeks ago with hopes to place near the top in the OK White Conference this spring.

Over fifty young ladies came out for track. Cathy Kazemir, high jumper, returns for her final season. Last week "Kaz" jumped 5'1" at the John Bos invitational in Grand Rapids for 2nd place.

Others returning from last year are sprinters Cindy Dumas, Amy Versluis and Dresden Daverman. They will get help from freshmen Pam Sterzick, Robin Sisson and a transfer student Jackie Schank.

In the middle distance, Tonya Phillips and Kim Cridler will get additional help from Lori Esch and Michelle Carrier. Distance runners Trudy Watson, Missy Brown and Kathleen Schoenborn are joined by Linda Watkins and Dana Blohm.

Leigh Ranburger is expected to contribute to the field events along with Michelle Dowling.

After the graduation of all hurdlers, Lowell is trying to rebuild the event with Robin Sisson, Sara Swift, Katherine Adams and Shawn Barton.

The Arrows have a very young team this year. It seems with such fine runners, Lowell fans can look forward to a good season.

LHS Volleyball season ends

On Saturday, Lowell traveled to Sparta for their last tournament of the year. Although the Arrows lost to each of their competitors, they fought valiantly to the end, with good scores against East Grand Rapids.

The first match was with Wyoming Park. Lowell lost both games 15-7, but it was with much courage and teamwork.

Trisha Stencil was top scorer with five serves, one an ace. Angie Hyzer had three kills in the first game and two in the second. Tanya Strouse had a kill in the first game and Pam Durkee, who has had a strong defensive arm all year, had a superb kill in the second game.

Forest Hills Central was Lowell's next opponent. Cheryl Treglia and Jamie Andrews did the only scoring in the first game. The second game's three points were served by Angie Hyzer. Durkee and Hyzer both had kills in the second game.

Lowell's efforts in the last match were admirable. Cheryl Treglia and Tricia Frey worked hard, as usual, to set Angie Hyzer and newcomer this year, Pam Durkee. Both Pam and Angie had good spikes and kills during the game. Tanya Strouse was top scorer in the first game with four points, two of them aces. Cheryl Treglia had one ace and two other points. Pam, Angie, Tricia and Jamie also scored but East won the game 15-12. In the second game, Tanya Strouse had three points. Cheryl Treglia scored once and Jenny Hoffman twice. But, with the score 9-6, Lowell ran out of energy and East Grand Rapids won the game.

by Roger Brown

Thor the Wonder Dog has been the topic of this column on numerous occasions. For those of you who don't know Thor, he is a big rambunctious Yellow Labrador Retriever who has had the dubious distinction of being the Brown's family dog for nearly twelve years.

Thor made this column once for nipping off a nice chunk of the index finger on my right hand. I had been teasing him with a piece of fat trimmed from a grilled T-bone. He would jump for the delectable morsel, and I would get a big kick out of listening to his jaws snap shut when he missed. The last laugh was on me though, as I had to switch to a different finger to type the story about the incident.

This space was devoted to Thor more than once in reference to his numerous escapes from his kennel. By the time I was done modifying it so that he couldn't dig out, squeeze out or climb out, the place looked like a junior Alcatraz. All it needed were some armed guards and searchlights at night.

His escapes have made this space too. He once took off for over three weeks in the dead of winter. We spent a small fortune in "lost dog ads" in all the area papers. We put out an all points bulletin to dog wardens, police agencies and even the county road commission.

We had pretty well given up on him when we got a call from a fellow on Riverside Drive about a mile west of west of Alden Nash. He said a dog matching Thor's description had taken over a vacant dog house at his place, and he had been feeding him for a couple of weeks. The old boy seemed happy enough to be back home with us, but not so happy that he didn't continue to take off whenever given the opportunity.

The "Wonder Dog" tag came after I had seen "Zeke the Wonder Dog" entertain during halftime at a Michigan State football game years ago. Zeke was a national champ Frisbee catcher. On the way home I bought a Frisbee, and Thor chased down and caught the first one I ever threw for him. He was a natural at catching those things. He didn't leap high in the air for them like Zeke, but he didn't miss as many as Zeke either. If I had a dollar for every Frisbee that I ever threw for Thor I wouldn't have to worry about winning the Lotto. I could buy the whole operation.

Thor also had fetish for anything soft and fuzzy, and he once made this column because of that unusual habit. For some reason he just loved to carry around anything soft and fuzzy such as wash cloths, slippers, knee socks and especially stuffed animals. Since everything soft and fuzzy was fair game to him, we always gave him some stuffed animals of his own. He never chewed them, he just carried them around. Visitors to our house were always amused by the big hunting dog with a little pink bear in his mouth.

Thor never did anything half-heartedly. Whether it was chasing sticks, swimming after his retrieving dummy, catching Frisbees or begging at the dinner table, he did it with a zest and a flair all his own.

You may have guessed by now that this is Thor's eulogy. That big, wonderful heart of his gave out on him Friday night. I buried him with one of his little bears in the rain Saturday morning, near, but not in, the kennel that he loved to escape from. It's needless to say that the Browns feel like we've lost one of the family, and I guess by most definitions we have.

Athlete's Foot

Athlete's foot is a very common disorder that is seen very frequently in the winter months, and although it is commonly seen in athletes, you don't have to be an athlete to contract this irritating foot disease.

Athlete's foot is known as Tinea pedis in the medical community and is caused by a fungus. It is felt that the organism that causes athlete's foot may be present on the feet of most adults at all times! Then, why don't we all have athlete's foot? Because, certain individuals are more susceptible to invasion by the fungus than others, and environmental factors play a role. Feet that are chronically sweaty or moist may lead to a breakdown of the protective skin veneers and cracking of the skin which opens the door for invasion by the fungus.

Athlete's foot can cause severe itching. There may be burning or pain associated with the infection. It usually appears as a fissuring or cracking of the toe webs. The skin is often macerated and peeling. The infection usually starts in the toe webs but can spread to involve the entire foot including the nails. The problem with athlete's foot is that it can recur chronically and secondary bacterial infection is possible.

The best treatment for athlete's foot, like many other disorders is prevention. Good hygiene is imperative. Keeping the foot as dry as possible is important. Dry between the toes after showering. Change socks frequently, especially during the winter months when we tend to wear heavier shoes and socks which trap moisture. Apply drying powders (available in any pharmacy) if necessary. In chronic cases, placing small pieces of cotton between the toes at night to allow air drying may be of some benefit. Rubber sandals may also be worn in community showers to prevent contact with the fungus. Over-the-counter products such as Tinactin® or Desenex® powder are drying agents which also inhibit fungal growth and should be applied to problem areas. Chronic cases may require a prescription for an antifungal cream and possibly removal of severely infected tissue by your doctor.

Senator Dick Posthumus

Putting one little bandage on a severed artery will not do much good. In the same way, one piece of legislation is not going to cure Michigan's escalating crime problem. For that reason, Republican legislators have sponsored a comprehensive eight-bill package called "Safe Streets", addressing a number of the problems which are part and parcel of the whole dilemma.

The cornerstone of the package is a group of bills adopting sentencing guidelines and requiring mandatory minimum sentences for certain crimes and habitual offenders. These bills are designed to reduce the disparity and delays in sentencing, and build more consistency into sentences for criminals.

With stiffer sentencing guidelines, however, there must be more prison space. One part of the program would increase the State Bonding Authority, earmarking a large portion of new prison construction. Another bill in the package will repeal the Emergency Powers Act, which allows the Governor to reduce prison sentences causing early releases if prisons become too overcrowded. Since the Act went into effect in 1978, more than 2,000 prisoners have been released early.

Another bill would tax possessors of illegal drugs and use the proceeds for the County Jail Assistance Program and State Police Habitual Offender Task Force. Those people caught with a controlled substance will be taxed at ten percent of the street value of the drug; and if they do not have sufficient cash, state officials may tap into their assets to pay the tax.

An important part of any crime program is the prevention aspect, and "Safe Streets" offers three different recommendations. One bill would create a Single Business Tax credit for employers who hire disadvantaged youths during the summer. Poor and minority youth have the unfortunate distinction of showing the highest unemployment rates, and the boredom and frustration resulting from idleness can lead to a life of crime. That is also the motivation behind another facet of the package which is a program providing educational and vocational training for delinquent youth. The final part of the package would ban the practice of placing abused and neglected children and runaways in jail. If they don't start out there, maybe they won't end up there.

To effectively deal with such a broad-based problem as crime, we must take a broad-based approach. The "Safe Streets" package is just that type of approach.

DNR "Report"

Steelhead runs are picking up in the Muskegon and Grand Rivers and their tributaries.

At the present time, water levels are extremely high making fishing difficult if not impossible. Water temperatures are still in the upper 30's.

Some fishing activity with limited success is going on at the Toigo River in Kent County and rairie Creek in Ionia County.

Ice conditions are unsafe and ice fishing should not be attempted.

WILDLIFE INFORMATION

PHEASANTS FROM CHINA
Twenty-three of the thirty "blackneck" pheasants which were sent by the Chinese Province of Sichuan to Michigan have survived the 12,000 mile, 43-day journey. The pheasants, which will help revitalize Michigan's dwindling pheasant population, are part of a sister-state exchange confirmed by Governor James J. Blanchard on his

"OUTDOORS"

with Jack Fiesner

As I have stated before, I have generally been very supportive of the DNR and their programs. It seems that an increasing number of proposals and programs are unsound from the standpoint of conservation (wise use), and I am becoming more and more skeptical of their management practices.

One thing which they recently did was to extend the rabbit hunting season to the end of March. This act is unjustifiable, depicts poor management and is a waste of a wildlife resource. To begin with, most of our rabbit population are not to be considered as good table fare in late winter and most which are harvested after January are wasted. Secondly, the Cottontail, while very prolific, are not in heavily concentrated numbers which could justify the extra harvest. Third and most important is that March is the month of breeding and consumption. The first litter of offspring are generally born in March, right during the hunting season. This is ridiculous.

Another proposal by our DNR is to establish an earlier opener for most small game species to coincide with the present squirrel and grouse season of September 15. While I generally agree with the early opener of squirrel season, I oppose opening of any other small game season prior to October 15. Before snowfall, most rabbits are in very poor condition due to disease and parasites and can be considered as very poor table fare at best. The Partridge (Ruffed Grouse) numbers, while stable, do not warrant increased harvest. The Pheasant numbers in most areas are precarious and barely maintain a breeding stock. We presently have an importation and stocking program initiated whereby we are importing both birds and eggs from China to improve and upgrade our native stock. I firmly believe that the hunting of Pheasants should be closed for two years, in order to allow for re-propagation of the species. Certainly an early opener is not the answer.

Fur bearer seasons for the hunter and trapper alike are unrealistic. Raccoon are hunted far prior to their pelts being prime, which results in a loss of millions of dollars annually in the sale of these pelts. The fox season, now that one is established, ends far too late. From the standpoint of fur value, a January 15 closure statewide would be more realistic. Due to rubbing and snow pulls, the pelts become of very little value after this time and other than for the purpose of predator control, harvesting after this date is a waste. The mink season statewide should also terminate on this date for the same reason. Their valuable pelts degrade very rapidly after January 1.

By unjustifiable opening seasons on all species, we are only fueling the fires of the anti-groups who so vehemently oppose hunting, fishing, and trapping. Based upon this I urge all concerned to let your DNR know that their poor management practices are not condoned by you. What we stand to gain is nothing, what we stand to lose is our entire heritage of a free people, harvesting our God given wealth of the land. Conservation is "wise use." Are we in fact using our heritage wisely?

"Tips For A Healthy Pet"

Bruce Langlois, D.V.M.

Neutering is a caring and compassionate effort you can make to benefit both your pet and the Nation's pet over population. Neutering your pet will improve its health, minimize aggressive behavior and the tendency to roam, and help prevent infections later in life. Spaying a female dog or cat prevents the possibility of a life-threatening uterus infection (pyometria) and to have the surgery performed before her first heat reduces the chance of mammary cancer seven-fold. Castration of a male dog or cat will calm his temperament; in addition, he'll be less likely to develop prostate infections or prostate cancer in his old age.

A visit to the Animal Shelter will give you a graphic view of the most urgent reason to neuter your pet. Shelters are full of homeless pets waiting to be adopted and 90% or more will not find homes. Currently, about 13 million dogs and cats pass through the Nation's Animal Shelters each year. Of those, more than 11 million must be killed because nobody adopts them and that figure includes millions of young, healthy pets as well as the old and infirm.

We welcome any comments and/or questions you may have. Please send to Lowell Veterinary Clinic, 11650 E. Fulton, Lowell, Michigan.

Precision Fliers To Perform At Free Fair

The world famous Thunderbirds, the United States Air Force's official air demonstration squadron, will bring their high-speed, precision flying to the Ionia Free Fair at approximately 1:00 p.m., July 27, following the fair's parade.

The announcement of the Thunderbirds' appearance was made today by fair manager, Lionel Haskins. According to Haskins, the Thunderbirds' precision flying will be visible throughout the entire Free Fair Grounds. Fairgoers are also invited to watch the show, free of charge, in the grandstand.

Based at Nellis Air Force Base near Las Vegas, Nev., the Thunderbirds have traveled throughout the United States and to 46 countries since their first aerial demonstration in 1953.

Prime ministers, presidents, foreign dignitaries, celebrities and countless fans have turned out to meet and watch the team, giving the Thunderbirds the unofficial title of America's "Ambassadors in Blue."

The most visible part of the Thunderbirds is the aircraft. The squadron currently flies the General Dynamics F-16 Fighting Falcon, their eighth different aircraft.

Many awards adorn the walls of the squadron's hangar. Plaques presented by various civic organizations and military squadrons are on display for the thousands of visitors who tour the squadron each year.

Among the awards is the coveted MacKay Trophy, presented to the squadron in 1959 for its Far East tour as the Air Force's most meritorious flight of the year. There are also seven Air Force Outstanding Unit awards and mementos presented by foreign and American leaders. The squadron was also proclaimed the first official Bicentennial organization of the Air Force in 1976, and was the only flying unit so recognized.

The Free Fair celebrates its 70th year, July 25 - Aug. 4, and is expected to draw more than 500,000 fairgoers.

Tickets for Conway Twitty-Loretta Lynn for Thursday, Aug. 1, and Oak Ridge Boys for Friday, Aug. 2, now on sale at fair office. For ticket information call 527-1310.

Letter To The Editor . . .

"We issue this call to all who care about America and its future . . . America is at Risk." This is the bottom line message of the President's Commission on Educational Excellence. The report put up a red flag: our nation is at risk and is suffering from a hothouse educational system. This report lit a match under the pants of anyone even remotely associated with education. It has already produced profound changes across the nation. Within our own district, the following changes can be seen:

Scores on the Michigan State tests for 4th, 7th, and 10th graders have steadily increased since 1982 in Reading and Math.

From 1982-1983, the percentage of 7th graders from Lowell achieved 75% or higher in Math on the state test doubled.

About 30% of Lowell's 7th graders performed better on the state test than the average 7th grader across the state.

Reading scores for 10th graders were above state averages for the first time in over four years. Our district's fourth graders have scored higher than state average in reading and math. Lowell 7th graders had the highest percentage of student's mastering 76% or more of the skills on the state test, of any suburban district in Kent County in both reading and math.

Lowell teachers are spending their personal time training teams of gifted and talented students to compete in Olympics of the Mind competition.

The Board of Education has appointed a citizen's advisory committee to make recommendations to the Board regarding educational needs of the district in striving for excellence.

The high school graduation requirements have been increased so that the class of 1987 will need 22 credits to graduate, up substantially from five years ago.

The "Nation at Risk" report stresses the need for excellence for all students, no matter what their ability level. Excellence in education is defined as education that helps kids reach their potential in school and in the workplace. A school is "excellent" when it sets high expectations and goals for all learners, and then tries in every way possible to help students reach them. Using this definition, do you want Lowell School District to be "excellent?"

How do you think Lowell Schools rate in providing an "excellent" education for students? We welcome your input and comments at the Citizen's Night.

As a member of the Lowell community, I think each of us should reach for these same high expectations -- go for it! Futurists are predicting that workers will need to re-train for new jobs at least four times within their lifetime because of rapid changes in industry, technology, and other fields. Are we prepared for this? As we preparing our children for this? I think that if we challenge ourselves, we will be prepared.

The issue is not only quality education for our kids, but also support of the schools. Are we willing to support teachers who gently "push" our children toward best possible performance? The Nation at Risk report says teachers have been scapegoats for educational ills. I think we all share responsibility for accomplishing quality education together. Are we ready to support homework policies and insure that our kids are completing them? I think citizens need to get behind school personnel and support their effort toward excellence. Support from the community is vital.

I challenge you to examine where quality education falls on your priority list. My second challenge to you is to read the President's Report, "A Nation at Risk." My third challenge is an invitation to attend Citizen's Night on either April 16 or April 24 in the Middle School Media Center at 7:00 P.M. Give the Lowell Advisory Committee on Educational Excellence your input. What do you want from your schools? What will you support to promote excellence?

I welcome all written comments and rebuttals.

Jo Ann Frey
Chairman, Lowell Citizen's Advisory Committee for Educational Excellence

Throttle down ATV's

Secretary of State Richard Austin today asked all individuals who plan to operate All Terrain Vehicles this year to "throttle down."

Citing statistics from the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission in Washington, Austin said nationwide ATV-related injuries treated in hospital emergency rooms, jumped from 8,600 in 1982 to 27,600 in 1983. Statistics for the first nine months of 1984 show an estimated 53,000 injuries. Since January, 1982, 80 deaths involving All Terrain Vehicles have been reported.

The majority of injuries and deaths resulted from operating at too high speeds over unfamiliar terrain and colliding with rocks, tree limbs, holes, ditches and bumps or with motor vehicles on roads where the ATV is not permitted.

Where you place birdseed for wild birds can be just as important as what you place in the feeder, says National Wildlife magazine. Cardinals, for instance, seem to prefer a tabletop on which to eat sunflower seeds in the shell, while mourning doves fancy eating sunflower seeds off the ground.

Siler wins FFA award

Lowell FFA Advisor Pete Siler with his award as outstanding FFA advisor for Region 5.

Lowell FFA advisor, Mr. Pete Siler, was named outstanding vocational agriculture teacher in region 5 by the Michigan Association of Teachers of Vocational Agriculture. He has received various awards in the past, recognizing him for his achievements and teaching skills with the FFA and vocational agriculture classes at LHS.

Over six billion tons of soil are windswept or rainwashed off U.S. farmland, forests, construction sites, rangeland and streambanks each year, reports National Wildlife magazine. That's enough soil to fill a line of dump trucks stretching to the moon and three-quarters of the way back.
