Along Main Street Llama Show here this weekend

What does Lowell have in common with llamas, other than the fact that they both have more than their fair share of I's? Well, this weekend, Saturday and Sunday, June 22 and 23 the Lowell Fairgrounds will be the site of the Central States Chapter of the International Llama Association's 1985 "Lovable Llama Show and Sale". Why Lowell for a llama show? Well, Dorane Strouse, a resident of nearby Cascade Township and owner of about 30 llamas, is the event chairman for this year's show. Strouse selected the Lowell Fairgrounds because of the excellent facilities here.

Strouse expects 75 to 100 llamas to be on show or for sale during the event. "Llamas are coming from all over the United States", Strouse says. He knows that some are coming from as far away as California, Alabama and the east coast. Strouse says that he will not bring any of his llamas to the event because he will be busy running the show, and wants to avoid any conflict of interest. The llama owners will be busy with a mini-conference Saturday morning where topics such as saving babies and mothers in difficult llama births, standards of soundness in llamas and legislation and importation status will be discussed. Beginning at 1:00 P.M. there will be five demonstrations that will each repeat three times, allowing the public to wander from one to the other without missing anything. The demonstrations include woolmaking, cart driving, training, raising and enjoying lovable llamas and packing with llamas.

HOLE IN ONE FOR EVELYN WEST

Evelyn West, former owner of Wests' Apparel shot a hole-in-one on the sixth hole of North Kent Golf Course on Monday, June 17. Evelyn was golfing with her husband Howard, proprietor of Anderson's Family Shoes, when she sank her 141 yard drive. In 20 years of golfing, this was Evelyn's first ace, and the first one that Howard has witnessed in his 25 years of golf.

MACKER QUEENS ... ENTER NOW!

Anyone interested in entering this year's competition for the Miss Macker title should pick up an entry blank from Marylin at Man's World Hair Styling. The competition will be held on Wednesday, July 10 in Mackerville, U.S.A.

WRESTLERS ARE OFF TO CAMP

Fifteen Lowell Middle School and High School wrestlers, accompanied by Coaches Gary Rivers and Dale Latva, are attending Billy Martin's Granby School of Wrestling in Hampden-Sydney, Lowell Freestyle Wrestling Club are: Chad Blasher, Mike Barnes, Mendez of Lowell, and 1st, Shirley Hoffman of Hemlock.

From 4:15 until 5:00 there will be cart driving competition and from 5:15 there will be costume competition in which contestants are encouraged to dress their llamas in authentic Peruvian tack and costumes.

On Sunday the show gets underway with pack competition at 9:30, trail competition at 10:00, halter class at 10:30 followed by a parade of the llamas dressed in traditional and original designs. We understand that one fellow packs his llama with extensive golfing equipment and uses it as a caddy. At 1:00 P.M. the All-Around Champion Llama will be announced.

Throughout the show there will be a silent auction in progress for the several llamas that will be on sale. The results of the auction will be announced at about 1:15 on Sunday. So, if you're interested in purchasing a llama this weekend, bring your checkbook.

The public is heartily invited to attend the show and stroll through the stables to enjoy these lovable creatures. There is no admission charge to any of the events.

ministers, teachers, you name it, they'll all tell you that envy is not good for you. I'm sure that they are right, but about this time each year I still turn green with envy under my summer tan. I don't envy recent Lotto winners. I don't envy stars of the stage and screen. I don't envy those making the cover of Time, Sports Illustrated and Glamour. I don't envy the driver of a new Porsche. I don't even envy whoever gets to rub suntan lotion all over Loni An- Hearing: August 5, 1985, at derson when she lays around by the pool.

However, I do envy anybody and everybody that has the summer off. Off from work ... off from school ... off from at least most of their normal responsibilities. Some teachers (I realize that some take summer jobs or continue their education), students, active re- on the petition will be tirees and the like, are the ones that I envy most.

My problem may be that my memory is too good. I still vividly remember how much I enjoyed my summers as a kid. All those long, warm days to do virtually nothing except what seemed like a good idea. Oh sure, there are occasional chores and a few responsibilities for these people to attend to, but nothing even remotely re- the Court at the time and sembling the daily grind of a job or school. When I see kids lounging on the riverbanks with a fishing pole in hand, or notice a foursome of retired chaps loading up the golf clubs at about 9:30 a.m. on a Monday, I can't help being a little envious. No, not a little envious, Kelly green better describes my envy.

So, what prompted all this talk about envy? Well, I'll tell ya. We Dated: June 19, 1985 nherited an old steel rowboat with the house we recently purchased. I've spent most of my spare time during the last couple of weeks scraping paint, soldering joints, rebuilding the broken seat and painting the old tub. We finally got her in the water last week, and my kids and their pals have being leading the life of Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn ever since.

They pack a lunch, fishing poles, grass whips, saws, toy guns, snorkel gear, you name it. Then they row up the Flat River to an island where they swim, fish, eat peanut butter and jelly, clear a campsite, and do only those things that seem like a good idea. All of which sounds like a pretty good idea to me

If you quit getting your Ledger each week, or if this column comes up missing, then you'll know that I've dropped out and joined them. I might be green with a covering of Flat River algae, but I'm sure that's more healthy than being green with envy.

Call to order at 8 p.m.; 5 Board Members present; twenty-six others.

Ankle Sprains

We can usually tell when softball season is in full swing by the number of sprained ankles we see in the office. Ankle sprains are probably the most common sports related injury. If this injury is not treated properly, it can result in long term instability and poor function.

The ankle is basically a hinge joint which allows flexion and extension. Injuries to the ankle are primarily caused by forces that lead to inversion and stress on the lateral ligaments. The foot rolls inward in relation to the leg resulting in slight, partial or complete tearing of the lateral ligaments. Sprains of the ankle are classified by severity mild (first degree), moderate (second degree), and severe (third de- pany, Springfield, Illinois, has $20.5 Billion of insurance in Mild Sprain (first degree) - A mild sprain occurs when there is a very slight tear of the ligaments but without any functional weakness. There are minimal symptoms such as local pain, milk swelling and normal x-rays. This condition requires minimal treatment. The first 24 hours after injury, one should elevate the ankle, apply ice and take aspirin as needed to relieve pain. An ace bandage or ankle strapping will give added support but this may not be needed as there is no actual weakness of the ankle.

Moderate Sprain (second degree) - A moderate sprain of the ankle occurs when there has been a partial tear of the ligament but the integrity of the ligament is not entirely lost. Examination reveals severe pain and swelling with some discoloration. Stressing the ankle during examination produces marked pain. X-rays show swelling of soft tissues but no boney fracture. Swelling and discoloration are produced by bleeding in the ligament. Treatment is usually required to prevent long term instability. A compression bandage should be applied with the ankle elevated for 24 hours. Ice packs should also be used to minimize swelling. Unlike mild sprains, where ambulation can begin almost immediately, a splint is usually applied and no weight bearing is allowed for several days. Once swelling has subsided, a walking cast may be applied and weight bearing is encouraged. If a cast is applied it will usually be left on for 10 days to 3 weeks. Once the cast is removed, protective taping should be worn to protect the ligaments against further damage during any strenuous activity.

Severe Sprain (third degree) - In a severe sprain there is complete rupture of the ligaments with marked instability . Symptoms and clinical findings are similar to those in second degree sprain, but more severe. Casting and/or surgery will be required along with pysical therapy to aid in rehabilitation.
