CORRECTION IN ELEMENTARY BOUNDARY MAP

The map depicting Lowell elementary school boundaries that appeared in last week's Ledger was slightly in error. The text explaining the new boundaries was correct, but the map showed the area west of Lowell, south of Foreman Road and north of the Grand River as Bushnell Elementary territory. This area, with the exception of Eastgate in the Woods (Alto), should have been coded as Runciman territory.

OFF THE BLOTTER

David Powell, 32, of Lowell was involved in a property damage accident Friday, February 13 on Main near Jackson St. A car that was not involved in the accident, turned abruptly in front of the semi Powell was driving causing him to brake suddenly and lose part of the load of steel he was hauling.

Robert Bristol, 30, of Lowell was not injured in an accident that occurred Tuesday morning, February 10 on Main near Jackson St., when he pulled from a parking place on Main into the traffic lane into the path of a car driven by Stephanie Longwell, 18, of Saranac who sustained minor injuries.

Cited to appear in 63rd District Court at a later date was Kenneth Kaminski, 20, of Lowell for possession of alcohol by a minor (under age 21) by Lowell Officers Friday evening, February 13.

Arrested and lodged into the Kent County jail for driving while license suspended was Terry Rogers, 26, of Lowell on Thursday morning, February 12.

Involved in an injury accident Thursday morning, February 12 on Hudson near Ottawa St. was Sara Brewer, 23, of Lowell when she lost control of the car she was driving and struck a utility pole and fence. She was later cited for driving under the influence of alcohol by Lowell Officers in connection with the accident.

Macker hits the road!

When we saw the lengthy spread about the Gus Macker Tournament in Sports Illustrated awhile back, we all knew bigger and better things lay ahead for the three-on-three basketball tournament. Well, it appears we were all correct in our assumptions. Though not quite a "world tour" (yet), a five, possibly six, city tour of the popular tournament is slated for this coming summer. Fret not Macker fans, we're assured the neighborhood version we're all so accustomed to the second weekend in July will take place as usual.

Scott McNeal, alias Gus Macker, has teamed up with J.W. Messner Advertising to take "Gus" on tour. Planned stops are Rochester, N.Y., Milwaukee, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Decatur, IL, and possibly Toledo. J.W. Messner Advertising represents the Chevrolet dealers in the Grand Rapids area, and has made arrangements for the Chevrolet dealers in the cities on the tour to sponsor the tournaments there. Also, Reebok Shoes will be a major sponsor of the tour. McNeal said offers have poured in since the Sports Illustrated article. Charities are also going to benefit from the tour according to McNeal.

McNeal says he will hold a press conference in the near future to detail plans for the tour. He did say that the format for the tournaments on the tour will basically be the same as in Lowell, and he expects 500-700 teams to compete in each city.

The dates for this year's Lowell tournament are July 10-12.

Hospice volunteer training classes will be offered to Lowell residents

Hospice of Greater Grand Rapids is happy to announce the formation of a volunteer training class to be held in Lowell, on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, beginning March 17, and running for four weeks. There is a growing need in our area for trained volunteers, according to Loretta Lind, Director of Support Services for Hospice. Hence, the class, normally given at Aquinas College, will be offered at the First Congregational Church, 404 N. Hudson.

Hospice, organized in our area in 1981, is a non-profit agency that provides physical, psychological, social, and spiritual care for dying persons (most commonly, but not limited to, cancer patients) and their families. Services are provided by a medically supervised team, composed of both professionals and volunteers. While services are available through the inpatient setting, most Hospice work locally occurs in the dying individual's home. This is why the role of the volunteer is so important.

"We really look to the community for support," Lind stated. "Hospice volunteers help care for our patients and families, and are really the heart of Hospice. Right now, about one of every three patients and families we serve has no way to pay, and receives our care free of charge. So you can quickly see how important our volunteers are. They provide that special care, love, and support to patients and families living through a very difficult time. They are vital to Hospice."

Anyone interested in spending a few hours a week giving, caring, and sharing should call Hospice in Grand Rapids, at 454-1426, and request further information regarding enrollment in the class. Hospice of Greater Grand Rapids is licensed by the Michigan Department of Public Health and is certified as a Medicare Hospice Benefit Provider and Medicare Home Care Provider.

Appointments not always needed at Vanity Hair Fashions. Open six days Lowell, 897-7506.

THE CT SCAN

CT scans are being used more frequently to diagnose suspected medical problems and our patients often ask what this procedure does. Today we are going to review the purpose and technique of the CT scan.

Computerized tomography (CT scan, CAT scan) is a modern x-ray system linked to a computer. It is used to look at the brain, spinal cord, chest and abdomen. Your doctor may be looking for such problems as tumors, internal bleeding, strokes, or spinal abnormalities such as ruptured discs.

The procedure is done in a hospital. You will be on your back and the part of your body that is to be examined will be placed inside the scanner, which looks like a hollow tube. X-rays will be taken and the table will move slightly so another section of your body can be x-rayed. The pictures are then relayed to the computer which produces a 360 degree cross-sectional image of a thin slice of your body. About 10-30 cross-sectional images are usually obtained. The exam usually lasts 30 minutes to 2 hours depending on location. During the scan you will have to remain absolutely still. Occasionally dye will be injected or swallowed to enhance certain organs or blood vessels. You should tell your doctor, beforehand, if you have any allergies to contrast dyes or other iodine containing substances. CT scanning will expose you to radiation because it is an x-ray. CT scans of the head usually produce low exposure while scans of the body produce a relatively high amount of exposure compared to other common x-rays.

The danger from radiation is usually small compared to the medical problem the CT scan is being used to diagnose. If you are pregnant, you should not have a CT scan except in extreme emergencies.

The advent of CT scans have allowed us to make accurate diagnoses without going to more invasive procedures such as angiography or exploratory surgery. CT scans have also allowed us to detect small tumors sooner that could be seen on conventional x-rays so that appropriate therapy can, hopefully, be more effective.

FEBRUARY 19-21 & 26-28: The Lowell Area Arts Council

cozy corner

by Roger Brown

When Terese and I were on our first inspection tour of the house we now live in, I was immediately impressed by one potential problem. In fact, it was more than a potential problem. It was a guaranteed problem for a family that already had two pre-teens and was shopping for a dog. The problem was white carpeting. Yards and yards of it. The entire living room, stairway, hallway to the main floor bedroom and the upstairs hallway are all covered with a beautiful off-white plush carpet. I don't know about you, but I could easily envision all sorts of catastrophes.

I was not entirely sold on buying the house in the first place, so I used the white carpet in my arguments against the move. Terese argued that area rugs, a well-trained dog and strict rules for the kids would ward off any potential threat to the vast areas of white. I was far from convinced, but caved in anyway. You husbands out there know how that goes.

As it turned out, Terese was right. The dog dares not set foot into parts of the house with white carpet. In fact, he's so well trained to not walk on white, I was afraid we'd have trouble getting outside in the snow. The area rugs seem to have protected the well-traveled areas adequately, and the kids know better than to run upstairs with muddy shoes on their feet. A fate worse than death awaits those who would dare trample mud on Terese's white carpet.

So, for eighteen months, the white carpeting has been little problem. During a huge house warming party a solitary runaway meatball left a trail down the main floor hallway. Much to our relief, the red barbecue sauce cleaned up easily. Sometime over these months, I've stopped having nightmares of grape pop cascading down the stairs or visions of a golden retriever, fresh from the muddy river across the street, romping through the living room.

Oddly enough, the quarry tile kitchen floor has been the problem. It looks like it could withstand anything, but as with the white carpeting, looks can be deceiving. The white grout between the tiles always looks awful. We've tried various cleaners, solvents, sealers, etc. but nothing seems to work. Last weekend Terese and I declared war. I scrubbed with straight muriatic acid, I scrubbed with a harsh roller deglazer that we use here at the Ledger, I scrubbed with type wash, I scrubbed with soap and water, I scrubbed with everything I could think of. I even briefly considered the acid out of my car battery.

After spending the better part of two days, and exhausting just about all the elbow grease I had in me, the floor looked pretty good. We applied two coats of a new brand of sealer, and are now hoping for the best.

After winning the war against the quarry tile, I was feeling pretty good about the floors in the old barn. I even took a peek at the oak floor in the dining room to be sure everything was allright there. I never should have let my guard down.

Late Sunday afternoon I headed upstairs on some sort of errand. Like a scene from a horror movie, I was terror struck at the top of the stairs by a dreadful sight. Two red and blue stain spots appeared before me! Someone had obviously attempted to wipe the spots up, but had only managed to spread them out. Vincent Price or Bella Lugosi couldn't have startled me more.

I soon found out that everyone else knew about the stains, but they were all afraid to tell me. It seems that Casey had two plastic pigs, one red and one blue, that he made using a plastic injection molding process in his seventh grade shop class. He had played with the pigs in the tub, and as he walked from the bathroom back to his room, water mixed with the color pigment dripped from the toy pigs.

We've tried a long list of cleaning agents, but nothing seems to cut touch the dyes. If you have any suggestions, I'm sure Casey would be glad to hear from you. He can be found hanging by his thumbs from a big tree in our back yard.

Once again this year we will be holding a fish-fry in April with Junior and Mary Jane De Loof furnishing the fish. Any of you who have attended one of these in the past know how delicious it is. Junior and Mary Jane catch all the fish on Sylvan Lake near Newaygo where they have their retirement home. M-mmm, GOOD!

Arrows fall short to Ionia, 79-69

By Denny Blough
The Lowell Red Arrows lost a tough game against Ionia last Tuesday, February 10, as the Arrows fell short 79-69.

Mike Dumas led the Arrows with 19 points and the two wing-men of Lonnie Swanson and Jay Messner scored 12 and ten points respectively to spark some offensive drive by the Red Arrows. When the two aggressive starters, Mike Dumas and Jeff Phillips, fouled out of the game late in the fourth quarter, juniors Ken Nelson and Paul Stroosnyder came off the bench to put up a struggle only to fall short in the closing minutes of the game.

On Friday, February 13 the Arrows matched up against a very strong and offensive Wyoming Rogers team. The Arrows lost the game in overtime with a score of 70-61. Junior Forward, Jeff Phillips, came alive for the Arrows in the second half to score 26 points for a seasonal game high. Mike Dumas in his third year of Varsity ball dropped in 22 points to add to the Arrows' score, and senior Lonnie Swanson added eight points. Good full court pressure in the second half kept the game close for the Arrows. Even with these two tough defeats, the Red Arrows give their fans an exciting ball game. The two losses drop-

AT&T ran into an unexpected problem with its first deep sea fiber-optic telephone cable -- shark bites. According to National Wildlife magazine, the company laid the first 72 miles of test cable in the Canary Islands in September 1985. When the cable was hoisted six months later, it had shark teeth embedded in it. Company officials believe that the sharks were attracted by movement of the cable or by the electric current that helps amplify signals.

Spring schedule for Planetarium starts February 26

The Roger B. Chaffee Planetarium, a facility of the Grand Rapids Public Museum will debut its spring season of sky shows with a timely program about - Weather.

"Everybody Talks About It - Weather" will begin Thursday, February 26 - June 13, 1987. Through dramatic audio-visual effects, this presentation carries visitors through the four seasons, where they experience the prevailing weather of each season. Visitors experience a tornado, thunderstorms, hail storms, blizzards and other weather events.

They learn how the variations in solar energy falling over West Michigan together with the influence of Lake Michigan bring about the weather typical of this region.

Local meteorology and news departments of local television stations assisted with the development of this program, including Bill Steffens of WZZM-TV 13 and Craig James of WOTV-TV 8.

The program is offered Thursday through Saturday at 8:00 p.m., and Fridays at 2:30 p.m. Beginning Saturday, February 28, 1987 the Chaffee Planetarium will present "Voyage Through the Milky Way." This all new program takes visitors on an imaginary journey through the stars of the Milky way and into the even greater spaces beyond. The programs will give visitors a better appreciation of the immense size of the universe and their rather humble place in it.

Numerous Planetarium visual effects are used to simulate the

FREESTYLE WRESTLING NOTES

The Lowell Wrestling Club will again offer area boys a sample of an Olympic wrestling program. This in one sport all boys can compete individually no matter of size or age.

Freestyle wrestling is sponsored by the United States Wrestling Association (USWA) of which our club is a chartered member. This group is responsible for the United States Olympic Team. The kids division is its largest division and has members through the age of 16.

The primary purpose of our club is a safe and and enjoyable introduction to the sport of wrestling, while also helping to build Lowell's High School Wrestling Team.

The young wrestler has the opportunity to test his skills in the art of wrestling at Saturday tournaments at local area schools. Participation at these tournaments is not mandatory but we do encourage them to compete.

We try to keep the costs to a bare minimum, fifteen dollars of the fee goes to the USWA for the card. This leaves ten dollars to fund the tournament fees for the wrestlers. There are 8 tournaments at a cost of three dollars per tournament for each wrestler.

The club provides the excess funds by holding local tournaments. The club requires that a parent or parents work a short period of time, approximately two hours, at a local tournament(s).

The officers of the Lowell Wrestling Club wish to invite all last year's members and any NEW members to this season. Any questions or comments can be directed to Bill Wheeler (897-7711), Fred Verspoor (676-2364) or Gary Rivers (897-7303).

Smokers: You can quit!

You're not alone if you're resolving to quit smoking in the new year. With the advent of Michigan's new clean indoor air act which took effect the first of the year, many people will choose to quit. You're also not alone if you are at a loss to figure out how others manage to actually succeed.

Most smokers know they should kick the habit. They realize that smoking poses a serious long-term threat to their health and well-being - a threat that grows more menacing with every cigarette they inhale. They may be aware of the terrifying statistics. Every year some 350,000 Americans die from disorders that can be directly attributed to cigarette smoking, such as heart attack, emphysema and lung cancer.

Cigarette smoking is the most important preventable cause of premature death in the United States, says the American Heart Association of Michigan (AHA/MI).

Given this grim information, it's easy to understand why smokers will admit they fervently wish to quit. But the task may seem next to impossible.

However, as Dr. Donald T. Frederickson, a physician and leading authority on quitting, emphasizes: "I am convinced beyond any shadow of a doubt that every cigarette smoker can stop smoking. And I mean every smoker. This is true no matter how long or how much you have smoked, or how addicted you may think you are."

It's never too late to benefit from quitting. Although some damage from long-term heavy smoking is irreversible, the health benefits are both immediate and cumulative when you stop smoking.

Each time you don't smoke a cigarette, you keep your arterial pulse rate from speeding up, the blood vessels that supply your heart and brain from constrict-ing, your blood pressure from rising, and the tiny air passages in your lungs from narrowing and losing their elasticity.

And the longer you abstain from smoking, the more benefits accrue. A smokeless day is better than a smokeless hour; a smokeless week is better than a smokeless day and so on. The improvement is something you'll actually feel.

Many behavioral specialists advocate a gradual program over a period of several weeks. Others advocate a "cold turkey" approach. Your own approach to "Quit Day" (or "Q-Day") is up to you. But experts and former smokers agree that before any anti-smoking program or tactic can work for you, you must honestly want to quit.

The next important step is to set a definite time, place and set of circumstances for quitting. Joining a group cessation program, even one as informal as the annual 24-hour National Smoke-Out, sponsored by the American Cancer Society, can be the catalyst that will help you to do this. But if you decide to tackle the job all by yourself, you can draw encouragement from a growing army of ex-smokers who have successfully undertaken the same challenge.

"If you look around, you can see that millions of people have quit," says Norman Hymowitz, Ph.D., of the New Jersey Medical School, a veteran smoking researcher and a member of the AHA's subcommittee on smoking. "At some point, most of them probably doubted that they could do it, too."

"The vast majority of people who quit do so on their own," Hymowitz adds. "But the 'cold-turkey' approach is frightening to many smokers, and a gradual smoking cessation program may be best for them because it will help them stop procrastinating and set a specific time to quit. Cessation programs can help break the habit down into manageable chunks, provide a structure for approaching the moment when you quit completely and build your confidence. Sooner or later, though, the time comes when you actually have to bite the bullet."

Whether you quit on your own or in an organized program, a careful process of self-assessment can be very helpful. "When they examine their own habits, lots of people find that they smoke far more than they thought," says Hymowitz, "and that they also smoke a lot of cigarettes they really don't want."

Once you have the information you need to quit, postponing the inevitable may not be the best course. Too gradual a withdrawal may actually heighten the chances of failure, according to Saul M. Shiffman and Murray E. Jarvik, M.D., Ph.D., of the UCLA School of Medicine. Their study showed that partial abstinence may cause a smoker's major withdrawal symptom - "severe craving for tobacco" - to last much longer than for those who quit "cold turkey."

Withdrawal symptoms tended to ease during the first few days for "cold turkey" quitters, the researchers found, making it easier to hold out until the symptoms ran their course. But smokers who merely tried to cut down often encountered "a chronic state of withdrawal" with prolonged symptoms.

In some people withdrawal symptoms may include irritability, aggression, anxiety or an inability to concentrate. Shiffman and Jarvik reported intense tobacco cravings several times a day, especially around 7 p.m. Many abstainers also experience tightness in the chest, slight dizziness, a "breathless" sensation, digestive upsets or unusual perspiration.

By State Senator
Dick Posthumus

A 15-member commission, created last March by Senate Republicans to study the state's property tax system and recommend long-term improvements, has called for a larger state contribution and a guaranteed minimum level of per-student school funding. The sweeping recommendations by the Citizen's Property Tax Commission on issues ranging from K-12 school financing to the Homestead Property Tax Credit are designed to create a state property tax structure that will be more equitable for all taxpayers. Commissioners discussed the possibility of increasing the state sales tax to pay for better school funding but only in conjunction with a guaranteed property tax cut.

One of its key proposals is a major change in the way K-12 schools are financed in Michigan. There is a wide disparity between what the top and bottom school districts spend per student throughout the state -- ranging from $1,750 to more than $5,000 -- and the commission worked to find a fairer distribution of available state and local resources. To guarantee lower property tax rates and raise the revenue for more state school funding, commissioners considered increasing the 4 percent state sales tax to 6 percent, a change which must be approved by state voters. To make property tax rates more equitable across the board, the commission recommends a statewide property tax. Although not set in stone, a 17 to 18 mill tax rate was suggested by the commission as an appropriate level.

The commission also recommends changes in tax abatement programs, possibly limiting tax breaks for new business to seven years instead of 12 unless a development has regional impact. It also suggests the Homestead Property Tax Credit upper limit income eligibility be lowered from more than $73,000 to $30,000. And it proposed a comprehensive study of whether tax abatements accomplish what they are designed to do, which is spur economic expansion.

Noting the lack of accountability and adequate funding, the commission recommended stricter standards and education for assessors and better funding for the assessment process. Homeowners currently have no idea if their assessment is accurate. Requiring minimum standards and an adequately funded appeals system is an important way to offer consistency and accountability to property owners.

Several panels have been set up to discuss reforms to the state property tax system, but the Senate was ahead of the pack when we created this Commission last March. Their findings will enable us to move forward quickly in bringing long-overdue improvements to our property tax system.

Boys need clothing skills education, too

In the past, we assumed that girls would take home ec classes and learn to care for the family clothes. These days are gone forever.

Young people are marrying later than ever before, and roles and expectations about the performance of household tasks are changing. These changes have affected the kinds of skills and abilities young people will need during their lives.

Clothing is important because of the first impression it makes on those around us. Boys, as well as girls, need to learn to choose clothes appropriately and to care for them.

Wardrobe planning is a concept young men often neglect. By making an overall wardrobe plan, boys can learn to shop for new clothes that will mix and match what they already have. By mastering this skill, they can stretch their clothing budgets and make a little look like a lot.

Boys can also be taught to look for quality in workmanship when they buy their clothes. Zippers should slide easily and the garment should be drycleaned or washed. Plaids and stripes should match where they meet.

Buttonholes should be well stitched and not frayed. Seams should be well stitched and seam edges finished so they won't ravel. Pocket corners and belt loops on jeans should be reinforced with heavy stitching or metal rivets.

All these features will help lengthen the life of a garment.

Because clothes tend to be expensive, it's important to care for them properly so they will last as long as possible.

Proper cleaning will increase the life of a garment. Boys should learn to examine care labels to know if their clothes need to be drycleaned or washed.

They should also learn appropriate laundering procedures. This means learning how to sort clothes by color and weight, what water and dryer temperatures to use, how much and what type of washing products to use, and how to operate a washer and dryer.

Clothing care also means making small repairs before problems get out of hand. Boys, just as well as girls, can learn to use a needle and thread to sew on buttons and restitch seams that have come apart.

And, of course, boys possess the skills to be just as good as girls at learning to operate a sewing machine to mend or make their clothes.

Education has been billed as a top priority for the Blanchard administration, but changing the system for school financing has received little attention from the governor's office.

The Legislature will have to take the lead on methods of school financing. The need to shift the burden of school funding from property taxes is very clear.

K-12 education is slated to receive the second largest chunk of the spending pie. The proposed budget for K-12 education is $2.7 billion, which is a 3.3 percent increase over the current fiscal year budget.

In past budgets, the Legislature has beefed up the education recommendations made by the administration. Lawmakers have voted to increase spending, but they are becoming more insistent about the need to more fairly and efficiently support our schools.

A controversial funding method for Michigan's four-year colleges and universities may present problems throughout the budget process. Included is the 5.7 percent increase in $15 million to be divided among the schools depending on curriculum, enrollment and other factors.

We should maintain consistent support for higher education in this state. At the same time, we should encourage institutions to keep tuition low so that education in Michigan remains affordable.

Is single-premium life insurance for you?

For many taxpayers, 1986 will be the last year that they can make a tax-deductible contribution to their IRA. But there are many other tax-favored savings plans to consider, suggests the Michigan Association of CPAs. One of them is single-premium life insurance plan.

Although it has its risks, this form of investment insurance offers taxpayers many of the same investment possibilities of an IRA. One distinct difference is that the benefits, when received by your beneficiaries, are tax-free.

As the name indicates, a single-premium life insurance policy is paid for by a one-time deposit of at least $5,000 and no more than $1 million. Although it is more than the maximum contribution allowed for an IRA, its safety and potential profitability make it a good investment for many people.

Under the terms of most single-premium policies, you cannot make more payments to the policy, but you can take out more than one policy. These policies are available in two forms: single-premium whole life and single-premium variable life.

The way a single-premium whole life policy works is, once you make a payment your money earns interest, usually at a higher level than a traditional savings account or a certificate of deposit (CD). The interest is guaranteed at the time of purchase for anywhere from one to five years, depending on the policy and it is adjusted annually thereafter to follow the prime rate. The company's fees and the cost of providing insurance are covered out of the earnings.

Single-premium variable life policies offer the same tax advantage but far more investment flexibility than single-premium whole life products. These products are variable both in the value of investment, changes with the market and the rate of return.

Who should consider a single-premium life insurance policy? Couples who want to save for their child's education might find this a good investment opportunity. They can buy a policy and let it earn interest, tax-deferred, until their child is old enough to go to college. Then, the money needed for tuition is borrowed from the policy. Also, if one of the parents should pass away before the child is old enough to go to school, especially in the case of a family with one wage-earner, the money for college is still there.

Those taxpayers who are nearing retirement may want to consider a single-premium policy. They can invest the money, watch it grow for a few years and then start borrowing from it, tax free. When the policyholder passes away, the death benefit, less the outstanding loan, passes to the beneficiary.

There are stipulations to the policies that all interested taxpayers should be aware of. If, for some reason, you need to use the money invested in the premium, there are surrender charges for getting out of the policy. Within the first few years, the payments are typically high. Then, as the policy matures, they are usually phased out.

However, suppose the couple facing retirement needs all the principal in their account before the policyholder passed away. They will have to pay taxes on any amount they borrow in excess of the cost of the policy, plus any other earnings that accumulated in the account.

Also, once the period of the guaranteed interest rate ends, it might not stay at the same relatively high level.

When looking at these policies, you will find them available from many different companies in many different forms. There are a few things interested taxpayers should consider before placing a large sum of money in an investment such as this.

What are the surrender charges? Find out how much they will be in each year of the policy.

How are the interest rates quoted? Are they gross rates (rates before the fees and mortality charges have been deducted) or are they net rates (rates with these charges already figured in)?

What is the death benefit? These policies are not primarily designed to provide benefits when the policyholder dies. Their popularity lies in the fact that they offer an investment opportunity. Still, it is important to know what the benefits are for your survivor.

And finally, what interest rate is charged on any amount borrowed from the principal? When borrowing the interest, investors usually don't have to repay. But if they borrow from the principal (which is common), they have to pay it back. Know what the rate is before investing.

Once you are in a single-premium policy, it is expensive in many cases to close the policy. Make sure this is where you want to place your money before committing yourself to this investment.

How long does it take you men to grow a beard? The first Lowell celebration weekend for Michigan's Sesquicentennial will be June 20, the Firemen's Muster. WANTED: an organization to sponsor a Brothers of the Brush contest. Call 897-8545 or 897-6430.

"A Year in the Life of Lowell" debuts Sunday

The public is invited to the opening reception of a photography exhibit at the Lowell Area Arts Council Gallery. The reception will be from 5:30 to 8 p.m., Monday, February 23.

The exhibit, entitled "A Year Of Life in the Lowell Area," is the work of Ben Olds and Dan Tell. Olds is the photographer and Tell the technician. It will hang in the gallery at 149 S. Hudson from February 22 through March 22.

In keeping with a theme established as a tradition when the gallery first opened, this is the 2nd annual show with a "Lowell Area" theme. The first show, last year, featured the industry of Lowell.

The conception for the photography show was developed well over a year ago when Ben Olds discussed the idea with gallery managers. Once the idea was formalized, Olds began taking the photographs and developing them with the help of Tell. The photographs depict scenes in the Lowell area in all seasons and capture residents in everyday events as well as special moments. Olds wanted the photographs to show what is uniquely Lowell so that it would be obviously "Lowell."

At 7 p.m. a special ceremony will honor members of the Chairman's Club and the President's Club of the Lowell Area Arts Council, designated because of their gifts during the recent financial campaign.

Regular hours at the LAAC Center Gallery are 1 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Kid's art classes start Saturday

Kid classes are beginning at the Lowell Area Arts Center this Saturday, February 21. Two art classes and a dance class are being offered.

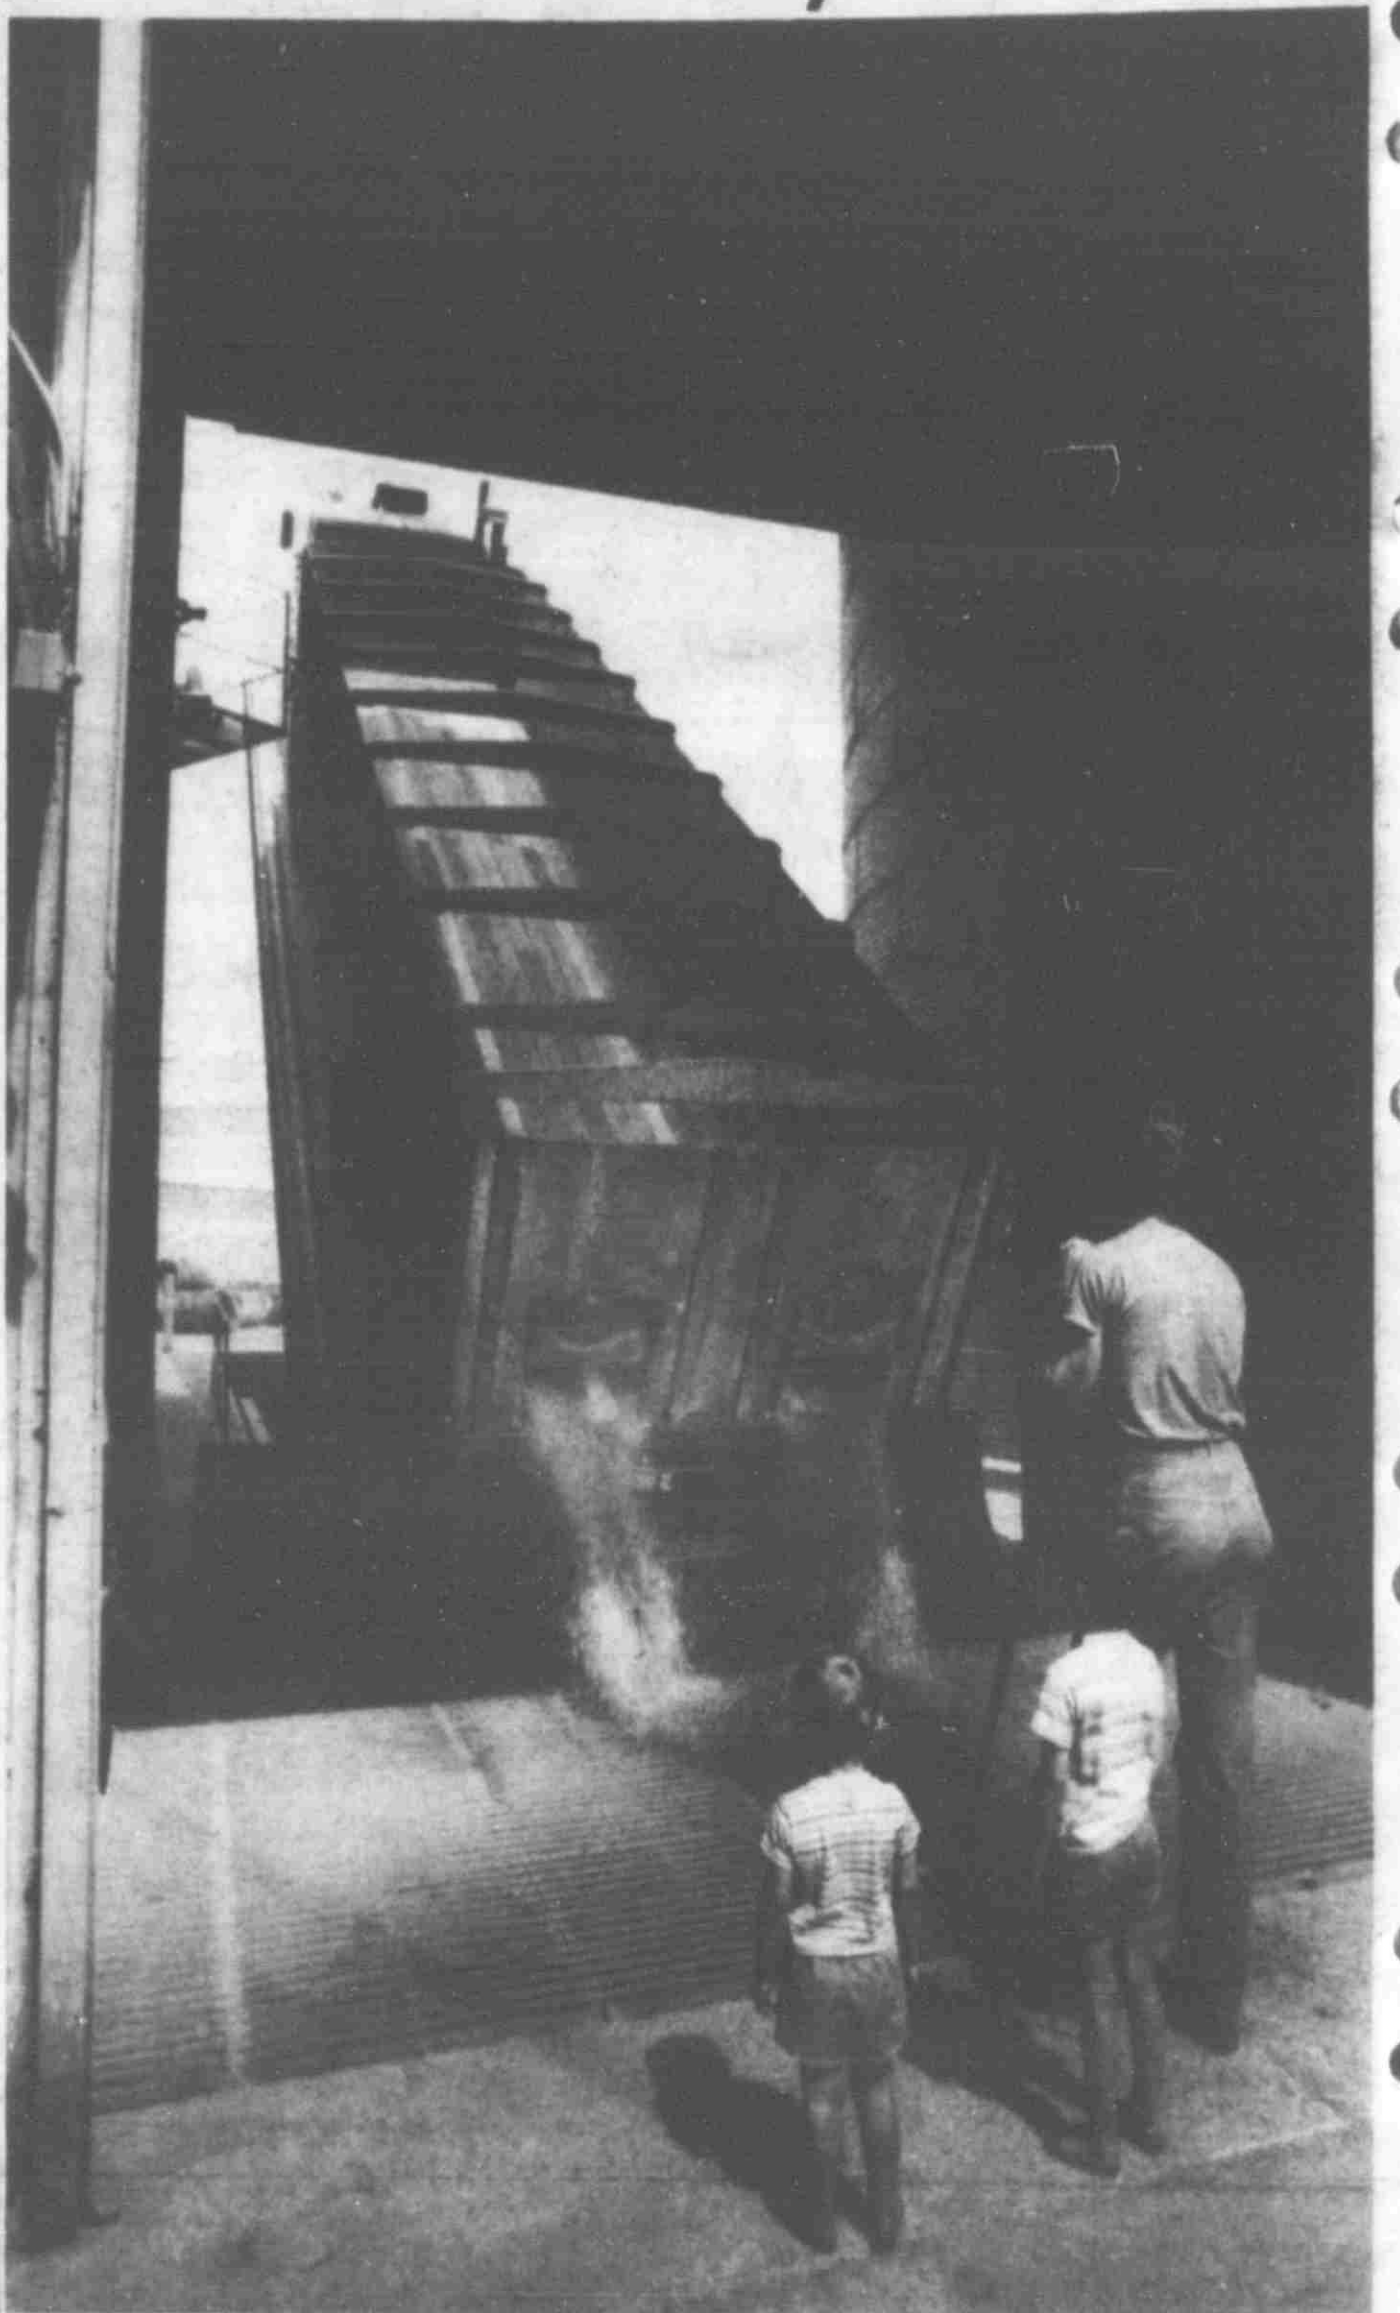

Art Class I is instructed by David Davis each Saturday from 10:45 a.m. through 12:30 p.m. The class is intended for children age 8-12. It offers a hands on study of VanGogh, Audubon and other masters, a visit to a pet shop and one day take-home projects such as origami, collage and more.

Art Class II is aimed at those aged 13-18 and is taught by Anne Boelema from 9:00 through 10:30 a.m. This is a mixed media class of visual arts projects to enrich, nurture, enhance and open up a whole new world for the adventurous older student who is excited about exploring art.

Dance Class is taught by Fenna Stoub from 10:00 until 11:15 a.m. Students age 8-12 are invited to uncover the hidden dancer within them through a series of creative dance forms and interpretations.

Cost for all the above classes is $15.00 for LAAC members and $17.00 for non-members. To register, call 897-8545 any afternoon. Hurry, registration is limited.

A typical scene at King Milling Company becomes a depiction of childhood wonder in Ben Olds' photograph, one of a group depicting "A Year Of Life In the Lowell Area" which will hang in the LAAC Gallery February 22 - March 22.
