City gets E.P.A. grant for sewage treatment plant

the Council Chambers of in Lowell City Hall Monday evening. Former City Manager Ray Quada read the Councilmen a letter from the Environmental Protection Agency announcing a federal grant of that $3,575,500 had been awarded ject should roll along very for the construction of a secondary sewage treatment plant awarded, the city has been inhere. The Councilmen and the

A rare round of applause rose audience applauded the an- project for bids by May 1, 1987 nouncement which had been a long time coming.

> The award of the grant is the culmination of years of work by the city government, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and the E.P.A. The proquickly now. With the grant structed to let the $6.27 million and to award the winning bid by July 1, 1987. Construction must begin on the new plant by August 1, 1987 and the plant is ordered to be operational by July 1. 1988.

The federal grant amounts to 55% of the required funding for the new plant. The remaining 45% will come mostly from the city. Lowell Township will be contributing to the project on a small scale and will be allowed some usage when the plant goes on line. The city has $550,000 earmarked for the construction of the new plant, but bonds will have to be sold to raise the additional money needed. The total amount of bonds to be sold will depend on the final cost of the plant, but the total could exceed $2 million.

The bonds will be paid with revenues from increased sewer rates. Typical residential sewer rates now range from $10 to $12 per month. Lowell sewer customers can expect to pay up to $30 per month when the new rates go into affect. Lowell City Attorney Richard Wendt says the new rates will likely be phased in as bonds are sold to pay for construction. The new rates will not reach probably their maximum until the construction is complete. Sewer bills will continue to be based on a minimum charge plus additional charges for more water usage. The city's water rates will remain the same except for normal adjustments. The E.P.A. grant does not affect the lawsuit filed against the city in March of 1986. The E.P.A. suit charged that Lowell was in violation of the Clean Waters Act because a July 1, 1985 deadline to meet pollutant discharge levels was not met. The city argued that it was impossible to build the secondary sewage treatment plant neccesary to meet the discharge standards without federal assistance. The E.P.A. claims Lowell discharges about 600 pounds of pollutants into the Flat River each day. The city's discharge permit allows for only 363 pounds. The suit carries a hefty penalty of up to $10,000 per day from the July 1, 1985 deadline. Wendt says a meeting is scheduled for May 9 between city officials and E.P.A. representatives. Wendt says the city will likely be asked to sign a consent decree spelling out strict deadline requirements for the construction of the new sewage treatment plant. Wendt says the lawsuit will be dropped if the consent decree is signed, but he was quick to point out that it must be a decree that the city can abide by. According to Wendt, the proposed deadlines are all strict, but the most bothersome is the requirement to have the plant operational by July 1, 1988. "The engineers are already telling us that's going to be a tough deadline to meet," Wendt

Even if the city and the E.P.A. negotiate and sign the consent agreement, Wendt feels there will still be a fine and costs involved. Wendt does feel the E.P.A. wants to settle this matfrom Washington and another from the Chicago office, so it looks like we'll have some decision makers at the meeting." Wendt said.

New ordinance approved

The Lowell City Council unanimously approved a new special events ordinance. The ordinance deals specifically with events that take place on city streets, roads and rights-of-way. Under the provisions of the new ordinance, the city manager can issue a permit for events lasting less than four hours. This allows such functions as parades to obtain a permit without complying with all the requirements listed in the lengthy document and obtaining city council approval.

The ordinance requires liability insurance to protect the city from any claims. It also specifies that only non-profit organizations can operate as vendors within the area outlined in each permit. Existing businesses in an area where a special event is to take place are excluded from the "non-profit only" provision for vendors, and will be allowed to operate normally.

The council set May 4 as a date for a public hearing regarding a ordinance variance for the True Value Hardware Store now under construction on West Main Street. The ordinance requires six more parking spaces than proposed on the store's site plan. Construction was allowed to begin since the required spaces could be added to the west side of the building if the variance is not approved.

The councilmen authorized acting City Manager, Barry Emmons, to seek bids on several street projects. The construction of a connector street between the west end of Sibley and Main is one portion of the project. The re-surfacing of Valley Vista and Church Streets from Sibley to Main, and Hudson from Chatham to Spring were lumped off as another portion. Lafayette from Main to Avery, and portions of Grindle and Gee Drives were designated as the third part of the total project. When the bids are received the council will determine how much of the project will be completed this year.

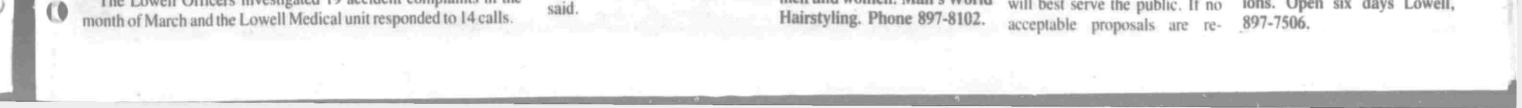

A public hearing was set for May 4 to hear a request for a sign variance for D&D Truck Service on West Main St. Owner Don Fizer explained that moving his sign back to the required 75 feet from the center of the roadway would place the sign in his service drive. Fizer also explained that the sign must be visible for large trucks to see it in time to make a safe stop in the 45 mile per hour speed zone.

The councilmen discussed concessions at Creekside Park. It was decided to ask for proposals from non-profit organizations and individuals. The City Council will select the proposal that will best serve the public. If no ceived, the city might operate the concession on its own.

Councilman Bill Thompson proposed that the Council take some action one way or another on the Lowell Airport. Thompson has often been vocal about the city's expense in operating the airport. He feels that too few Lowell residents benefit from the money expended. Emmons said he would contact the Grand Rapids School of the Bible and Music in regard to their intentions at the airport. Former City Manager, Ray Quada, voiced his concerns about a Vergennes Township residential overlay zoning ordinance which may restrict development of the airport in any case.

Mayor James Maatman noted that the deadline for applicants to the vacant city manager's position has passed. Maatman said he wanted a committee of councilmen to review the numerous applications, and weed out the ones that do not meet the requirements. A special City Council Meeting was set for Monday. May 13 to review the remaining applicants. Much or all of the meeting will be closed to the public, as many of the applicants have requested confidentiality.

Appointments not always needed at Vanity Hair Fashions. Open six days Lowell.

"That's the good news," Judy Baird told the West Central Michigan Historical Society at their first meeting of the year on March 24. The Grand Rapids has Foundation $10,000; the Steelcase Foundation will give $12,500, provided WCMHS raises double that amount toward purchase of at least one property in the historical village of Fallasburg.

"The bad news is that a considerable sum needs to be raised yet, before October when the offers will be withdrawn," she said, "WCMHS has raised $4,000 so far, which brings the total to $26,5000. We need $11,000 yet to meet the matching funds requirement, plus over $5,000 additional to purchase our first choice property."

"The Essential Insurance Reforms I sponsored last year created the authority and earmarked more than $5 million for it to help stop auto theft in Michigan," said Posthumus, committee chair. "Unfortunately, the authority has not aggressively addressed the issue, and I'm offering Senate Bill 200 to increase out control of its work.

Posthumus' bill reduces the current $1 assessment charged through insurance premiums which funds the authority to 75cents collected through vehicle registrations issued by the Secretary of State's Office. The new formula means more vehicles will contribute to the fund, and will help reduce the authority's bureaucracy.

"We wanted the authority to coordinate anti-theft efforts of state police, county sheriff departments and local police agencies," explained Posthumus, Assistant Majority Leader. "They all need more money for more anti-car theft tools, like computers, squad cars, radios and other personnel. And the authority must be sure money is allocated for these things.

Posthumus' bill reduces the length of the terms served by authority directors from four years to two, and changes the authority's expiration date changed from July 1, 1991 to July 1, 1989.

"That gives the Legislature more control of the authority and those who are appointed to run it," said Posthumus. "It's clear to me that these people just aren't doing their job.

DIVERTICULAR DISEASE

Diverticulosis and diverticulitis are very common medical problems usually seen in middle aged or older patients. As we age, the wall of the large intestine seems to weaken. Pressure from inside the colon causes a small bulge or bubble to protrude from the wall. These small pouches are called diverticuli. When diverticuli are present, the condition is called diverticulosis. Approximately 50% of Americans over the age of 40 will have begun to develop diverticuli, however, most will never be bothered by the Diverticulosis seems to be associated with a diet high in fat and low in fiber. Diverticulosis is rare in countries where the diet is high in fruits, vegetables and grains.

Most people who have diverticulosis will never be bothered by symptoms as it is not usually a disease but just a condition of the bowel. However, when a diverticuli becomes infected or inflamed, pain and other problems can occur. This condition is known asdiverticulitis. A diverticulum becomes inflamed when high pressures in the bowel force stool contents into the diverticulum. If this material becomes trapped inside the diverticulum it can harden and lead to irritation or infection. Diverticulitis is usually treated with antibiotics and, at times, may require hospitalization. People with diverticulosis can avoid diverticulitis by eating foods high in fiber and drinking plenty of liquids. Fiber promotes large. soft bowel movements. Stools should be soft enough to pass without unnecessary straining. Straining leads to increased pressure within the bowel lumen which can result in more diverticuli formation A colon full of very hard packed stool impedes gas flow which an also increase pressure and possibly weaken diverticuli. Dietary fiber can easily be maintained by eating wheat bran or by taking fiber supplements such as Metamucil®, Fiberall®, etc. You can get plenty of fiber by emphasizing certain foods in your diet like wheat grain breads and cereals, fruits - apples, apricots, prunes and pears; vegetables - carrots, corn, peas, and spinach. Remember, the best treatment for diverticulitis is prevention.

The 1986 Annual Report of the Office of the Drain Commissioner was presented: (All have received copies and a copy is on file in the Office of the County Clerk.)

Commissioner DeVriendt moved to receive and file the Drain Commissioner's Annual Report. Seconded by Commissioners Buth, Lorch and Hiddema. Motion carried.

Commissioner Kuipers commented on the bond conversion for the Mass Burn Incinerator. The goal of the County to convert the bonds at this time from variable to fixed rate was on target. Two major New York banks announced increases in their prime interest rate yesterday. Every day the conversion is delayed it raises additional risk and the possibility of increasing the cost.

Commissioner DeKraker asked if a ruling had been by the Internal Revenue Service on tax exempt made bonds.

Controller Richard Platte indicated that no ruling had been made. He explained that at the Committee of the Whole Meeting on Friday the County Treasurer reported the sale of delinquent tax notes at 4.44 percent interest. Late Friday the staff learned that the Internal Revenue Service was about to declare all tax anticipation notes taxable rather than tax exempt. Although the decision has not been issued, the threat has prevented the County from closing on the tax note sale. It is the intent of the Federal Government to climinate as many tax exempt bonds as possible . Commissioner TerHorst presented copies of the Kent County Library System Goals and Ofjectives, a five year plan, as revised, March, 1987. At 9:34 a.m. Commissioner DeKraker moved to adjourn, subject to the call of the Chairman and to Friday, May 1, 1987 at 9:00 a.m. for a Committee of the Whole Meeting and to Wednesday, May 6, 1987 at 9:00 a.m. for an Official Meeting . Seconded by Commissioner DeVriendt.

11 Grande Byn, ta

While on vacation a couple of years ago, one of my employees made some sales calls for me. One of the newer merchants in town thought this employee was my daughter. Since she is only nine years younger than me, I was immediately subjected to a barrage of jokes about my age, and the fact that my gray hair, extra weight and stodgy clothes make me look even older than I am. Terese seemed to take particular glee in all this as she chided me about the incident.

Terese has suggested that I color my hair in an attempt to look younger. She has told me I would look younger if I lost some weight. She has ridiculed my wardrobe as being old fashioned. She has even gone so far as to recommend I get my ear pierced like her latest TV idol, Bruce Willis. I responded to that one by suggesting I could wear my Rotary pin in my ear on Wednesdays. I haven't heard any more about ear piercing.

I wish I had a book of quotes handy. There have been hundreds of very witty remarks made about revenge. The abundance of clever remarks made by famous people on the subject indicates that revenge is a pleasure to be truly savored. I couldn't savor anything more than a little event that took place this past weekend.

Terese, her youngest sister Chris and our daughter Angie went to the malls clothes shopping on Saturday. Chris is eleven years younger than Terese, and Angie is eleven years younger than Chris. If I told you that Angie is thirteen, a little simple math would tell you how old Terese is! They ended up in the department store where Chris works, and she was approached by one of her fellow employees. Before the introductions could be made, the employee blurted out, "Oh, this must be your mother" and gestured toward Terese. She also thought that Angie was Chris' little sister.

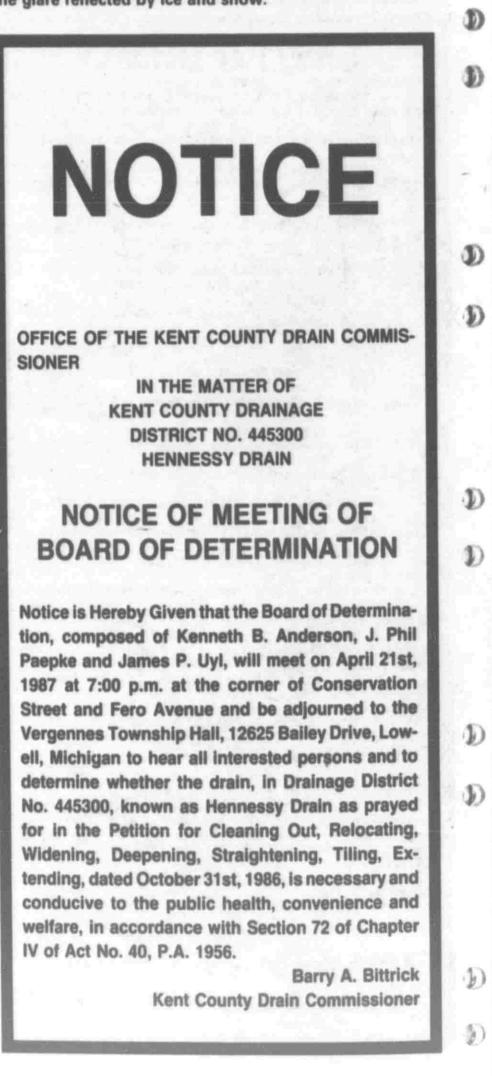

I know that somewhere in the world the sun was shining and the spring flowers swayed in a gentle breeze. But, I also know that at that particular instant in that particular department store, a very cold dark cloud settled over a small conversation. It wasn't the type of weather phenomeon that Willard Scott would tell you about, but I know that cloud was there.

I'm told that Terese wasted no time in setting the young sales clerk straight. And, I'm sure she did so in no uncertain terms. In fact, I'm surprised I didn't read about the incident in the metro section of the Sunday paper. I can see the headlines now. "Irate woman attacks and maims sales clerk," or "Fire Department extracts lingerie display from sales clerk's mouth.'

My only trouble with all this is that I don't quite know how to rub it in. I can't suggest she color her hair, because she already does. I can't tell her to lose weight, because she is already dieting and is enrolled in an exercise program. I can't tell her to change her wardrobe, because I think she spends too much on clothes now. And, I can't tell her to have her ears pierced, because they already are.

I guess I'll have to be content to sit back with my gray hair, spare tire, stodgy clothes and intact ears, as I simply savor this sweet moment of revenge.

"We will do something this summer that has never been done before," Governor Blanchard said. "Our goal is to make sure that no 18-through 21-year-old who cannot find work will go jobless this summer.

"With the additional support that I have asked the Legislature to provide, we can keep this pledge," the Governor said. "It is a wise investment in Michigan's future and the future of our young people.

This year's Youth Corps also will continue to provide an effective link to future private sector employment. In 1986, nearly 80% of Youth Corps members went on to jobs or additional education or job training.

Applications are available at all Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) offices, Michigan Employment Security offices, Department of Social Services (DSS) local offices, community colleges, colleges and universities.

The DSS also will mail 60,000 applications directly to the homes of public assistance clients who are eligible for the Youth Corps.

Youth Corps jobs give workers a chance to earn approximately $1,000 over the summer at $3.35 an hour. This year, all Youth Corps workers will receive employability skills training geared toward individual needs. Special services will also be provided to Youth Corps participants who are high school dropouts.

Under the leadership of the Youth Corps Opportunities Group, a special advisory panel appointed by Gov. Blanchard to advise the Youth Corps, a job placement assistance program will be expanded. Called the "Employer Honor Roll," Michigan businesses will guarantee job interviews to all persons who successfully complete the program. In 1986, 16 businesses participated in the Honor Roll.

The Youth Corps is the largest state-sponsored summer youth employment program in the nation. It has provided more than 73,000 summer jobs since it was established by Gov. Blanchard and the legislature in 1983.

When the rains come to the southern Arizona desert each year, spadefoot toads emerge from below the ground. According to National Wildlife magazine, these desert toads mate at night and lay their eggs near pools of water. As the water begins to recede, the tadpoles hatch and mature. The spadefoot toads then resort to voluntary burial. There they will remain buried alive -- until new rains come to the desert the following

Exchange student teaches class

Lowell High School student Jose Luis Fernandez Garcia, exchange student from Malaga, Spain, recently taught an eight week course in conversational Spanish for Lowell Community Education. Having never taught before, Jose was understandably a little nervous at first, but soon overcame his fear and did an excellent job! Utilizing talents and skills wherever they can be found is typical of "Community" Education, and why our logo says, "Everyone learns, everyone teaches."
